TAXES BETTER PAID IN THIS YEAR, REPORTS

$599,428 OF $659,269 PAID IN UP UNTIL YESTERDAY, COLLECTOR TELLS FINANCE COMMITTEE.

TO INVESTIGATE NEW MUNICIPAL BANK PLAN

The taxes this year have been met by taxpayers almost as well as last year, and a great deal better than in 1919 and 1918. A statement from Tax Collector W. J. Green at a finance meeting last night showed that of the total roll of $659,269.38, there had been paid to September 30, $599,428.11, leaving a balance of $59,841.27.

The total per cent. of the taxes paid is 90.92, compared with 94.5 per cent. in 1920, 54.5 in 1919, and 67.8 per cent. in 1918.

The committee extended W. J. Green's appropriation for office expenses to $520 for the salary of an assistant in the office during September and October. On motion of Aldermen N. Phelan and R. Morrison, the further grant was made.

Mr. Green asked for a week's holidays during October, while he has an assistant, and, on motion of Ald. F. Whitehouse, this was granted.

Municipal Banking.

City Treasurer F. Adams was asked by Ald. Turner to investigate the scheme of municipal banking as carried on in Birmingham, England, where the municipality secures money at four per cent. from its citizens, which it would, by issue of debentures, have to pay six or seven per cent. for. Ald. G. N. Gordon's letter in this regard with other information was referred to Mr. Adams for analysis.

An increase in the rate of interest on the $33,000 park debentures, which have not been offered for sale yet, was made from 5½ to 6½ per cent. A by-law will be introduced in Council to change the rate of interest on these debentures.

Ald. J. J. Turner presided, with Mayor McIntyre, Ald. N. E. Phelan, Ald. G. L. Hay, Ald. R. Morrison, and Ald. Frank Whitehouse present.

FLOATING FOOT BRIDGE TO INDIAN RESERVE

For the convenience of visitors to the Chemong Indians' Fair next Thursday a floating foot bridge will provide a crossing from the Ennismore shore to the reserve. It is a section of the old Pigeon Creek bridge, and will be temporarily anchored at the Curve Lake landing. The work of moving this section of the bride will begin on Monday, under the superintendncy of Reeve Holland, of Ennismore. Dan Whitrung, Jr., stated that the ferry would be working for those who have transport their cars, but others feel quite satisfied with leaving cars on the Ennismore shore.

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year, there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not quite so happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many people lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad. Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

Trent Towns With New Rinks And Others Mooted, Looking Forward to Winter Sports

Lakefield with a new $15,000 rink, Warkworth with its $6,000 one, Norwood with pledges amounting to $4,000 also for rink purposes and both Havelock and Hastings inclined to get busy in the same direction, comprise a list of Trent district preparations for winter sports that is highly encouraging.

From all accounts the Lakefield rink, affording separate accomodation for hockey and curling, is rapidly nearing completion. Warkworth's new structure is built on the Fair Grounds and will be formally opened on Thursday, October 6th, by the Hon. Manning Doherty and Mr. Lockie Wilson. It is equipped with collapsible stalls, which, after accomodating some of the stock exhibited at the Fair, can be pushed back against the wall, leaving everything set for winter. The sheet of ice will be of O.H.A. regulation size, and ample room has been set apart for spectators.

Both Lakefield and Warkworth are going in for the best hockey they can provide. The northern village is talking both intermediate and junior O.H.A. teams, and as for the curlers, they are looking forward to a bigger season than ever, in keeping with their city-sized rink.

Other Plans in Air.

Norwood is seriously considering the construction of a new rink, but it is not definitely known whether the promoters of the scheme have overcome the financial obstacles. They look toward their smaller neighbour, Keene, and find the Otonabee men well equipped for the winter games. On the other hand, Norwood's curlers, Wildman, Jack McKelvie, Tom Finlay, Fred. Kempt and the rest of the faithful who have been keeping their hand in the game under the greatest disadvantages, feel that they are entitled to a new rink however modest.

Hastings is stirring to the conviction throughout the Trent district that adequate accomodation for winter sports and games is not only an attraction for the young people, a desirable social and healthful influence, but is also needed by the old-timers, especially by those men who follow curling.

Campbellford's Prospects.

After one of the biggest lacrosse seasons in Campbellford's history, which practically every citizen feels should have brought the intermediate championship to the Trent, the fans are gradually realizing that they have the nucleus of a good hockey team. Cliff. Weston, Len. Hill, Johnson Graham and three or four other prospects would make a tidy intermediate O.H.A. team, and other material not yet fully uncovered may be available. It is stated that one of the seven famous Schnarr brothers of Kitchener has been working in Campbellford this year. Barney Gannon of the lacrosse team is credited with hockey ability and experience. As far as players go the hockey crowd are confident that they can turn out a couple of fast teams, intermediate and junior, providing they can make satisfactory financial arrangements with the owner of the rink.

It is generally admitted that Campbellford should have a more commodious hockey and skating rink. The curlers in their separate quarters are comfortably fixed, and although the area of the hockey ice is satisfactory, the accomodation for spectators requires obvious improvements for the benefit of the public, and also to enable the hockey teams to collect enough money for their ordinary expenses. Local fans state that something should be started as soon as possible instead of waiting until December when any efforts would be too late for the approaching season.

GENERAL HUGHES OF BOWMANVILLE AND MAJOR SNIDER, OF PORT HOPE, WERE THE JUDGES

THE PRIZE-WINNERS

JANETVILLE, Oct., 1. — A happy spirit of enthusiasm prevailed throughout the entire day of the Rural School Fair, for the North Manvers district, which was held at Janetvlle on Thursday, September, 29th.

The attendance was estimated at between three and four hundred people, and on all sides was heard the comment that this was, without doubt, the most successful school fair ever held in that section.

Six out of the seven schools competing were represented in the parade which was an admirable one from every standpoint, and for which Major-General Hughes, of Bowmanville, and Major Snider of Port Hope acted as judges, finally announcing their decision as follows: 1st North Janetville S. S. No. 16; 2nd Janetville, S. S. No. 7, 3rd Fleetwood, S. S. No. 6, 4th Bethel, S. S. No. 10 5th Franklin, S. S. No. 11; 6th Yelverton S. S. No. 1.

For physical culture the standing was 1st Franklin S. S. No. 11; 2nd Bethel, S. S. No. 10; 3rd Fleetwood, S. S. No. 6.

The Exhibits

The exhibit in the tent was especially good, and the judges found the task of awarding the prizes a difficult one since both quantity and quality were excellent; some of the regular fall fairs in the larger centres could hardly show a better, or more tempting, array of cooking, particularly layer cakes, than were exhibited on Thursday. The boy's driving contest had an unusually large number of entries, and was watched with keen interest.

The silver cup goes to Franklin school this year and Miss O'Brian, the teacher, was justifiably proud of the honor of carrying home the coveted trophy after the decision was announced.

Guest Towel—1—Dorothy McNeil 2— Thelma McMullen, 3— Bessie Bradburn, 4—Henrietta Jones, 5—Gerald Blatherwick, 6.—Bessie Howe.

BUTTER UP 5-8 CENTS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The tone of the market for oats was easier, with prices down ½ cent a bushel. A feature of the flour market was the increased demand for Canadian spring wheat grades, but the domestic market was without feature. A fair business is passing in millfeed, and the market for rolled oats is steady. There is nothing new in the baled hay market. A steady demand with good trade prevails in eggs, and the demand for potatoes is better. Prices are up 5-8c per pound for butter, and a much stronger feeling obtains for cheese.

CANADA LIKELY TO WIN FIGHT AGAINST ARTICLE TEN

GENEVA, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Hon. Chas. J. Doherty, Canadian representative at the league of nations assembly, has reduced to a minimum the chances of final rejection at this session of the assembly of his amendment which would eliminate Article Ten from the covenant of the league of nations. The sub-committee having this matter in hand had decided upon rejection and adopted an interpretative resolution to the effect that Article Ten was never intended to perpetuate geographical and political divisions as they now exist, but merely as a safeguard against external aggression.

IRISH OUTLOOK THOUGHT BRIGHT

SINT FEIN ACCEPTANCE DRAFTED IN VERY SHORT PERIOD—NO CONDITIONS ATTACHED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Although the Dail Eireann "cabinet" sat for nearly three hours yesterday and Eamonn de Valera and Arthur Griffith did not leave the Mansion House until a late hour last evening, the discussion of the reply to Mr. Lloyd George's invitation to a conference occupied only a short portion of the proceedings, which were devoted mainly to other business. Decision on the reply to the prime minister was unanimous, all argumentative points by general consent, having been ignored.

Besides the full "cabinet" only Propaganda Minister Fitzgerald and Secretary Kevin O'Higgins were present at the meeting. Harry Boland of New York saw the leaders after the meeting and bade them farewell. He is returning to the U.S.

During the day some telegrams from English smpathizers with the Irish cause were received. These urged the cabinet to accept Mr. Lloyd George's invitation without argument.

The Irish reply raised no question as to the status of the Sinn Fein delegates, and no further correspondence between the prime minister and the Irish leader is expected.

"Our respective positions have been stated and understood, and we agree that conference, not correspondence, is the most practical and hopeful way to an understanding," said Mr. De Valera's message in announcing that the Irish delegates would meet Mr. Lloyd George on the date the prime minister had set.

GALES BLOWING FROM 50 TO 60 MILES AN HOUR WRECKS BUILDINGS AND CUTS COMMUNICATION.

AUTOMOBILES BLOWN ABOUT IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press). — Accompanied by a fifty-mile-an-hour gust of wind, a rainstorm of tropical violence struck this city yesterday afternoon around 4 o'clock, felling trees, smashing windows, tearing copings from roofs, and even blowing conveyances across the roads. No serious injuries are reported as yet, although three pedestrians were struck by a Ford car which was blown onto the sidewalk, but very considerable damage has been done.

The telegraph companies are the principal sufferers, most of the wires out of Montreal being out of commission. The tramway service was held up for some hours, and in some parts of the city the lighting was seriously affected.

At St. Anne's, near here, the same conditions obtained, while at Vaudreuil a coping was blown from a house and many trees were felled.

At Brockville the roof of the Opera House was blown clear off the building.

BALLANTYNE REPLIES TO KING ON MARINE

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— Speaking here last night, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister, made a strong plea for the support of Quebec and reiterated that the tariff was the vital issue in the campaign.

Mr. Meighen believed the people of Quebec wanted conditions to improve with concord and good feeling. There was abundant evidence of that desire, but there were some who appeared determined that it would not be accomplished. "There are some who appeal in language that is no better than treason to the electors of this province to rise up and be revenged on the rest of Canada. I ask, I implore you to remember that the men who make these appeals are politicians," the prime minister urged when suggesting to his audience and to the people of the other provinces as well such politicians should not be taken seriously. Votes were the only objects of appeals. But such conduct was treasonable whether defined in this manner or not. It was treasonable to Canada, "the land we love."

The other provinces did not feel, nor could they be brought to feel that there was cause for revenge either way. The other provinces wanted to join with Quebec in deciding the issues of the day and not the issues of the past. The other provinces wanted to take that course because it was best for Canada. "I hope I won't be misunderstood when I ask you all to respond to their aspirations," the prime minister appealed, when asking that the big men of Quebec meet him on this ground and conduct a battle that would carry no memories of the lamentable divisions of the past. A failure either way would be a calamity beyond repair.

Tariff Vital Issue.

The tariff policy rested at the base of all hope of stability and prosperity in Canada. Every province in the dominion would lose through a wrong decision on the tariff issue, but no province would lose more than Quebec. The tariff issue was extremely vital. There was a party headed by Mr. Crerar and Mr. Wood, although Mr. Meighen felt he should reverse the order of these names, who had conducted for several years most determined propaganda aimed to reverse the tariff policies of this country. This party hoped to achieve this goal by means of the coming election. They had built up a great organization. They

NO SNIPERS' SHELTER.

There are people—unfortunately too many of them—who consider a newspaper's principal function is to allow them to attack from under cover anybody or any cause they do not happen to endorse. They send in unsigned communications to their favourite journal for publication violently assailing some person to whom they are hostile and then regard it as a personal affront if their letters instead of appearing in print drop into the oblivion of the waste-paper basket. Such individuals are most frequently encountered at election times, so with a campaign opening in Peterborough The Examiner wishes to make it clear that it does not propose to have its columns used by the snipers of any shade of politics to attack opponents from ambush. It will be a sheer waste of time sending in anonymous letters of this kind expecting them to be published. Citizens having anything of a contentious nature to say about anybody will be expected to write over their own names and to have those names published, otherwise their letters will be destroyed. The Examiner does not propose to be used as a shelter for cowardly individuals who prefer to do their fighting under cover, and this might as well be understood at the beginning of the campaign.

BASEBALL INTEREST.

Commenting upon the deep interest that many Peterborough people, like their fellow Canadians everywhere, display in the results of the professional baseball games in the United States, a well-known citizen declares that this interest is proof that the Canadian people are becoming "Americanized," and he deplored the attention paid to baseball and the space given it by Canadian newspapers. This seems a good deal like tilting at wind-mills. Canadians are interested in baseball because it is a good game, and they like it; not because it is the national pastime of the United States. As a matter of fact, it is really of British origin, for it is only a scientific development of the old English game of rounders. It has become more and more popular in Canada on its own merits, and naturally Canadians take an interest in the exploits of the finest exponents of the game, who are found across the line. They are no worse Canadians because of that interest, nor is their love for British institutions weakened in the least by reason of their anxiety to know what Babe Ruth has been doing or who has beaten the Athletics.

HELPING THE ARMY.

The splendid community service already rendered by the Salvation Army in Peterborough is to be augmented by a development of the work on behalf of young people and the establishment of suitable quarters for this purpose. This cannot be accomplished, of course, without considerable expenditure, and to meet the additional expense a sale of work is being arranged for November in the carrying out of which the assistance of the public is being asked. In its social service work the Salvation Army makes use of the waste material of humanity, taking the derelicts and the strays and the unfortunates winning them back to better things and placing their feet upon the road of good citizenship. In the sale of work which is being arranged the local corps will follow the same principle. They ask the public to donate to them goods and articles that can be renovated or repaired or reconstructed. In every household there are such articles of no particular utility, perhaps, to their present owners, but capable of being converted into saleable goods by the willing workers of the Salvation Army. To the citizens generally the appeal will be made to donate these superfluous articles to the Army, and The Examiner has no hesitation in commending the drive to the generosity of its readers. The cause well deserves the support of this community.

ONE SOLUTION.

The plan by which it is proposed that the Dominion and Provincial Governments should assist the municipalities in carrying on public works for the benefit of the unemployed appears to be a sensible one. Last winter the two Governments paid a share of the doles given out by the cities and towns to citizens in want as a result of the industrial depression. That was a temporary policy, unsound no matter what angle it was considered from and justified only because the need was great and there was little opportunity to consider ways and means of meeting the emergency. But the experiment, although it kept starvation away, was not a success, and it should not be repeated during the coming winter. The providing of work is a much better plan. In every municipality there are civic enterprises to be carried out which, under normal conditions, would only be undertaken in the proper season for such work. To do them during the cold weather adds considerably to the cost, so that it is proposed that the Dominion and Provincial Governments shall make up to the municipalities the difference between the normal expenditure of such work and its cost when undertaken in the off season. A sewer, for instance, might be built in the proper season for outdoor work for $10,000. Constructing it during the winter might run the cost up to $14,000. If the suggested plan is carried out the Federal Government and Provincial Government would each contribute $2,000 towards the expenditure required for the job. The municipality would pay just what it would pay for the work done in the proper season, employment would be found for many of those out of work and the demoralizing effect of paying men an allowance without any work in return would be done away with. It is a much more commendable policy than the dole system of last winter.

LET'S ABOLISH THE "CONSTRUCTION SEASON."

There's a lesson for engineers, architects, constractors, public officials and leaders in public affairs in the present somewhat alarming unemployment situation, and it is, that we must get out of the habit of thinking that building is a seasonal affair.

That any industry should attempt to absorb and distribute over a period of from five to seven months an overhead that naturally should be spread over a twelve-months' period is folly. The practice of doing so in the construction industry, as a result of habit that the public has been allowed to form without opposition, is one of the contributing causes of the high cost of building; and, as I have said in the attached editorial from the American Contractor, dependable stabilization of prices and establishment of prosperity cannot be attained until production and demand are kept more nearly in step.

Public works of every kind are badly needed. If private enterprise does not see fit to take the initiative in helping to operate the balance wheel of the construction industry, then public officials and all leaders in municipal affairs, backed by the taxpayers whose money is available or will readily be forthcoming for much needed improvements, have a chance to distinguish themselves in hastening that much talked of prosperity, in the immediate start of all work of public character. By doing so not only will the various municipalities or communities be enriched, but we will have the happy and profitable situation of employment for all hands that are now idle.

LABOR'S ENEMY.

B. M. Jewell, spokesman of the railroad shopmen who threaten a strike, is contemptuous of the public. Else he would scarcely say that the walkout will not so much be to secure higher wages as to restore working rules under which men are not allowed to do a fair day's work.

Here is an issue that every one understands. What is proposed is to standardize and perpetuate the sorry business of slacking on jobs. The program is to sabotage production—not as an emergency measure to win in a particular industrial contest, but as a regular and normal thing. This sinister policy means a lowered standard of living. It can mean nothing else.

The prosperity of this country now rests, and has always rested, on the ability of the average American, with his skill, his zeal and his machine, to turn out a larger product per man than the man of any other country.

This product per man is lessened when two men are on a job needing only one. This attacks not only the general welfare, but particularly the welfare of the half workers. Mr. Jewell may be aiming at railway employers, but he is hitting railway employees.

No union can repeal the mathematical law that when 100 is divided by 10 there is a quotient of 10, while divided by 20 there is a quotient of 5. The surest and quickest way to bring wages down is to increase the number of workers without a corresponding increase in the product.

Not only is enlarged production the bringer of golden eggs in the way of better food, clothes, shelter, more leisure and comforts, and luxuries, but it exalts the soul. It is a condition of all growth. Watch a half worker. He tends to be half a man. It is good to run swiftly and to do with our might. Nature gave us faculties not for rust, but for use.

Whether railway wages are too high or too low under the award of the Labor Board is a complicated question, as to which there may be differences of opinion. But there is no basis for differences of opinion as to the significance and effect of work-limiting shop rules. Both in inception and development they are hopelessly bad. The hold they have secured in America in recent years is pernicious. It is time to root them out.

If Mr. Jewell has no better reason for his proposed strike than the one he gives, then the strike is lost before it is begun. Its assault on the foundations of high wages is too much in plain sight. The shop rule is the enemy of high wages, and the American has sense enough to prefer high wages.—N. Y. Tribune.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"That stern idealist, Mr. Burnham of West Peterborough, has consented to wear the livery of the Government he denounced so vehemently," says The Toronto Globe.

Members of the Dominion Fire Prevention League say the wooden shingle is a menace. And the small boy hastens to agree with them.

A Halifax hen has laid 104 eggs in 104 days. Evidently the 'ca canny" doctrine of the British labour unions means nothing in the young life of this industrious fowl.

WORK FOR JOBLESS.

OSHAWA, Oct. 1.—To make work for the jobless Council is planning to start work on the Westmount sewer, a project which will cost $80,000 and give employment to 100 men. Excavation work could be continued until near Christmas provided the weather is not too severe.

England, France and Germany now have commercial and passenger airplane service daily operating over a number of routes.

MARRIAGE.

To marry without a competence is wrong and dangerous, no doubt, and a crime against our social codes; but do not scores of thousands of our fellow-beings commit the crime every year with no other trust but in heaven, health, and their labor? Are young people entering into the married life not to take hope into account, nor dare to begin their housekeeping until the cottage is completely furnished, the cellar and larder stocked, the cupboard full of plate and the strong box of money? The increase and multiplication of the world would stop were the laws which regulate the genteel part of it to be made universal.—Thackeray.

Chapter 77.

At last the day that I had so long dreaded of came to pass.

The Grand Central Station was thronged with eager, rushing crowds that hurried this way and that, each intent on his own destination. But in the station that day there were five people whose hearts and eyes were full of tears. We were not hopelessly sad, but our feelings were wrung with the sadness of parting. And it was all because a few years of friendship had bound us sweetly and tenderly together.

Kent and a red-capped porter were endeavoring to manage two large suit cases and a golf bag.

My hand gripped firmly into Kent Jr.'s and I eyed him zealously, determined not to let him out of my grasp for a second.

Tom and Lillian Barney had come to see us goodbye. They were sad faces, yet trying their best not to show it. Stuck deeply into one of Tom's big overcoat pockets I noticed a large box, presumedly candy, and felt positive of its destination. Lillian had already given Kent Jr. a bright yellow jonquils, the first suggestion of spring to deck the florist's window. He held them up close to him, firmly grasped in his hand.

"Come, we'd better go through the gate now," Kent suggested finally with just a trace of nervousness in his manner..

Tom stooped down and lifted Kent Jr. up in his arms for a minute and kissed him tenderly.

"We must not be foolish," I said, trying to laugh, and at the same time blinking some tears back from my eyes. "We are not going so very far away, and you must come down to see us often. Remember, Kent will telephone just as soon as we get to rights," I encouraged.

"That's it, come up often for over the week-end," Kent urged warmly. "I'll see what kind of a golf course they have up there and let you know about it—we might join," he added, turning to Tom.

"Maybe you will both want to move out into the country after you have visited us a few times," I suggested. It was a little silent hope I was holding in my heart.

Kent slipped his watch out of his pocket and compared it with the station clock. Saying goodbye was telling on his nerves.

"Come, it's nearly time, Babs," he said, picking Kent Jr. up in one arm and hanging onto the golf bag with the other.

I think at that minute Kent Jr. was the only one of us who was not blinking back the tears. He held the box of candy in one hand and the yellow jonquils in the other and smiled at them over Kent's shoulder.

"Goodbye!"

"Goodbye!" we called back. "Goodbye, Uncle Barnee."

And then we went through the gate toward our train and left them standing and waving their handkerchiefs to us.

After the train had started and we had gone a few miles Kent turned to me as if he had been reading my thoughts.

"You must not feel so badly, dear. Friendships like that do not slip easily out of one's life. They have touched too deeply. They will always be with us even though we cannot see them so often."

My eyes turned from the window and the swiftly moving landscape just in time to see Kent Jr. slip a large chocolate candy in one large mouthful between his rosebud lips. A happy smile rushed to my face and sent my sad memories tumbling. I knew that the future would hold plenty of diversion for me—and if I was to do my work well, I would have to be a brave happy mother.

Tomorrow—An Epilogue.

...OE TRACK SUFFERS.

...RE DE GRACE, Oct. 1. —...adian Press).—The roofs of a ...ine of stables at the race track here were torn off by a fierce wind storm which set in just before the first race started yesterday afternoon. For a short time all was confusion, men and horses running wildly over the track. Nobody was hurt, however, and the horses escaped injury.

For a moment it seemed as if the roof of the grand stand would go, but although it shook and rattled it held, and a serious accident was avoided.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Oct. 1. —(Canadian Press).—A seventy-five mile gale, accompanied by rain, which visited this city yesterday, was responsible for the wrecking of an electric crane at the plant of the Union Carbide Company, resulting in $100,000 damage.

The wind started the seven-ton crane along the tramway, which buckled under its weight, throwing the crane onto a pile of shale. Clarence Nichols, a workman, was on the tramway in the path of the crane, but crawled down on a girder. He went down with the crane, but escaped with minor injuries. The gale lasted only a few minutes, but before it died signs and broke down trees in its path. At Wheatfield, near here, the tops of several box cars were torn off and carried to the right of way of the International Railway Company, blocking traffic for some time.

FLEET CAUGHT ON LAKE.

DUNKIRK, N.Y., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The fishing fleet was caught in a severe storm on Lake Erie. Captain Charles W. Kley was drowned when his boat capsized three miles off shore. The fleet was scattered by the gale, but reports from the south shore indicate that except Captain Kley's boat made shelter.

KILLED BY FALLING TREE

WATERTERTOWN, N.Y., Oct. — (Canadian Press). — Nathan Wood, 33, of Woodville, was instantly killed and his wife seriously hurt a tree was blown on to their automobile at Adams' Centre.

BALL PARK WRECKED.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. — (Canadian Press).—The Jersey City ball park was virtually wrecked yesterday afternoon during a high wind and rain storm of near cyclonic proportions.

The roof of the grand stand was torn off in two sections, and fences in centerfield and between two club-houses were blown down. Many persons were in the grand stand waiting to watch the last of football practice by a local team, but fortunately left the ground just before the storm broke.

William Holland, secretary of the Jersey City Baseball Club, from his office in the grand stand when the structure began to shake violently. He had barely cleared when the section of the roof near first base was lifted off and carried 75 feet across the street into a lot. The third base section of the roof went simultaneously, a small portion in the centre being all that was left. Holland said the storm presented a vivid spectacle, having a resemblance of flames in its fury. The grand stand seats about 3,000.

MEIGHEN APPEALS TO QUEBEC

Attacks Liberals

"Now, what about Mackenzie King Liberal group," Meighen asked. From hearing his talk in the province of Quebec, by sound to those who knew nothing about the subject that they were sound protectionists, and that everything was safe in their hands. As a matter of fact they either intended to throttle and destroy protection or nothing was safe in their hands. Mr. Meighen read from the Liberal platform, which he said the opposition had been moving in the House of Commons for several sessions, that the best interests of Canada demanded substantial reductions in the customs tariff. He also said that the opposition demanded free farm implements one day and, something else free the next day, and that the Liberal Quebec members nearly all voted for these resolutions.

The Liberal platform closely resembled the tariff policy of the political farmers' party. With the exception of free coal and free vehicles, it was practically the same programme, and was outlined with the object of gathering into the Liberal fold the whole anti-protection movement of the country. These principles were set down in black and white, and were pledges which the Liberals, if returned to power, must redeem or must repudiate. As regards the Mackenzie King platform, the platform on which he accepted leadership, protection for the big, vital industries of Canada could not be wiped out. Such a policy could not succeed, because it was unfair, false in principle, and wrong.

Mr. King had called the present tariff a tariff for combines and trusts. The present tariff was the tariff of the Laurier government. Mr. King was a member of that government, and if it was a tariff for combines, he was one of the men responsible. Mr. King's talk was all humbug. It would be more honest if Mr. King would tell the country who were these combines. He ought to name them one after the other. That would be the proper course. Everyone ought to know that the big industries would suffer far less than the smaller industries through a reduction of the tariff. The smaller industries would go out of business first if the tariff was not sufficient to enable them to compete with United Staes' industries. The tariff was the means by which a country kept up a system of industries and prevented itself from being made a dumping ground for the surplusesof other countries. The question must be settled once for all.

Calls For Declaration.

Canada was now faced with a condition of affairs with the United States which called for a declaration. In 1913 the United States decided to lower their tariff wall. Even with their lower tariff they sold Canada two dollars worth of goods for one they bought from this country. This spring the United States had erected the highest tariff wall in many a long year, so clearly they did not intend to buy from Canada even as much as they had been buying since 1913. They had shut out over $168,000,000 worth a year of the farm products Canada had been selling there. They had shut out other products besides. The Wood-Crerar party says the way to meet this was to let down the tariff of Canada, while Mr. King wanted an all round reduction. Both policies mean a big influx of American farm products. This was not a self-respecting course. It was not fair to agriculture in Canada.

Canada's best course was to depend to the least possible extent upon the American tariff policy, American factories, and American means of distribution. Canada could develop her own markets, and at the same time carry on a mutual trade with the United States. It was not proposed that Canada should get into a postion where any of her vital interests could be destroyed by tariff changes of the United States.

Ballantyne Replies to King.

Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, minister of marine, fisheries and naval service said that Hon. Mackenzie King had made so many inaccurate statements in reference to the government merchant marine, and more particularly to the $8,000,000 vote put through at the last session of parliament, that it was necessary to correct them. In a recent speech in the Maritime provinces Mr. King had made the statement that the government had forced through a vote of $70,000,000 by closure. The facts were that this vote was only $8,000,000 and that of this amount $5,000,000 represented a revote passed by the previous session of parliament.

On March 29 Mr. Ballantyne had presented in the commons the annual statement covering the operations of the Merchant Marine, and at the same time had assured the house that every paper in connection with the operation of the fleet was open to the most complete inspection. Neither Mr. King nor any of his followers had asked for the information offered. Mr. King took practically no interest in the statement, and asked for no detailed information. This Mr. Ballantyne asserted, would prove conclusively that Mr. King and his followers were both inaccurate and insincere when they made the staement that they could not get information.

MUCH ILL HEALTH DUE TO BAD BLOOD

IF THE BLOOD IS KEPT RICH AND RED YOU WILL ENJOY HEALTH

More disturbances to health is caused by weak, watery blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are under-nourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills have a special action on the blood and as it becomes enriched your health improves. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is proved by the experience of Mr. D. J. McDonald, North River Bridge, N.S., who says: "For some years I suffered severly with headaches, pains in the back and a run-down condition. At times the pain in my back would be so bad that I would sit up in bed all night. From time to time doctors here treating me, but did not give me more than temporary relief. And then one day when I was suffering terribly, a neighbor came to see me, and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking two boxes I felt relief. I got fixe boxes more and before they were all gone I felt as though they were giving me new life, as in every way they built up and improved my health and strength. I am now working as a barker in a pulp mill, ten hours a day and feeling none the worse after my day's work. I say with pleasure that this condition is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To guard two grammes of radium worth $154,000, owned by the city of Philadelphia, a specially built double steel safe 30 inches square is being erected. The stronghold will cost $76,000. The presence of three men holding three different secret combinations will be required to accomplish the lawful opening of the radium safe.

INDIANS GAIN HALF A GAME WHILE THE YANKS ARE IDLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The American League pennant race was still undecided last night. Cleveland gained half a game by defeating Chicago, while the Yankees were idle, but the local club needs only one more victory, or a defeat of Cleveland, to romp home with the flag. The Yankees decided last night to play a double-header here with the Athletics to-day in order to play off the game postponed because of rain in Philadelphia last night. The standing last night was:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Cleveland	94	58	.618

In addition to its two games with Philadelphia Saturday, the Yankees will play Boston here on Sunday in its final League game for the season. A postponed game with Washington has been cancelled. Cleveland has two more games with Chicago.

The New York Giants, who have won the pennant in the National League, did not play a League game yesterday, while Pittsburg was again defeated by St. Louis. Interest in the National League now centres in the possibility of St. Louis tying the Pirates for second place. This may be accomplished by St. Louis winning and Pittsburg losing their last two games.

CLEVELAND WIN FROM WHITE SOX BY 3 TO 2.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press). — The Cleveland Indians, fighting desperately to retain their place in the American League pennant race, refused to bow to the pitching prowess of "Red" Faber, pitching star of the White Sox, and batted out a 3 to 2 victory. The game was a thrilling pitching duel between Stanley Coveleskie, the ace of the Cleveland staff, and Faber, who was attempting to win his twenty-sixth victory of the season. Coveleskie was unsteady at the start, and Chicago got away to a one-run lead in the first innings—after two men were out. Collins singled to centre, and Hooper followed with a single to right, and Collins scored when Sheeley singled to centre.

Coveleskie settled down and was given sensational support in the next two innings, but in the fourth he lost control and Hooper was passed. Sheeley worked him for a count of 3 to 2, and then hit to left for two bases, scoring Hooper. A quick double play by Gardner and Sewell and Mulligan's fly to Gardner ended the innings.

Gardner opened with a single and Sewell followed with another safe hit. Burns fanned and Faber walked O'Neill, filling the bases. Coveleskie's long fly to Hooper scored Gardner after the catch. Jamieson's single to right scored Sewell, and when Wambganss singled to centre, O'Neill counted.

Score by innings:

Cleveland	000030000—3
Chicago	10010000—2

WASHINGTON, 6; BOSTON, 4.

BOSTON, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press) —Washington defeated Boston, 6-4, yesterday. Goslin and Milan starred, the former knocking in four runs. The score:

Washington	000202020—6	7	0
Boston	002000002—4	8	0

CARDINALS WIN.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Hornsby's day was celebrated with a Cardinal victory over the Pirates by a 12 to 4 score, marking the third straight for the locals. Roger Hornsby, second batsman, was presented with two diamond rings, one from the Masonic Lodge, and another from a fund made up of public subscriptions. A diamond stickpin was given him by the Chamber of Commerce. Two thousand dollars worth of Liberty Bonds were also given him, to be used in the purchase of a home here, together with a basket of flowers. In return, Hornsby clouted a homer, two doubles, and scored three runs. Score:

Pittsburg	010000030—	4	6
St. Louis	01034103x—	12	13

Peterboro Women Teacher's Guild Held Eighth Annual Meeting Here

Result of the Election of Officers---Work of the Guild for the Past Year---Financial Statement

The eighth annual meeting of the Women Teachers' Guild was held here, when the election of officers took place.

Miss Nichol and Miss Buck were appointed scrutineers. The results of the elections were as follows:

President—Miss Runnings.
First Vice—Miss Esplen.
Second Vice—Miss Richardson.
Secretary—Miss Bennett.
Treasurer—Miss Lancaster.

One representative from each of the Public schools, the Normal, Collegiate and Separate schools complete the executive.

The work of the Guild for the past year consisted of a study of Canadian authors. An address on Canadian Literature by Mr. Mowat introduced the subject. The following meetings throughout the year dealt with a more or less detailed account of the life and works of some of our Canadian writers, including Charles T. D. Roberts, Wilfrid Campbell, Archibald Lampman, Isabelle Crawford, Robert Service, Henry Drummond, Pauline Johnson and Seton Thompson.

Besides the literary study the Guild afforded an opportunity for the teachers in the different schools to become acquainted. Meetings were held once a month. On alternate months tea was served after the programme.

The spring festival held in the Opera House April 9th, under the auspices of the Guild made it possible to donate to the Health Association, the Children's Aid Society and the Playgrounds' Association, each forty-five dollars.

The treasurer's report for the year shows the following:

Money received—
Gross proceeds from spring festival $449.27
Fees 63.00

Expenditures—
Playgrounds Association . . . $45.00
Health Association 45.00
Children's Aid Society 45.00
Expenses—spring festival . . . 241.50

Artificial Eyelashes and Hair Sets Almost Unknown in Peterboro

"Egg Facial" and the "Mud Pack" is also unknown here What it Costs to Visit the Local Beauty Parlors.

The very latest item in the purchasable aids to beauty which assist the weaker sex in their battle of life is artificial eyelashes. Beauty parlor advices from the larger centres say that they are most effective. By the expenditure of $1, with the aid of a little glue and a steady hand, lo and behold, one has a pair of those adorable curtains to any shade or orb, half an inch long, and everyone knows that long eyelashes are one of the most desirable of assets that a maiden can possess.

"Sets of hair" is another innovation in the beauty shops. A customer may purchase a "hair set" with any style of marcel, just the same as a set of embroidered cuffs and collar. And plenty of hair is the rule for the coming season. If you haven't got it ,you may buy it in lots of different shapes and forms, in puffs, switches, luxuriant coronets and knots. And despite the fact that ears are coming back, beauty savants declare that to show even the tip of the ear lobe is positively indecent.

Copper will be the popular shade in hair this season, so it is said, and the season also has brought a rejuvenation of the fad for long-pointed finger nails, highly polished.

And with all these radical changes the cost of being beautiful is climbing. In the cities, it is about 50 per cent. higher than it was five years ago. To get "done" completely costs about $10. That is, of course, if you merely undergo the ordinary necessities of life, such as a shampoo, a manicure, a marcel, a facial massage, eyebrows plucked, a henna rinse or bleach and scalp treatment. If you wish to step into the anteroom for "extras" the sum is unlimited. In some of these large beauty shops, it costs $25 to have the gray hair dyed and $1.55 for each permanent wave. The average cost of an all-over permanent wave is $25.

Five years ago in the bigger places, a shampoo cost 50 cents, a wave 75 cents and a manicure 50 cents. Today the shampoo has increased to $1, the wave to $1 and the manicure likewise. A facial is $1.50, with an extra charge of from $1 to $2 for a special "egg facial," a "rest facial" or a "mud pack."

But the craze for artificial eyelashes has not spread to Peterborough, at least the beauty shops here have not had any demand for them, yet; therefore it is impossible to say just how much they will cost later on. "Sets of hair" also have not yet been heard of here, and, curiously enough, there seems to be little demand for permanent waves. The sort that follow in the wake of kid curlers and needs to be renewed every so often evidently satisfy the desires of local ladies.

Prices here for an ordinary shampoo range from 75 cents to one dollar, a manicure (for 50 cents, as is $1. You may have a facial massage anywhere from 50 cents to a doullar, a manicure for 50 cents, a marcel wave put in your hair for 75 cents, and your eybrows plucked for 50 cents. An "egg facial" costs $2.25, but they don't know anything about "rest" or "mud" packs. Evidently nobody wants these.

A scalp treatment costs anywhere from 50 cents to $1.25, a rescrative treatment 75 cents, and you may have all your grey hair dyed for $5. Those who yearn for bobbed head, can have the dreadful deed executed for 50 cents, the trimming and curling of same thereafter costing 25 cents and 50 cents respectively.

Care of Feet

A well-known doctor said lately, "An immense amount of pain and misery lies at the door of the shoemaker—corns, bunions, and ingrowing toe nails."

This is certainly true of boots made by makers who pay no regard to the hygiene of the foot, who ignore the fact that the toes are movable, that they contract and expand, grasp and relax the grasp, at every step. How can they do this if they are impeded by stiff upper leather?

Again, if the shoe sole is too hard and unyielding, the prominences of the sole of the child's foot can make no impression on the inner sole of the shoe, and the child will out in neither body nor brain can its foot. This will cause "awkward walking."

If the shoe is too heavy, a greater burden is thrown on the ankle than it can bear, and the foot drags instead of being lifted with an easy and graceful spring from the ground. It is a curious fact that the sensory nerves are not so acute in childhood as in adult life. A child can bear an injurious amount of pressure with little consciousness of pain. Parents should bear this in mind, and always procure their children's footwear from makers who understand the needs of the human foot, and so will provide shoes and boots that will neither cause the toes to grow bent or distorted through lack of sufficient space, or the ankles to become weak through being braced up so tightly that their ligaments waste from lack of use.

Do you ever consider that upon the treatment of children's feet in early youth a great deal of the comfort, and even the health, of their after life depends?

This is a fact too often lost sight of, but it is one that mothers would do well to remember, for if the feet are maltreated in childhood—as they unfortunately too often are, by being shod in a way that cripples and distorts the growing bones and ligaments—the inclination for free exercise is lessened, and the capacity for it may, indeed, be greatly impaired.

The effect of this on the health, both of mind and body, is a serious matter, for exercise is one of the first necessities of youth, and without it neinther body nor brain can be properly developed, without it health in after life cannot be maintained. The careful choice of footwear is therefore a matter in which hygiene is even more concerned than vanity. The human foot is a beautiful piece of mechanism. In it there are twenty-six bones, which are held together by dense and powerful ligaments, some of which are elastic and some are not.

When we remember this, we can understand that to cramp such a piece of mechanism into a stiff, unyielding covering is to treat it in an unnatural manner, and any unnatural treatment of a bodily organ or limb is bound to be injurious, and to the wearing of hard, heavy, and tight boots and shoes an enormous amount of injury to the feet is due.

NEW MINISTER AT MILLBROOK

IND CTION SERV.CE HELD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

MILLBROOK, October 1. — The induction of the Rev. G. S. Gervin, formerly of Ottawa, into the pastorate of the Presbyterian Churches of the Millbrook and Garden Hill Circuit, took place in Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, yesterday afternoon. The church was well filled not only with its own members and officials, but also with many friends from other denominations of the village and surrounding country — an evidence of the spirit of unity and good understanding which is abroad to-day in increasing strength and number of advocates.

The clergymen present from outside points included the Moderator, Rev. Mr. Anderson, of Port Hope, Revs. Mr. McCord, of Roseneath, Mr. Thompson, of Hastings, and Mr. McConnachie, of South Monaghan, these representing the Peterborough Presbytery; also Rev. Mr. Rorke, of Cavan, and of the local clergy, Revs. Major Spencer, Mr. Tucker, and Mr. Wilks.

The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Mr. Tucker from the 15th chapter of St. John's Gospel, and Rev. Mr. McCord led in the opening prayer, and afterwards preached the induction sermon from the text found in Luke 22, 27: "I am among you as he that serveth."

A Strong Appeal.

The sermon was a well-thought-out one, and made a strong appeal for the emphasising of the ideal which Jesus Himself set by precept and example as a new standard of eminence, honour, reputation, and greatness, namely, that of service. When at conversion we yield ourselves and all our powers to a new Master, like Paul we should ask, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" and cheerfully render a wholehearted service. Christians of every race and clime are identified with the Saviour in this great task of seving others, for He said, "I must work the works of Him that sent me," and "we must work while it is day." "I am the Light of the world," and "Ye are the light of the world." "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost," and "As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you." Not by the ministry of angels, but by human helpers is the divine plan of salvation to be carried the wide world around, earthen vessels are the ones the Master has elected to use for His high purposes. "Christ alone can save the world, but Christ cannot save the world alone." The church is not only an ark of refuge, but also a battleship, well armed and well manned, every member at his post, fired with the ideals of loyalty, obedience and enthusiasm. The reward of faithful service will be vigour to serve, an increase of happiness, and a brighter crown in the hereafter.

At the conclusion of the sermon, Rev. Mr. Gervin stood before the altar, and the Moderator, after duly explaining the various steps which led to the call being extended to the present candidate and accepted by him, conducted the usual induction service as provided by the Discipline of the Church, by which Rev. Mr. Gervin became the new pastor of the Millbrook and Garden Hill appointments.

After the Moderator and the other members of the Presbytery had extended to Mr. Gervin the right hand of welcome and fellowship, Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Hastings, the Clerk of the Peterborough Presbytery, gave the charge to the new minister in a few remarks. After pointing out that there is a very real distinction between a "minister" and a "pastor," inasmuch as the significance of the first term is "a minister of the Lord" and of the second "a pastor to his people," Mr. Thompson anonunced his text as being taken from Acts 20, 28, using the singular rather than the plural number. "Take heed to thyself, and to all the flock over which the Holy Spirit hath made thee overseer, to feed the Church of God which He hath purchased with His own blood." Take heed to thyself—heed in private life that it be well regulated for then the public ministry will be the same. First, be a man, for men are required in the ministry if anywhere. When Paul says that God "gave gifts unto men," what were these gifts? Why, men—"some apostles, some teachers, some evangelists," men fitted to feed the Church which Christ purchased with His own blood. Be a man of prayer since "he who handles the sacred fire should be warmed by the flame himself." Be a student. You cannot afford to be otherwise, because to "build up," you must know how. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. But while you are a student of men (for you will need to understand human nature) of nature herself, and of books, give your first and best attention to the Bible—no other can be allowed to supplant it, lest disaster follow. Be diligent in the preparation of your work, remembering always it is "for the perfecting of the saints." It was "beaten oil" which was used in the sanctuary—that meant labour; see men as 'temples of the Holy Ghost," and bring them the "beaten oil" of your finest endeavour. To all the flock, the text says. That means pastoral visitation. Make no distinction between rich and poor, but if any are to have special attention let it be the latter, for their need is greatest. Look well to the young of the flock, for they are just coming into the church; and to the aged for they are soon passing to the Church triumphant. And if the burden of this great task leads you to question "Who is sufficient for these things?" remember Paul's glad confidence—"Our sufficiency is of God." and "May the God of all peace give you peace in believing."

Delivered the Charge.

Rev. Mr. McConnachie, of South Monaghan, gave the charge to the people—not especially, as he pointed out, to the people of the Millbrook or Garden Hill congregations, but just some suggestions that might be carried out with profit to both themselves and their pastor by the members of any church, on any charge, in any community. First then, pray for your pastor; wish him well and turn your good wishes into prayers—in no other manner can you so effectually aid him in his ministry either on weekdays or on Sunday. Cooperate with him in every good work, and to this end be regular in your attendance on at least one service each Sunday—two will be better still. It is hard to preach to wood—give him bright, sympathetic, interested faces instead. Make the most of your minister's strong points—don't dwell on the weak ones. No pastor combines all the good features but not seemly that he should advertise himself unless by good works. You must speak well of him, for though his character is his own, his reputation, how he shall be spoken of in the community, lies in the hands of his people. The minister can tell by the children how he is spoken of in the homes—in due time it will tell in respect or disrespect, in speech and manner. Also the minister's material comfort is a charge upon his congregation, since very few have money, real estate, or indeed even a house to call their own. This is a serious matter, and needs the kindly consideration of his people—for the minister in charge may not plead for himself though he is a good pleader for other causes. There is a clause in the statement of call which not many may have noticed, whereby you "promise to support as God shall prosper you." Hence, should your circumstances improve, the minister's circumstances should improve also. The Presbytery have the hope that the new minimum will be the objective these two congregations will seek to attain to.

In conclusion, the speaker urged the people to have a wide margin of unfeigned sympathy, kindness, and generosity toward their new pastor—it will be to him as refreshing as a spring by the wayside, for of every true minister it may be said, as it was of Christ, in the discharge of his manifold duties "virtue went out of him."

Rev. Mr McConnachie and Mr. S. Kelly were appointed a committee to stand with Rev. Mr. Gervin at the door and introduce the people as they passed out after the benediction was pronounced.

At the conclusion of the service upstairs, a reception for the new pastor, his wife, and family was held in the basement of the church, which gave a better opportunity of becoming acquainted. Refreshments were served, and the social hour was greatly enjoyed by the large number of members and adherents who remained for this pleasant ending to the afternoon's service.

Campbellford Selected for 192

At the concluding afternoon session of the meeting of the Anglican Women's Missionary Association for the deanery of Northumberland, held in St. John's church yesterday, a fine address was given by Mrs. Yeomans of Toronto, dealing with the aims and objects of the Association and explaining fully the different phases of activities.

Miss Amy Halliday was appointed deanery officer for the year, and place of meeting for 1922 was at Campbellford.

The delegates were served tea in the basement of the church, ladies from St. John's being assisted by ladies from All Saints, St. George's and St. Luke's church.

Remove Tattoo Marks

A French army surgeon, Dr. Tranhant, claims to have discovered a method of removing tattoo marks whether made with India ink or lampblack. According to La Natur, the process consists of first rubbing the skin until a thin layer of the srface is worn away, then applying a mixture of lime, slaked just before use, and powdered phosphorus. The tattooed part having been coated with this paste, a piece of gauze is laid over it, covered with a bandage. The dressing is removed after forty-eight hours. The scab is allowed to dry in the air, and comes away in about a fortnight, wtihout leaving a scar. If any trace of the tattooing then remains the treatment is repeated. Dr. T. claims to have applied this treatment in a great many cases with perfect success.

A BIG HUSKY FELLOW

And Yet, When Sickness Comes, He Drinks Milk

Tell a big, husky man he ought to drink Milk, and he might smile pityingly. He thinks Milk is good for babies, but that Milk means little to him with his big meals of rare meat and cooked vegetables.

But sickness should overtake him, if his overworked organs refuse to accept his ordinary fare, then he drinks Milk as the logical food for him.

It will be better if he could realize that Milk is food for a Healthy Man—that no matter what else he eats, Milk should be included in his diet. The scientists and dietitians call Milk protective food.

Though there are various foods containing vitamines, we know of none that contains all the varieties of vitamines known to science, and in a natural form, like Milk.

My Friend the Prince

Tracy Mathewson, Yankee Photographer, Tells How His Highness of Wales Broke All the Rules to Get Him Past the Flunkies, the Camera and All.

The Yankee Camera Man Is to Pass This Giant Sentry to Get Into the Yard.

"With This Chewing Wax in My Mouth," Said the Prince, "I Feel Like a Regular Guy."

The King of England Just After Hearing an American Joke.

By Tracy Mathewson

SOME years ago I was shipmates with a half-caste Guatamalan on a tramp steamer plying between Rio de Janeiro and Charleston, S. C. He was the unsightliest man being I ever saw outside of one blue-gummed negro from Mineral Wells, Texas. He was covered from head to foot with grime and clinkers and his nose had been mashed in with a marlinspike. They called him The Prince, because, I guess, that's the last thing you'd ever mistake him for.

But such as he was, he was the only Prince I had ever met, before I was brought in contact professionally, with the Prince of Wales who he was on his Canadian tour year before last. You may be excused, therefore, if in my greatest meeting with the Prince in London, I showed an ignorance of what princes were supposed to do and say. I am quite sure that nothing had ever read and nothing I had learned from my friend Prince Luis de Perez, the Guatamalan deckhand, prepared me for the sort of person the Prince of Wales turned out to be.

As I have already stated, my relations with the Prince on his Canadian trip were strictly professional. He asked me once if it would be possible to show him the motion pictures I was making of him before I shipped them to New York. I made arrangements to do this. Wriggins had a projecting room on the Prince's private car and while the pictures were being shown the Prince asked me to sit by him. He asked me lots of questions about the technical phases of motion picture work and seemed very much interested.

However, I had no reason to believe that I had caught his imagination or fixed myself in his memory.

Real Yankee Flippancy

A few weeks ago I went to London to make some commercial pictures. I was strolling along Piccadilly a couple of days following my arrival when I met Mr. Gilbert Nigel, a government official who had been one of the Prince's equerries on his Canadian trip. After we had talked for a few minutes he asked me:

"Does the Prince know you're in town?"

I thought that this was merely a reception of British humor.

"No," I answered. "The Prince has been remarkably unenthusiastic about my presence in London."

I thought no more about it until the next day at noon, when I found a note at the Piccadilly Hotel, where I was staying, directing me to call Regent 1414. I'll never forget that number. I had the girl "put me through," as we London bloods say, and was surprised to get Number in less than five minutes. It usually takes fifteen in London.

"What place is this?" I asked.

"St. James Palace," came the answer.

The name had a familiar ring, but I was preoccupied with the idea that some roughneck friend of mine had learned I was in town and was trying to get me. I guess I must have thought that St. James Palace was a moving picture theatre or some two-bit hotel with a hifalutin' name.

"Well, is there anybody there wants to talk to Tracy Mathewson?"

There was a long silence. After a while a man's voice was heard.

It was Sir Godfrey Thomas, the Prince of Wales's private secretary.

"The Prince," he said, "would like to see you tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock if it is convenient. But don't bring your camera. No cinema man has ever been inside the palace."

At 5 o'clock the next day I was outside the walls of the palace wondering where the front gate was. There were two soldiers wearing fur hats—shakos, I think you call them—who stood around with their legs apart and looked at me coldly. I was wondering what to do next when a grocery wagon came along and the gates swung open. I followed it in. One of the porters, soldiers, guards, gendarmes or whatever they were called, stepped up and wanted to know my business.

"That's all right, buddy," I said, "I've got a date with the Prince."

He immediately stepped back and I walked up a flight of steps and rang the nearest bell.

The door flew open and there stood my old friend—I forget what his name is—who was the Prince's chief attendant and cocktail shaker in Canada. He was all dressed up like a taxi starter at the Hotel Biltmore, but I recognized him and held out my hand. He looked all around nervously, but not seeing anybody grabbed my hand and shook it heartily.

"They're expecting you," he said. He led me into a big room to the right of the entrance hall, where I found Sir Godfrey Thomas. In the adjoining room I saw Admiral Halsey, the head of the Prince's household, and we swapped a few stories before Sir Godfrey told me the Prince was ready to see me.

I walked up a long flight of stairs and turning to the left entered a spacious room with a very high ceiling. The Prince was seated at a desk at the far end, but as soon as I came in he got up and walked toward me with his hand outstretched.

"I am certainly glad to see you," he said. "How long have you been in London?"

I told him.

"I'm sorry you couldn't have been here a few weeks ago for the steeplechase. We had a jolly time. Let me show you some of the pictures."

The pictures were of the Guards' race in which the Prince came out the winner, the others falling by the way.

"Those pictures are not very good," he said. "I'm sure if you had been here, you would have got better ones." I tried to express my professional appreciation, but didn't say anything of interest.

The Prince then started asking me about the United States. He inquired if I had ever seen again that pretty girl that had ridden with the party a short distance through Ontario. He wanted to know how my dog Boots was getting on and how George Doran, my assistant, was. He regretted very much, he said, that he had been unable to "do the States" properly.

"You should come back, Your Highness," I said, "and go through the West and the South."

"I plan to do so," answered the Prince.

"Well, if you do," I said, "I've got a little house down in Atlanta, Ga., and I'd certainly be glad for you to pay me a visit."

"Why, I wouldn't think of going to the States without calling on you," he replied. At that moment I happened to think of Luis de Perez, not to mention Willie Elias, Cal Rountree and a few other friends of mine back in Hawk's Gulley, Mott street and a few other places. I wondered what they would think of that.

A Coveted Privilege Granted

Seeing the Prince was in such a good humor I asked him if it wouldn't be possible for me to make some motion pictures of him inside the palace.

"Sure," he answered. "Any time you're passing here drop in and make them."

As I didn't quite feel up to dropping in on the Prince as I would drop in on Romany Marie, I asked for a special engagement. He told me to see Sir Godfrey and fix it up for two days later. As I was about to go he suggested that if I would bring one of those volumes of photographs, "The Prince of Wales's Own Book," with me when I returned he would autograph it. All in all we talked for about twenty-five minutes and he had planned on seeing me only five. By this I don't mean that I displayed such brilliant mental qualities and such persuasive charm of manner that he couldn't bear to have me go. As a matter of fact he did most of the talking and the conversation was largely about America. I think he was too careful of my feelings to rush me off abruptly.

I spoke to Sir Godfrey as I went out. He was greatly surprised that the Prince had consented to allow pictures to be made in the palace.

"It will be the first time a cinema man was ever in this palace," he said.

The next morning I went to Southampton and after completing some work I sent my equipment back to London and started to ride through the country to Epsom Downs to see the Derby, or as we bloomin' British toffs would say, the "Darby." I had no idea of making pictures of any sort. It was the merest accident that I happened to have a small still camera containing one plate.

When I got to Epsom Downs the air was thick with mist and the skies were dark. I pushed my way out on the track to take a look around and some track guards, seeing my camera, started to push me back. Just about that time someone stepped through the crowd and grabbed me by the arm. It was the Prince.

"How are you this time?" he said.

"I'm a bit rushed," I said.

He laughed. By that time the gang had fallen back and left me alone.

"Come over here," he said. "I'd like you to make a picture of my sister, the Princess Mary."

I had only one plate. It was a dark day—but there was nothing else for me to do. I saw him go over and speak to the Princess, who was standing with Admiral Halsey and her other two brothers, the Duke of York and Prince Albert. The next moment he had lined them up and told me to go ahead.

I tried to time the picture, but my hand was shaking and I snapped it out of focus. I never admitted this to him though. After I snapped this one plate, he came over and started talking about the races. I was still thinking about the bum picture I had just made and nervously pulled a stick of chewing gum out of my pocket. When I realized what I was doing I tried to stuff it back, but the Prince had seen it.

"Give it to me if you don't want it," he said, laughing. He took the stick, unwrapped it and stuck it in his mouth.

"With this chewing wax in my mouth," said the Prince, "I feel like a 'regular guy.'"

The next day when I was ushered into his office with my camera the first thing the Prince asked me was whether I had got a good picture.

"Fine!" I said. "Wonderful!"

It was one of the worst I had ever taken in my life.

"My sister didn't want to pose at first," he continued, "but when I explained to her that you were a friend of mine, it was all right."

After we had made some pictures both inside and out in the yard, the Prince put me through a long series of questions about photography, the United States, race horses, cattle, and the pretty girls in America which he discussed with intelligence and good taste.

I would like to repeat some of the things he said about several American girls, but perhaps it wouldn't be advisable. But the American girl needn't be fearful. He's strongly prejudiced in their favor.

All in all the Prince has as much personality and as fine an intelligence as any man I ever met. I say that without regard to his position. If he were Bill Smith's son I, or anybody else, would say the same thing. They say he gets his character from his mother. As I was talking to him, I noticed her picture hung on the wall just over his shoulder. The likeness was striking.

"When are you coming back to England?" he asked when I had made everything I could see that looked like a picture.

"I expect to get back next year some time," I told him.

"Well, drop in and see me whenever you're in London."

How Automobile Racing "Poisons" a Man

WHEN Gaston Chevrolet climbed from his little green racing car after winning the 500-mile international sweepstakes automobile race at Indianapolis recently, after having driven steadily for nearly six hours at the average speed of 88.16 miles per hour, his eyes were almost lifeless. In medical phraseology they were "dead." His face was haggard and drawn. The muscles of his legs and forearms were cramped and knotted. His head dropped and his steps faltered.

In fact he looked like a man who had just taken a dose of poison. And that is exactly what happened, as a writer of the Scientific American explains.

The strain of clutching the wheel of his car for more than 5 hours and 40 minutes, never once relaxing his hold or taking his eyes off the dizzy white stretch of brick pavement always ahead of his speeding machine, had caused physical fatigue equivalent to poison, for fatigue is defined as poison by prominent medical authorities. And fatigue poison is just as effective in its action as arsenic or carbolic acid. An overdose of either would be fatal.

Two photographs of Chevrolet, one taken before and the other immediately after the race, tell the story of the racer's complete exhaustion. One shows him, fresh, alert, smiling and full of energy, ready for the gruelling 500-mile race. The other shows him, gaunt, and haggard of face with colorless eye, drooping head, sagging body and cramped muscles, as attendants helped him from his car after the race.

"The extreme exhaustion suffered by Chevrolet from physical exertion and severe strain of driving 500 miles without a stop at the terrific speed he maintained," declares Dr. Clyde Leeper, a medical expert of Akron, O., "caused certain chemical changes to create poisonous decomposition in the muscles of his body—in other words the production and accumulation of waste substances such as carbon dioxide and lactic acid. In large quantities these are typical fatigue poisons.

"Chevrolet after the race had the 'dead' eye which we found so often among wounded men overseas, among men who had endured long suffering from wounds and exhaustion and men who had become shell-shock victims. Chevrolet's extreme fatigue was equivalent to a severe shock to the complete nervous system—almost the same as if he had been hurled 40 or 50 feet in an explosion, and severely stunned. Bicycle riders, marathon runners and long-distance swimmers suffer similar fatigue. They all have that 'dead' eye after the acid test of endurance."

As always the management of the fair were shown the utmost courtesy and hospitality by the people of Janetville this, indeed, being the general rule at every place where school fairs have been held.

The Woman's Institute had a booth on the grounds for the sale of ice cream cones, and found their stock quite exhausted before the afternoon was far advanced.

Four school fairs held on successive days next week at Enniskillen, Blackstock, Hampton, and Maple Grove, closes these most educative and interesting events for this season.

Out of the 30,000 people who lived in Nome, Alaska, in 1901, fewer than 200 are residing there at the present time.

EXCITEMENT IN EMILY TP. OVER OIL DISCOVERY

EXPERTS MAKING THOROUGH TESTS OVER WHOLE DISTRICT —LEASES SECURED ON SEVERAL PROPERTIES.

KING'S WHARF, Oct. 1.—Much excitement prevails in Emily Township over the news that oil had been found on Mr. Michael Harrington's farm, near here, and adjacent property owners are filled up with "get-rich-quick" visions. Some weeks ago indications of oil were discovered in the vicinity of King's Wharf, several American experts grew interested in the prospects, and resulting tests have encouraged them to proceed with a thorough examination of the whole district.

They did not confine their labors to the section around King's Wharf, but made tests in other parts of the township. Everything, it is claimed, pointed to the presence of oil, and leases have been secured on several properties.

It is reported a joint stock company will be formed for the purpose of prosecuting the work with vigor.

CROP REPORT

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the head office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches. The branch managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with crop conditions in all sections of the districts shown.

Prairie Provinces — Although drought, cut worms, saw fly, rust and hail here caused injury and loss, a large crop, estimated at 271,000,000 bushels, of wheat and 331,000,000 bushels of oats has been cut. Continuous rain since cutting in Saskatchewan and Manitoba may reduce this and certainly lower the grade. Present conditions are:

Calgary district—Weather continues favorable and many farmers have finished threshing. Results east and south disappointing, but at Red Dear average yield wheat 25, oats 40 and barley 35 bushels.

Regina district—Threshing delayed by rain since 8th instant is now 20 per cent. completed. Rains have lowered grade.

Saskatoon district — Threshing should be general now after three weeks' delay. Many districts just commencing about 10 per cent. finished. Eighty points report wheat has sprouted. Oats should be fairly good. Grain marketing slowly owing to wet roads. If present fine weather continues, harvesting should be finished by 1st November.

Winnipeg district—Rain has interrupted threshing, but about sixty per cent. done. Grain sprouting in some localities, but no widespread damage reported. Up to first week September, about two-thirds of the wheat shipments graded between number one hard and number two northern.

Province of Quebec—Final reports indicate that cereal and hay crops are below average. The lower St. Lawrence and the Lake St. John regions had the best returns, while the eastern townships suffered severely from drought. A good potato crop is expected in the lower St. Lawrence region. But in other parts of the Province the yield will be small, and in some districts almost a failure. Other roots will be below average. Grass pastures have improved considerable recently. It is estimated that crops in general will be from sixty to seventy per cent. of an average year.

Province of Ontario—While crops this year have not turned out so heavy as usual, general returns have been fair. All grains were below the average and of poor quality. Hay, a short crop, but offset by an exceptionally heavy yield of ensillage corn. Early small fruits light, but of good quality. Apples below average. Root crops promise well with exception of potatoes. Tobacco a large acreage of best quality.

Maritime Provinces—Crops on the whole are about 75 per cent. of the average. Roots have improved considerably of late and reports from Carleton County, N. B., indicate that the potato crop in that district is larger than previously expected. The Nova Scotia apple crop is expected to show a slight increase over that of last year. Shipments to Great Britain and the United States have commenced in Prince Edward Island. Conditions generally are good. The potato crop is expected to be of better quality than last year.

Province of British Columbia—Hay and fodder record crop of good quality. Hay yield 25 per cent. greater than the 1920 tonnage of 256,000. Threshing about completed. Average grain crop. Fruit results generallp have been successful. Okanagan apples output estimated 2,000,000 boxes, which is double the yield of 1920 and 20 per cent. over the record of 1919. Pears 75 per cent. increase over last year. Stone fruits will yield under 1920, but small fruit tonnage considerably in excess of previous years. Potato below normal.

MEETING ON MONDAY.

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Association will hold its regular meeting on Monday evening next, October 3rd, at 8 p.m. A full attendance is requested as plans for the winter's work will be discussed.

PROVINCE URGES GREATER INTEREST IN DAIRYING

Pamphlets numbering 35,000 will be distributed by the department of agriculture to farmers throughout Manitoba urging them to take a greater interest in the dairying industry. The step is being taken as the result of the conference held Tuesday at the parliament buildings with the aim of stimulating dairying in Manitoba. E. Fotheringham and T. A. Elliott of Brandon, visited the parliament buildings this morning in connection with the project. Mr. Fotheringham, who is interested in dairying at Brandon, declared the demand for milk in that city is greater than ever, and exceeds the supply. Good milk is retailing there for 20 cents a quart.

The CRESSMAN Store

CRITICISM AND REMINISCENCE

(By PATERFAMILIAS)

From sun-down Sunday night to sun-down Tuesday evening is the Jewish New Year holiday, when Hebrew stores will be closed, and work of all kind with that remarkable and ancient race cease for two days in compliance with their orthodox observance of this great festival.

While the original name for these descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob was Hebrew, since their exodus from captivity in Egypt, their national appellation has in some way or other been converted into that of Jew, a title, properly speaking, emanating from the tribe of Juddah, the fourth of Jacob's twelve sons, from whom sprang the twelve tribes of Israel who constituted the Hebrew race. But even as the tribe of Juddah in the Hebrew's march through the wilderness from Egypt to the land flowing with milk and honey (Palestine) had the post of honor assigned to it—in the van of that vast multitude of men, women and children—the new national name of Jew may be accepted as when adopted implying increasing power, strength, influence and dignity following that interesting people's conquest of Canaan. It may also have had a dual object in discarding a national cognomen liable in those times to recall distressing memories of race humiliation when as slaves to a tyrannical Pharaoh the Hebrews suffered degrading indignities and horrible atrocities under pitiless Egyptian taskmasters. Let this theory be correct or not, Jews were in the height of their glory as a dominating nation in far-away Canaan, and Jews they are today in all lands with national characteristics practically surviving the ages of their wandering in many lands, and residence among alien peoples.

PETERBOROUGH JEWS.

In this city there are resident permanently 28 families of Jews, 15 of whom are in business, while the others are all industrious, and some apparently heading toward that goal ever before the average Jews' eyes—eventual independence, if not wealth. They came here from several climes—Russia, Poland, Austria, and one claims to be English, while another was educated, if not born, in Canada—but they are associated as members of one race, the Orthodox Jew, and consistently so.

THE COMING HOLIDAY.

The Jewish New Year orthodoxically accepted falls in the month of Tisri—and in this sketch I am relying mainly on the authority of Rev. Joseph Leucht, a United States Jewish divine, one of the eminent contributors to "Rays of Light From All Lands." Tisri answers to our month of September. The Talmudists, however, did not agree on fixing the time when the world began, some insisting that it was in the spring, that is in the month Nisan, which is our March. But so far the notion that New Year falls in September has prevailed and the festival is still observed on the first and second days of theat month. But this being the Jewish lean year advances their New Year a month ahead, hence we find the festival of 1921 falling on October third and fourth. And here it should be understood that the Jews adjust their calendar by the moon, and, according to Webster, their year consists of twelve lunar months, a thirtienth being introduced from time to time to accommodate it to the sun and seasons. And so, that is why, apparently, we have the Jewish New Year falling in October instead of September this year. They also, I am informed by a local Hebrew merchant, date from the time of Israel's deliverance from bondage in Egypt, 3,000 years back, although historical record of that event before me gives the date of their exodus as 1600 B.C.—3,520 years ago.

THE JEWISH CREED.

The Jewish creed consists of thirteen articles, from which none are permitted to swerve. They are as follows:

I. I believe, with a strong and lively faith, that their is one God, the creator of all things, and first principle of all beings, who is self-sufficient and independent, and without whom no created being can subsist.

II. That God is one and indivisible, but of a unity peculiar to Himself alone; that He has been, is and shall forever be, the only God, blessed for evermore.

III. That God is an incorporeal being; He has no bodily quality of any kind whatever, which either is possible or can any way be imagined.

IV. That God is eternal, and all being, except Himself, had once a beginning; for God is the beginning and end of all things.

V. That none but God is the object of divine adoration; and no created being ought to be worshipped as a mediator or intercessor.

VI. That whatever is written in the books of the prophets is true; for there have been, and still may be, prophets qualified to receive the inspirations of the Supreme Being.

VII. I believe in the truth of the prophecies of our master Moses (peace be with him); for Moses was prophet superior to all others; and God Almighty honored him with a peculiar gift of prophecy, which was never granted to any of the rest.

VIII. That the law left by Moses was the pure dictate of God Himself; and consequently the explication of those commandments which were handed down by tradition, came entirely from the mouth of God, who delivered it to our master Moses, as we have it at the present day.

IX. That this law is unchangeable and that God will never give another; nor can there be the least addition to or diminution from it.

X. That God perfectly knows the most secret thoughts, and governs all the actions of mankind.

XI. That God will reward those who observe this law, and will severely punish such as are guilty of the least violation of it. Eternal life is the best, greatest reward, and damnation of the soul the most severe punishment.

XII. That a Messiah shall come more deserving than all the kings that have ever lived. Although He thinks proper to delay His coming, no one ought on that account to question the truth of it, or set an appointed time for it, much less produce Scripture for the proof of it, since Israel will never have any king, to rule over it but one that shall be of the line of David and Solomon.

XIII. That God will raise the dead: and although I know not when, yet it will be when He sees most convenient. Hallowed be His name forever and ever. Amen.

A REFORM MOVEMENT.

And here it is noteworthy that in the United States a schism divided the Jews into two schools—orthodox and reformers.

But the most radical innovation of all was the "platform" adopted at the National Rabbinical Convention of the Reformed Hebrew Church, held in Pittsburgh, Pa., November 17 and 18, 1885. The following are the leading professions:

"We hold that Judaism presents the highest conception of the God idea as taught in our holy Scriptures and developed and spiritualized by Jewish teachers. We maintain that Judaism preserved and defended amid continual struggles and trials this God idea as the central religious truth for the human race.

"We recognize in the Bible the record of the consecration of the Jewish people to its mission as priest of the one God, and value it as the most potent instrument of religious and moral instruction. We hold that the modern discoveries of scientific researches in the domains of nature and history and not antagonistic to the doctrines of Judaism, the Bible reflecting the primitive ideas of its own age, and at times clothing its conception of divine providence and justice dealing with man in miraculous narratives.

"We recognize in the Mosaic legislation a system of training the Jewish people for its mission during its natural life in Palestine, and today we accept as binding only the moral laws, and maintain only such ceremonies as elevate and sanctify our lives; but reject all such as are not adapted to the views and habits of modern civilization.

"We hold that all such Mosaic and Rabbinical laws as regulate diet, priestly purity and dress originated in ages and under the influence of ideas altogether foreign to our present mental and spiritual state. They fail to impress the modern Jew with a spirit of priestly holiness, their observance in our days is apt rather to obstruct than to further modern spiritual elevation.

"We consider ourselves no longer a nation, but a religious community, and therefore expect neither a return to Palestine nor a sacrificial worship under the sons of Aaron, nor the restoration of any of the laws concerning the Jewish state.

"Christianity and Islam being daughter religions of Judaism, we appreciate their providential mission to and in the spreading of monotheistic and moral truth. We acknowledge that the spirit of broad humanity of our age is our ally and the fulfillment of our mission, and therefore who we extend the hand of fellowship to all who operate with us in the establishment of the reign of truth and righteousness among men.

"We assure the doctrine of Judaism that the soul of man is immortal. We reject, as ideas not rooted in Judaism, the beliefs both in bodily resurrection and in Gehenna and Eden (hell and paradise) as abodes for everlasting punishment or reward."

MODERN STANDING.

This all too brief story of "God's chosen people of the Old Testament" can hardly be passed over without reference to their standing in Anglo-speaking territory and a smattering of the eminence obtained in the Gentile world by some of their race and blood.

England has legislated liberally for them and they now enjoy throughout the whole kingdom equal rights with British subjects in all instances, excepting where the particular nature of their religion forms a barrier. These privileges are also enjoyed in Canada.

The Jews are fond of secret societies, and in the United States especially they have accomplished much to extend such orders as Freemasonry and Oddfellowship, as they also have, perhaps, to a lesser extent done in Canada.

Many Jews in modern times have "We assert the doctrine of Judalectual callings of life. Among the scientists of high repute are found the names of Zunz, Geiger, Munk, Rappoport and Luzzato. Philosophy claims Mendelssohn, Marmon, Herz, Bendavid and Frank. In political economy Ricardo and Lasalle acquired distinction among the most distinguished, while Borne, Heine, Auerbach, Grace Aguilar, Jules Janin and Bernstein all climbed to dizzy height in literary fame. In music, among her most talented expositors we find the names of Mendelssohn, Bartholdy, Mezerbeer and Halvey. To statecraft the Jews gave Disraeli—created by the British crown Lord Beaconsfield—one of England's greatest of all great Prime Ministers; and Cremierx and Lasker; to mathematics, Nitzarhausen, Sklow, Cassel and Hirsch; to philanthropy, Montefiore. In religious reform none more sturdy in advocacy than Charin, Holdheim, Lilienthal, Hess, Stern, Creizenach and Einhorn; while anking among the greatest of the world's conservative theologians we find Pleisser, Johlsohn, Steinheim and Hirsch. And in historical research, Iost, Furst, Philippson, Salvadar, Herzfield, Frankel, Sachs, Sabbatutz, Steinschneider, Neubaner, Raphael, Leeser and Wise are names synonymous for brilliant achievement of which every Jew should be proud.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

FRANCE HARD HIT BY DEPRESSION, BUYERS STRIKE AND HIGH PRICES

HAS, HOWEVER, REMARKABLE RECORD OF NO UNEMPLOYMENT AND NO LABOR UNREST.

By WEBB MILLER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Oct. 1.—In common with most of the world, France is hit severely by the general depression of business and economic conditions.

That usually accurate barometer of national prosperity—the importation and exportation statistics—shows storm clouds in heavy decreases in the vital items.

But in reading any statistics regarding France's economic status, figures of her terrible war losses and wonderful reconstructional effort must be considered simultaneously. To cite only a few—1,364,000 men killed, 4,471,000 acres of arable land devastated, the great industrial and coal basin of the North ruined.

Against these figures stand 3,420,000 acres cleared and put under cultivation, 3,645 factories resumed work out of 4,700 ruined, 8,426 miles of roads rebuilt, 3,292 miles of railways reconstructed.

On the opposite side of the ledger are the figures of importation and exportation. After rising by leaps since the armistice, the exports show a marked setback. As compared with the similar seven months of 1920, exportations decreased in value from fourteen billion francs to twelve billion francs.

The most disquieting feature of the statistics is the unprecedented drop of importation of raw materials from fifteen billions of francs to five billions.

An encouraging note in the importations is the great fall in imports of foodstuffs by four and one-quarter billions of francs, showing that France is rapidly regaining her power of feeding herself independently.

On the other hand, France has a remarkable record of no unemployment and no labor unrest.

Owing to the fact that her great basic industry of agriculture, France is in a much more favorable position than big manufacturing nations. In general agriculture it is in a much better shape than for years, and the patient industry of the French peasant is unequalled in Europe.

The Ministry of Agriculture just announced, despite the drought, the wheat crop surpasses all records with 87,000,000 of quintals, including 2,000,000 from Alsace-Lorraine. The average yield of 16.4 quintals per hectare also established a record. The immediate result was a reduction in the retail price of bread, which is a far greater staple foodstuff in France than any other country. Another result will be the halting of importations of wheat and heavy payments in depreciated currency.

Unheralded in the press, France is passing through the crisis of a silent "buyers' strike." As prices steadily mounted the mass of people gradually stopped buying anything except necessities. It is a hard blow to the stores that had stocked up with money borrowed from the banks at high rates. Although the storekeepers are stubbornly holding out, trying to get out even, the prices in clothes and shoes have been forced down about 20 per cent.

Since the first of the year the general cost of living has dropped about 25 per cent. Meantime, wages have followed with an average decrease of from 5 to 15 per cent.

But food prices, except bread, are tenaciously holding to the top notch, with prospects of soaring during the winter, owing to the two months' drought. The vintage of wine is above the average.

Owing to the destruction of the Lens coal fields, France's coal production is still far under pre-war production, which, in turn, directly affects nearly every branch of national industry. Statistics show that steel and iron production exceeds France's national needs, but she is unable to market it freely.

But despite the heavy burden of her devastated regions and the unfavorable world economic condition, French economists and business experts agree that fundamentally France is sound, and needs only time and work to put her on the road to the old-time national prosperity.

ADMIRAL PAKENHAM INSPECS WIRELESS STATION

ST. JOHN, Nfld.—Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Admiral Wm. C. Pakenham arrived yesterday on the British cruiser Raleigh to inspect the wireless station here erected and used extensively during the war. Since the armistice was signed the big plant's usefulness has diminished, but Admiral Pakenham's official visit has brought unconfirmed reports that its utilization is under consideration by the admiralty in a new plan for radio communication throughout the empire.

New Drug Will Make Millions of People Well

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY —NUMBERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our Livers. When the Liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your Stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicine act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep, waking in the morning feeling 100 p.c. better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed and ready for a good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in Peterborough by F. C. Weber, Charlotte street.

AT HOME AT MARK STREET

MARK STREET CHURCH MISSION BAND TOOK PART.

To say that enthusiasm, push and go, with youthful energy and devotion, prevailed at Mark Street Methodist Church last night, is to put it mildly indeed. The Mission Band were at home to the interested members of the congregation, and the interested members of the congregation were there. The decorations were so artistic, tasteful and profuse, that the most uncouth and uninitiated human being would be attracted by the blending beauty of the scene.

We believe that this Mission Band raised the most money for missions last year of any church in the district, with the exception of old Trinity. All through the past summer the little girls had been growing plants for the cause of missions, to be sold in the autumn, and last night witnessed the consummation of the noble purpose. As the visitors arrived they were received at the door by the reception committee, who conducted them to the refreshment room, where they could enjoy a "cup of tea" amid a bower of beauty. "Nothing but a broken leg or a broken head would keep me at home from this," said one man, who had no child taking part. If there is anything that should be of the deepest interest to parents, it is the welfare of their children. How well the little folks managed the function; how splendid they looked; how well they conducted themselves, and they were wishing father and mother were there to see them. Why, if those who were sick at home had seen the picture that we saw, it would have almost put a cripple on his feet, and set him on his way to this rendezvous of hilarity. A father came in all smiles. Immediately his boys and girls pounced upon him, and bore him to the table. They laughed. They frisked about him. They put sugar in his tea. They bought him candies (out of his purse)—well he was the happiest man in Peterborough. My friend, would you like to taste the joys of life? Then let the happy boys and girls, especially your own, entertain you once in a while.

CAUCASIAN REPUBLICS ASK HELP FROM LEAGUE

ALL SAINT'S IS IN FESTIVAL DRESS

LACKING OSTENTATION, DECORATIONS ARE IN EXCEEDING GOOD TASTE—HARVEST FESTIVAL LAST NIGHT.

The decorating of All Saints' Church for its harvest festival last night, has been done with that exceeding good taste which reflects the touch of a hand sensitive to the fitness of place and occasion. Lacking that ostentatious display of super-abundance which two frequently features similar decorative efforts, the nave of the sacred edifice, in its quiet festival dress of fruits of the field, garden and orchard, with here and there in centre aisle and pendant from wall lamp fixtures, modest clusters of oats, ferns and autumn foliage, relieved in spots by just a sufficiency of floral coloring, presents a quiet ornateness refreshingly new in harvest home decoration. The spacious chancel also, while appealingly attractive in a select adornment of natures' edible products, together with fall-tinted foliage and exquisite plant bloom, offers a charming picture of nature's blessings tastefully designed and quite removed from pretentious emphasis. The dominating feature of the altars' embellishment is a huge bread sheaf of wheat baked by T. Hooper and which finds an arresting position in the centre of the altar's cream and blue base drapery, catching the congregation's eye as they enter the church.

Five Clergy.

The Rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb, conducted this festival service, assisted by Dr. Blagrave of St. John's chuch, Rev. George J. Bousfield, B. A., Rector of St. Luke's Church, and Rev. W. R. Courage, Rector of St. George's. The preacher of the occasion was Rev. F. J. Moore of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto. This was the first harvest festival in All Saints at which either of the visiting Peterborough clergy had been present, they all being comparative-new in their charges in this city.

The musical contributions of the choir were especially pleasing and of commendable excellence, reflecting exceeding credit on the choir-master, Mr. George Chandler.

Nothing Satisfying.

Rev. F. J. Moore preached an ex- Rev. F. J. Moore preached an exon the words, "All the labor of man is for his mouth, and yet the appetite is not filled." Ecclesiastes 6, vs. 7. The context of his discourse consisted of a convincing welding together of arguments to drive home the fundamental principle underlying human existence that man cannot live by bread alone for his soul ever hungers after spiritual sustenance. Let man turn to wisdom, to pleasure or business in the hope of finding complete satisfaction, and he will only find that their attainment is vanity—vanity and vexation of spirit, in fact, nothing better than feeding on the wind. The physical labor of man is for his mouth, said the eloquent divine, and yet the more he eats, the more he wants—nothing is satisfying; the more delicacies he has to-day the more he craves for to-morrow, and thus he goes on creating one taste which leads to another taste, and his appetite is never gratified, for all the time there is within him a hunger for that which he never seems to acquire

Man is made for two worlds, and neither wealth, pleasure or anything in this material world can satisfy his human soul, the speaker continued. In every human heart there is a longing for and a striving after the secret of peace for the restless spirit, which can only be found in Gods bread of life that satisfies it. Men of every time and every race, he concluded, have on going to Christ, found in him that Bread of Life which gives complete satisfaction to every human need and rest for every human soul in this world and the next.

TENANTS' AND OWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

Last evening an adjourned meeting of the executive and Ward Committees of the Tenants' and Owners' Association was held, at which details of the organisation were threshed out and conclusions reached.

Following the initial meetings held in the G.W.V.A. Hall, at which the resolution to form the Association was adopted, the work of organisation was halted during the summer months, owing to other engagements, absences from the city, and the general relaxation of the holiday season.

Several meetings have been held, all helpful in the work of formation of the Ward Committees, the selection of ward officers, and other matters. This work was forwarded at this last meeting, and will presently be perfected. Several of the Ward Committees have been formed full un and with men whose energy and ability will forward the objects of the Association.

One of the activities that the Ward Committees have taken on is the securing the membership, already very considerable in numbers. In fact, the voluntary coming forward of citizens to support the objects in view is most encouraging. And with the publicity now to be given, it is confident that a large membership will be enrolled.

In order that the objects in view shall be known, the following statement of the objects is given. This, as printed here, is also printed on the Enrollment Slip or Membership Ticket. All citizens are asked to carefully read and consider the objects. There is nothing asked that can in any way conflict with duties of any man or woman as a citizen, and much that should appeal to all.

Objects.

LARAMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

When Laramie's cigars were lighted from McAlpin's, he passed them to Barb, who, as he squared himself so as not to fall off his slender perch, was huskily demanding when Laramie and Kate would be out. At the last minute Kate insisted on, and was given, a good-by kiss. She and Jim promised to go out next day. Barb spoke to the horses. They jumped halfway out of the barn. Kate, with Laramie following, hurried forward to see her father drive away.

The broad back, topped by the powerful shoulders and neck, and the big hat bobbing up and down with the spring of the buckboard, the little team plunging at their bits, and her father heedless of their antics—all this was a familiar sight, but never had it been so pleasing.

The setting sun touched with gold the thin cloud of dust that rose from the wheels. It was the close of a beautiful day, and it had been next to the happiest in her life, Kate thought, while she stood, watching and thinking. The ponies reaching a turn in the road dashed ahead and her father disappeared.

In the morning, breakfasting together early, Sawdy and Lefever with Laramie walked in the bright sunshine down to Kitchen's barn to saddle up and ride across the river to look at some horses Laramie stopped at Belle's to see whether he could get Kate to go over with them; and while Sawdy went on to the barn, Lefever waited at Belle's gate to find out whether Kate was going.

When Laramie came to the door after a few moments to say that Kate would go, Lefever stood outside the gate looking intently into the north.

"Somebody from the Crazy Woman," he observed, as Laramie joined him, "must have an urgent call in town this morning."

He was watching what appeared to be little more than a speck on the northern horizon, but even at that distance it was moving fast. Lefever walked over to Kitchen's to order the fourth horse. Rejoining Laramie he found him still at the gate. And when Kate, fresh as the morning, appeared, the two men, though talking of indifferent things, had their eyes fixed on a horseman galloping at breakneck speed down the long slope of the northern divide. He was now less than a mile away and the dust thrown from his horse's hoofs rose evenly behind him in the stillness of the sunshine. He must pass the barn to reach town. Kate asked a question.

"It may be one of your father's horses," mused Lefever aloud, "and it rides something like old Bill Bradley."

Still pushing his speed to the limit and cutting in reckless fashion the turns of the open road, the rider drew rapidly nearer. They could see he was hatless and coatless and urging his horse. "It's Bradley," declared Lefever decisively. Laramie said nothing. Kate instinctively drew closer to him. The horseman disappeared at that moment behind the railroad icing plant. The next, he whirled with a sharp clatter of hoofs into Main street, and, dashing past Carpy's, pulled his foaming horse to its haunches in front of Kitchen's barn.

McAlpin and Sawdy were leading the four saddle ponies to the stable door. The group at Belle's gate could not hear what Bradley shouted; but they saw McAlpin start. Sawdy, too, spoke quickly, and pointed, with his words, across the way. Bradley jerked his panting horse around and spurred toward Belle's gate.

The old man, his thin hair flying, and his bloodshot eyes bulging, reined up before Laramie with his arm out, to speak. But the ride and the excitement had been too much. His features worked convulsively, but he could not utter a word.

"For God's sake, Bill," cried Lefever, catching his arm and jerking him. "What's up?"

Bradley, his eyes glued on Laramie, got back his voice. "It's Barb, Jim!" he shouted wildly. "Tom Stone shot him this morning!"

Kate's sharp cry rang in Laramie's ears. He caught her in his arm. Belle ran out, only adding to the confusion with her scream. Lefever, joined now by Sawdy and McAlpin, who had hurried over, got Bradley off his horse into a chair on the porch, refreshed him with water, and steadied his whisky wrecked nerves with whisky.

Stone and Van Horn came over from Van Horn's early, Bradley told his hearers brokenly. They asked for Barb and he was down at the creek. Barb had sent Bradley about a mile below the house to repair a small break in the irrigation ditch and had ridden down to show him what he wanted done. After giving instructions, he had started back for the house. Before he got far Stone and Van Horn met him. Bradley heard voices up the creek, but paid no special attention to them, and busied himself with his job. Some minutes later he heard the voices again, loud and angry. As they were close by, Bradley, shovel in hand, walked along the ditch bank to where he could see what was up.

"They'd all got off their horses," continued Bradley, "and was standin' not fur apart. I was close to the willows along the ditch. 'Fore you could say Jack Robinson, Stone and Van Horn snapped out their guns and begun to shoot. The old man was game, boys, he didn't have no show. He managed to get his gun out, both men a-shootin' at him."

"Both!" echoed Laramie, bitterly. Sawdy swore a withering oath.

"Is my father dead?" cried Kate, in agony.

"Not yet," replied Bradley disconcertingly.

"We must get Carpy up there quick. Hunt him up, will you, John," said Laramie to Lefever.

"Hold on," interposed Bradley. "Carpy's there afore this. I met him drivin' north and he put right out for the ranch."

"Couldn't you do something while they were trying to murder father?" sobbed Kate, wringing her hands as she appealed to Bradley.

"What, what could I do?" stared Bradley. "I didn't have no gun. Kelly and me got the wagon down and picked Barb up 'n' got him to the house. He told me to put out for town and get you and Jim Laramie; he's out of his head, you see."

"Did they see you, Bradley?" interrupted Laramie.

"Never seen me, Jim."

"Did Barb hit either of them?" asked Laramie.

"'Taint likely. He only got in one shot. When they seen him wrigglin' on the ground, all doubled up—you know, Jim—they jumped their horses and put across the creek."

For a moment Kate's suppressed sobs broke the silence. Laramie held her in his arm. He promised her he would get her right out to her father as soon as he could take measures for pursuit. When the other men questioned Bradley, Laramie listened. He urged Kate to go inside with Belle, but she begged to stay: "I won't cry, Jim," she pleaded in a whisper. "I must stay. Let me stay."

He placed her in a chair. Belle, schooled in silence during such moments, stood beside her. Laramie, placing himself near Kate, half sat on the edge of the porch floor, one foot resting on the ground and the other curled under. Lefever, facing him, sat on the end of the porch steps, while Sawdy stood with the horses. McAlpin had hurried over to the barn to get Kitchen and telephone Tenison to come down.

"There's two ways they can get out," said Laramie, casting up the situation with his companions. "One is across the Falling Wall and over the Reservation. If they've gone that way they've got a start; but they're easy to trail. The other way would be to strike east or west for the railroad. That's the big gamble—it's the easiest to play and the worst if they lose. They may separate."

"My Godfred, Jim, don't let 'em get away," exclaimed Belle, fearfully.

Sawdy shook his head against that idea. Lefever supported him. Laramie did not urge the view. "Van Horn plays cards different from everybody else," was all he said. Kitchen drove up and Tenison was in the buggy with him.

What help might be had from the sheriff's office was put in Tenison's hands to manage. The railroad men were warned across the division. Outgoing train crews were notified and enginemen told what to do, if stopped. Sawdy and Lefever were directed to strike for the Falling Wall and watch the Reservation trails, while Laramie, with Kate, was to ride straight to the ranch and pick up the trail across the creek.

The news of the shooting of Barb Doubleday filled the corners of Main street with little knots of men eager to hear all that was known and to be first to catch what might come. Women sometimes stopped to listen, and men making ready to ride the northern trails supplied clattering in the streets for every moment and added to the tense scene. The chances for the escape of Van Horn and Stone were canvassed among critics and listeners, and with almost as much insight as they had been cast up in the war council at Belle's. The men that might be expected to give battle if they encountered the fugitives were watched for, and every time they rode past the manœvring and fighting abilities of each were speculated on with surprising accuracy; records were recalled and inferences drawn as to the possibilities now ahead.

The picture of the busy street, constantly renewed and dissolved, changed fast. Lefever and Sawdy, together, were the first to clear for their long ride. Kitchen, strapping on for the first time in years a well-cared for Colt's revolver, got fresh ammunition, and, throwing himself on a good horse, rode for where he had sworn he would never appear again, the Doubleday ranch—to get the cowboys started at poking out the hiding places along the creek.

McAlpin, with much ado, enlisted every man with any sort of a claim to being a tracker—and this included pretty much every loafer interested in a drink or a fight. He assembled a noisy crew at the barn and dispatched them singly with orders to scatter and watch the trail points outlying the town. But birds of this feather were hard to keep scattered. Urged both by prudential and social reasons, they tended continuously to flock together. They kept the barn boss busy by riding back furiously in bunches to report nobody seen, to ask for further orders, and to get a drink before re-establishing a patrol.

Knowing the value of every moment in a long chase, and working with all possible haste, Laramie had to throw out his dragnet carefully before he could get away himself. He had told Kate to prepare at Belle's for a hard ride and he would get her to the ranch.

With every minute lingering like an hour, both women, nervously expectant, waited, talked, and watched for Laramie's return.

Divide lands north of Sleepy Cat lie high and over their broad spread trails open fan-like, north, northeast, and northwest. Each of the trails penetrates at a negotiable point the broken country with the northern sky.

The first highways of the country followed the easiest travel lines. Without fences or boundaries, their travelers, to escape washouts or dust, were free to broaden them as they fancied. In this way older ruts were gradually abandoned and new ones formed. And with heavy travel these trails grew into sprawling avenues.

As settlers took up lands and fenced their claims, such pioneer roads were blocked at intervals. To meet this difficulty new trails were made around the gradually increasing obstacles, and in the end roads along section lines were laid out, with grading and bridging. But the wagon and cattle trails of the early days, rut-cut, storm-washed, and polished by sun and wind and sand to a shining smoothness, still stretch across country, truncated and deserted. Under their weatherbeaten silence lies the story of other days and other men and women.

Along one of the earliest and broadest of these trails running into the north country, Laramie, an hour after Bradley's arrival, was galloping with Kate Doubleday.

But for the shadow of her father's condition there was everything in the ride to make for Kate's happiness. The sweep of the matchless sky, the glory of the sunshine, the wine of the morning air, the eager feet and spreading nostrils of the horses, and at her side—her lover! The trust a woman gives to a man, the security of his protection, the daily growth of her confidence in her choice and her surrender—these could temper, if they could not extinguish, her confused grief.

For Laramie the shadow meant less; sympathy drew him closer to Kate; there was even happiness in knowing that she turned in her distress to him for consolation and guidance.

Timidly, she tried to tell him, as they rode, of some of the better traits of her father, traits that might extenuate his cold, hard brutality—as if to build him up a little in the eyes of one she wished not to think of him too harshly.

"Don't worry over what I'm going to think about him," said Laramie. "If I worried over what a lot of people think about me where would I be? There's some good in most every man; but it doesn't always get a chance to work."

Kate's anxiety was reflected in her manner. "If only," she exclaimed, "they haven't killed him today."

The Fight at the Bridge.

Kate and Jim had crossed the first divide. Below them lay the Crazy Woman, spanned by the double draw bridge.

"His friends were his worst enemies," continued Laramie. "But they've got to get out of this country now. And the worst men are out of the Falling Wall. Still, if you don't like it there, we won't live there," he added, sitting half sidewise toward Kate in his saddle to feast his eyes on her freshness and youth.

"I shall like it anywhere you are, Jim," she said, looking at him simply.

The picture was too much for his restraint. He reined eagerly toward her.

With a laugh she shied away, struck her horse, and dashed ahead. Laramie spurred after her. But they were on the level creek bottom and riding swiftly. She gave him a long run—more than he had looked for.

He realized, as they raced toward the bridge, that he had for one moment forgotten everything but his complete happiness. He called to Kate to stop. In her zest she spurred the harder. He knew she must not reach the bridge ahead of him. Yet he realized the difficulty he faced; she would not understand; and at every cost he must stop her. Animated by this sudden instinct of danger he crowded his horse, forged abreast the flying girl, caught her bridle, and to her astonishment dragged her horse and his own rudely to their haunches. They were almost at the bridge itself.

"Back up!" he exclaimed. "Back up!"

"Jim!" she cried, "please don't throw me!"

"Don't speak—back!" he said low and sharply. Something in the tone and manner of the command admitted of no parley.

With her horse cavorting, half strangled, as he was jerked and backed, Kate, looking amazed at Laramie, saw in his face a man new to her—a man she never had seen before. Not her questioning look, nor the frantic struggles of the rearing horses touched him; nothing in the confusion of the sudden moment drew his eye for an instant from the bridge before him and his drawn revolver was already poised in his hand. Kate knew her part without another protest. She tore her horse's mouth cruelly with the curb. Where the danger was, or what, she did not know, but she could obey orders. Her eyes tried to follow Laramie's, bent ahead. The bottoms spread level in every direction. The approach to the little bridge and beyond was as open as the day. Not a living creature was anywhere in sight, nothing with life had anywhere stirred, nothing of sound broke the silence of the morning, except—when Laramie allowed them to stop—the startled breathing of the horses.

"Jim!" exclaimed Kate in awed restraint. "What is it?"

His eyes were riveted straight ahead, but he answered in a most matter-of-fact tone: "There's somebody under that bridge."

She strained her eyes to see something he must have seen that she could not see. The dazzling sunshine, the dusty road, the rough-built, short wooden bridge before them, were all plain enough. And Kate realized for the first time that Laramie, who had been riding on her right was now on her left and presently that his revolver was sheathed and his rifle, which had hung in its scabbard at the horse's shoulder, was slung across the hollow of his right arm.

"Kate," he said, speaking without looking at her, "will you ride back about a mile and wait for me?"

She turned to him: "What are you going to do, Jim?"

"Smoke that fellow out."

She spoke almost in a whisper: "Is it Van Horn, Jim?"

"I don't believe he'd hide there. It's more like Stone."

"Jim! Stone's a deadly shot!"

Looking into the distance he only replied: "From cover. This may be a long-winded affair, Kate." He added, pausing: "You'd better ride as far as the hills."

She looked at him bravely restrained, but with all her love in her eyes. "I don't want to leave you, Jim."

"It's poor business for you to be in," he returned firmly. "There's no way to make it pleasant."

"Don't drive me away!"

He hesitated again: "You might do this: Ride back fast about eighty rods. Leave the road there, bear to the west and circle around the little knoll you'll see. There's a clump of willows below the west side of that knoll."

"Do you know every clump of willows in this country Jim?"

He answered unmoved: "I know that one for I've crawled up there more than once to take observations under that bridge myself. Get around behind those willows and you can see the creek bottom all the way to the bridge. I'm going up the creek about five hundred yards. I'll work down. Whoever's under the bridge can't get away except down the creek. If you see a man trying that, just fire two shots—in the air, close together—I'll understand. If you get into any kind of trouble—which you're kind of trying to do—fire two shots a few seconds apart. I won't be far off."

With a plea to him to be careful—behind which all her agony of apprehension was repressed and mastered—Kate wheeled her horse and galloped back.

Laramie, skirting a depression, rode into a break leading to the creek bed. The creek was practically dry; just a thread of water here and there among the rocks marked the course of flood time. Dismounting, Laramie shook himself out of the saddle and laying his rifle across his arm, walked carefully down-stream along the bed of the creek.

He knew if he were seen first, the fight would be over before he got into it; of chances to kill from cover, the criminal he felt sure he was hunting, would need but one. No man from the Falling Wall country was Stone's superior in the craft of hiding; but none was Laramie's equal in the art of surprise; and Laramie meant, for once, to make an antagonist formidable from cover, show in the open.

Science and Life.

Newton did not expect to serve any practical end by watching the fall of an apple, neither did Einstein when he stopped to look at a workman falling off a roof. Nor was there, seemingly, any relation between commerce and industry and the antics of the lid of a boiling kettle. Nothing, again, would appear to have less to do with warfare than the contemplation of the ears of the whale. Yet the studies of zoologists proved an invaluable aid to submarines and saved many lives. No one can fail to be impressed by the appeal of the President of the Royal Society to men of science to use their most earnest endeavors to prevent the prostitution of knowledge by perfecting the means of death and destruction. There is nothing new in the story he tells of the German who said that in "the next war" mustard gas would be obsolete, and something far more deadly would be at our disposal. It is now common knowledge that if there is a next war on a world scale chemistry may literally annihilate nations. A wide appreciation of that ghastly portent should mean a vast acquisition of strength to the purposes of the League of Nations. And the fellowship of science may itself do much for peace by refusing to do the dirty work of war.—London Daily News.

EXHIBITION BOARD RECEIVED MANY PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

THEY WILL BE DEALT WITH AT A BUSINESS MEETING TO BE HELD SOON — PRESENTATION OF SILVER TRAY TO WEBBER TURNER FROM THE DIRECTORS

WILL PUBLISH AUDIT

In response to President Denne's appeal to the public for suggestions for the improvement of the Exhibition, a sheaf of replies was read to the directors at a luncheon Friday night in the Empress Hotel. The fact that so many citizens had manifested their interest in the progress of Peterboro's Fair, incidentally congratulating the Board upon its present achievement, was pronounced by the directors as one of the most heartening signs that had yet appeared. The ideas proposed were practical for the most part, but some of them would involve expenditures which the Board may be unable to assume next year.

In order that the effect of these suggestions might not be lost, the Board decided to file them until the next business meeting which will be held within two weeks. Mr. Denne stated that other letters would be forthcoming in the meantime, and that all of them could be dealt with at once. He also pointed out that the new Board would have to deal with most of them but others could be referred to the various working committees.

As an evidence of the Board's appreciation of this show of interest from the public it was decided to publish the letters after the next meeting.

A recommendation from Mr. Geo. Giroux outlined an Old Home week in conjunction with the Exhibition, which for the occasion might be extended to six days. Realizing that this was an amplification of the proposal broached by the Chamber of Commerce to the City Council, the directors felt that immediate action should be taken on it.

R. M. Glover moved, seconded by Tom Brown, that the Board prepare to cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council in order that the proposed Old Home week might coincide with next year's fair.

G. Wells Fraser moved, seconded by by Tom Brown ,that the suggestions be gratefully acknowledged and that the writers be informed that the Board has extended for ten days the time within which other suggestions will be received, and that they will then be dealt with; and also that the Board's appreciation be extended to those well-wishing citizens for their congratulatory references to the Board's efforts.

Financial Statement.

Secretary F. J. A. Hall submitted a first draft of the financial condition of the Board. Before making it public the Board decided to obtain a complete and independent audit of the Exhibition's finances by W. R. Morris, chartered accountant, setting forth in detail the assets and liabilities.

"It is public money we are spending," said Mr. Denne, "and we should have independent audit and have it published. We are getting grants from the city and the county councils. Their eyes are on what we are doing and we want to show the people that the money is being administered right. To do that we should give them an audited statement."

A Presentation.

The directors made a personal gift of a handsome silver tray to Mr. Webber Turner in recognition of his invaluable sevices as the director in charge of the concessions and the grandstand attractions. The presentation was made by Vincent Eastwood in a graceful speech stating that it was seemingly inevitable that the bulk of the work should fall upon some of the directors more than on others. While all were willing and ready to respond when called on, some of the directors were given positions that demanded exceptional industry. One such was the superintendency ably filled by Tom Brown, another was the presidency now occupied by R. Denne, and still another was Webber Turner's post. Mr. Eastwood said he thoroughly enjoyed the associations with the directors, a phase of the work that materially added to its success.

Mr. Turner replied briefly thanking he directors for their gift of silver plate and for the friendly spirit that actuated it.

Will Plant Trees.

Pressing a plea that he had previously made, Reg. Turner urged the Board to undertake this season the planting of trees both outside and inside the Exhibition Park. In the hope of winning the approval of the Board, he had secured a price for the planting of 250 elms and poplars for $250. The Carolina Poplars were recommended because of their rapid growth. When the elms had developed the poplars could be removed. Sam Oke and Wm. Steinkrauss said that the planting of the trees might be done voluntarily by the directors, but Mr. Turner argued that what was everybody's business too often proved nobody's. His proposal was enthusiastically adopted.

Mr. Denne suggested that a boulevard might be built up outside the grounds for the further adornment of the Park, and Bruce Johnston, Clerk of North Monaghan, said he would use his best efforts with the township council to that end if the Board proceeded to carry out the plan.

Mr. Turner unfolded a graphic picture of the Exhibition Park with tall elms lending their stately beauty, the whole grounds presenting a spacoius beauty spot that the citizens of the future would delight in. "But some of us would like to see those elms before we pass out," added Mr. Turner, "and the only way is to start now."

An Anonymous Letter.

Among the letters received by the Board was an unsigned one alleging that the former employees at the gates had been discriminated against this year. r. Mr. Turner left the decision of hearing it to the directors and they declined to deal with an anonymous ocmplaint.

Mr. Denne, however, asked permission to refer to this matter in order that the public and the former gatemen would understand the situation. Hitherto the selling and taking of the tickets had been in Felix Brownscombe's charge, but this year he had resigned shortly before the exhibition on account of the pressure of other duties.

"Mr. Webber Turner advertised for men to take the tickets and sell them, and Mr. J. E. Sullivan was engaged to boss the job with Frank Bradburn assisting in Mr. Brownscombe's place," Mr. Denne explained. "I had nothing whatever to do with that. Mr. Turner received the names of the men who replied to the advertisement ,and made a list of them. He engaged them when he needed them. I afterwards was told that I had not engaged one of the old gatemen because he did not vote for me. I don't like to mention a petty thing like this, but I wish to point out that I had nothing to do with the hiring of the men, and, furthermore, I did not know whether the man in question voted for me or not."

The directors interjected that an explanation to them was unnecessary, but Mr. Denne replied that some statement should be made in order that rumours of that kind should be silenced, and that the public should know that petty personalities did not enter into the management of the affairs of the exhibition. Malicious rumours of that sort were of the same cloth as those heard a few years ago to the effect that the directors "grafted" the receipts of the Exhibition. Full publicity had shown the untruth of that lei and the fact that the citizens and farmers were exhibiting keener interest than ever in the fair and its development was sufficient assurance to the directors that they enjoyed the confidence of the public and that their efforts were being apreciated.

Last night's meeting was attended by practically the entire membership and was enlivened by a short musical programme by Mr. William Barrie and Mr. Frank Pratt. Chief Newhall and H. O. Fisk, who had contributed to the success of this year's exhibitoin were guests of the directors.

The Spur of Necessity.

Money doe- not bestow character and a great amount of it suddenly acquired seldom brings enduring happiness. Character is developed through work. It is partly inherited and partly the product of labor. Experience proves anew every day that a great fortune is produced by those sweating under the lash of necessity. Sons of many rich men begin their careers under a handicap. They are accustomed to having their wants satisfied without any effort on their part other than the asking. To them the stern virtues of thrift and economy are unknown. Pleasure is the goal of their existence and they are apt to have exotic notions about it. Only those who have themselves suffered can feel the common touch that makes the whole world akin.—Los Angeles Times.

KING ASKS UNITY.

BRIDGEWATER, N. S., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—In ten minute speeches delivered at a reception last night, Hon. Mackenzie King, Hon. Dr. Beland and Hon. Mr. Fielding voiced greater unity among all sections of the country for a greater Canada. The Liberal leader was given a warm welcome on his arrival and a reception was held in the court house. In returning his thanks, Mr. King stressed the need of unity among the different classes to bring Canada to her proper destiny among the nations. There was room for men of different thought and ideals in Canada and when great questions arose they should be met by harmonious action by people of different ideas from different provinces and different ideals.

Rare Music Scores Show Quaint Printing

There was held at the British Museum in London, England, recently, in connection with the sixth centenary of the death of Dante, an exhibition of music scores which proved of great interest to musicians and to the music printer. Although not designed to show the development of the music printer's art, it could not fail to do so, for the printer followed closely on the heels of the advancing musicians.

It should be remembered that in Dante's time the music-printer did his work by hand , and the follies shown at the Museum were beautiful examples of hand work. With the diffusion of knowledge came the necessity of putting into the hands of church singers and instrumental performers copies of the music, and large folios were neither available nor suitable. Recourse was made to wood blocks, on which the lines and notes were first drawn by hand and then the background cut away, leaving in relief the medium for printing.

But the cost of wood blocks for music printing must have been very great, and the result not very satisfactory; so the ingenious old printer tried his hand at the work. Frist he used cast-metal note-heads. Specimens of this partial music-printing were shown at the Museum.

The various stages of music-printing from Dante's time were shown in the exhibits on display during the time of the exposition.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

GENEVA, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Charges that Bolshevism is responsible for the Russian famine and counter-charges by Dr. Nansen that political considerations are the cause of hesitation on the part of governments to help the Russians were outstanding features of the debate in the League of Nations yesterday.

Dr. Nansen was upheld in his efforts, however, and a paragraph was introduced into the committee report expressing confidence in him and in the prospect of his success. The question of relief will be decided by the Brussels' conference.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(United Press.)—Senate wets today decided to talk the anti-beer bill to death. A score of wet Senators, led by Broussard, of Louisiana, met and determined to block the bill by a filibuster. The measure may be revived next session but the wets are confident it is dead, as far as this session is concerned.

...GLIGHT IMPROVEMENT ...ONDITION IS NOTICED

...nces of improvement in the ...ater, although slight, are be...ticed, and the chlorine dosage ...been decreased from 13 pounds ...million gallons to 12. With the ...ng of cool weather it is expect... the quality of the water will ...radually become better. The aver...ge temperature of the water during September has been higher than in other years, and this has accounted to some extent for its greater pollution. The plain fact remains that the water is in as serious a condition as it has ever been.

Two years ago only six pounds of chlorine per million gallons was required for safety, last year the dosage was nine pounds and till today 13 pounds have been administered to every million gallons of water to kill the bacillus.

These figures indcate plainly the increase in pollution and are strange points in possession of the so-called "cranks" of filtered water.

FARMERS MARKET WELL ATTENDED

LOTS OF "WINDFALLS" OFFERED FOR SALE—PRICES LOWER

The high wind yesterday sent the farmers into town to-day loaded with "windfalls" Every waggon had apples and the line of outfit extended on both sides of the walk right around on Charlotte street, almost to the south entrance. A good many of the farmers around here had potatoes. The potato patches have been only touched as yet and buyers predict very low prices when the late ones are dug.

The prices were $2.00 a bag, or 40 cents a peck without variation to-day and there was quite a run on peck lots. Onions were selling fairly well too. Wniter ones were 50 and 60 a peck, white skins bringing 65. Pickles were two quarts for 25. Carrots were 25 and 30 cents a peck, but were scarce at that price. Turnips sold four for ten cents.

Cabbages Plentiful

There was no scarcity of cabbages and cauliflower and fine heads were only 10 and 15 cents; large ones of course cost another five or 10. Celery was very noticeable and sold at 10. Radishes and lettuce still were displayed a five cents.

The quantities of tomatoes on last week were not in evidence this morning. Ripe and green ones were about the same price, 35 cents a basket or 75 cents a bushel.

The Apple Crop.

An abundance of all kinds of apples testified to the strong wind that played in the orchard yesterday. Cookers of known and unknown varieties were selling 30 and 35 cents while most of the eating apples, largely snows, were 40. Bags of eating apples could be had at $2.00. The gourd family was well represented and pumpkins and the others were bringing 10 and 15.

A large basket section and scarcity of eggs were remarked to-day There was hardly a vacant space at the tables and while butter and fowl were plentiful eggs were hardly to be seen. If priced the reply would be "53" "54" or "55" cents. Butter settled around and above 40 cents some asking as high as 45. Chickens were in every size at 25 cents and 30 cents a pound. Quite a few ducks were offered. One lady wanted 38 cents but generally 35 down to 30 was asked.

There were more young hogs on the market to-day. $12 and $14 a pair was what most of the farmers standing guard over them were asking.

CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL FIELDS ARE DOING THINGS

Besides learning that the geological formation is favorable in certain localities, we have gone to the trouble and expense of a checking up system which has invariably proved successful, and the results are more than encouraging. The exploration and testing show large oil areas, where oil is centred in lakes, in some places miles wide. This means a large flow of oil to be had for the drilling. The Central Ontario Oil Fields started out to do this work successfully and the prospects look surprisingly bright.

Even the experts themselves were surprised and delighted at the extent of the field, and we are confident we will succeed in a large way in this enterprise. If ever a home enterprise deserved financial backing this is one as it means so much to the whole community. We want the pick of this area, and we can get it. Do not delay and results will be quicker to yourself and to all concerned. Remember the short time now for getting the first offering.

NEW YORK, October 1 (Canadian Press). — Stocks were steady at the opening of to-day's session, the Coalers being most active. Coppers, equipments and shippings also showed firmness. Foreign oils were the only exceptions, Mexican Petroleum easing slightly.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, October 1 (Canadian Press). — Further active buying of Lehigh Valley, presumably in anticipation of its forthcoming segregation plan, was the feature at the opening of to-day's stock market, those shares soon adding 13-4 points to yesterday's substantial advance. Otherwise, trading was extremely dull, with a firm tone for favourite issues of the equipment, motor, and specialty groups.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, October 1 (Canadian Press. — Wheat was on the down grade at the opening to-day, showing an early decline of about a cent and a half. Heavy Canadian movements, increase of stocks at Minneapolis, and professional liquidation in Chicago combined to make sentiment bearish. December started 3-4c lower at 1.19 3-4 to 1.20 and May a half-cent lower at 1.25 to 1.25 1-4.

Coarse grains moved in sympathy with wheat. Corn started 1-8 to 3-8 cent lower, with December at 49 3-8 and May at 54 3-4 to 54 7-8.

Oats opened 1-8 to 1-4 cent lower, with December 31 1-8 to 36 1-4 and May 40 3-8.

"BLUE SKY" LEGISLATION CONSIDERED BY RANEY.

TORONTO, October 1 (Canadian Press-. — If 'blue sky" legislation is practicable, the Hon. W. E. Raney intends to place it on the statute books of Ontario.

In order to get all the information on the subject, he has instructed a Toronto lawyer to make investigations into the results attending the enforcement of similar legislation in other parts of the Dominion and the United States, and, if advisable, to submit a draft bill.

MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Trading was brisk on the local stock exchange during the first half hour this morning. Atlantic Sugar rose three quarters of a point to 30 3-4 while Brompton was stronger by one quarter at 22 1-2. Laurentide, however, weakened fractionally to 72 1-4.

MEXICO TO CUT ARMY IN ACCORD WITH NEW VIEWS

MEXICO CITY, October 1 (Canadian Press). — In an effort to "collaborate in the new organisation of the world in conformity with her own duties and aspirations," Mexico will endeavour to reduce its army and decrease its war expenditures, according to President Obregon at a dinner given in honour of the foreign delegates to the Mexican centennial last night. Mexico, he added, intends constantly to raise the moral and mental status of her people.

IF LLOYD-GEORGE GOES TO WASHINGTON HIS TRIP WILL BE SHORT.

LONDON, October 1 (Canadian Press). — The Prime Minister will return to London on 5th October, to attend the Cabinet meeting the following day, at which the question of British representatives to the Washington conference will be considered.

It is stated that domestic problems may prevent the Premier from attending the conference. If he does make the trip, his absence would be comparatively short.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

A human-interest story with a popular star is the winning combination scheduled for the Regent Theatre on Monday, when Edith Roberts will be seen in "The Unknown Wife," a melodrama of everyday life, tinged with the influence of the underworld.

In her latest starring vehicle Miss Roberts depicts the scope of human emotion in a role which is particularly suited to her screen artistry. She appears first as a small town girl who is running a boarding-house to support her invalid father ;then as the wife of a reformed crook and his faithful companion when adversity threatens to engulf them because he will not again turn his genius into the murky channels of crime.

Casson Ferguson, who was the screen sensation of "The Mutiny of the Elsinore" and the appealing boy of "Madame X," plays opposite the star as "The Kid," the brain power that drives a criminal band in a series of daring crimes.

The supporting cast sustains Universal's reputation for attention to details in every production. Spottiswoode Aiken, the veteran character actor, plays the role of the invalid father. Joe Neary and William Quinn play important members of 'The Kid" gang, while Augustus Phillips, Bert Frank, Hal Wilson, Mathilde Brundage, Jessie Pratt, and Edith Stayart have roles that exactly suit their screen personalities.

The story of "The Unknown Wife" was written by Bennett Cohen and was scenarised by Wallace Clifton. William Worthington directed its production, and his well-known artistry is displayed in every detail of the photodrama.

FILM AT REGENT, MONDAY, A SOUTH SEA ROMANCE.

Frank Mayo, the Star, Supported by Charlie Chaplin's Fiancee.

If you like romance and mystery, big thrills, beautiful backgrounds, and if your heart responds to an unusual love affair, then you will enjoy "The Shark Master," the Universal South Sea photoplay in which Frank Mayo will appear at the Regent Theatre on Monday.

The story of the beautiful Flame Flower, a white child reared among the natives and made tabu to all men by the chief of the tribe, the awakening of her feminine instincts when a man of her own blood is washed upon the beach after a tropic hurricane, and the pathetic situation when the little creature of the jungle realises the man's heart is not free, served to keep the audience thoroughly engrossed, while the ravishing backgrounds with their tropic beauty always delighted the eye.

Frank Mayo has never been seen to better advantage than in "The Shark Master." His leading lady is May Collins who, according to rumour, is soon to marry Charlie Chaplin. Others in the well selected cast are Doris Deane, Herbert Fortier, "Smoke" Turner, Nick DeRuiz, Carl Silvera, and Oliver Cross.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"I AM GUILTY!" IS NEW READ SPECIAL

Louise Glaum will star in the J. Parker Read, Jr., attraction, "I Am Guilty!" which opens at the Capitol Theatre next Monday for a three-day run.

"I Am Guilty!" is a thrilling mystery story of a somewhat different tyne. It was written by Bradley King, prominent magazine contributor and playwright, directed by Jack Nelson and photographed by Charles J. Stumar, one of the most artistic cameramen in the business.

In her newest vehicle, Miss Glaum plays the part of a neglected wife who accepts the invitation of a friend from the days of the chorus to take a last fling at pleasure. At a party, Connie MacNair (Miss Glaum) is insulted by Teddy Garrick, her host, (Joseph Kilgour) and she suffers a horrible burn from a glowing brazier while struggling with the man. The burn proves her undoing when Garrick is killed, supposedly by Connie, and Connie's body reveals the secret to MacNair. This situation, one of the most powerful ever enacted before the camera, brings the talents of Miss Glaum, Mahlon Hamilton, her leading man, and little Mickey Moore, into full play.

Miss Glaum's supporting cast includes, beside Kilgour, Hamilton and little Mickey Moore, such favorites as Claire DuBrey, Ruth Stonehouse, George Cooper and May Hopkins.

Besides this excellent 7-reel feature picture Buster Keaton's latest and funniest comedy, "The Goat," will be shown, and, also, two excellent double vaudeville acts—Merle & Newton in a comedy skit, entitled, "The Clerk and the Girl;" Adams & Taylor in their big novelty act, juggling, hoop rollers and dancers. A matinee and evening performance every day at the usual popular prices now in vogue at the Capitol.

FAN-FAN.

AT THE ALLEN.

For exquisite detail and absolute novelty, the New York apartment of 'Dangerous Curve Ahead!", a Rupert Hughes comedy, coming to the Allen Theatre for three days, commencing Monday, is far ahead of any Goldwyn picture recently produced. The architecture is Italian, with a leaning toward the New Art idea, and the panels, curtains, pillows, etc., are of French hand blocked linen. Regardless of the fact that the color scheme is not revealed by the screen, such sets are always carried out with the same care and taste as though for the legitimate stage. This beautiful suite is done in dull orange, peacock blue and flat black.

A MOTION PICTURE THAT WILL STRIKE HOME

A motion picture that will strike home to many young Canadian married couples is "Dangerous Curve Ahead.", a Goldwyn feature, written by Rupert Hughes, which comes to the Allen Theatre for three days, commencing Monday. Miss Helene Chadwick, called the "most photographed girl in America," has the principal role.

The story of the play concerns the early married life of a small-town girl who was the belle of her community before her marriage to an easy-going domestically inclined husband. Inwardly chafing under the restraints imposed by the cares of her home, and the rearing of her two children, she seizes the first opportunity to taste again of the butterfly life in society, while her husband is away on business.

How she avoids the Dangerous Curve, and is brought to her senses by the illness of her little child, eagerly resuming the yoke of domesticity, is dramatically portrayed.

The picture is well acted and splendidly photographed, several innovations being resorted to that alone lift the film from the commonplace. Miss Chadwick does the best work of her career in the picture, and she is ably supported by Richard Dix, "Lefty" Flynn of Yale athletic fame, James Neill, Edythe Chapman and Kate Lester.

AT THE GRAND.

Now that the engagement of the Rex Stock Company is over for this week, in Peterborough, I can tell you just how near we were to not having our beloved "Fair and Warmer." Mr. Snelgrove had an extremely hard week in Kingston during the fair, because no matter how good each one of his cast is, all the production end of the game is attended to by Rex, himself. If you have ever been behind the scenes before, during and after a performance, you can realize the responsibility that rests upon a manager's shoulders. Sitting out in front, everything on the stage appears attractive— even beautiful. Take my advice and remain out front, because once you step behind the curtain, the glitter and glare of the footlights fade away, ropes lying in every direction become entangled about one's feet and the illusions of beauty vanish. All is hustling, fast moving business and night after night last week during three changes of plays, Mr. Snelgrove worked until the wee sma' hours. On Monday in Peterborough, he was taken ill suddenly, on Tuesday it seemed impossible for him to go out upon the stage, but he refused to listen to his physician, and so the Grand patrons were not disappointed. To me it is nothing short of marvellous to think that Rex. could give such pleasure, create so much laughter and "carry on" as he did for three nights under such great difficulties. In order to be present at the evening performance of 'Fair and Warmer' he has had to remain in bed every day, and Mrs. Snelgrove has been very much worried. Let us hope he will soon be himself again, because Kingston audiences make just as great demands upon the favorite comedian as do we.

Last week I had a very interesting chat with the ingenue or juvenile woman—Miss Gloria Machan. She is an extremely popular little lady and so often I hear these remarks, or similar ones, "Who is that pretty little dark girl," "Wonder how old she is—she seems to be very girlish." Of course I can answer the first question, but the second? Well, you know just how the girls feel about that question, so we'll pass that one up.

One American critic last year spoke of Miss Machan as "the sweet little Canadian girl with the beautiful eyes." As the boys say, her lamps are wonderful great blue ones, set far apart and capable of producing the genuine baby stare from between long, curling black lashes. Perhaps it is jus tas well that I too, belong to the weaker sex, because I think I'd fall very hard for Gloria. She is a sweet, natural, unaffected little thing and the future should hold many good things for her. Of course the company is in love with her. Miss Machan was born in Kingston. Her father and mother are well known theatrical people, and Mr. Branigan, the manager of the Grand theatre in Kingston, says he remembers Gloria as a cute little girl who used to do singing and dancing specialties when she was a wee cild. Most of her girlhood was spent in Ottawa attending school, then doing theatrical work in holiday time, and last year when her family had moved to the Canadian Sault, she joined the Rex Company.

"Johnny on the Spot" is the name of the next attraction offered by the Rex Stock Company. It is a comedy with a hero who is almost a "rough-neck." Can you imagine Rex taking that sort of role? Knowing his ability and how versatile he is, I'll say "yes I can," but it will be difficult to picture the suave, smooth hero we know so well, as a cow puncher and later a stunt rider in the movies. Johnny has a "buddy"—you know what that means—it's American for chum. This buddy decides that conventional society, especially the high brow clique into which he is born, is too slow for him and cuts loose. Result is—he finds himself in gaol. I am not going to tell you the story; it really spoils things to know the plot, but I believe there is a supposed "Duke" in the play, a beautiful Long Island home and of course, a girl—maybe several. I am most anxious to see Miss Vaughn as a 'maid.' If she wears conventional maid's attire she will be absolutely irresistible. Do you know I often wonder who first designed that attractive, pretty uniform for maids? Surely it was not a female designer.

From hints dropped by members of the company, I have an idea that "Johnny on the Spot" will prove very funny and popular with everybody. In the course of a stock season, an important item to consider is variety and Rex is certainly "mixing up" his shows. William Yule will be remembered as doing such good work as the butler in "The Man Who Owned Broadway." He is even better in this show as a first class English valet. Billy Seyour is very funny as the "Juke," as Johnny calls the alleged Duke about to marry his buddy's sister.

ASS CHEWING, JUMPING-JACK EX-MANAGER OF TIGERS SHARES HUCH CREDIT WITH M'GRAW

EW YORK, Oct. 1.—(Associat- Press).—A great deal of the cred for bringing the New York Giants essfully through the 1921 pen- t campaign is being given to ghey Jennings, the grass-chew- jumping-jack, who won manag- l fame as leader of the Detroit ers.

In October of 1920 Jennings sign- a contract to serve as assistant nager of the Giants, taking the e made vacant by Johnny Evers, had been selected to manage Chicago Cubs. The acquisition Jennings by the Giants came as urprise to the fans, and it was erally predicted that he would be of the most able assistants John cGraw ever had.

McGraw in no wise relinquished is job as manager, but Hughey be- an at once to do all the work afield. His "E-yaah" and grass pulling had been seen before at the Polo Grounds, but with Hughey, as a Giant, the fans took him differently. It was "Atta-boy Hughey" where before it had been "Aw go and lay down."

The good-natured Jennings soon won favor with the players and his fighting spirit helped them to pull through many tough games. Jennings is considered a great little general and has proved an able second helmsman.

This is Jennings' 15th year as a leader. He won pennants in the American League with Detroit in 1907, 1908 and 1909. He is not exactly a stranger in the National League, having spent several seasons with teams representing Baltimore, Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the older circuit. He was a comrade of McGraw's on the famous old Oriole aggregation.

Jennings was born at Pittston, Pa., in 1870, and first played professional baseball with the Leighton, Pa., club in 1890. The following year he signed with the Louisville, Ky., club of the American association, playing first base and short. In 1894 he was traded to Baltimore Nationals and four years later was shifted to the Brooklyn Nationals. In 1901 he became manager and captain of the Philadelphia Nationals and two years later returned to the Baltimore Eastern League club, playing second and short until 1907, when he was drafted by Detroit. He was made manager and won the pennant that year. All of his Detroit teams were regarded as pennant contenders.

GIANTS OUTFIELD IS SUPERIOR TO YANKEES ON THE DEFENSIVE

By HENRY L. FARRELL,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Recollecting the $10,000 muff of Fred Snodgrass several years back, it is easy to get the importance of an outfield being worth the world series. Cleveland's outfield work in the classic last fall was largely instrumental in causing the downfall of the Brooklyn Robins. This year the outer defence of the Giants and the Yanks will be of double importance, because of the prospect of a lot of long, hard hitting in the coming series.

Figuring defensive work, the outfield of the Giants is superior to the second wall of the Yanks. Emil Meusel, George Burns and Ross Young are an easier working, more reliable combination than the Yanks. On the offensive the Yankee gardeners may be better than the National Leaguers. Any trio including Babe Ruth and both Meusels are bound to be a powerful combination when they are hitting. In right field, "Pep" Young, the little Giant, has it all over big Bob Meusel in fielding his position. Young can play balls off the right field wall better than any gardener in the League. Meusel is woefully weak near the wall, and as all the games are to be played on the Polo Grounds, the wall play is bound to be highly important.

Meusel as a clouter, gives him the advantage. He is not such a consistent hitter, however. Meusel is batting .327, while Young has an average of .331. The Yank has a stronger arm but he fields sloppily. In centre field there is little comparison. The Giants have it by a wide margin. George Burns is one of the greatest fielders in the business, while Miller is only ordinary. The Yankee newcomer is weak at the bat, where Burns is always dangerous. Both are lead-off men, and Burns is one of the best starters in the game.

Left field goes to the Yankee because of the presence of the great Babe Ruth. The greatest hitter in the game, Ruth is also a better fielder than he is generally regarded as being. "Irish" Meusel, the Giant left fielder, is also a heavy hitter, but his fielding is not good enough to overcome the disadvantage that Ruth's stick puts him under.

Any manager would favor the Giant outfield in preference to the Yanks on account of its steadiness, its defensive ability and its consistent hitting. In a short series there is no assurance thta the Bam or Bob Meusel will not be in one of their habitual slumps, while Burns and Young can be counted upon day after day.

FIRST GAME IS HERE SATURDAY

BELLEVILLE WILL OPEN THE INTERSCH LASTIC O.R.F.U. EASTERN GROUP.

The schedule for the Eastern group Junior Inter-Scholastic, O.A.F.U., has been issued. It is:

Oct. 8—Belleville H. S. at Peterborough C. I.
Oct. 15—Peterborough C. I. at Oshawa H. S.
Oct. 22—Peterborough C. I. at Belleville H. S.
Oct. 29—Belleville H. S. at Oshawa H. S.
Nov. 5—Oshawa H. S. at Peterborough C. I.
Nov. 12—Oshawa H. S. at Belleville H. S.

It will be easily seen that this puts a heavy strain on the Collegiate team in the first, and the boys are worrying a little on account of two out-of-town games in a row, with only one home game to pay expenses. The team are practising faithfully so that they may be in condition to be worthy of the city's support.

WILL PLAY OFF IN PICTON

C. G. E. WILL GO TO PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY TOWN AGA'N NEXT WEEK.

The Canadian General Electric team decided last night to go to Picton next Thursday for the play-off game with the Picton outfit in the Intermediate O.B.A.A. series.

Difficulty was expressed in securing neutral grounds satisfactory to both teams and where gate enough could be secured to pay the expenses.

Picton guaranteed the Electricians enough to cover the trip there, and the local team generally decided to battle the opposition on their own ground.

It should be some game, judging by Thursday's eleven-innings clash, and the C. G. E. team deserve credit for their sportsmanlike action in playing off at Picton.

SPEAKER THINKING OF HIS VACATION

Although to-days' standing of the American league shows that Cleveland still has a chance, Tris Speaker evidently feels that his Indians will not be fighting the Giants in the world's series next week. Speaker's thoughts between games are turning to the quiet of Idyl Wyld. A telegram from him was received by Chris Graham last night announcing that he expected to arrive in Peterboro some time next week for the annual vacation at T. H. Hooper's lodge. Leslie Nunamaker and the other members of the party are expected to arrive with Speaker, and in the meantime the local contingent are all ready for the trip. Idyl Wyld is ready, and will be occupied within a week unless the unexpected happens and the New York Americans lose their remaining games.

LADY GOLFERS HAD LUNCHEON

The match scheduled for yesterday between local lady golf players and Lindsay players was postponed on account of the absence of the Lindsay ladies. The local players, however, had a very enjoyable luncheon at the Golf Club, and played several tables of bridge afterwards. The prize for cards, a collapsible coat hanger, presented by Miss Maude Rush, was won by Mrs. J. A. Aylmer. Among those present were: Mrs. J. E. L. Goodwill, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Mrs. R. Grant, Mrs. J. JAPAN ACCEPTS AGENDA.

TOKIO, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press).—The Japanese Cabinet yesterday, after a lengthy discussion, decided in principle to accept the United States suggestions as to the agenda for the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armaments and Far Eastern questions.

36 CONTAGIOUS CASES REPORTED SINCE SEPT. 20

SOME OF THEM LISTED AS CARRIERS—HEALTH AUTHORITIES TAKING PRECAUTIONS BUT RESTRICTIONS REPORTED IGNORED BY SOME PERSONS.

Of the forty-four contageous diseases listed by the Health Department during September, thirty-six of them have been reported since the 20th. And of these 36 there were 13 scarlet fever cases and 23 diphtheria. At a meeting of the Board of Health this morning, called for the purpose of hearing requests from Dr. Sutton and Dr. Yelland, it was moved by Mayor McIntyre and seconded by Mr. E. F. Mason, that where houses have been quarantined, the breadwinner be permitted to leave the house and continue his work on condition that he undergo fumigation, and also that he present a certificate from the attending physician stating that there is no danger. In such cases, however, the breadwinner must not return to his house until the period of quarantine is over.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton stated to The Examiner to-day, referring to a letter in last night's Examiner, that no house had been quarantined without cause.

On the other hand, there have been reports heard on the street that in various sections of the city the quarantine restrictions are being more or less ignored, and it is further believed that quite a number of cases have not been reported. Thirty-six cases since September 20 may seem large, but some of them were reported by Dr. McPherson as carriers in the public schools.

BRITISH TARIFF EFFECTIVE TO-DAY

LONDON, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press.)) —Customs duties equal to one-third of the value of certain imported goods will be levied, beginning to-day, under Great Britain's Act for safeguarding industries. Making of these products is regarded in the "key industry" category.

HOME-COMING RECEPTION.

The following from "The Greetings" of First Presbyterian Church, Spokane, will be of interest to the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Tattersall, formerly of this city:

"To welcome home our pastor, after his three months' trip to Armenia, and to meet our new workers, Mr. and Mrs. Hawkes and Mr. and Mrs. F. Tattersall, the church family turned out en masse Friday, September 10th, at a home-coming reception and rally given by the officers of the church, under the direction of Mr. Giboney. More than one thousand people extended the "glad hand" to Dr. Divine and his associates during the evening.

"We are delighted with our Mr. Tattersall. He is an exceptional organist, and rare master in choir leadership. Best of all, he is a man of manifest spiritual sympathy and purpose. We are to have a great year in our musical service, with pastor and musical director working in close harmony."

Our stock is going so fast that it looks as if we would soon have all the money needed.

GEORGE STREET H. KLINE NEXT TO JORDANS

CHARLEY'S AUNT COMING TO GRAND

One of the outstanding features of the present theatrical season is the great number of revivals. This is due to two reasons, firstly, a great scarcity of good plays that are new; secondly, a growing realisation that plays of exceptional worth should not be offered merely for a tour or two, seen by a small part of the population at the most, but should be kept in existence until the public failure to attend give vivid evidence that they have had enough. David Warfield, for instance, we find doing greater business than ever in the most beautiful play, "The Music Master," and Ben Hur still finds thousands who see in it a superiority to the later offerings.

In comedy drama lines "Charley's Aunt" is with us again, offered frankly as "superior to any present day play," and when one considers the remarkable combination of humour, the opportunity for character work among its larger cast, one fails to recall any other comedy its equal. Book stores have no present day offerings that find as large a sale as did this volume, and, in fact, it still is among the big sellers.

The present stage production comes direct from New York with a large cast of players, chosen for types, headed by James W. Swift, who won golden honours for his characterisation from New York, Boston, and Philadelphia papers. Many were rehearsed for every part, and a selection then made by William C. Grew, well-known director.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH NEW INDUSTRY BROKEN

Lindsay's Board of Trade Receive Unfavorable Reports.

LINDSAY, Oct. 1.—M. H. Brimmell, has been elected president of the Board of Trade here to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. L. R. Knight. The post of assistant secretary went to Mr. W. Eric Stewart. These appointments were made at the Board's regular meeting Thursday evening.

Messrs. Stinson and Ketcheson reporting unfavorably on a proposition for the location of an automobile, assembly, negotiations with this concern were abandoned.

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR WILL RESUME PRACTICE.

At a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. the other evening, the members of various committees met to discuss the pros and cons regarding the re-resumption of practising of this organisation. Various reports were heard regarding the membership for the coming season, and it was agreed to hold the first rehearsal in the J. M. Greene Music Room on Tuesday evening next, at 8 o'clock.

From the members of last year, a feeling that they intended affiliating with the choir once more was reported, and it is expected that a goodly number will be on hand on Tuesday evening, when Mr. J. H. Renwick will again wield the baton, and carry the forces through to another successful musical season.

A FAREWELL DANCE.

Scott Paton's farewell dance last evening in the G. W. V. A. Hall was a splendid success, and many of his Chemong patrons were on hand to give him a cheery send-off. He wishes to thank all his friends and patrons for their staunch support which they have given him his first season. He expects to return in the spring again, this time better equipped in every way, and will endeavor to make up for any mistakes he made this year.

"DANGEROUS CURVE AHEAD"

A REVIEW IN RHYME.

Most pictures finish with a marriage,
But that is just where this begins—
With married life, its outs and ins—
The newlyweds, the baby carriage,
And all the dear domestic capers
You laugh at in the comic papers.

When Phoebe Mabee married Harley,
She did not know that wedded bliss
Was just about the size of this—
A word, a quarrel: then the parley . . .
A kiss, a thoughtless phrase, and then
The battle starts up once again.

Love's highways is both steep and winding.
To round each little danger curve
Takes courage, cunning, wit and nerve.

At times the pace is almost binding;
Your wheel must lend a steady grip,
Your brakes must hold, your clutch can't slip.

So Harley Jones and Phoebe Mabee
Take all these risky turns on high;
They kiss and squabble, love and lie.
He works too hard, she has a baby;
He gets a raise, and she, capricious,
At once grows socially ambitious.

Each bit of married life—the glory
Of motherhood; each little thing
That started with the wedding ring
Is shown you in this splendid story.
Are you about to go and wed?
Find out the danger curves ahead.

—Howard Dietz.

"How to Listen to Music"

Under the auspices of the Conservatory of Music, Miss Edwina Palmer gave a very interesting talk last evening at the Greene Music Company's store on Charlotte Street, before a very appreciative audience. Miss Palmer has an attractive way of illustrating her address by use of the blackboard and of the violin, and her talk last night, "How to Listen to Music," was exceptionally well rendered.

The likeness of music to poetry, in its lines and stanzas, and the fact that one motif in music is usually emphasized as one word in a line is the most important, the beautiful curves that music makes, the different styles of bowing necessary for the playing of different types of music, were all brought out in clear manner. Numbers on the violin, illustrative of the lecture were played, including two Fantasies by Dancla, two songs from "The Bohemian Girl," Elgar's "Salut d'Amour," Gillet's "Passepied," the Gavotte from "Mignon," Boccherini's "Minuet," and Wieniawski's "Mazurka," the last a typical rendition of Russian music.

A vocal solo from Miss Florence Scott, "The Little Brown Owl," accompanied by Miss Agnes Logan, was very much enjoyed, and the whole evening was well worth the patronage of music-lovers. This is the first of a series which Miss Palmer expects to follow out through the coming season.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League started the movement for a new government of base ball with a recommendation that the direction of the game be placed in the hands of a commission not connected with baseball.

By winning one game of a double header with Detroit, the Cleveland Indians made it impossible to finish less than a tie for first place in the American League.

The Cubs won a seventeen-inning game, 3 to 2, from the Cards, Alexander going the distance.

HENRY WHITE.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Oct. 1. — Port Hope lost one of its most prominent citizens yesterday afternoon through the death of Magistrate Henry White, Mr. White was born in Hull, Eng., in 1851, and came to Port Hope in 1875. In 1881 he married Anna Craig Manson, daughter of the late Captain William Manson, of Port Hope. In 1891 he was called to the bar and has practised here continually since. In the year 1896, Mr. White was grandmaster I.O.O. F., and at the time of his death was vice-president of the Odd Fellows' Relief Association. Deceased was made police magistrate in 1910 and has acted until his death. He was elected Mayor of the town in 1901, 1902 and 1903. A Conservative in politics, Mr. White always took a prominent part in all the campaigns; a fluent speaker, he was always in demand. He was a charter member of the Port Hope Club and took a keen interest in all things pertaining to the welfare of the town. A widow, two sons, H. S. White, K.C., Toronto, and A. O. White, Bank of Montreal, and one daughter, Miss Edith, at home, survive. One son, C. H. White, was killed in France.

Dr. A. von Rothe of Berlin has invented a motion-picture device for photographing surgical operations without interfering with the operating physicians and without the presence of a camera operator. The studies are to be used in a number of German medical universities for the benefit of students.

ELECTION NEWS

FARMERS AND LABOR JOIN IN WELLINGTON.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

GUELPH, Oct. 1.—A joint convention of United Farmers and the Independent Labor Party delegates of South Wellington, to be held this afternoon, is expected to result in a third candidate in the field in this riding. Sam. Carter has already been selected to carry the standard of the Liberals, while Hon. Hugh Guthrie has issued a call to the followers of the Meighen Government to gather on October 12, ostensibly for the purpose of nominating him.

The Farmers and Labor men of the riding have been fighting with each other for several months, and finally the decision was reached to hold a joint convention. But both the I.L.P. and U.F.O. want to name the candidate to represent the amalgamation, and it is possible there may be a split at the last moment. The Labor men will propose Ald. P. Evans as their choice for nominee, but it is certain that he will not be acceptable to the U.F.O. They have several men whom they will insist on as candidates, in preference to any nominee who may be brought out by the I.L.P. The names to be submitted by the Farmers include T. J. Mahon, Puslinch, secretary of the South Wellington U.F.O., and ex-Reeve Singer, of Nichol Township.

IN MEMORIAM.

In proud and loving memory of Pte. Edward W. Payne, who made the supreme sacrifice on October the 1st, 1916:

Dear Edward how we miss you
As the weeks and years pass by
But it is God's blessed promise
That we shall meet thee again,

Short and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all
The blow was great and the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near
And only those who love can tell
The pain at not saying the last farewell.

We will think of thee.

Results Are What You Want

If you have spent much money and time in an endeavour to find relief from some disease which is worrying you and have found no relief we would advise you to try Chiropractic. This Science is not a cure-all. The Chiropractor is not a miracle worker. It is a proven fact, however, that thousands of suffering men and women have found relief in Chiropractic when all other methods have failed. The Chiropractor guarantees nothing except that he will tell you the truth and do his best. It's surely worth a trial. See your Chiropractor now, and it is very possible that you will get such results as will make you wish you had tried this wonderful Science long ago.

HEALTH IS THE RESULT

The competent Chiropractor is a Spine Specialist. He palpates the Spine carefully and ascertains exactly where the Vertebrae (small bones) are out of line (Subluxated). He, by means of Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments, puts these Vertebrae back in line. The Nerve pressure is thus relieved, the life force flows freely to the organs involved, and HEALTH IS THE RESULT.

Don't wait until you are "all in, down and out" before consulting a Chiropractor, but at the first sign of danger (slight though it may be) ask for a SPINAL ANALYSIS. If it is found that your Spine is out of alignment, take CHIROPRACTIC VERTEBRAL ADJUSTMENTS, and you will be Healthy.

Chiropractic and Goitre

Goitre is an enlargement of the Thyroid Gland in the neck, due to a disturbance of function.

The blood supply of the Thyroid is 5 times as great as that of the Kidney and 28 times as great as that of the head in comparison to size.

Six times its own weight in blood passes through the Gland every minute. It is easily seen any disturbance of this circulation will cause trouble, the most common being a thickening or enlargement of the neck.

By equalizing the nerve supply, thus controlling the blood circulation, Chiropractic Adjustments are very successful in reducing the Goitre

IN FEIN IS RILLING MEN IN MOUNTAINS

WHILE ITS POLITICIANS PUSH FORWARD PLANS FOR PEACE ITS TROOPS PREPARE FOR WAR

MOVEMENTS CARRIED ON IN SECRET STRONGHOLD

(United Press).

DUBLIN, Oct. 4.—While the Sinn Fein's politicians pushed forward plans for peace, her troops to-day were preparing for possible war.

In the heart of the mountains, safe hidden from "English spies," the United Press correspondent watched the First and Second Battalions of the "Irish Republican Army" drill, parade and manoeuvre for more than eight hours, under the staccato commands of officers and non-commissioned trainers. The length of a dreary day, in a drizzling rain that would have dampened the enthusiasm of most volunteer armies, seven hundred Sinn Fein troops went through military manoeuvres that would have been creditable to armies trained under less fugitive conditions. Few were in uniform. The "Brigadier" in command wore a second lieutenant's khaki and a Sam Browne belt, but for the most part the troops were indistinguishable from the average Irish youth seen about Dublin. Most of them wore the inevitable leggings favored by young men here to-day, and many the black slouch hat that denoted a Fenian in the fugitive days.

They played the "war game," captured trenches, practiced with rifles, revolvers and grenades, set up field hospitals and telephones, pitched camps, and then, at the end of a long day, when the setting sun broke through the clouds for a minute and sent long shadows of the towering Dublin mountains over the little plateau known as "Sleepy Cap," they swept past a huge black rock that served as a reviewing stand, file by file, with military precaution, while Chief of Staff Richard Mulcahy took the salute. Then the battalions were drawn up in a hollow square, like the Irish guards of old, and Mulcahy made a brief address to the troops, congratulating them on their showing, and warning them to keep up a high military standard and be prepared for renewed war.

THE SAME OLD STORY CROPS UP IN CITY COUNCIL

DOWNIE STREET CREEK ANNUAL RAMPAGE PROBLEM IS TO BE HANDLED WITHOUT GLOVES THIS TIME.

Ald. F. Whitehouse, chairman of the Council's Board of Works, was fully armed Monday night, when Ald. Jones wanted to know what steps, if any, had been taken or were contemplated to check the annual rampages of Downie Street Creek and guard against its yearly invasion of private property.

Ald. Whitehouse replied that the City Engineer and he had inspected the whole ground, and planned to prevent any recurrence of spring flooding.

In this connection, however, it appears that much of this creek, as well as the one in East City, runs through private property, and the city will have to get a right-of-way before undertaking improvements thereto.

Ald. Whitehouse contended that there never will be entire satisfaction regarding the behaviour of either of these water courses until the city secures entire control of them. He accordingly moved, seconded by Ald. Turner, that the City Solicitor be instructed to secure for the Corporation from property owners affected, permanent right of access to the beds of the creeks in question. This carried.

FEAR STEAMER LOST IN LAKE STORM SUNDAY

NO WORD FROM OVERDUE J. C. FORD AND WRECKAGE SIGHTED IN WHITEFISH BAY.

14 MEN ON BOARD; BARGE ALSO MISSING

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— Fear that the steamer J. C. Ford and the barge Owen might have been lost during the storm that swept Lake Superior Sunday, September 25, was expressed in shipping circles when owners of the craft reported them overdue. Wreckage sighted by Captain Rattray of the steamer Pierce McLouth in Whitefish Bay shortly after the storm may have been from the two vessels, according to vessel men.

Previous to sighting of the wreckage the lighthouse keeper at Whitefish Point reported two vessels, one in tow of the other and with the two evidently in distress.

The J. C. Ford, carrying a crew of 14 and the Owen left here upbound September 22, returning here the following day because of rough weather. They departed a second time September 24. Efforts to obtain word of the vessels has failed.

USE MACHINE GUN IF NECESSARY TO STOP KLAN MARCH

SAN ANTONIA, Texas, Oct. 4.—(United Press).—Sheriff Tobin of San Antonio announced today that he would use a machine gun, if necessary, to halt a proposed Ku Klux Klan parade here.

Police Chief Mussey and Tobin both declared the parade cannot take place.

"I'll use a machine gun, if necessary, to stop a parade in which marchers wear masks," said Tobin.

Simultaneously a second Grand Jury investigation of the Klan in this county was ordered by Judge S. G. Taylor. This followed Judge Hamilton's action in ordering the Austin Grand Jury to probe the Klan and the riot at Lorena in which seven men, including Sheriff Buchanan, were wounded.

Missing 3 Years Found Suffering From Shellshock

ST. GEORGES MAN, PRESUMED DEAD, FOUND IN ENGLAND UNDER ANOTHER NAME.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

KINGSTON, October 4. — To be missing and presumed to be dead since before the signing of the Armistice in November, 1918, and then to be found by his father and mother in a hospital in England, where he was going under a different name while suffering from shellshock, was the experience of a young man named Wood, whose home is in St. Georges, near Brantford, Ont.

The young man and his father and mother spent the week-end in Gananoque with friends. They arrived in Canada a few days ago on the Empress of Britain and went to their home in St. Georges yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood had the military authorities do all in their power to locate their son, but all the efforts put forth were fruitless.

Going overseas in July last, the father and mother started a search for themselves, and it is stated that while they were on a visit to a hospital in England they found their son suffering from shellshock. He had forgotten his own name, and was going under the name of Wood Brown.

Needless to say, the parents were overcome with joy to find their son, whom they had almost given up for dead. He is a young man, married, and it is understood that his wife is living at St. Georges.

The father of the young man secured permission to bring his son home to Canada.

COMMON SENSE IS NEEDED IN IRISH PARLEY

OTHERWISE, THERE IS NO HOPE OF SUCCESS, LLOYD GEORGE DECLARES AT INVERNESS.

SAYS ARMS CONFERENCE TO HAVE LASTING EFFECT

INVERNESS, Scotland, Oct. 4 — Canadian Press. — Prime Minister Lloyd George, speaking here to-day, concerning unemployment, touched upon the Irish question and declared that the coming conference with the Sinn Fein in London could only succeed if those who enter it make up their minds definitely and resolutely to trust to the common sense of their own people and do not try to reconcile extremists.

He also referred optimistically to the coming Washington conference and declared that it will constitute one of those outstanding events which will affect human history for centuries.

REMANDED ON THEFT CHARGE

C. PROSSER ACCUSED OF STEALING A BICYCLE---MISSED FOR OVER A YEAR.

A bicycle ridden by C. Prosser of this city for over a year was discovered recently by the police to have been stolen, and as a result, Prosser was charged with the theft of the $50 wheel in Police Court to-day. Before pleading, V. J. McElderry, his solicitor, asked to be allowed to explain the circumstances as he had learned them, but the Magistrate ruled he must elect and plead.

He elected summary trial, and pleaded not guilty. Mr. McElderry said Prosser bought the wheel a year ago last May in Toronto, later bringing it to Peterborough. The wheel went to a repair shop a few days ago, as a result of a wreck it was in, and the machine returned to him appears to have the number of a stolen bicycle.

Mr. McElderry testified to Prosser's good charcter, and claimed he bought the wheel in good faith. When he found it was a stolen bicycle, to remove any taint from his name, he at once handed it over to the police.

A Plausible Story.

"I must have the case tried," said His Worship. "I can't try cases on the statement of counsel. It's a plausible story; that's all I can take it for. Accused is found with a stolen article in his possession; the onus is on him to prove he didn't steal it."

Mr. McElderry asked for a remand to get his witnesses, and the case was adourned till Wednesday, the 12th.

The Magistrate, when the Crown and defence were fixing the date for remand, reminded these gentlemen that he was also busy, and must be given some consideration. "I want to get a day to look at my own business," observed His Worship.

GETS YEAR AT BURWASH FARM FOR STEALING

HARRY WARD SENTENCED FOR THEFT OF $107 FROM GASOLINE STATION ON CHARLOTTE ST.

AND FOR STEALING CAR HIRED FROM LOCAL MAN

Magistrate D. W. Dumble this morning sentenced Harry Ward, 21 years of age, to one year at Burwash Prison Farm on each charge against him, the two sentences to run concurrently. A week ago Ward pleaded guilty to each charge, the first for theft of $107 from the gasoline station of Smith and Gray, Charlotte street, on Sunday, September 17, and theft of a Ford car from Gerald Dunsford on the same date. Ward did not make any plea for leniency and accepted his sentence without any visible emotion.

J. Wearing, who represented Ward, made a strong plea for mitigation of sentence but J. F. Strickland, who appeared for the Crown, referred to previous opportunities given the young man to do better, and the inefficiency of this manner of correction upon him.

Magistrate Dumble said that Mr. Wearing was trying to balance his sympathies for the boy and for the men whom he robbed. Mr. Wearing admitted he was. According to Mr. Smith, Mr. Wearing said Ward had been a faithful employee and the employers were very much surprised when he stole the money.

"There's no doubt about the guilt, excepting the car. I don't think he intended keeping the car," said the lawyer.

Magistrate Dumble called it a wilful case of theft. "I'm here to enforce the law," he replied sharply to Mr. Wearing's zealous pleas for leniency.

Ward was first sentenced to a year on the charge of stealing the car. In sentencing him Magistrate Dumble was guided by the following section of the Criminal Code: "Every one who is found guilty of stealing any auto or motor car shall be sentenced to not less than one year in prison."

To enable Ward to make some restitution of the stolen money, Mr. Wearing asked and Mr. Strickland also requested, that sentence on the charge of stealing the money be suspended, but the Magistrate stoutly refused to alter his course of sentencing the prisoner on both charges.

"Young man, you've heard the sentence of the court. I am dealing lightly, very lightly, with you. You're young and we all make mistakes at times and you've made a very serious mistake, but you can help yourself by good behaviour at the Prison Farm. The Parole Commission may mitigate your sentence. It all depends on your behaviour." This, in brief, was the Magistrate's admonition to Ward, who never batted an eye or spoke a word.

SEWAGE PLANT TO COST CITY OVER $300,000

PLANS AND ESTIMATES SUBMITTED TO COUNCIL AND FORWARDED TO HEALTH BOARD FOR APPROVAL.

EARLY START URGED TO HELP UNEMPLOYED

That the new Imhoff sewage disposal plant will cost $320,100 was the figure submitted by City Engineer Parsons to the City Council last evening; and the Mayor is urging that as early a start as practicable be made on this work to provide jobs for the city's unemployed.

The engineer has prepared a detailed report of the whole system as planned by him, which will take care of 6,000,000 imperial gallons of sewage per day, as against the present flow of 3,500,000 gallons. His estimated cost of this system, including land, is $320,100.

Ald. Whitehouse and Hay moved that the plans and specifications of the Engineer for this system, including a two-storey pumping station, tanks, pipe main and other work be sent to the Provincial Board of Health for approval, and that a deputation from the Council accompany the plans, in furtherance of their endorsation for proceeding with the plant's construction. This carried.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

RE CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL FIELDS, LTD.

Peterborough, Oct. 4th, 1921.

Dear Sir,—I read in your paper on Friday night, Sept. 30th, the announcement of oil having been discovered at Omemee, Emily township. That is only a short distance from Peterborough. I am beginning to believe there is some truth in the talk about the Central Ontario Oil Fields, Ltd., having found oil around Marmora and Hastings and Northumberland as claimed by the company. Now, from what I have heard about the Omemee find, they are all Americans who have come over here and have about 20,000 acres around the district. I also know that the Orleans Oil Field Co., Inc., are interested in the land around Peterborough.

What I have to say about this is: If other countries can see the riches in our won country, let the people here take all they can in the company formed by Peterborough gentlemen, and in so doing keep our own valuable oils for Canadians. As I see by the paper to-night, information is given respecting the Central Oil Fields Ltd. Their shares at present are 20c. per share, up to the 15th of Oct. After that they are to be $1.00 per share. Also that the company is in good financial position and that machinery will be ordered after the 15th of October.

Now, I don't know much about oil or how it is found, but I do believe, now the other companies are here, that what has been said about the Peterborough Company there must be some truth in it. Of course, I am only one of many thousands who had a doubt in the talk about oil in Peterborough county, but now I am convinced there must be some truth in it.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space in your valuable paper,

Yours truly,
A CITIZEN.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The sermon of His Lordship Bishop Fallon and the great demonstration connected with it, launches the most momentous movement that can well be conceived, in the history of this province. The Archbishop and Bishops have now begun their case for separate higher education, and as it is before the court of public opinion, which is appealed to for a decision, it behooves us all to get the various points in the discusson clearly before our minds and this, of course, the earnest wish of His Lordship, as laid down in his opening of the case on Sunday. His Lordship bases his case not on natural but upon constitutional right, and in connection with this fact perhaps His Lordship would not mind saying if it is not true that constitutions are open to amendment and even change. There are, for example, more than eighteen amendments to the constitution of the U. S. For what reason, therefore, may I ask, as an elector appealed to, is it that His Lordship argues upon the basis of something that is open to change at the will of the people? Had the constitution contained the statement or proviso that the provision regarding Separate schools was to be considered based upon natural and not upon constitutional right it would have been in all good faith unchangeable, but is it so now according to the very terms of the argument? And then again the church has not pronounced against prohibition, which is based upon "the greatest good of the greatest number," and not upon natural right, but upon constitutional right just as in the case of His Lordship's argument. We are all bound to obey the prohibitory law in all good faith. Its principle of regarding constitutional right as higher than natural right has been approved by the people. If the people, therefore, consider that it is for the greatest good of the state that all education should be common and not separate, what attack can His Lordship make on that position? There cannot be two bases of action entirely contradictory. The basis of action must be constitutional; (that is, of course, according to law) or natural, that is according to inherent right, and the people have declared, with the consent of the church, in favour of the doctrine upon which prohibition is based, that is the good of the people as a whole. How then, may I ask, with all respect, can His Lordship appeal to another basic principle altogether as he appears to do now?

J. H. BURNHAM.

Mr. G. A. Brethen of Norwood, occupied the chair for the initial stages of the proceedisgs, later handing it over to Mr. E. M. McDonald, the popular representative of East Peterboro in the Provincial Legislature .Mr. William Barry, of the East Peterboro Association, acted as Secretary.

Two Motions Introduced.

Two motions were passed by the meeting, almost unanimously, the first to the effect that the East Peterboro Club pay all the expenses of the candidate, the money to be raised by private donations and the sale of membership tickets in the club at $1 each, and the second, that the candidate should sign the recall, and also promise to use his influence towards the practice of economy in every possible way, one speaker on this motion being of the opinion that the candidate should use his best efforts to reduce the indemnity, paid to members, and others holding offices in the Government, beginning with the Lieutenant-Governor himself.

Candidates were then nominated as follows:

Morley E. Smithson, of Otonabee, nominated by Messrs. Chas. Greystock and Martin Coughlin; G. A. Brethen, of Norwood, nominated by Messrs. G. H. Barr and J. E. Brown; W. E. Griffith, of Havelock, nominated by Joseph Johnston and J. S. McMillan; F. A. Eason, of Otonabee, nominated by Messrs. R. Humphries and M. O'Keefe; Colonel T. J. Johnston, of Otonabee, nominated by Messrs. E. J. Fife and W. E. Stark; and W. S. Anderson of Dummer, nominated by Messrs. E. R. Hamblin and W. Davis.

Nominees Spoke.

The candidates before the ballot was taken were allowed seven and one half minutes each in which to address the meeting, and spoke in order of their appearance on the board. Mr. M. E. Smthson said that the U.F.O. are supportng in this election the Progressive Party which is in opposition to the present government. "The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen says his party is out to fight the Progressives. Well, I admire his courage a great deal more than I do his judgment."

Mr. Smithson pledged his support to the successful candidate named by the convention.

Mr. G. A. Brethen said he was not much concerned about his opponent, be he Mr. Sexsmith, or somebody else. "It does not make much difference. If we do our part as an organization we will win or we will lose simply by the action that we, as a U.F.O. organization, take. We will not be defeated by our opponent who represents the Government or any other party."

Mr. Brethen emphasized the fact that he had not sought office in any organization. "The choice is with you," he said; "if you decide for me I am ready to put all the energy and all the fight into this campaign of which I am capable. I have been connected with the Farmers' movement for some time. I was connected with it when it was not as popular as it is to-day. In 1911, I broke from the Conservative party on a question that to-day or at that time was not favored by many farmers, but have lived to see the day when these unpopular principles are to-day the principles that the Farmers' Party stands for. I was turned out of the fold and there are men in this hall to-day who said to me when I left the party for which I had always fought, and for which my fathers fought: "Have you lost your head You have ruined whatever chances you had in political life, but I would rather lose on a principle which I believe to be right than to win on a principle that my conscience told me was not right." Continuing, Mr. Brethen said: "Vote for the man whom you consider the best. Now, this is the principle on which I am coming before you here to-day and this is the principle I will stand on if I have the honor to be elected your representative. You may not always agree with me nor my views, but I can't help that. I will have to do what I think is right."

E. N. McDONALD, M.P.P., U.F.O. Member for East Peterborough, Who Presided at the Nomination Meeting Held in Norwood.

U. F. O. MOVEMENT DISCUSSED BY THE SPEAKERS—THE RECALL ENDORSED — MEETING WAS WELL ATTENDED.

WOMEN REPRESENTED

Mr. W. E. Griffith, referring to his record of service as councillor and reeve, said that although he was a railroad man, he controlled and owned his own farm and was the second largest ratepayer in his township. He expressed himself as being very much against the present government. His principal objection to it was on the grounds of the policy it had adopted towards conscription during the war, when it discriminated in favor of the sons of men of wealth; and he also took issue with it on acount of its system of military education in schools, which Mr. Griffith characterized as being of German origin. Speaking in regard to the tariff, he said, "I am an out and out free trader as far as possible. I cannot see any reason in the notorious tariff we now have. If the tariff were going into the Government coffers it would be different," said the speaker, citing the case of an American manufacturer who set a certain price on his goods, after reckoning with a high tariff, while the Canadian manufacturer in the same line charged a little less than that price, undersold his competitor, but nevertheless made an excess profit on his goods, "If you are going to build your tariff you might as well advocate buying on the other side, because we would get the tariff then from the United States. You farmers who are the very life blood of the country, who have made the country what it is, have no protection."

Mr. Griffith asserted that he stood by the recall and would support the candidate elected by the convention.

Responsible Government.

Mr. F. A. Eason, President of the Keene Club, said: "If you make a candidate responsible to the people you may some day get responsible government which you have not now.' He expressed himself as always in favor of the Progressive Party. "The way with me is that the Conservative Party adhered to a policy which did not meet with my ideas, while the Liberals enunciated a policy which met with my approval but which they did not put into force. What is the difference. If the Progressive party does not put it into force it won't meet with my approval either. There are two sorts of government, the autocratic and the democratic. The democratic says equal rights for all and special privileges for none, and the autocratic says everything for themselves and as little to you as you will stand."

Mr. Eason scored the Massey-HarrisCompany very strongly for its action in raising the price of binders beyond a reasonable limit, then blaming the farmers for not buying them and turning out the employees who had helped it in making good profits in busy times. "As long as you have the two old pipers you will have these things," he said. "They will call the tune because they are paying the fiddler, and you cannot blame them."

Col. T. J. Johnston spoke of his leanings towards the farmer movement. He had been a farmer all his life and was in sympathy with them, but believed if the Association had a fault it was in its lack of a certain boradness of tone. Colonel Johnston referred to his services as councillor for the township of Otonabee for 15 years by acclamation, expressed himself as in favor of a reduced indemnity and considered that it was not necessary "to tie the representative with a string" in the matter of the recall.

Mr. W. S. Anderson of Dummer, announcing his intention of withdrawing immediately from the nomination, denounced the system of "hand-picking candidates for election. He believed that the man who would buy the vote of a man to support his nomination would not be long in the company of lobbyists, "those smooth-skinned impostors" in Ottawa, before he would be bought over. He also recommended the hearty support of the candidate, as "you are landing a tremendous burden on him in trying to please everybody, which he has to do."

Mr. Anderson having withdrawn, balloting for the remaining five candidates then began, Mr. J. W. Kennedy, M. P., for Glengarry, and Mr. . H. Brown, secretary of the Peterboro Club, acting as polling clerks. Voting was very active and the contest finally petered down to a final contest between M. E. Smithson, and G. A. Brethen, the latter finally getting the nomination.

Mr. M. E. Smithson then asked that the vote be made unanimous, which was done.

Interesting Address.

Mr. J. W. Kennedy, M. P., for Glengarry, closed the meeting with a very concise and interesting ad-

THE GALBRAITH-HOWDEN NUPTIALS, MILLBROOK.

CAVAN, Oct. 4. — St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1921, when Miss Mabel Irene Howden, Cavan, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Sergt. Wm. McDee Galbraith, C.A. S.C., D.R. of Detroit. son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Galbraith, of Galt, Ont.

As the wedding party entered the church ,the choir sang, "O Perfect Peace," while the strains of Lohengrin's march, played by Mrs. W. E. Allen. The bride took her place in the chancel. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Wm. Howden.

The church was beautifully decorated and was filled to the doors with friends of the bride. The Rev. Canon Allen, M.A., assisted by Major Rev. C. R. Spencer, M.A., performed the ceremony. The ushers were Messrs. David Fowler and Alex. Harkness. The bride was becomingly attired in her going-away suit of navy blue broadcloth with hat to match and she wore a grey squirrel neck scarf, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaid, Miss Hazel Johnson, of Toronto, was also attired in navy blue broadcloth and wore mink furs. The groomsman was Mr. Howard Galbraith of Galt, a brother of the groom.

During the signing of the register Miss Mabel Money sang in sweet voice, "Until," and as the happy young couple were leaving the church Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Mrs. W. C. Allen.

The bride was the recipient of many valuable gifts, showing the high esteem in which she is held. The groom's gifts to the ushers were gold cuff links, to the bridesmaid a gold bar pin set in with pearls and to the groomsman gold cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Galbraith left in their fine touring car via Galt and St. Thomas for their future home in Detroit, followed by showers of confetti, rice and old boots.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. R. M. Howden, "Spruce Grove" Farm, Cavan, where theer were thirty-five present. A buffet lunch was served. Rev. Canon Allen proposed the toast, "The Bride," to which the groom very fittingly replied.

FORMER CROWN PRINCE VISITS FATHER AT DOORN

DOORN, Holland, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.) — Former Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany yesterday visited his father at Doorn Castle for the first time since the death of his mother, Augusta Victoria. Frederick William was met at the gates of the castle by the children of his brother, Prince Adalbert, who climbed into his automobile and hugged him. Then they drove with him to the terrace of the castle, where the one-time emperor was impatiently awaiting him. Adalbert and his wife came out to greet the former Crown Prince.

The relations between Frederick William and his father, which recently have been reported as somewhat strained, are believed to be greatly improved.

Remarking that the contest of two years ago had been contested cleanly, Mr. Brethen promised if elected, to run this contest along the same lines. "I want to win with the respect of everybody. I don't ask any favors. It is immaterial to me which ever way it goes, but I agree with Mr. J. E. Galvin that the indemnity should go back to pre-war rates and am heartily in favor of that."

GAVE LEASE OF PROPERTY FOR ARMOURY

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL IMPLEMENTS EARLIER MOTION, TURNING OGILVIE BUILDING OVER TO "C" COMPANY OF NORTHUMBERLAND REGIMENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 4.—The bylaw authorizing the lease of the Ogilvie property to "C" company of the Northumberland regiment was passed at last night's meeting of the Council. Among other provisions is a clause fixing the rent at $5 a month until next March when it shall be increased to $10 a month.

Mayor A. J. Meyers presided with the following members present: Reeve Chas. Davidson, Deputy-Reeve J. N. Stone and Councillors C. W. Palliser, R. S. Southworth, T. S. Baker, J. R. Wilkinson and W. J. Meiklejohn.

Mr. Palliser brought up once more the question of a soldiers' memorial, stating that the most suitable site was the Ogilvie lot. It was central and conspicuous.

"While I am not objecting to "C" campany having the house still the question arises whether the monument could be erected there to good advantage with the house there."

Mr. Palliser believed that the best effect could be gained by razing the house and devoting the entire lot to the purposes of a memorial. Following up this point and also his contention that the cost should be borne out of the taxes, he moved that a monument be purchased to be paid for by debentures spread over ten years.

The motion failed to enlist a seconder after Mr. Wilkinson explained that the Memorial Committee was "not dead but sleepth." It had made a beginning but was biding its time.

"I talked to the Mayor about this a little while ago", said Mr. Wilkinson, "and he suggested that it be laid over for a little longer and things would be developing. So we are biding our time." Mr. Wilkinsons' choice of site for the proposed memorial was where Mr. Meiklejohn's vulcanizing shop stands.

Separate School Taxes.

Town Clerk McGregor's report on the taxes for the new separate school showed that for the present year the total sum of $1504.10 would have been payable, but for the period beginning September 1st., one-third of that amount or $501.33 should be paid.

It was stated that Rev. C. J. Phelan was quite satisfied to accept part of the sum now and the remainder in November when other taxes are due.

Mr. Palliser moved that $250 of the $501.33 be paid to the Separate School Board now and the remainder in November.

According to the returns separate school supporters' property in the aggregate was assessed at $132,990 and the total assessment on roll was $1,395,250. The 1921 school rate was 16.8 mills which yieded $23,242.38. This sum included $15,782,38 for the public school.

OUR STEEL PRODUCTION FOR AUGUST HIGHEST.

OTTAWA, October 4 (Canadian Press). — The production of steel ingots and castings in Canada for the month of August, totalling 72,023 tons, was the highest month's output since November of last year. According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, there was an increase of 25 per cent., or 17,698 tons of steel ingots over last month's output. Basic open hearth steel accounted for the increase, August's total being 70,688 tons, as compared with 52,111 tons in July. The production of direct steel castings during August amounted to 1,684 tons, which was an increase of 47 tons over July's total.

The quantity of pig-iron and ferro-alloys produced during August was nearly 4,000 tons lower than that of the previous month. The output of basic iron was considerably higher, being 46,939 tons, as compared with 40,720 tons in July. Foundry iron production decreased from 10,339 tons in July to 1,882 tons in August. Malleable iron also declined during August. There was but a slight falling off in the output of electric iron castings, July's total of 105 tons being lessened by four tons.

IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY TO PUSH DEVELOPMENT.

EDMONTON, October 4 (Canadian Press). — "There will be no let-up in the Imperial Oil Company's developing of the Alberta fields," says A. M. McQueen, vice-president of the company, who arrived in Edmonton yesterday, accompanied by several other prominent officials and directors from headquarters.

Mr. McQueen confirmed the despatch sent out from Winnipeg to the effect that a strike of two million feet of gas had been made at Pouce Coupse this year at a depth of 1,650 feet. He added that drilling operations would be prosecuted throughout the winter with the utmost vigour as far as weather conditions permit at every one of the company's thirteen wells in Alberta.

Under the Government's interpretation of the terms, the mine owners are asked to pay £750,000 more in wages to the men.

CUT WAGES 25 PER CENT. IN ENGLISH STEEL TRADE.

LONDON, October 4 (Canadian Press). — Under the sliding scale adopted by a Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, affecting the manufactured iron and steel trade of North England, wages will be reduced 25 per cent. immediately, making a total reduction since January of 132½ per cent.

The Villiers Spelter Works at Swansea has re-opened, and is the only spelter works in South Wales now operating. The management anounce that wage reductions enabled the plant to resume operations.

MEIGHEN OPENS GOVT. CAMPAIGN IN MARITIMES

SPEAKING AT AMHERST, AGAIN MAKES PLEA FOR PROTECTION AND CHARGES KING WITH DUPLICITY,

PREDICTS OUR ABSORPTION BY U. S. IF LIBERALS WIN

AMHERST, N.S., Oct. 4.— (By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)— Premier Meighen's opening speech in the maritime provinces was listened to by a gathering of 2,000 people in the armouries here yesterday. Again the Prime Minister made a powerful plea for a protective tariff. Again he charged the Hon. Mackenzie King with duplicity in tariff matters. Again he rebutted charges of extravagance and autocracy.

BELAND DENIES. THE TARIFF IS THE BIG ISSUE

STATES LIBERAL TARIFF POLICY IS MODERATION

DIGBY, N.S., October 4 (Canadian Press). — Dr. F. Hogan, of Weymouth, presided at this evening's Liberal meeting. He referred with particular pleasure to the great number of women attending.

Hon. H. S. Beland, M.P. for Beauce County, Quebec, thanked the Digby citizens for the cordial welcome accorded the party. The advent of women into politics, said Dr. Beland, would make for less acrimony in debates and also, he added, for shorter speeches from men. Dr. Beland made an appeal for national good-will and unity. Canadianism was bigger, he declared, than creed or race.

Dealing with the tariff, Dr. Beland asserted that the only fiscal policy for Canada was that laid down by Sir Wilfrid Laurier a few weeks before his death. That was the Liberal tariff policy, and by that the Liberal party stood. But the Premier could not make the tariff the sole issue and avoid the reckoning for his Government's record.

Dr. Beland outlined the Liberal platform and principles, and declared that Canada needed economy, a moderate tariff, friendliness with the United States, maintenance of the British tie, and unity between all classes of the Dominion for the betterment of all.

OIL STRUCK ON FARM ON LINDSAY'S BORDER

LINDSAY, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Oil has been struck on the Killaby farm on the edge of the corporation, and experts declare that the test has proven very satisfactory. The farm is at present owned by Tom Perdue of Rochester, who purchased it about a year ago. Oil is also said to have been found on the farm of Michael Harrington, in Emily township. Other farms in the vicinity have been invaded by oil men and certain leases of property taken out.

PROTECTING THE FISH.

The suggestion has been made that in order to build up the fishing facilities in this district fishing should be prohibited in the waters around Peterborough for a year. The experiment would be of very dubious value. It is not the legal fishing that is depleting the supply of fish in the local lakes and rivers, although the increasing number of anglers, of course, makes a constantly heavier demand. The chief damage is done by the fish pirates, who slaughter the spawning fish in the spring with net and spear. More harm is done by a couple of these law breakers in a night or two of illegal fishing in the spawning season than a whole boarding house full of tourists can accomplish in a month during the open season. The attention of the authorities should be directed towards the proper enforcement of the regulations rather than diverted towards such doubtful plans as the barring of all fishing for a year. When the pirates have been taken care of it will be time to think about the honest anglers who fish only on the proper time and in the proper way, and no one who knows anything about the matter can deny that so far the poachers who disregard the regulations have managed for the most part to escape undetected and unpunished.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The attention of the citizens is directed to the subscription list of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, who are asking the people of Peterborough to assist them in their efforts to encourage a love for the beautiful in this city and to do away with some of the unsightly corners which mar the charm of several sections of the city. The society is under a distinct handicap. The Ontario Government has seen fit to reduce the grants to such organizations and the assistance received from this source is only one-third of that obtained from the Government last year. As the members' subscriptions do not any more than take care of options given the members, it is evident that unless public-spirited citizens who appreciate the work that is being carried on will come to the rescue the activities of the organization will have to be curtailed next year. It would be a pity if such a splendid movement were to be hampered by lack of funds when there is so much that can be accomplished for the betterment of Peterborough. Subscriptions for this worthy purpose may be sent to the Secretary-Treasurer, Leon. Frazer, 358 George street.

FARMERS AND TAXATION.

The figures issued by the Commissioner of Taxation on Saturday showing the amount of income tax contributed by the various classes of the Dominion indicate that Canada's farmers have no particular reason to complain that the income levies press very heavily upon them. The total collected from agrarians for the year 1920-21 is, in fact, surprisingly low. The people of Canada through this form of taxation paid $46,381,806, and of this huge total the farmers only contributed $611,735. Altogether 194,257 persons were assessed, the agrarians in the list totalling only 16,652. Other classes in Canada were much more heavily hit than the agricultural interests. The professional classes paid a total of $2,642,585, employees working for salary, wage and time work gave the Government $11,301,805, manufacturers contributed $8,217,730 and merchants $7,689,521. The farmers of Ontario only were assessed $40,974 out of a total assessment for the Province of $18,434,252.

	Total.	Farmers.
Ontario	$18,434,252	$ 40,974
Quebec	14,115,644	18,286
Prince Ed. Is.	25,611	2,279
Nova Scotia	1,060,511	5,605
New Brunswick	602,935	1,197
Manitoba	3,474,584	145,906
Saskatchewan	1,098,240	165,032
Alberta	1,350,643	127,722
British Columbia	2,094,198	104,707

As in addition $40,841,401 was collected in business profits, war tax, the farmers' share of the after-war-taxation burden of the Dominion, is not large enough to cause much worry among the agricultural interests.

BISHOP FALLON'S ADDRESS.

With Bishop Fallon's declaration that education is a matter of the most intense importance to every man in the State and to the State itself, there will be general agreement. No factor entering into the lives of the people of any country deserves more attention from those in authority than does the providing of the best possible system of enducation, and in view of that fact the subject of Bishop Fallon's address on Sunday is one of more than passing interest. Unfortunately, few people in Ontario have concerned themselves with the matters about which he spoke. Knowledge of what the religious minority in this Province are claiming as their rights has been lacking so far as most of the people of the Province are concerned. They have a hazy idea that these claims deal with the division of school taxes and grants, but beyond that the whole subject has been a sealed book. The Bishop of London has therefore in his local address thrown a vast amount of light upon a matter that should be of general interest. He has reviewed the whole history of the school systems in Ontario, and has presented the case for the minority in a lucid and clear manner. To citizens of all creeds his address as published in last evening's Examiner should have been of benefit, illuminating as it did a question that while of vast importance has been too little studied.

It is to be hoped that this problem can be solved without controversy or any upsetting of the good feeling that exists among the various classes in the community. The whole question seems to hinge upon the interpretation of the British North America Act, which guaranteed to the Roman Catholic people of Ontario similiar rights to those granted to the Protestant minority in Quebec. Have these rights been observed, or have the minority reason to complain of constitutional grievances? That apparently is the crux of the whole matter.

The address of Bishop Fallon has at all events supplied the people of Peterborough with material to ponder over.

AD. MEN'S ADVICE.

The efficacy of honest advertising was testified to by the speakers at the Ad. Club convention's opening meeting last night at the Royal Connaugh Hotel. These men are experts, knowing very well what they are talking about, and their advice is not only sound, but extremely valuable for business men. The confidence of the buying public can only be secured and retained by truthful statements, and those statements must be of such a character as to offer the strongest inducement to purchase. If an advertiser exaggerates, he will be found out and his business will decline; if, on the other hand, he sticks to sober faot, and at the same time has the skill to present his facts in attractive form, and is prepared to render genuine service to patrons, not being obsessed by the one idea of making the biggest profit for himself, he will succeed beyond his most optimistic expectation. That is the confident assurance of these advertising men, out of their very intimate experience of trade conditions. And it is merely common sense. First of all, there must be value in the goods; and then potential customers must be apprised, through advertising of that value. Confidence having been built up by a reputation for veracity and reliability, prospective buyers must be kept constantly informed of the opportunities open to them.

These are the only successful rules of the game. They are fundamental and must be scrupulously observed by any firm which hopes to survive the keen competition of these days. The daily newspaper affords just the medium necessary for keeping the public abreast of opportunity. Discriminating readers of newspaper advertisements are given a field of choice which would otherwise be impossible, and are incidentally saved much time and money. Advertisng thus performs a double service—it is absolutely indispensable to the merchant, and it is scarcely less so to the customer. One does not hear that old chestnut any more—Does advertising pay?—since everyone knows the answer. If any there be who doubts it, it can be safely assured that he is headed in the wrong direction and hasn't far to go.—Hamilton Spectator.

BUILDING OR BREADLINES?

The following editorial from Municipal and County Engineering, Indianapolis, is of as much interest in Canada as across the border:

"A certain amount of amiable optimism makes life pleasant at times, but it does not, of itself, sustain life. Just now a little wholesome and frank pessimism is in order. Two hard facts are staring us in the face: the unemployed now number fully 6,000,000 men and winter is coming on.

"It is all very commendable and very agreeable, up to a certain point (and also very easy) to rely on a favorable turn which will ease the hard circumstances of creature existence, but times come when it is well to realize that few good things just happen or are vouchsafed to humanity by a beneficent providence. The thoughtful are in agreement, now, that work must be found for the idle or we are in for a winter of deprivation and suffering.

"Fortunately, by taking thought and acting promptly, work can be provided for those now idle and the many others who may be released from industry with the coming on of the cold season. Public works offer the way out.

"As everybody knows, many construction projects have been postponed from year to year for just seven years. Much public improvement work, long held up, should now move rapidly forward. A very great deal of this work can be done during the winter season. The directing minds in the construction industry long ago learned how to cope successfully with cold weather.

"This is not only a way out of a bad situation, but in the opinion of many it is the only way out. The choice rests between action or inaction, between building or breadlines, between public works or public charity. Only a flabby and unjustifiable optimism will prevent public officials making the proper choice. Now is the time for some robust and rational realism; if we don't take control of the situation in the only way available the coming winter will be one of suffering for the millions of unemployed and their dependents, the women and the children, the aged and the infirm.

"While it is unpleasant to direct thought to what will surely happen if we go waiting for providential, or congressional, relief, it is pleasant indeed to point out that if public works projects be driven forward, now, useful work will be provided for those released from industry and great sums of money will be placed in general circulation, to the immediate and substantial benefit of all lines of business."

The high cost of living has been superseded in some people's thoughts by the high cost of politics.

We hope that the family next door doesn't learn of the new phonograph invention which automatically puts on a new record when the old one is finished.

Another dignity chasing case is that of the father who asked his fourteen-year-old prodigy in front of the candidate for Parliament, whose favor he was seeking, whom he thought was the greatest man, and the kid replied without the slightest hesitation, "Babe Ruth."

Now that the vacations are over the only thing to be settled before we get down to work is the world's series.

PROTECTING THE FISH.

The suggestion has been made that in order to build up the fishing facilities in this district fishing should be prohibited in the waters around Peterborough for a year. The experiment would be of very dubious value. It is not the legal fishing that is depleting the supply of fish in the local lakes and rivers, although the increasing number of anglers, of course, makes a constantly heavier demand. The chief damage is done by the fish pirates, who slaughter the spawning fish in the spring with net and spear. More harm is done by a couple of these law breakers in a night or two of illegal fishing in the spawning season than a whole boarding house full of tourists can accomplish in a month during the open season. The attention of the authorities should be directed towards the proper enforcement of the regulations rather than diverted towards such doubtful plans as the barring of all fishing for a year. When the pirates have been taken care of it will be time to think about the honest anglers who fish only on the proper time and in the proper way, and no one who knows anything about the matter can deny that so far the poachers who disregard the regulations have managed for the most part to escape undetected and unpunished.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The attention of the citizens is directed to the subscription list of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, who are asking the people of Peterborough to assist them in their efforts to encourage a love for the beautiful in this city and to do away with some of the unsightly corners which mar the charm of several sections of the city. The society is under a distinct handicap. The Ontario Government has seen fit to reduce the grants to such organizations and the assistance received from this source is only one-third of that obtained from the Government last year. As the members' subscriptions do not any more than take care of options given the members, it is evident that unless public-spirited citizens who appreciate the work that is being carried on will come to the rescue the activities of the organization will have to be curtailed next year. It would be a pity if such a splendid movement were to be hampered by lack of funds when there is so much that can be accomplished for the betterment of Peterborough. Subscriptions for this worthy purpose may be sent to the Secretary-Treasurer, Leon. Frazer, 358 George street.

FARMERS AND TAXATION.

The figures issued by the Commissioner of Taxation on Saturday showing the amount of income tax contributed by the various classes of the Dominion indicate that Canada's farmers have no particular reason to complain that the income levies press very heavily upon them. The total collected from agrarians for the year 1920-21 is, in fact, surprisingly low. The people of Canada through this form of taxation paid $46,381,806, and of this huge total the farmers only contributed $611,735. Altogether 194,257 persons were assessed, the agrarians in the list totalling only 16,652. Other classes in Canada were much more heavily hit than the agricultural interests. The professional classes paid a total of $2,642,585, employees working for salary, wage and time work gave the Government $11,301,805, manufacturers contributed $8,217,730 and merchants $7,689,521. The farmers of Ontario only were assessed $40,974 out of a total assessment for the Province of $18,434,252.

	Total.	Farmers.
Ontario	$18,434,252	$ 40,974
Quebec	14,115,644	18,286
Prince Ed. Is.	25,611	2,279
Nova Scotia	1,060,511	5,605
New Brunswick	602,935	1,197
Manitoba	3,474,584	145,906
Saskatchewan	1,098,240	165,032
Alberta	1,359,643	127,722
British Columbia	2,094,198	104,707

As in addition $40,841,401 was collected in business profits, war tax, the farmers' share of the after-war-taxation burden of the Dominion, is of large enough to cause much worry among the agricultural interests.

BISHOP FALLON'S ADDRESS.

With Bishop Fallon's declaration that education is a matter of the most intense importance to every man in the State and to the State itself, there will be general agreement. No factor entering into the lives of the people of any country deserves more attention from those in authority than does the providing of the best possible system of enducation, and in view of that fact the subject of Bishop Fallon's address on Sunday is one of more than passing interest. Unfortunately, few people in Ontario have concerned themselves with the matters about which he spoke. Knowledge of what the religious minority in this Province are claiming as their rights has been lacking so far as most of the people of the Province are concerned. They have a hazy idea that these claims deal with the division of school taxes and grants, but beyond that the whole subject has been a sealed book. The Bishop of London has therefore in his local address thrown a vast amount of light upon a matter that should be of general interest. He has reviewed the whole history of the school systems in Ontario, and has presented the case for the minority in a lucid and clear manner. To citizens of all creeds his address as published in last evening's Examiner should have been of benefit, illuminating as it did a question that while of vast importance has been too little studied.

It is to be hoped that this problem can be solved without controversy or any upsetting of the good feeling that exists among the various classes in the community. The whole question seems to hinge upon the interpretation of the British North America Act, which guaranteed to the Roman Catholic people of Ontario similiar rights to those granted to the Protestant minority in Quebec. Have these rights been observed, or have the minority reason to complain of constitutional grievances? That apparently is the crux of the whole matter.

The address of Bishop Fallon has at all events supplied the people of Peterborough with material to ponder over.

AD. MEN'S ADVICE.

The efficacy of honest advertising was testified to by the speakers at the Ad. Club convention's opening meeting last night at the Royal Connaugh Hotel. These men are experts, knowing very well what they are talking about, and their advice is not only sound, but extremely valuable for business men. The confidence of the buying public can only be secured and retained by truthful statements, and those statements must be of such a character as to offer the strongest inducement to purchase. If an advertiser exaggerates, he will be found out and his business will decline; if, on the other hand, he sticks to sober fact, and at the same time has the skill to present his facts in attractive form, and is prepared to render genuine service to patrons, not being obsessed by the one idea of making the biggest profit for himself, he will succeed beyond his most optimistic expectation. That is the confident assurance of these advertising men, out of their very intimate experience of trade conditions. And it is merely common sense. First of all, there must be value in the goods; and then potential customers must be apprised, through advertising of that value. Confidence having been built up by a reputation for veracity and reliability, prospective buyers must be kept constantly informed of the opportunities open to them.

These are the only successful rules of the game. They are fundamental and must be scrupulously observed by any firm which hopes to survive the keen competition of these days. The daily newspaper affords just the medium necessary for keeping the public abreast of opportunity. Discriminating readers of newspaper advertisements are given a field of choice which would otherwise be impossible, and are incidentally saved much time and money. Advertisng thus performs a double service—it is absolutely indispensable to the merchant, and it is scarcely less so to the customer. One does not hear that old chestnut any more—Does advertising pay?—since everyone knows the answer. If any there be who doubts it, it can be safely assured that he is headed in the wrong direction and hasn't far to go.—Hamilton Spectator.

BUILDING OR BREADLINES?

The following editorial from Municipal and County Engineering, Indianapolis, is of as much interest in Canada as across the border:

"A certain amount of amiable optimism makes life pleasant at times, but it does not, of itself, sustain life. Just now a little wholesome and frank pessimism is in order. Two hard facts are staring us in the face: the unemployed now number fully 6,000,000 men and winter is coming on.

"It is all very commendable and very agreeable, up to a certain point (and also very easy) to rely on a favorable turn which will ease the hard circumstances of creature existence, but times come when it is well to realize that few good things just happen or are vouchsafed to humanity by a beneficent providence. The thoughtful are in agreement now, that work must be found for the idle or we are in for a winter of deprivation and suffering.

"Fortunately, by taking thought and acting promptly, work can be provided for those now idle and the many others who may be released from industry with the coming on of the cold season. Public works offer the way out.

"As everybody knows, many construction projects have been postponed from year to year for just seven years. Much public improvement work, long held up, should now move rapidly forward. A very great deal of this work can be done during the winter season. The directing minds in the construction industry long ago learned how to cope successfully with cold weather.

"This is not only a way out of a bad situation, but in the opinion of many it is the only way out. The choice rests between action or inaction, between building or breadlines, between public works or public charity. Only a flabby and unjustifiable optimism will prevent public officials making the proper choice. Now is the time for some robust and rational realism; if we don't take control of the situation in the only way available the coming winter will be one of suffering for the millions of unemployed and their dependents, the women and the children, the aged and the infirm.

"While it is unpleasant to direct thought to what will surely happen if we go waiting for providential, or congressional, relief, it is pleasant indeed to point out that if public works projects be driven forward, now, useful work will be provided for those released from industry and great sums of money will be placed in general circulation, to the immediate and substantial benefit of all lines of business."

LIBERALS PREPARING FOR THEIR CONVENTION IN EAST PETERBORO'

NORWOOD, October 4. — An interesting manifestation in East Peterborough politics is the enthusiasm with which the Liberals of the Riding are preparing for their convention which, it is understood, will be held in the near future. When the more active spirits in the party began a short time ago to sound out the sentiment in the villages and larger townships, they met with a surprisingly warm response that had every appearance of an augury of success. Even prominent Conservatives have quietly intimated their readiness to vote for a Liberal candidate, an expression of sympathy which Liberals regard as trustworthy, but almost too good to be true. Apart from the stalwarts of the party who, on their own initiative, have started the ball rolling in preparation for an early general meeting, the Liberals themselves are discovering a latent strength and unity of opinion that need only a convention to launch into action and able leadership to develop into a force which, it is said, will convince and carry along with it a majority of the electors.

It is predicted that the Liberal ranks will be found intact when the campaign opens up, and that the veterans will be joined and strengthened by younger members, who are expected to infuse the Liberal party in East Peterborough with new blood and fresh vigour. These reports of rejuvenation are supported by the mention of some of the younger farmers as promising and likely material from which a candidate may be chosen.

W. A. Anderson, of Otonabee, ex-Warden of the County, and John Dewart, of Dummer, are frequently spoken of not only by the old-time Liberals, but by other electors, who are inclined in this campaign to throw in their lot with the Liberals. Another is Michael Welsh, former Reeve of Douro, and among the older members none is held in higher esteem than Ed. Hawthorne, of Warsaw. Widely known throughout East Peterborough as a progressive Liberal, holding the confidence of farmers and villagers alike, it is conceded that he would make a strong candidate against any opposition.

Dr. Munro, of Warsaw, Col. Johnston, of Otonabee, and W. A. Richardson, of Norwood, are also mentioned in the election gossip, and before the convention date is set, there are likely to be others under consideration.

John Dewart, of Dummer, is a keen and earnest young farmer and a stout advocate of Liberal ideals. He is a good debater and is well equipped, by study and a native common sense, for the coming campaign in the Liberal interests.

W. A. Anderson's chief distinction is his fine record as the war Warden of Peterborough County. He has worn well in local public life; his administration of the affairs of Otonabee Township was progressive and at the same time economical, and his tenure of the Wardenship was an exceptionally creditable one. A farmer himself, Mr. Anderson was one of the first to point out the class element of the U. F. O. political movement as distinguished from its social and economic aspects. That was some two years ago, and only a few weeks since the same criticism was uttered to a Dominion audience by Michael Clark, M.P. of Red Deer, in announcing the withdrawal of his sympathy and support from the Wood-Crerar party. And whether he became a contestant for the Liberal convention or not, Mr. Anderson surely derives much satisfaction from the knowledge that his political insight and the sincerity and courage that prompted his declaration, are now widely recognised, and his views shared by many of his fellow-farmers in East Peterborough.

The names of W. H. Johnston, of Belmont, former Liberal candidate, Ernest Deyell, ex-Deputy-Reeve of Otonabee, and John Darling, Reeve of Dummer, are also mentioned as possible Liberal candidates, and are the choice of a wide circle of friends and advisers.

The Liberal party in East Peterborough, with candidates for its convention such as those mentioned, and also fortified by a platform that is held out as thoroughly progressive, and at the same time safe and sane, claims that it has most to offer to the electors.

A Danger Signal—Tender and Bleeding Gums

Healthy teeth cannot live in diseased tissue. Gums tainted with Pyorrhea are dangerously diseased. For not only the teeth are affected, but Pyorrhea germs seep into the body, lower its vitality and cause many ills.

Pyorrhea begins with tender and bleeding gums. Then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the poisonous germs that breed in pockets about them.

Four out of five people over forty have this disease. But you need not have it. Visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection. And keep Pyorrhea away by using Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress—if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums hard and healthy, the teeth white and clean. If you have tender or bleeding gums, start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

WHOLE COMMUNITY JOIN IN EXTENDING CONGRATULATIONS TO HAPPY COUPLE ON FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF MARRIAGE.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

KEENE, Oct. 4. — "This is the glorious morning of love, and you are his morning star."—Tennyson.

One of the most happy events of the season took place on Wednesday and Thursday of the past week, when Dr. and Mrs. N. T. Harrison celebrated the golden, or fiftieth, anniversary of their wedding. The weatherman was in one of his most favorable moods, and furnished them with two of autumn's most lovely days. The wedding day, September 28th, was celebrated by only the immediate friends and relatives of Dr. and Mrs. Harrison. At 12 o'clock the happy couple entered the dining-room, accompanied by their guests, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by their only daughter, Mrs. S. B. Sharpe. The dining-room was beautifully and tastefully decorated in yellow, white and green; in the centre of the table stood a large apergne, filled with yellow chrysanthemums, and at either end were beautiful bouquets of roses. Twenty-one guests sat down at the festive table.

The Presentations.

Mr. Thomas Nixon proposed the toast to the health of Dr. and Mrs. Harrison.

Mr. James B. Nixon, eldest brother of Mrs. Harrison, following his spicy after-dinner speech, read the address from the family, and called upon the eldest sister, Mrs. Houlahan, to make the presentation from the family of two purses—one to Dr. and another to Mrs. Harrison—each purse containing one hundred dollars.

Addresses followed by Rev. Harrison, Mr. E. H. Barnes, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Houlahan, and Mrs. Cunningham, together with telegrams of congratulations from many points in the Dominion and the United States.

Mrs. Harrison also received a handsome cameo pendant and chain from the Sunday School, of which she has been superintendent for a number of years. Another gift worthy of mention was a beautiful bouquet of 50 Ophelia roses sent by the citizens of Keene village.

The afternoon was spent in happy reminiscences of the past, music of various kinds, and in a general social manner.

Eugolistic Address.

The presentation of purses to Dr. and Mrs. Harrison was accompanied by the following address:

On behalf of your relatives and friends, we desire to convey to you our sincere congratulations at this golden anniversary of your wedding, and the happy re-union of your daughter, brothers, and relatives, which you are permitted to enjoy today.

It is our pleasure and privilege to pay tribute to the noble work which you have done in the district in which you have lived for so many years, and the respect and esteem in which you are held by all those with whom you have been associated.

Every community has its beloved physician, and no man in any profession gets so close to the lives and hearts of the people as the doctor. To him come the weak, the ill and afflicted, for courage, for hope and strength to bear their misfortune; and the doctor who meets the needs of his patients, becomes their stay and support, loved as a father, a brother, a never-failing friend. Such a physician we know you have been, during the fifty years you have been practising your profession.

To the mother and sister, who has been the helpmate, counsellor and beloved companion of her husband, we extend our heartfelt love and congratulations. The people among whom she has lived must have been benefited by the examples of her pure and unselfish life, and her untiring work in connection with the Church and the cause of temperance reform has been greatly appreciated, not only by the people of Keene, but throughout the whole Province of Ontario.

We request you, our beloved ours, to accept at our hands this token of love, respect and esteem, and we desire to express the hope that you may be spared for years to continue the good work that you both undertook fifty years ago to-day.

(Signed) J. B. Nixon, Annie Nixon Houlahan, Mary Nixon Bull, Adelaide Nixon Lee, Francis Kate Nixon, Thomas Nixon, Louisa Nixon Steele; also Nieces and Nephews.

Out-of-Town Guests.

The guests attending this occasion from out-of-town were:

Seattle: Mrs. D. Houlahan. Vancouver: Miss K. Nixon. Winnipeg: Mrs. M. Bull and Mrs. T. B. Sharpe. Minneapolis: Mr. and Mrs. T. Nixon and Miss J. Nixon. Toronto: Mrs. G. M. Lee, Miss W. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nixon, Mrs. Dr. Kruger, Mrs. W. H. Cunningham, and Mrs. (Rev.) Germain. Port Perry: Rev. W. D. Harrison and Mrs. Harrison.

From Keene: Mr. E. H. Barnes.

The Reception.

On Thursday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Harrison continued their golden wedding by "receiving," from three to six o'clock, when they were assisted by Mr. Harrison's sisters. A large number of citizens of the village and community, as well as the children of the village, called to extend their congratulations.

A pleasing feature of the reception was the presentation of an illuminated address from the community. The guests gathered in the drawing-room, where Dr. and Mrs. Harrison were "receiving." Mr. J. A. Esson, Reeve of the Township, read the address, which was presented by Mr B. Kindred.

Dr. Harrison made a few brief remarks, expressing his and Mrs. Harrison's appreciation of the people's kindness.

In the refreshment room, Mrs. James Nixon and Mrs. Thomas Nixon served the tea, with Mrs. Kruger, Mrs. Cunningham, Miss Lee and Mrs. Sharpe assisting.

Those attending the reception from out-of-town were:

Omemee: Mrs. McCrea, Mrs. Mulligan and Miss McCrea. Peterborough: Mrs. W. D. Campbell, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Miss E. McCamus and Dr. and Mrs. Middleton. Birdsall: Mrs. (Colonel) Birdsall.

Community Address.

Dr. and Mrs. Harrison: We, your friends and neighbors in the vicinity of Keene, desire herein to express to you our heartfelt congratulations upon your attainment of this happy hour, which marks the fiftieth anniversary of your matrimonial life.

All but a few years of this half century you have lived in Keene, so that your life-work has been identified very closely with this neighborhood.

As a practitioner of the noble profession of medicine, you, Dr. Harrison, have achieved gratifying success, and we rejoice that you are still able to minister to the needs of the people in your beloved vocation.

In your church you have both rendered distinguished service as superintendents of the Sunday School—one for a quarter of a century, and the other for many years. Also in the choir and church and neighboring organizations, you, Mrs. Harrison, have rendered long and valuable service.

You have both displayed genuine interest in all public and community affairs, and have always been ready to assist in every worthy enterprise. Your unfailing zeal for the good of the community has earned our deep esteem, and we take this opportunity of expressing to you our appreciation of your services rendered, and the hope that you may still be spared to enjoy many years of tranquility and happiness.

Signed on behalf of the community, which displayed a serious and concentrated interest in the arguments advanced by him. With great earnestness he warned his hearers of injurious results from abandoning the tariff system. Canada would become a back-door, a mere dumping ground to the United States; her industries would die and the present unemployment situation would be aggravated.

F. A. Esson, G. Howson, B. Kindred, E. C. Fobey.

MEIGHEN OPENS GOV'T CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Meighen occupied a seat on the platform and was presented with a bouquet of flowers.

The Government was criticized for its policy in regard to shipbuilding, but the Liberals, who were now criticizing, supported the policy. They had only started to cry out against it when prices went down and the value of the ships was lessened. The Liberals wanted to abandon the whole scheme and leave the keels and hulls of the ships to rot in the water.

Turning to the tariff, Mr. Meighen referred to the Liberal policy as announced in the platform of the party. He insisted that the Liberal policy meant free trade.

"The moment this country decides that it is through with protection, that moment it starts down the path of commercial absorption by the United Stiaes," declared the Premier.

He went on to say that the United States had sold this country $1,500,000,000 worth of goods more than Canada had sold to the United States in the last five years. The depreciation of the Canadian dollar in the United States was the inevitable result.

"A moderate protective tariff is the sound and true policy for Canada," insisted the Prime Minister solemnly and he declared that the great Liberal leaders of the past, as well as the Conservatives, had appreciated this fact. It was time for Canada to hoe her own row on tariff matters.

OWEN DAVIS WRITES REAL PLAY AT LAST

AUTHOR OF "TEN-TWENTY THIRTY" VARIETY DESERTS MELODRAMA IN "THE DETOUR"

(By Ben Deacon)
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

NEW YORK, October 1.—It seems probable that 1921 will go down into theatrical history as the year in which Owen Davis wrote a real play. Davis, it may be recalled by former patrons of the "ten-twenty-thirty" shool of drama of the pre-Movie days, was at one time the leading exponent of the thriller. Many a pure and virtuous heroine was placed in the clutches of a despicable villain by the Owen of old and many a gallery arose and cheered when they noted that Owen had arranged for the much-desired rescue of the maiden in the last act. Owen's method of playwriting in those days was beautifully simple. He had a set of paper patterns for the beauteous heroine, the bold, bad villain, the feeble father, the mortgage on the home, and the brave and noble hero. These he placed in a neat design and filled in the dialogue by means of a set of rubber stamps. His plays were popular with the patrons of that sort of drama, for the hero he was invariably cute and lovable, the hero staunch and of admirably sound moralty, and the villain extremely hissable. But the critics always publicly declared they were awful, while privately they admired Davis for his nerve and envied him his income.

Then Davis deserted his melodrama following (or the following perhaps ceased to follow as the Movie habit grew) and devoted his time to works which were strictly intellectual and all that sort of thing. A number of them were produced on Broadway and some of them died an early death while others endured to go out on the road, but none received very serious attention from either critics or public.

This year Owen Davis has fathered the play which gives promises of being generally regarded as the outstanding dramatic achievement of the season. Certainly more has been said and written about "The Detour" than has been said and written about any other three of the new dramatic productions. And no wonder, for in "The Detour" Davis has at last given the public a sincere and convincing drama based on a theme both interesting and human, with characters which are not cut from any ancient stage pattern but are skillfuly drawn direct from life itself.

"The Detour" is the story of the wife of a grasping, land-hungry truck farmer. She has had her visions of a fuller, finer life but fate has decreed for her a life of drudgery. Yet she still dreams and hopes, and her hope is centred upon the prospect of vicariously realizing the aspirations of her youth through her daughter who she fondly imagines has artistic talent. For years this has been her one thought, almost her sole aim in life. She has spent long ours in cultivating a love for the beautiful in the girl, has patiently endured a double share of toil that the girl might have time to devote to er painting, and has saved every penny she could lay her hands on to pay for the course in a New York art school which she believes is to be the stepping stone to a place of honor and fame among the artistic elect. And then fate again plays her false. After she has denounced her husband as a thief when he tries to take her savings for the purchase of more land; after she has carried her determination to the point of quitting the home which has sheltered her for years, it is suddenly disclosed to her that the girl has no talent and that her real interest is not art but the love of a young neighbour, a man cast in the same mould as her land-grabbing oaf of a husband. The final blow comes when the girl takes the money which has been so carefully hoarded to financee a career and presents it to her loutish lover to help him out of a financial mess. The woman is defeated, her aspirations crushed But for the moment only. The final curtain finds her glorified by a sudden renewal of a hope which nine of those around her can understand as slowly she drops into her treasure jar the few coins which some day may help to make a new dream come true.

The play was staged by Augustin Duncan, who himself portrays the father, while Effie Shannan makes the role of the mother a thing long to be remembered. In the supporting cast is an actor who at one time was a prime favorite with play goers in Montreal, where he appeared in stock—Claude Cooper does a particularly fine bit of character work in the role of a small-town sheriff and tax collector. The other parts are all remarkably well cast and the play is given the very excellent and artistic performance which it merits.

New York received three new productions this week. "Blossom Time," a musical play based on incidents in the life of Franz Shubert the composer, was given its premiere at the Ambassador. The melodies are by the famous composer and by H. Berte. The piece is a European importation. A new producing company, Kilburn Gordon, Inc., is trying its luck with a comedy called "Pot Luck" at the Comedy Theatre. It is by Edward Childs Carpenter and the plot revolves upon the love affairs of an impulsive young American girl. Monday night Oliver Morosco reappeared upon the theatrical horizon with a new comedy at the Playhouse. It is called "Wait Till We're Married" and was the joint effort of Rudolph Bunner and Hutchison Boyd. The scene is on Staten Island, said to be the most truly rural section of New York City. The hero is a virtuous lad and the heroine a flighty damsel, a daughter of the idle rich. When he becomes disturbed at the luxuries and gaiety of his sweetheart's home it is arranged that she pay a visit to his three maiden aunts with whom he resides on Staten Island. She finds life there restricted and dull and finally rebels and breaks the engagement. Taken in hand by a wealthy uncle, the hero becomes a gay young dog, while in the meanwhile the girl takes an aversion to the swift pace and learns to love the maiden aunts and Staten Island so that in the last act the positions of the pair are reversed and they decide that after all they may be able to endure one another and are reconciled as the curtain falls.

SERVICES AT FALLIS LINE

MILLBROOK, October 4. — The congregation of Fallis Line Methodist Church held their anniversary services on Sunday, 2nd October, at three o'clock in the afternoon, and again at seven in the evening. The attendance at both services was not as large as usual, because of unfavourable weather, and also because of sickness and bereavement in the families of some of the church members. The preacher for the day was Rev. R. M. Patterson, of Frazerville, and the music was furnished, by invitation, by four members from the choir of the Millbrook Church—Mrs. O. G. Urry, Miss May Byam, Mr. J. L. Byam, and Mr. Frank Alcorn, and the organist, Miss Stella Hetherington.

In the afternoon Mr. Patterson took his text from Acts 3. : "Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I unto thee; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk."

One might almost infer, the speaker pointed out, from the reading, "such as I have," that Peter was speaking disparagingly of the greater gift he was about to bestow in the name of Christ, as compared to silver or gold; hence the better readings, "What I have," and this, "What I have I give," is the keynote of the whole incident.

The narrative pictures the cripple at the Beautiful Gate of the temple, this gate being of brass, fifty cubits high and thirty cubits wide, requiring twenty men to swing back its massive weight. It was an outside gate, not really the most beautiful of all as the name might imply, for the inner ones were of finer workmanship and overlaid with pure gold, while the inmost of all leading into the sacred precincts of the temple itself had the added beauty of a golden vine cunningly carved with great skill and much labour, this being intended to represent the inexhaustible riches of God's grace and resources. There is a particular lesson here—posibly there were cripples at all the city gates, voicing their plea for alms, but this incident typifies the grandeur within and suffering humanity without, the main thought the sermon was intended to develop.

A Dwelling-place.

Man's body, formed from dust and returning thereto, is a temple — a dwelling-place of the soul, which is a part of the life of God. It is not correct to say "man has a soul and body," but "man is a soul and has a body." The church, as a building, is no more sacred than a barn, except that we have met, and expect again to meet, God there — His presence makes it sacred. Outside its gates are the seething multitudes of the world, rushing hither, and your and the church's mission is to bring them within the gates of God's temple. In reply to the cripple's appeal, Peter said, "Look," and gave him his hand. And here are the first steps in brotherhood, fellowship, friendliness, which hungry-hearted mankind is craving.

A certain king in Central Asia, so the story is told, walked one day in his pleasure grounds, and found there a beggar who asked an alms. The king, searching through his garments in vain, took him by the hand and said, "Brother, I regret that I have no coin to bestow upon you." But the beggar, bursting into tears, replied, "Sir, you have given me a far greater gift — you have called me 'brother.'"

Help the Fallen.

We may all be millionaires in the gifts which our Big Brother bestowed—not often of coin, but thrilling the heart and the mind of suffering humanity without the gate by helping the fallen, comforting the sorrowing, holding out the hand of companionship, and gladly bringing the music of friendship to those in need. We shall be coming nearer to the Master's ideal if, by helping others, we at the last count our friends by the thousand, and our wealth, as being the smaller thing, by the fewer numbers. So shall we enter the Church triumphant, the New Jerusalem, with the great multitude of those "who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

Eighty dollars was the amount of thankoffering asked by the trustees to carry on their work, and while the offering was being taken, the choir sang, "My Saviour is My Shepherd." After the sermon Mrs. Urry and Miss Byam sang a duet, "O River of Life." At the evening service the anthem was, "In God We Trust," and just before the closing hymn, Mrs. Urry sang very beautifully the solo, "Teach Me to Pray."

With their usual warm-hearted hospitality the people of Fallis Line invited the visiting friends home to have tea with them—indeed, there were more invitations than there were visitors to accept them.

Evening Service.

In the evening Mr. Patterson took his text from Luke 10, 29, "And who is my neighbour?" and, though developed differently, his theme followed closely that presented in the afternoon, namely, unselfish service. The lawyer who asked this question had a narrow vision—in effect, he was saying to Jesus, "I want you to circumscribe the boundaries of my neighbourhood." The Methodist Church at one time laid down strict rules regarding certain amusements, saying to the young people, "These ye shall not do." It was a wise moment when these limitations were removed, because the young people were breaking them with a sense of guilt in consequence. We are not, however, to make the mistake of interpreting the Church's attitude in letting down the bars as being a license to do these things —it was rather making the individual conscience responsible in the sight of God.

God did not hedge about the tree of life in the Garden of Eden by a flaming sword that would not allow Adam and Eve to come near it—that is not God's attitude toward the things of life. We cannot build up men and women of strength of virtue on that plan. Probably the flaming sword at the entrance to the Garden was really in their own hearts forbidding them to go back to the scene of their undoing. Amusements, in themselves, are not harmful, but to know where to draw the line is the difficulty. Perhaps if we cease to ask, "How far can I go?" and instead follow the injunction, "Abstain from every appearance of evil," we shall find the true course and best help those who, from heredity and environment, are having a bigger struggle than we are to keep the way of purity and righteousness. There are more ways of killing a man than by killing his body, and if the Church's attitude toward the member who has gone astray is one of critical condemnation, she is only saying as the priest and the Levite did of the man robbed and half-dead by the wayside, "Let him die," pushing him farther down into the ways of degradation and despair.

"If he is in need, help him!" This is practical religion, and though we cannot see it, it is really making a rich deposit in the Bank of Heaven, when we are here putting, by God's help, in the hearts of those in need, cheer and courage and determination and faith.

CURING INSANE WITH MUSIC

Music hath power to soothe the savage breast—but a new theory is being experimented on. Moissaye Boguslawski, Russian pianist, has made startling experiments with music in treating the insane at the Dunning Asylum in Chicago. His methods are attracting wide attention—for it is an entirely new theory. Boguslawski is shown here at a recording laboratory making records of the melodies which he has used with such phenomenal success in the restoration of disordered minds.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

A TYPEWRITER FOR SPIRITS

Has Science Found a Sure Method of Receiving Messages from the Dead?

SUNKER ABAJI BISEY, a Hindu scientist, has invented a new sort of ouija-board by which he believes it will be possible to settle absolutely and without doubt the question of conscious or subconscious operation and manipulations of this device.

There has always been a great deal of controversy about the ouija-board. Its most zealous supporters contend that the messages which are spelled out by the little triangular table are in reality communications from the dead; while the skeptics have held all along that if the operator does not knowingly manipulate the board, he at least does so subconsciously.

It is not possible for an operator to control the Bisey ouija-board, which is called the "spirit typewriter."

As Herbert Asbury describes this Hindu scientist's invention in Popular Science Monthly, it is constructed of steel, and writes only when the triangular table is operated upon a steel tray, which is fitted with blind keys connected with an invisible ribbon, such as is in common use on all typewriters. The operator does not see what he is writing until he has finished, and then the paper which has recorded the progress of the table is taken from its hiding place and he sees the message.

The triangular table is nothing more than a piece of steel fitted with three casters or rollers, as ordinary ouija-boards are, the tray on which it moves being the mechanical part of the invention. This tray is fitted all around its circumference with a series of pegs, between each two of which is a typewriter key. The keys correspond to the letters and numerals found on an ordinary ouija-board. As the triangular table under the hand of the operator travels about the steel tray under whatever influence it is that actuates a ouija-board, one or another of its three angles, instead of touching the letters, as is done on the wooden and visible board, pokes its point between the pegs and strikes a key. Each key is connected by a lever to a letter or numeral beneath the tray, and a touch between the pegs impresses that key or numeral upon a typewriter ribbon, which is also hidden. At the end of the sitting there is withdrawn from the machine a paper on which is noted every letter or numeral struck by the triangular table. The ribbon moves one space after each printing of a letter.

The tray upon which the ouija moves is round, and all of the pegs and posts upon its surface are perfectly plain faced and exactly similar to one another in appearance. Set an operator before the board, turn it about several times, and it can easily be seen that the board cannot be knowingly manipulated.

The following description of the invention as furnished by Mr. Bisey to the patent office may more clearly explain the mechanism in connection with the drawing:

"A circular tray is mounted on a suitable frame, and its surrounding edge is divided into thirty-six equal parts by pegs. The space left between the pegs is occupied by the button of the key lever. There are thirty-six such keys—one for each letter of the alphabet and ten numerals. The operating board is made triangular, and any of its corners is designed to enter the gaps between the pegs. A circular board is pivoted on the triangular board and serves as a hand rest. A paper ribbon and ink ribbon are mounted on rollers and placed underneath the tray. No letters or signs appear on the key buttons to prepare the mind of the operator, who can operate the apparatus placed before him in any position."

How Threats of the "Bogey Man" May Drive a Child Into Insanity

THIS is the story of the greatest of tragedies—the tragedy of a little child, which has been made the subject of the following editorial by a great newspaper:

At five Agnes Katherine Hughes was a prodigy, today at six she is a crushed flower.

A year ago she could speak three languages, could sing beautifully and could dance like a fairy sprite.

Now she is mute and paralyzed.

Her tragic transformation is laid to eleven words: "There's a bogey man in that room and he'll catch you."

The words were spoken by a thoughtless woman; spoken in the same thoughtless way that many adults speak to frighten little children.

The child, highly strung and extremely sensitive, was at first merely scared—then became hysterical.

After a few days a numbing paralysis began to creep along the muscles of her body; finally it affected her tongue and her last spoken words were: "Bogey man."

Agnes's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hughes of 638 Evergreen avenue, Millvale, Pa., have almost frenziedly spent their money to undo the havoc wrought by the eleven senseless words. All without avail.

Finally, they have appealed to the healing professions of the country for aid. Hundreds of physicians have answered, offering aid.

Meanwhile, little Agnes is being cared for in a hospital, where a dozen doctors are giving their best to cure her, while they sift the suggestions that have flooded in upon the grief-stricken parents.

And these twelve men, wise in the ways of little children, send out this warning to parents, aunts, uncles, brothers, sisters and people everywhere:

"Never frighten a little child!"

In substantiation of this advice there is added these commanding words of warning from one of the world's greatest physicians, Dr. Richard C. Rows, director of the Neuro-Psychiatric Hospital of London, who says that a child frightened into silence or obedience by threats of the "bogey man" may pay the penalty years later with insanity. Dr. Rows told of such a case while he was at Bloomingdale Hospital at White Plains, N. Y., during the centennial celebration of the founding of the institution.

"This case shows the result produced by the development of a dominant emotional tendency during early childhood in a girl who had been normal until her fifth year," Dr. Rows told his audience, which included psychiatrists, nerve specialists and others interested in the work at Bloomingdale.

"Until her fifth year this girl had been fond of her mother, took great pleasure in her toys and was a sweet, lovable, normal child. Then from a new nurse she endured much bad treatment. This nurse was meeting clandestinely a man and these meetings usually occurred while she had the child out of doors. In order to keep the child from telling of these meetings the nurse told her that the 'bogey man' would steal her away if she did tell. Sometimes also the nurse would leave the child alone in a cemetery while she slipped away with her sweetheart. During much of this period the child was separated from her mother.

"At the end of two years the little girl was a changed creature. She could not enjoy her toys; she grew increasingly difficult to manage.

"More than thirty years afterward the same girl, grown to womanhood, had a mental breakdown. She told me that after the experience with the nurse she never was the same, never felt like other girls or women.

"This condition was started and confirmed by the repetition of the nurse's 'bogey' and the separation from her mother. Her free development was interfered with. The germ of this woman's serious breakdown unmistakably was laid in her fifth or sixth year by frightening her, solely without any thought of the dire consequences, with threats that the 'bogey man was going to get her.'

How the Movies Teach Dancing

LEARNING to dance without the assistance of a personal dancing teacher is now made possible by the invention of a small metal acting picture machine. By looking down into the picture machine you see actual moving pictures of the newest dancing steps as done by Arthur Murray, its inventor.

Arthur Murray is a college student at Georgia "Tech," and at the same time conducts one of the largest dancing classes in the world. There are 660 pupils in Arthur Murray's Atlanta children's dancing class.

The machine, as described in The Illustrated World, is equipped with a barrel which carries 42 leaves, each leaf holding one picture. As the leaves revolve, the action of the step is produced. By looking down into the machine for five minutes you can see one dancing step repeated for over a hundred times.

Why BIRDS and Some REPTILES Have THREE EYELIDS

HUMAN beings and most animals have only two eyelids, but birds and reptiles have three, two that move up and down and one that slides like a curtain from the inner corner over the eyeball. In human eyesockets there are two sets of muscles, those that move the ball, six in number, and those that lift and lower the lids:

Head of Turkey. Upper: Back of Turkey's Eye, Showing the Muscular Sling That Moves the Membrane. Lower: Front of Eye with Membrane Half Drawn.

the creatures that have the third eyelid have also muscles for opening and closing it.

Sir John Bland Sutton in a recent lecture on the third eyelid at the Middlesex Hospital in London, described in detail the muscles of the orbits in men and other animals.

"The muscular mechanism of the third eyelid or nictitating membrane of birds is easily studied in a turkey, owl, eagle or ostrich. The membrane is neatly folded in the nasal side of the orbit and lies between the eye and its lids; it sweeps across the cornea at right angles to the eyelids. A special gland supplies fluid to facilitate its movement. It is amusing to watch the movements of this membrane, especially in big birds. In the owl and shoebill it is pearly white; the movements are very deliberate and give these birds a weird appearance.

"The shoebill is very grotesque with its huge bill, feathery crest and large eyes, but when the nictitating membrane glides across the eye like a movable shade on a lamp, or more slowly producing crescent shapes resembling the phases of the moon, the varying shapes are singularly attractive and unforgettable.

"The muscles that work the nictitating membrane are lodged within the orbit and attached to the globe; they can be easily dissected in big birds like rooks, owls or turkeys.

"In the crocodile the nictitating membrane is transparent, and when the brute is under water, though the membrane is drawn across the eye, he can watch an enemy or an intended victim with advantage.

"The muscles which move the nictitating membrane of lizards are even more modified than those of birds. In some lizards the eyes are protected by special shields and plates developed from scales and skin. Ablepharus, a lizard of the Transcaspian Desert, has the lower eyelid fused with the upper; it is transparent and, like a window, lets in light, but excludes sand. This modification of the eyelids is of use to lizards living among sand. When the South African force occupied Lüderitzbucht (now Bothaland) in 1914, the dust of that remarkably sandy, diamond-strewn desert, blown by the prevailing wind, proved so troublesome that the eyes of the transport mules required protection by goggles."

"NEXT!" AN ELECTRIC SHAVE

USERS of faradic electric coils, such as employed for medicinal purposes and shocks, may have thought the day of the faradic coil had about reached its zenith. But such is not the case, for behold there is shown in the accompanying illustration the very latest in tonsorial arts and sciences—the faradic electric razor, invented by Frank White of St. Louis.

Mr. White's invention, according to Science and Invention, not only shocks the little hairs into a vertical position so that they can be cut off painlessly, but also applies a mild electric current to the patient's physiognomy to produce the effect of an excellent massage. Not only do these two wonderful phenomena take place, but thirdly, the inventor makes another strong claim in his recently patented invention of the faradic razor—wherein he states that the current flowing from the razor to the face has the effect of aligning the metal fibers on the keen edge; in other words, the faradic current flowing through the razor acts on the steel fibers, particularly at the edge, with the same effect as when the razor is stropped.

The Electro-Faradic Razor Makes the Whiskers Stand Upon End So That the Keen Edge of the Blade Cuts Them Off Without Pulling.

The apparatus required with the faradic razor outfit is quite simple and comprises a dry battery or other source of electric current, and an induction coil provided with primary and secondary windings. One terminal from the secondary or faradic current circuit is connected to a metal part of the razor, which may be a safety razor; while the second terminal from the faradic coil leads to a suitable electrode or contact plate, strapped to the wrist of the shaver.

The accompanying illustrations show precisely the effect "before and after" the application of the faradic current to the lathered skin. Before a current is applied, the hairs lie down, Fido-like, and a little while after the current is turned on and the razor applied, the hairs stand in line just like a platoon of soldiers, so that when the razor blade waltzes along over the skin the hairs are "guillotined" at the roots.

Some POWERFUL New REMEDIES

IMPORTANT experiments in the preparation of new chemical compounds which may lead to the discovery of substances capable of curing such diseases as cancer, pneumonia and tuberculosis were described by Dr. George W. Raiziss and Joseph L. Gavron before a recent meeting of the division of chemistry of medicinal products of the American Chemical Society.

Dr. Raiziss, in collaboration with Drs. J. F. Schamberg and John A. Kolmer, succeeded in making arsphenamine! This compound had become indispensable in the treatment of blood taint diseases and therefore a research institute in Philadelphia manufactured the product on a large scale, the total output being more than a half-million dollars. Practically the entire profits of this enterprise have been turned over to the post graduate medical school of the University of Pennsylvania. This fund, which the three scientists donated, is for the purpose of continuing researches in the comparatively new field of chemo-therapy. In recent years there has been a tendency to develop the treatment of disease by chemical means in conjunction with the use of sera and botanical drugs.

Dr. Raiziss declared that even though remarkable cures had been effected by the use of arsphenamine it cannot be regarded as the final achievement in the chemo-therapy of spirochaetic infections. In some cases the drug produces alarming symptoms in the patient; moreover permanent cures cannot always be obtained.

The scientist said that at this time he was presenting only a small phase of extensive researches for the development of a new chemical body superior to arsphenamine. Guided by these researches, he had undertaken the production of numerous derivatives of the chemical. He expressed the belief that the knowledge acquired by these tests might lead to the discovery of substances capable of curing other diseases, such as pneumonia, tuberculosis and cancer.

Turning Water Into "Champagne"

YOU can make plain water taste like champagne if you charge it with electricity while you drink it. How this is done is described as follows by a writer in Popular Science Monthly: The accompanying illustration shows a new electrical device for the purpose. The apparatus consists of a small circular tank that contains an electric cell from which two electrodes extend.

The Passing of a Slight Electric Current Through Water as You Drink It, Will, It Is Claimed, Make It Taste Like Old-Time Bubbly Champagne.

One electrode is placed in the glass of water and the other is pressed against the drinker's cheek. A slight current passes through the water and gives it a sparkle that is reminiscent of the days of sparkling wines. Quite shocking, is it not?

Modern "GOOSE That Lays GOLDEN EGGS"

A BRITISH paper prints the following interesting story regarding "Killing the Goose That Lays the Golden Egg":

Nearly a hundred years ago Charles Lamb, in one of his whimsical essays, drew attention to the fact that many an old saw has in it a half-lie as well as a superficial truth. The idea that it is foolish to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs may in future be called in question as the result of an experience which has befallen a farmer named Blackwood whose homestead is near Calgary. Blackwood killed one of his geese one day for dinner, and what should be in its gizzard but several gold nuggets. He proceeded to kill all his other geese, favorite and otherwise, and all the ducks, and the massacre yielded many additional nuggets.

Blackwood then scraped up a couple of shovels of black sand from his farm and took it to an analyst who reported the sand to assay 18.30 grains of gold to the cubic yard.

Naturally the discovery of gold-mining ducks and geese has led to a great rush of buyers of these birds. Thousands that have been roaming in the country adjacent to Blackwood's farm have been sold above par and are now "gone west."

Goose, with sage and onions, and roast duck are at a discount at the Calgary hotels, and a big rush of gold hunters or duck hunters is expected as soon as the new crop of ducks and geese have a chance to feed up.

Golden Rule in All the Great Religion

THE Golden Rule, that highly ethical pl according to which each person agrees th all others should arrange their conduct, d not originate in the Christian era. It is t product of a far older civilization.

Some 3400 years ago, when the Hindu kin doms along the Ganges river were listed amo the great powers, there was set up as this prec among them: "The true rule of business is guard and do by the things of others as they by their own."

Then some 2800 years later, but still 600 yea before Christ and 150 before Plato, that supe wise Chinaman Lao Tzu wrote from the wall isolation of his great and learned fatherlan "Requite injury with kindness. To the not go I would be good in order to make them good."

The Greeks in 1070 B. C. came yet nearer t familiar wording with these words: "Do t that to thy neighbor which thee would take from him."

The books and scrolls of the Hebraic l taught this truth. In a time-worn parchment lieved to have been first inscribed 2500 years a is to be read: "Whatsoever you do not wish yo neighbor to do to you do not that to him," a added to it for emphasis: "This is the whole l The rest is mere exposition of it."

Confucius may not have known he was original when he wrote: "What you would wish done to yourself, do not unto others."

At the first Buddhistic council, held at jahrdiga in 477 B. C., the scribes advised: "should seek for others the happiness one des for oneself."

A century and a half before Christ the of Rome once more repeated the theme: "a law imprinted on the hearts of all men is to the members of society as themselves."

In the law of Moses it runs: "Thou shalt l thy neighbor as thyself." And Christ later clared this "the law and the prophets."

When Alexander of Macedon marched Persia in 334 B. C. he found there before him most usual of all these closely paralleled fo lae in the Zoroastrian precepts, "Do as you wa be done by." Mohammed put it in his Koran "Let none of you treat his brother in a way himself would dislike to be treated." Baha O'l the renowned Persian teacher of this ge tion, writes: "O son of man! wert thou to serve mercy thou wouldst not regard thine interest, but the interest of mankind. Wert to observe justice choose thou for others thou choosest for thyself."

HOW INCOME TAX WAS DIVIDED UP

OFFICIAL FIGURES SHOW SOME INTERESTING COMPARISONS

OTTAWA, Oct. 4—(By Canadian Press).—Some interesting income tax figures have been issued by the Commissioner of Taxation, showing the amounts contributed by the various classes throughout the Dominion. Of a total of $46,381,806 collected by the federal authorities for the year 1920-21, agrarians (or farmers) contributed $611,735. They numbered 16,652, out of a total for the whole country of 194, 257 persons assessed. As against this, professional numbering 19,366 contributed $2,642,585. Employees, including those working for salaries wages and time work, contributed $11,301,805, there being 111,621 assessed here were 24,483 merchants assessed and they paid $7,689,521 in income tax. Voice of the People

In view of the coming election for the Federal House and the present economic crisis that is facing us this winter one naturally, wonders what is wrong? What is the cause? Can anything be done, that will prevent trade depression and the consequent poverty. We ask ourselves has civilized man in enslaving the forces of nature become less of a man. Have we destroyed the soul of the man and made him also a mere machine so much so that the fate of the individual is immaterial compared to the advance of money wealth.

We note our highly industrialized community crowded into a never ceasing treadmill of specialized labor, from which there seems no escape, individuality, initiative are almost destroyed. Rush; produce; with modern machine methods, has made man a mechanical automatom to produce with almost superhuman energy, which brings with it no happiness but unhealthy physical degeneration, as stated by Dr. R. Austin Freeman, a noted anthropologist.

"Mechanism, by its reactions on man and his environment is antagonistic to human welfare. It has destroyed industry and replaced it by mere labor. It has degraded and vulgarized the works of man. It has destroyed social unity, and has replaced it by social disintegration and class antagonism, to an extent which threatens civilization. It has injuriously affected the structural type of society by developing its organization at the expense of the individual."

Considering this is not the time ripe for a new birth into the life of our Dominion; a life of service instead of selfishness. To-day our sons are educated up to the idea of money making. Ask any young man now he likes his business. The answer is, 'I am not in it for my health, but for what is in it for myself.' Social decay has set in, it is not too late to remedy this, the great self sacrifice exhibited by our people during the war, shows that the soul is still alive in the nation. Are our legislators going to permit the social decay above mentioned to impregnate and destroy the great redeeming point of any nation? What we must do is to face the situation bodly, elect men of high moral character, that can appreciate a higher motive in life than materialism. For this is far more important to the future of our country than than the tariff. We must have men who will save us from class antagonism and utter selfishness, and make industry a matter of service one to another. The germ of good is in every person, it is at this time looking for an outlet, the people are inwardly rebelling against our modern civilization. It is expressed in the many so-called extremist organizations, and the only cure is to again make it possible to live the full life, and stop the mad race of modern industry so that men may again become healthy, mentally and physically. We will then have happy homes and no need for welfare organizations.

HARDING REPLIES TO BRITISH VETS.

In Answer to Their Congratulations, Pays Them Tribute.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Oct. 4. — Canadian Press. — Field Marshall Earl Haig, who commended the British forces in France and Belgium in the Great War, speaking at a grand rally of the Edinburgh branches of the Britsh Legion held here, said that he had written to President Harding congratulating him upon what he was doing in connection with the calling of a conference on limitation of armament and problems of the Far East, at Washington, and that he had received a reply from the United States President to this communication.

Earl Haig read the President's message to the audience. In it President Harding said: "I received and am deeply impressed by your letter in which your Lordship, as President of the British Empire Service League, and in the name of 7,000,000 ex-service men of the British Empire, conveyed to me their warm congratulations upon our efforts to establish more fully the foundations of world peace.

"In the same letter I am assured of the Leagues' heartfelt sympathy, and strong hope that this movement may prove an important step toward the realization of those high ideals of just dealing and good will between the nations for the sake of which so many men of both our countries died in the great war.

"I greatly prize the spontaneous expressions of sympathy and support from an organization which holds as does this one for which you speak, a unique and glorious place in the affections and respect of people everywhere on earth who cherish liberty, fair dealing and the peaceful processes of progress.

"Please convey to your colleagues of the league my heartfelt thanks."

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

MUST PAY 75c. MINIMUM GAS CHARGES HERE

REPLIES HYDRO-ELECTRIC TO COUNCIL'S PROTEST — ALD. PHELAN COMPLAINS PROPERTY ASSESSMENTS TOO HIGH.

Chief Engineer F. J. Gabey maintains that the 75-cent minimum charge for gas per month is absolutely imperative, and in conformity with established schedules in other towns. This was his response Monday night to Council's protest against the minimum rate now enforced in Peterborough, and Mr. Gabey, in defence of the charge, pointed out that it is universally recognized as necessary by all Utilities; for, the capital investment by gas suppliers to furnish service exists from the time connection is established, together with accounting, fixed charges of interest, sinking fund and depreciation, whether a customer uses the service or not. Then, he added, meters have to be read and inspected, accounts kept and office records made every month, and this cost, Mr. Gabey avered in his communication, amounts to almost as much as the minimum rate charged.

Ald. Whitehouse registered vigorous opposition to this 75-cent minimum rate, affecting mainly, he said, mechanics and medium class citizens. He wondered if Council had no recourse respecting a utility which really is the people's property, and Ald. Turner replied he was afraid not.

However, Ald. Whitehouse and Phelan moved that a committee be appointed to interview Mr. Fergusson, the local manager for Hydro-electric, on this matter.

This carrying, the committee named are Ald. Phelan, Turner, Hay and Crowe.

Assessment High.

Another growing burden for ratepayers is the assessment, according to Ald. Phelan, who characterized it as away too high; he suggested that a conference be held with Assessor Henry in this connection.

Not concurring in this view, Ald. Turner replied that the Legislature has empowered Assessors to assess up to the full value of properties, and he was positive Mr. Henry is far from having reached his limit yet. He extolled Peterborough's Assessor for manifesting a commendable effort to equalize our taxation as fairly as possible. "And I, for one, don't believe in Council overstepping his authority," added Council's Finance Minister.

The question was left at this.

Ald. Crowe Objects.

Ald. Crowe took strong exception to clause one in the above, recommending an increased appropriation for the tax collector on the ground that Council's policy early in the year adverse to salary increases should be rigidly adhered to.

Ald. Turner did not think the assistance asked inconsistent with that allowed elsewhere.

Ald. Whitehouse: "Collection of our taxes is quite an important item, and Mr. Green has for years given satisfaction to both the City Council and the community. He needs further assistance because Council has demanded from him an earlier return of his rolls."

Ald. Crowe's motion to eliminate this clause in question found no seconder, and the report was adopted as read.

MAY FORCE SEWER CONNECTION ON 3 LOCAL PROPERTY OWNERS

BOARD OF HEALTH RECOMMENDS THE IMPROVEMENTS AS A NEEDED SANITARY MEASURE—HEAVY ROUTINE NIGHT IN CITY HALL—LOOKS LIKE 'BUS LINE FROM EAST CITY—OTONABEE'S SUIT AGAINST PETERBOROUGH.

The first instances of enforcing sewer connections where mains are available in Peterborough are now in the hands of the Council's Property committee for action.

This was the result of a recommendation submitted to the City Council last night from the local Board of Health, that water closets and wash basins be installed in Numbers 425 Bethune, 606 Bethune and 21 Park streets. This work is recommended on sanitary grounds, and as the Board of Health have reason to conclude that the owners of these properties are not in position to pay the cost of such improvements in a lump sum, they advised Council to prosecute the work, and charge it against the properties affected with six percent. per annum interest, the owners to pay same in equal annual installments extending over a period of five years.

The Property committee were instructed to bring in to Council their recommendation on this matter.

Who's Responsible?

On motion of Ald. Whitehouse and Turner, the City Solicitor was instructed to locate the responsibility for maintaining the crossings at the C.P.R. and G.T.R. sidings into the C.G.E. and notify the parties to that effect. It appears the two railway companies disclaim all responsibility in this connection.

Bell 'Phone Rates.

Mr. J. M. McHardy, local manager, explained to Council the need for the Bell Telephone Company's application to the Board of Railway Commissioners for permission to increase their rates, as published in the Examiner recently. The increased revenue, he said, is for current expenses and to provide a fund for depreciation and renewal of plant.

On motion of Ald. Whitehouse and Crowe, the Mayor was authorized to appoint a committee to oppose the Bell Company's proposed increase before the Railway Board at Ottawa.

Franco-Exhibition Train.

A communication from Peterborough Chamber of Commerce re the Franco Exhibition train to visit Peterborough on Wednesday, October 26th, suggested that the following points should be considered by a joint committee of Council and the Chamber of Commerce:

Head of train to be at Charlotte street on Bethune street.

King street to be closed all day.

Decorate Charlotte street G.T.R. station.

Civic reception at 10 a.m. and formal opening of train for citizens' inspection.

Complimentary luncheon by city to the French representatives.

This matter was sent to the Legal and Reception committee to act in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce.

Repair Sidewalk.

The chairman of the Board of Works and City Engineer were empowered to act in regard to repairing the sidewalk opposite Grafton and Co.'s, Woolworth Co.'s and A. A. Fowler's stores. Ald. Whitehouse reported that Grafton & Co. are willing to bear a portion of this cost—$200— and he expected the other two business houses would follow suit.

On motion of Ald. Whitehouse and Jones the request of the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. for one block of sidewalk on the east side of Monaghan road, from Elm to Murray streets, was granted, and the Engineer and Board of Works' chairman empowered to act.

Surface Drainage.

A largely signed petition for surface drainage on Patterson street, went to the Board of Works.

Raise in Interest.

A by-law to construct as a local improvement a sewer in East City to connect with St. Joseph's Hospital, and to do the work by day labor, passed its several readings.

A by-law to provide for selling the city's debentures for purchasing the Riverside park and adjacent property at 6 1-4 p.c. interest instead of 5 1-2 per cent. as previously planned, passed Council.

Licenses Granted.

Four applications for renewal of billiard room licenses were granted.

Old Boys' Home Week.

Secretary F. J. A. Hall of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, wrote that his board heartily endorses the project for an Old Boys' Home Week next year, and offered to assist in every way possible in furtherance of such an occasion, which many citizens are of the opinion should be observed in the same week as Peterborough's Fair.—Referred to the Legal and Reception committee.

Coal Chute.

A request from Grafton & Co. for permission to construct an improved sidewalk ring and cover for getting in coal was referred to the Board of Works and engineer with power to act.

Insurance Cancelled.

Mr. J. C. Ellis, of the Peterborough Mattress Co., wrote that because of the position the company's building had been placed in by the new Ashburnham bridge, their fire insurance has been cancelled; and he will hold the city responsible for any damage accruing from fire, which might readily originate from a match, cigar or cigarette dropped on the roof of their premises from the bridge. This matter was referred to the Bridge committee.

Claims $5,000 Damages.

Council received notification that October 25th, the date for trial of Otonabee against the city, in which the former municipality is seeking an injunction to restrict Peterborough municipality from emptying sewage into the Otonabee river, and claiming $5,000 damages for past pollution of the river. In this connection the City Solicitor was instructed to take whatever steps are necessary to protect the city's interests.

Sewer to Hospital.

A recommendation by the local Board of Health that a sewer be constructed to the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital went to the Board of Works.

Improvement Advised.

J. C. Smith reported that his audit of the tax collector's books disclosed the same to be in a satisfactory condition, although some improvements to the system adopted by Mr. Green were strongly advised. —Received.

Dangerous Walk.

Mr. E. J. H. Vanstone wrote, asking that the sidewalk at the corner of George and Hunter streets where the Bank of Toronto is situated, be put into a safe and passable condition. This was sent to the Board of Works with power to act.

Fire Chief Reports.

Fire Chief Grange reported the number of fire alarms during September as 14, with a total property damage of $1,604. The Chief also reported one midnight fire drill and apparatus and hook and ladder drill during the month, together with factory inspections. This was referred to the Fire, Water and Light committee.

Pay For Protection.

As the fire brigade responds to calls from such places as Byersville and Claridy, Ald. Gainey and Crowe moved that the clerk write North Monaghan township for a conference to reach a basis of charges for fire protection in that municipality. —Carried.

To Move Lights.

On motion of Ald. Mortison and Gainey, the Utilities will be asked to move the two magnetite arc lamps on Hunter street just over the bridge—one to the east of Driscoll Terrace and the other the west side of the lane east of George Lipsett's.

Three Propositions.

On motion of Ald. Whitehouse and Turner, the Engineer was instructed to report on the following:

Mr. Jos. Gray's request for a sewer and sidewalk from Downie street creek to McDonnel street on Park, to accommodatee three houses.

Also on Mr. Gray's proposition to lease a part of the city property on the river front.

And on a plan for paving Olive avenue. This short thoroughfare is too narrow for a sidewalk each side, and Engineer Parsons has suggested that a 12 foot concrete pavement be laid in the centre of the road, to which residents could connect with walks from their houses.

Bridge Approaches.

On motion of Ald. Turner and Hay, the engineer will report to the Board of Works on pavement extensions to each of the Ashburnham bridge's approaches.

'Buss Line.

Ald. Hay reported that a recent interview with Sir Adam Beck had elicited the information that he is favorably impressed with the plan mooted in Council for a trolley bus line in connection with the local street railway to serve East City. These English conveyances, Ald. Hay said, are a great success in English cities, are operating in Detroit and Hydro-Electric has invited tenders for nine or ten 'buses to serve Windsor.

Looking toward the establishment of such a 'bus line here, Ald. Hay and Whitehouse moved that notice be given of Council's intention to pave Hunter street from the Armour road to the eastren side of Sheridan Terrace, and also to provide storm drainage for the district dominated by Hunter street east.

There were present, Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Aldermen H. Gainey, R. Morrison, Jos. Crowe, J. J. Turner, Jas. Hamilton, R. Jones, Frank Whitehouse, G. L. Hay and Nagel Phelan.

MEXICANS CELEBRATE WITH BULL FIGHT

One hundred years ago, Mexico secured her independence. The Mexican people of Los Angeles celebrated with speaking, band concerts, barbecues, etc., but the one special event of the day, was the bull-fight in which the bulls had the big advantage in weapons, as the Matadors and Picardors, carried only their cloaks and paper pointed spears and their agility alone protected them when the bulls goaded to a frenzy attacked them. There were many narrow escapes.

G. A. BRETHEN WAS THE CHOICE

dress on matters of interest to his audience. He spoke of the efforts being made by the two parties to invoke the ancient shibboleths of their order, the glories of the departed leader in both instances, Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, being used as catchwords by the Conservative and Liberal forces. He warned the meeting of the consideration which should be given to the subject of the recall, and considered the resolution regarding the payment of election expenses as a very vital one. The question of the payment of a candidate's expenses had been at the root of much serious trouble in the past, because that party who financed the candidature of a certain man naturally felt that he was under a certain obligation to them which might be liquidated in numerous ways later on.

Mr. Kennedy also dealt very interestingly with the question of Canada's national debt and the vexed issue of the tariff, scoring the Meighen government for the purchase of bonds in the United States, the proceeds of which were not imported into this country in the form of cash but in goods discriminating against Canadian-made goods.

During the sessions between ballots a very enjoyable musical programem was rendered by Messrs. Rufus Payne of Warsaw, nad Thos. Petrie of Otonabee, the latter proving an entertainer of merit. Mr. Arthur Carveth of Douro, and Mr. W. S. Anderson of Dummer, also contributed several excellent recitations to the programme.

FALL FROM A HORSE WAS FATAL.

WESTWOOD, Oct. 4. — While traveling in Alberta on his way home to visit his friends in the east, Mr. Thompson McDonald was thrown from the horse on which he was riding and was so seriously hurt that he died the following day. He was a resident of Billings, Mont., and his two brothers-in-law, Mr. R. Steele and Mr. J. Stewart, on receiving the news immediately went north to bring his body home. The funeral was from the Stewart ranch, where he usually made his home. The bearers were James Steele, Ben. Stewart, Ben Cardwell and Joe McConnell, all former residents of Asphodel; also Will Lamey and Stone Matlock, his closest friends.

Mr. McDonald was a resident of Asphodel until about 30 years ago. He went out to Montana where he made good. He was respected by his many friends and beloved by his sisters who survive him. They are Mrs. Wilson of Westwood; Mrs. Fortune and Mrs. Wheeler of Otonabee; Mrs. Peck of Helena, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Steele of Billings. His brother, Samuel. McDonald, lives near Norwood, and is heart broken over the loss of his only brother.

INTERNATIONAL COURT FOR BUSINESS MOOTED

PARIS, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press.)— An international court of justice for business disputes is one of the suggestion which probably will come before the fall meeting of the Council of the International Chamber of Commerce, to be held here the coming Friday. The court will be established along the same general lines as the new International Court, created by the League of Nations, but would confine its work to the settlement of commercial misunderstandings between nationals of all countries of the world.

Advocates of the plan argue that it would save millions of dollars now spent in litigation, for legal services and otherwise—expenditures which are now unavoidable through the lack of an international body to adjudicate differences.

Another matter to come before the Council will be an effort to find a way to float the German Reparation Bonds and give them a market value.

SOLUTION SEEMS NEAR OF SHIPYARD STRIKE

The crew are supposed to have been taken off by the Donaldson liner Orthia, or to have landed from boats on the Newfoundland coast.

SEX PRE-DETERMINATION IS ATTEMPTED WITH MICE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— Pre-determination of sex, goal of many scientific experiments with birds and fowls, is being attempted with mammals for the first time at the Carnegie Institution's station on Long Island. A carefully chosen family of mice has been segregated for the experiment.

Biologically, mice are more similar to man than any specimens previously used in seeking pre-determination of sex, according to those making the experiments. If successful with mice, they plan to apply the results to humans.

TO RELEASE FRENCH HELD BY NATIONALISTS

PARIS, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.) —Eight hundred French soldiers and ten officers captured by the Turkish Nationalists in last year's campaign, will be released immediately under an agreement between France and the Angora Government, it is announced at the Foreign Office. One hundred men who were ill were liberated last month.

The release of the remaining prisoners was part of the French peace treaty with the Nationalists negotiated at London, which the Angora Government rejected, but M. Franklin Bouillon, when he went recently to Anogra, renewed the negotiations for the liberation of the captured men.

CONFERENCE DELAYED ON RAILWAY WAGE CUT.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Owing to protracted discussions yesterday afternoon the brotherhood representatives on the sub-committee of the conference to discuss the wage reduction of 12 per cent. proposed for railwaymen were unable to meet the representatives of the railways, but a further joint conference between the representatives of the men and the railroads has been arranged for this morning.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Harold F. McCormick and his wife, the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, have separated, it was announced at the millionaire's Lake Forest home here. NO SETTLEMENT REACHED IN LONGSHOREMEN STRIKE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—A decision to deal only with recognized local unions and officials of the International Longshoremen's Association and of the Shipping Board to persuade the men who struck Saturday to return to work. The strikers, members of nine local unions which declined to ratify the recent wage agreement, refused.

Strike leaders claimed they were gaining recruits at all of the New York City and New Jersey piers. This claim was denied by the steamship owners.

DECLINE IN FLOUR.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—There was a slight improvement in the demand for cash grain from local buyers yesterday. A further decline of 20 cents per barrel for flour was recorded. The market for millfeed was without special feature and the market for rolled oats was unchanged. The baled hay trade continues quiet. The local egg situation is without feature but there is a fair trade reported in potatoes. The demand for butter remains steady. The tone of the cheese market was firm.

60,000,000 POUNDS OF GRAIN COLLECTED IN RUSSIA.

RIGA, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—A total of nearly sixty million poods of grain, or about one fourth of the total estimate for the year, was collected in Russia through the natural tax up to October 1. One-third of this amount came from the Ukraine. The Government claims the system of making such collections is succeeding beyond its expectations. (A pood is about 36 pounds.)

CONTINUANCE GRANTED IN CASE OF ARBUCKLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—The Grand Jury indictment charging Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle, motion picture comedian, with manslaughter in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe, motion picture actress, was on the calendar of Superior Judge Harold Louderback for a plea yesterday but was put over until Monday, October 10.

The continuance was granted upon motion of the District Attorney, who said he intended to file an information with the Superior Court this week which would put on the court calendar the manslaughter finding of a police court against Arbuckle last week. He did not say what would eventually become of the indictment.

CONGRESS MAY NOT ADJOURN BEFORE PARLEY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—President Harding has told leaders in Congress that he is anxious to have the $500,000,000 Railroad Credit Bill passed before the extra session ends. This will result in Congress remaining in session most of November and will knock out the plan which has been much discussed to have Congress in adjournment when the disarmament conference meets.

SPECTACULAR REACTION OCCURS ON COTTON MART.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—One of the most rapid and exciting movements of the spectacular sessions on the Cotton Exchange occurred yesterday in connection with the publication of the United States Government's crop reports. After an early rise of unusual proportions prices broke violently, until within ten minutes a reaction of 125 to 129 points had been recorded.

Before publication of the report there was a good deal of buying in the expectation that the figures would show a condition of 40 or under. When the actual figures of 42.2 were flashed on the brokers' wires and news tickers, the market was overwhelmed with selling orders. December contracts, which rose approximately $6.50 to $21.95, a new high record for the season, on the sharp early upturn, slumped to $20.00 and active months generally were marked down for net losses of 30 to 65 points.

Almost as quickly as it came, the rush of liquidation subsided, and the market became steadier on trade buying, with recoveries in the later trading.

to $300 because of additional work occasioned by the enfranchisement of women. The number of persons who had to be listed from 1000 to 1750.

Deputy-Reeve—Stone moved, seconded by Councillor Baker, that the petition be laid on the table.

Mr. Palliser made a plea in behalf of the assessor's request and moved an amendment seconded by Councillor Wilkinson that Mr. Grills be granted an increase of $25, making his salary $275. The amendment carried with the support of Reeve Davidson and Councillor Southworth.

Reply to Weston Bros.

Town Solicitor Humphries gave a verbal report of the special committee's enquiry into the ownership of the raceway on Mill street in respouse to a petition from the Messrs. Weston.

"My view was, and I think it is correct, and the other members concurred in it, that the raceway property doesn't belong and never did belong to the Corporation. It was marked on the plan as a raceway. The Peterboro Cereal Company and Charles Davidson have assumed that parts of it belongs to them. The Corporation never repaired it nor has it assumed responsibility for the planking. My view is that if an accident happened there the property owners would be responsible. It is not necessary to give Messrs. Weston a release or quit claim but something in that form might be given them.

Councillor Baker moved seconded by Deputy-Reeve Stone, that the clerk write Weston Brothers to the effect that the Corporation has no claim to, or ownership in the raceway.

Want Course Diverted.

On behalf of Robert S. Bell, George N. Miller and J. L. Hoover of Queen street and P. G. Garrison, corner of Church and Kent streets, D. J. Lynch wrote notifying the Council that in the spring and after rains water floods across their properties and pours into their cellars. They asked that provision be made for the diversion of this water.

Mr. Southworth moved, seconded by Mr. Wilkinson that the Clerk reply that this whole work would come under the county road programme next year, and would be then carried out. Any money spent by the town now, would consequently be practically thrown away.

Mr. Southworth pointed out that a larger culvert was required at Kent street, and Mr. Wilkinson suggested a broad scheme involving a new culvert further up.

Mayor Meyers stated that this question had been fully discussed The question was whether any work at that point should be done now by the town in view of the fact that it would come under county road work next year. Proper drainage would cost between $300 and $400.

Mr. Wilkinson —In view of the lawyer's letter should we let it stand over?

Reeve Davidson—We get lots of them.

Mr. Southworth expressed the opinion that of the Council's attitude was explained to these ratepayers they would be satisfied to wait for the improvement until next year.

Seeking New Site

Reporting for the committee which was empowered to secure a site outside the corporation for a new dump ground, Mr. Wilkinson stated that he had made quite a number of enquiries but had nothing definitely settled yet, although the outlook was encouraging. Several locations were under consideration.

Have Troubles Enough

"I believe the Council has enough trouble without starting into this", said Mr. Baker in a comment upon Town Solicitor Humphries' report of the working of the statute for the exemption of new dwellings as an encouragement to buiding.

Will Ask for Tenders

Mayor Meyers stated that the construction of new sewers on Booth and Bridge streets should be proceeded with, as soon as the one on Rear street is completed.

Messrs. Baker and Palliser urged that an early start be made with this work to escape the frost. On Mr. Wilkinson's recommendation it was decided to call for tenders for the sewers, bids to be received up to October 13.

The special committee on the proposed Wellington street sewer was instructed to obtain an estimate of the cost of plans for it and also an estimate of the entire cost of draining that district and providing it with sewerage.

J. R. WILKINSON COMING TO PETERBORO' HOSPITAL

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 4. —As a result of an accident which befell him on Saturday, September 24th, Councillor J. R. Wilkinson, of Campbellford, expects to come to Peterborough for an X-ray examination and treatment of the injuries he received. While climbing to the roof of his house, the ladder he ascended nearly to the top broke, throwing him fifteen feet to the ground. He fell heavily and although no bones were broken, the shock and jar ,together with a thrust of a broken part of the ladder, which might have been fatal had it not been for the protection of his clothes, have left him scarcely able to walk.

MANY A SLIP BETWEEN CUP AND THE LIP

WAS ALD. MORRISON'S EXPERIENCE IN COUNCIL RE CHALMERS' MOTOR UTILITY CAR FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT—PROPOSITION LAID ON SHELF FOR PRESENT.

That there is many a slip between the cup and the lip was the experience of Ald. Morrison, Monday night, when, on the eve of getting through the Council the Fire, Water and Light Committee's recommendation for the purchase of a Chalmer's runabout car to replace the Ford now in use by the Fire Department, Ald. Turner arose and clubbed the proposition so successfully, that this clause in his colleague's report was eliminated.

Ald. Turner contended that from a point of economy, this matter might well be postponed for next year's estimates, even though the car had been provided for in 1921's appropriation.

Ald. Crowe concurred in Ald. Turner's stand. Fifty per cent. of Peterborough's mechanics will not average $1,000 in wages this year, he said, and it is no time for incurring expenditure that can be delayed till a more propitious season.

Ald. Morrison, in defence, declared the present car to be in a condition which threatens a break-down just at a time when most urgently needed. For instance, he urged in a case of asphyxiation, when the pulmotor is called for, failure of the present Ford to operate might result in the loss of life. This car is needed for community use, he added.

Ald. Turner came back with, "The newest and best car in the country is liable to puncture before travelling this room's length."

Needs the Horses.

To Ald. Turner, Ald. Morrison replied that a team of horses could not be disposed of by the Fire Department, to economize in feed. The extra team referred to by Ald. Turner is, he pointed out, maintained to assure readiness for a second alarm when part of the brigade is out at a fire.

This explanation was accepted as satisfactory.

HAMILTON MAN NOW CONVINCED

DECLARES IT'S WONDERFUL THE WAY TANLAC RELIEVED HIS WIFE AND BUILT HER UP.

"Tanlac is certainly a wonderful medicine, if my wife's case is a fair example of what the medicine will do for anyone suffering from stomach trouble and a rundown condition," said Alexander William Collins, of 8½ John Street, N. Hamilton, Ont., well-known foreman of the Canada Bread Co.

"My wife was in a mighty bad state of health when she started taking Tanlac, and complained of feeling tired and worn-out all the time. Her appetite was so poor she could eat very little of anything, and this even seemed to give her no nourishment. Her back hurt her so bad she could hardly bend over and straighten up again, and she had very frequent attacks of awful sick headaches. She just seemed to be a bundle of nerves, was easily upset, and was so restless she could scarcely sleep.

"Tanlac was being praised so highly all around that she began taking it, and the medicine soon had her improving rapidly in every way. Three botles have ended all her troubles and made her healthy and strong again. She enjoys her meals now and says she just feels fine all the time. Tanlac has certainly fixed her up wonderfully, and I can't help but believe it will do as much for others."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

THE HALF IS NEVER TOLD

Of the Great Work Undertaken By Children's Aid Society of Peterborough.

The half is never told of the philanthropic work of the Children's Aid Society, which does not begin with to-day and end on the morrow, but extends through the tender and adolescent years of orphaned and neglected children with a continuity ending only when the society's wards have found their place in established and self-assertive adulthood. Day by day and year by year the call in the Children's Aid Society's functioning has increased and multiplied until the Shelter's capacity is taxed to the limit, and the demand for Agent Geo. W. Powell's good offices is increasingly insistent.

And so quietly and unostentatiously do the Society and its energetic and sympathetic agent work that many people do not realize the extensive scope of their operations. Therefore, in view of the near approach of the Children's Aid Tag Day—Saturday, October 8—the public are reminded that due to this Society's activities, many a little one has been rescued from pernicious home influences, and, as wards of the Children's Aid, had their footsteps directed along the path which leads to that community citizenship in which correct morals, exemplary personality and Christian observance govern their lives. Then, again, it must not be forgotten that numbers of orphaned children, who, left to the tender mercies of a world replete with degenerating elements, would probably have developed vicious, degrading and some even criminal characteristics, had it not been for the Children's Aid's guiding care and placement of them in Christian homes during those dangerous years when the manhood and womanhood of the future are susceptible to character moulding.

The work of this Society is so varied indeed that Agent Powell is kept pretty busy in duties which include many difficult and perplexing problems at times. For instance, take the case where two young girls of attractive years who ran away from home to escape a father's unpaternal tendencies. Over these he maintained a guiding eye, until now one is comfortably married in Essex County and with whom the sister finds a happy and protecting home. Then there are two boys who, without the Children's Aid's influence and activity, might have lost their fair share of the deceased's father's estate. Their mother married again, and the stepfather, assuming control of the whole farm. Mr. Powell, for his Society, stepped in and, securing the status of executor, effected legal settlement by which these boys are assured of $500 from their father's property, and as wards of the Children's Aid, their future will be safeguarded.

These are but two of many instances of this Society's far-reaching endeavors, the whole of which comprise a cause so manifestly worthy that Children's Aid Tag Day next Saturday should find a generously responsive public to the need of $2,000 for meeting ever-increasing expenses in the prosecution of a work which should commend itself to all.

BELLEVILLE POLICE ARE A BUSY BUNCH.

The report of Chief Kidd of Belleville shows his staff to have had a busy half-year. During the first six months of this year 406 cases were tried, being more or less of a serious nature. The amount of stolen property reported was $6,519, of which no less than $6,295.82 was recovered. In addition to this the value of property found by the police was $362.6. Over $4,000 were collected in fine and fees. This is certainly a record that the members of the force have reason to be proud of.

GERMANY STARTLES WORLD WITH NEW MOTORLESS AEROPLANES

Ever since the Peace Treaty imposed on Germany certain restrictions with regard to aeroplanes, German engineers, inventors and aviators have been working hard to invent a new kind of machine so small and inexpensive that it can be built wholesale and put on the market in the same way that motor cars are handled. An exhibition flight of these different types of small machines was recently held in the valley of the Rhone mountains. The majority of the flights were very successful.

HONORS FOR GRAND TRUNK APPRENTICES.

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—The results announced here of the Mechanical Drawing Competition held at the Canadian National Exhibition show that apprentices of the Grand Trunk Railway System carried off seven of the ten prizes offered, taking first and second place in each of the following competitions, Electrical, Structural, Hydraulic and Pneumatic drawings.

The Grand Trunk apprentices carrying off prizes were: W. Grandison, F. Taylor, K. Murray and H. Bailey, of the Stratford shops; W. Minton, of the Montreal shops; F. Gooch, Toronto shops, and R. Harvey, London car shops. Since the inception of the Mechanical Drawing Competitions at the Exhibition, the apprentices of the Grand Trunk have set a remarkably high record, which has been well maintained this year.

It may not be generally known that the Grand Trunk Railway has been the pioneer in the modern development of apprenticeship training. There are more than eight hundred apprentices in the motive power and car shops of the Grand Trunk, and Vice-President W. D. Robb, who inaugurated the apprenticeship system on the railway, takes the keenest interest in maintaining the highest possible standard of instruction. This is carried out under a supervisor of apprentices. At shops where fifty or more apprentices are employed, there is a permanent class instructor and at smaller shops, and at roundhouses, the instruction is given weekly by a travelling instructor. In addition there is an apprentice examiner, who examines all the apprentices at periodical intervals. The boys are moved from one machine or class of work to another, as their skill develops, and the instruction received in the shop is supplemented by class-room instruction in mechanical drawing, sketching, mathematics, practical mechanics and blueprint reading. Evidence of the results obtained is found in the fact that the Grand Trunk has seldom been obliged to go outside of its own shops to fill the highest positions in its mechanical departments, while a large number of responsible positions in other railways are filled by men who obtained their early training in the Grand Trunk shops and apprenticeship classes.

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and lame back for more than a year. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I tried them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had used five boxes. RAISIN BREAD.

Listen—raisins are now 30 per cent. cheaper than before the war or since.

What of it? Why, this means that the bakers will be able to make good old-fashioned raisin bread with raisins in it at a reasonable price!

You know the Government requires at least two ounces of raisins to every 16-ounce loaf of bread and at the old price the bakers couldn't afford to make it.

They had to make a smaller loaf or cut out raisin bread.

Now raisin bread is back to normaley and you will again be able to buy plenty of raisins and plenty of bread at one and the same time.

Your grocer and your baker will be selling it. You will be eating and enjoying it as in good old before-the-war-days.

LARGER FEES FOR DIVISION COURTS.

Greater Amounts Involved and Fees For Local Bailiff and Clerk Increased.

The Ontario diivsion courts have by a recent enactment of the Provincial Government, had their jurisdiction increased so that actions involving larger sums come before the court. Actoins involving open account. Actions involving open account up to $200, formerly limited the court's jurisdiction, but now claims involving $200 open acounts and $400 notes will be tried. With greater amounts involved in the litigation, the fees have been increased about 25 per cent. for the bailiff and clerk who in the Peterboro court are Samuel Pearson and J. W. Miller.

Mr. J. W. Miller stated to-day that the fees have not been increased in years. During the war some provision was made for their books, but no increases given. In some cases the fees are 30 per cent. higher, but Mr. Miller stated that the average would only be about 25 per cent.

Division Coutr is held in the Court House the first Friday in every month.

New Drug Will Make Millions of People Well

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY —NUMBERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our Livers. When the Liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your Stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicine act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep, waking in the morning feeling 100 p.c. better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed and ready for a good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in Peterborough by F. C. Weber, Charlotte street.

How an Air Hero Has Landed in Love

At First It Was Alexandra, Then Consuelo Appeared, and Now the Charming Irma Seems to Be the Destined Mate for Lieut. Louis F. Kloor!

Miss Consuelo Flowerton Was Reported to Be the Girl Who Won Lt. Kloor from Her Sister.

Miss Alexandra Flowerton, Fiancee No. 1, Who Said She Could Not Live on an Officer's Pay.

Miss Irma Harrison, the Petite Maid Whose Mar... to Much-Sought Offi...

Lt. Louis F. Kloor, U. S. N., Who Found That One Can Be Jolted Hard When Landing—in Love.

By Joseph H. Appelgate

IT IS a pretty difficult thing to land right. Particularly, when one is up in the air. It seems half the game to get one's feet down solidly. The earth feels mighty friendly. Lt. Louis F. Kloor of the United States Navy, one of the three naval balloonists whose trip to the Canadian wilds last winter in a gas bag made naval history, will tell you so. Lts. Walter Hinton and Stephen A. Farrell could corroborate him.

Lt. Kloor will tell you something else, also. He will assure you that making a landing in ventures outside voyaging about in the circumambient is just as much of an achievement. Particularly, when one is up in the air over a love affair. How he came to reach the haven of his heart's desire is that which concerns this narrative and the charming little Miss Irma Harrison of New York City.

The circumstances indicate that he landed right—in love—by applying the lessons he and Lts. Farrell and Hinton learned at the cost of physical suffering in the great outdoors of pines and hemlock and unbroken snow up North. He was up against a stiff proposition when he made that mistaken landing from that balloon. The next time you go fishing or hunting up there ask the Indian guide to recount it. He'll point to his canoe, fashioned out of the expensive covering of Uncle Sam's wrecked gas bag, and assure you that it was a plucky fight. The chances are, too, that, having in mind the shortness of the span of life of a canoe of birch bark, he'll ask when the great White Father of the United States will send another bag up there.

Plunging ahead over all obstacles was the lesson taught Lt. Kloor in the "silence you most can hear." Out of that stumbling, staggering battle against the step-hindering snow, nights made hideous with the howling of wolves, days made terrible by the sense of loneliness in the vastness of trackless white, there came added will to go ahead full speed and damn the torpedoes, sir! Many times he and his companions turned attentive ear to the whispering invitation of the pines to sleep, just a bit, before pressing on. But ever the traditional spirit of the navy overcame the snow siren and added fresh strength to their heavy feet.

His Guiding Beacon Light

But Lt. Kloor had also a beacon light encouraging him every step of the way, the mental picture of a pretty girl at Rockaway, N. Y., with soft brown eyes and golden brown hair. She seemed to be with him in his most trying moments. She was his very present strength in time of trouble. The whole world knew of this before Lt. Kloor arrived home. It was gleaned out of the ...ers he sent to Miss Alexandra Flowerton ... which first gave to millions who were awaiting word the first details of that stupendous and triumphant battle of three little men against the mighty forces of snow and wind and night.

But Lt. Kloor was destined to experience in love another similar struggle before landing—right! And every foot of it recalled the physical struggle up there in the wilds. For when he reached home and was banqueted and feted and even kissed by many maidens with that warmth of welcome Miss America always feels toward one of her sailor boys escaped from war or other danger, he found that, even as was the case up there in Canada, there was a rough road to travel before reaching the place desired.

Along the trail of love were three faces—Alexandra, Consuelo, Irma. A formidable triumvirate to dictate the affairs of any marryable young man, with rich honors heaped upon him. It was something he did not count on while making the fight for life in the woods. It was a condition brought about by those whimsical twistings of fate that make love and life interesting and worth while. The first indication of it came when he began to assert that he really was not engaged to Miss Alexandra, that he had just written to her because he liked her. It had really happened when he first looked at the picture of her sister, Consuelo.

He saw the likeness on a poster suspended from a wall in the battleship Tennessee, a lithographed drawing by Howard Chandler Christy. And he fell in love with it—or, at least, his friends say, thought he did. He did not even know who the young woman was. So, his surprise may be imagined when, one day, after due announcement of her coming visit, Miss Consuelo arrived in Rockaway from Hollywood, Cal., and stood before him, the girl of the poster.

But the trouble was, it seems, that the girl in the poster had something to say about it. It appears that the thoughtless Miss Consuelo had gone and got herself engaged to another man. Which is circumstantial support to Lt. Kloor's emphatic denial that he ever did love Miss Consuelo or that he ever was engaged to her. But his friends said he did and was and the daily press duly reported same.

How that report came to be made is very interesting. When the romance between him and Miss Alexandra was punctured she burst into print with a statement that she could not afford to become the wife of a man on the officers' payroll of the United States Navy. It wouldn't make ends meet, she declared. And when Lt. Kloor heard this, instead of weeping, or even crawling into the mouth of one of the big disappearing guns of the fort at Rockaway, he spiked her weapon with a cool and calm statement that he never was engaged to her.

And then it happened that a reporter, calling at the Flowerton home to investigate this refutation of the engagement by the naval hero, thrust his reportorial quill right through the romance, or alleged romance, of our hero and Miss Consuelo. But he inflated it, so as to speak, before he pricked it.

"I would be quite willing, in fact, am willing to share an officer's pay," said the charming Miss Consuelo, in the published interview. "In fact, I believe that love should not consider money."

Off had sped the reporter, certain that he had learned a secret, and in a few moments had rattled off the romantic story of how the gallant naval officer had spurned Miss Alexandra for Consuelo. It made an interesting story, too.

Consuelo's Naive Explanation

Love that shuts the eyes to wealth is indeed wonderful. Rare things generally are wonderful. But one may find such cases nowadays up in the woods, where Lt. Kloor floundered through snow last winter seeking the warmth of civilization, cold-hearted as it sometimes becomes. Lt. Kloor was a fortunate man. Also, it went a long way toward proving that all show girls are not flighty nor inclined to have a green cast to their thoughts. Some horrid folk have openly said as much. Shouted it, in fact.

And they shouted it again, with a few "I told you so's" thrown in, when Miss Consuelo, coolly, calmly, dispassionately, came forth with a sweeping denial of the whole report. Not a word of truth in it, she retorted to those who talked about the engagement. She assured them that her affection was in an entirely different section of the country.

"It was true that I said I would be willing to live on an officer's pay," she declared, when approached on the subject by the same bewildered newspaper reporter. "But I meant another naval officer. One out in San Diego!"

So it was that Lt. Kloor rose free again of love anchorage. His friends thought so, anyway. And they began to jibe him about the way he juggled the hearts and hopes of marryable girls. One suggested that he give a bachelor party in honor of the escape from married servitude.

"You got away lucky," spoke up a friend. "Look at all the poor swains who pay heart balm."

"But I never was engaged to either one of them," was his reply.

When he said it the lieutenant was thinking of a different kind of engagement. It was a date, in other words, with a cute little brunette who lives with her mother at the Palace Hotel, New York City. Her name is Irma Harrison and her face is well known to thousands who have seen her in the pictures. She's just the right size, too, for the lieutenant, who is sort of sawed off and hammered down. A Mary Pickford type of girl with a personality all her own and quite original. And the Man on the Street no doubt will be shocked to learn that the engagement—the really, truly, honest-to-goodness bethrothal—of Lt. Kloor and Miss Irma Harrison is the latest announcement. It was a condition known to the closest of their friends all the time. And they'll be married—that is, unless—

"The kid is the grandest little man in all the world," volunteered Miss Harrison, when found in her apartment, where she laughingly shrugged her shoulders when informed that the secret of her engagement was out. "When will we get married? That's telling. Maybe never. Who knows? But an officer's pay is big enough for me. I despise the girl"—gracious, how she scowled!—"who would permit dollars to come between her and her lover. Of course, I don't ... I would marry a really poor man. For we know that when bills come in love flies out the window. But Lt. Kloor earns enough to ... take care of a wife."

Thus ends the second runaway adventure series of Lt. Kloor. There were three in the case, himself and two others. In both instances he wandered far before he found a landing. In both adventures he had to travel over rough ground before he reached the haven he desired.

But he is confident that he landed right at last when he anchored in the affections of Miss Harrison. He ought to get three rousing cheers for his iron nerve. It is a feat to bump through such entangling places and escape without injury. But he's on solid ground at last and his friends wish him luck.

COMPLETING PREPARATIONS FOR POST-SEASON BASEBALL CLASSIC

SPECULATION RIFE ON EVE OF FIRST GAME O WORLD'S SERIES—BIG POINT AT ISSUE IS WHETHER SPEED OF GIANTS CAN OVERCOME PUNCHING POWER OF YANKS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—New York is plunged into a sea of baseball argument and at the same time has divided itself for a rooter's war when the Yankees and Giants meet in world's series combat at the Polo Grounds, Wednesday afternoon.

On the subways, the elevated, the buses and in surface cars and hotel lobbies—everywhere— baseball fans are debating the respective merits of the various players. Whether the speed and resourcefulness of the Giants can overcome the punching power of the Yankees is one of the big points at issue. Yankee rooters expect big things of "Babe" Ruth, Home Run King, who is undoubtedly the greatest individual figure in the series.

Meanwhile the offices of the opposing clubs were making final preparations for the post-season classic. At the Giants' headquarters all the tickets had been reserved, it was announced, and there talk centred about McGraw's pitching selection for the opening game.

"Toney is his best bet," declared an old-time player. "Fred will make Ruth and Meusel and the rest of that Yankee slugging crowd pop 'em up to the infield. McGraw wants to take that first game and Toney's the boy to do it."

Other Giant followers thought McGraw might start Arties Nehf, the young left-hander, and still others favored Phil. Douglas. McGraw said nothing. Neither did Hughey Jennings, nor Cozey Dolan, the two coaches.

Yankee headquarters was filled with baseball players and last minute ticket seekers. Miller Huggins, manager, went into seclusion, leaving word that he wanted to give his nerves a rest and do some figuring on the dope. It is generally agreed that Huggins will start Carl Mays, the submarine hurler, but Bob Shawkey has been going so good in the last few games he has pitched that Huggins may spring him as a surprise.

Fans from all parts of the country are pouring into the city and hotel managers are counting on filling their accommodations. The seating capacity of the Polo Grounds is given as 38,000, but ambitious ushers always have been able to find seats in the aisles and on the rails for at least 3,000, and there is standing room for many more.

The record attendance at a series is 236,000, which undoubtedly will be broken if the series goes to six or more games.

GIANTS FAVORED IN THE BETTING

HALF A MILLION ON GIANTS SUDDENLY THROWN ON MARKET

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—Pitching always decides the world's series, says John J. McGraw, but remembering the fate of the all-star Brooklyn staff last year, the doctrine seems anything but infallible. Everyone figures, perhaps rightfully, that Arthur Nehf is the best pitcher in the ranks of McGraw and that Carl Mayes is the best thing in the way of a puzzle that the Yanks will have to offer in the series.

The Yanks, while they do not love a left-hander, have faced pitching as good as Nehf can put over, but the Giants have never faced an underhand pitcher with the cunning and skill of Carl Mays. Mays might be the man to put the decision in a tight series.

The Giants ought to know Waite Hert, the boy wonder, because it was for the National League champions that he left the high school lot in Brooklyn. When the Giants know a pitcher they generally have a notion of batting him without using their bats.

Phil Douglas, the squirrel hunter, may be McGraw's choice for the second or perhaps the first game. He has been going good all season with a guardian at his side, and he has turned in some great ball games.

Fred Toney also has been a consistent worker, but Jess Barnes is too erratic to be figured on seriously, while Ryan and Sherwood are too young to be of great help in the series, and old Slim Sallee is past the day of starting a game.

Huggins is almost as bad off for pitchers. He has Shawkey, who has been bothered all year with a sore arm, and Harry Harper, a southpaw who always seems doomed when they start weeding them out.

Jack Quinn is just about through and Huggins would never think of starting Collins or Piercey in a series game.

The Giants seem to have the edge of pitching, but they have more finished performers.

One of the most interesting things to observe in the series will be the conduct of the Giant pitchers against Babe Ruth.

McGraw has always maintained since the Giants and the Boston Red Sox played a pre-season exhibition tour in 1910 that he knew how to keep the ball from hitting homers.

New Yorkers think that McGraw is too proud to have Ruth passed in the series. And as Lee Fohl says: "Anyone that lets him hit is a ——."

POLO GROUNDS TO BE FILLED; FANS CAN'T ALL GET IN EVERY DETAIL ARRANGED FOR OPENING OF SERIES

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—New York today was wrestling with the problem, "How am I going to get into the Polo Grounds?"

With the world series starting here tomorrow between the Yanks and Giants, the baseball lust took a firm grip on Manhattan.

John Hoydler, President of the National League, was pulling his hair and flourishing a sheaf of telegrams. There were 11,000 boxes in Chicago and there are only 14,000 here. "How can I take care of them?" he moaned.

The rooters were faced with the alternative of going to the scalpers or journeying to Coogan's Buff before sunrise and standing in line till the fog lifts off the Harlem River.

Every little detail for the series had been completed this morning. There was nothing else to do but to open the gates and put the players in their new uniforms.

The umpires probably will get together today with the managers of the two clubs and decide upon uniform ground rules for the series. The rules of the two leagues vary slightly on a "dead ball off the backstop" and the time for the home team's practice.

"The umpires have been appointed and every detail has been arranged. Looks to me like they are all ready to play," Heydler said today.

Judge Kenesaw Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, is established at the Commodore Hotel, where also are most of the baseball celebrities and out-of-town writers.

Every one who is in any way connected with the game is being trodden down for tickets, and there are none to be had. The Yankees and the Giants have signs out with the notice that all boxes and reserved seats are gone. The business managers of both clubs said they could have filled 100,000 seats on the checks that are now in their offices.

The pilots of the two clubs were reticent today.

"Of course, I favor the Giants, but I am not making any promise," John McGraw said.

"I have faith in the Yanks after the way they came through the hard pennant race, but the series is another thing. I believe we will be there," Miller Huggins, the petite pilot of the Yanks, said.

Neither managers would give a hint of his pitching selection. McGraw, however, is figured to favor either Artie Nehf or Phil Douglas, while Huggins is almost sure to start Carl Mays, his bulky ace.

Betting, with small money being offered, is very brisk. There are no established odds. Giant rooters are offering 7 to 5 and Yank followers are offering the same price on their favorites.

RUGBY PLAYERS GOING STRONG

A FEW MORE PRACTICES AND THEY WILL HAVE TROPHY CINCHED.

The Collegiate is fortunate in having thirteen of last year's substitutes and regulars back. Of the regulars there are Brown, half back; E. Maniece, quarter back; G. Maniece, full back; D. Young, flying wing; Hay and Stacey, middle wings; Eastwood and Fanning, inside wings; Breyfogle, centre, and Legon, outside wing. Johnston, Gilcarist and Bradburn, last year's substitutes are also shaping up well.

In addition to these, there is Rishor, who played with St. Andrew's College last year, and Ridpath, who played for the Toronto Technical school last year. These men will add a lot of strength to the team.

The two men it will be the most difficult to replace are Bleecker, half back, and Kirn, the outside wing, both of whom graduated last spring but there is a promising squad of newcomers who are playing surprisingly well. The best of these are Bookhout, A. Johnson, H. Young, F. Stevens, Grimes, Fleming, McClellan and McCullough.

There is a hot race for the inside wings positions between Fanning, Eastwood, Rishor, Gilchrist and Stacey and right now it looks to be a toss up, as all five are working hard.

Coach Brown put the boys through a stiff practice at the oval last night, in line up, bucking, kicking and catching the ball and in a few simple plays. There will be a practice every day this week. All interested in Rugby are invited to come, and witness the practices.

CITY CHAMPIONSHIPS ON SATURDAY, OCT. 15

The city championships will be held on Saturday, October 15th., under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Full particulars including the list of events, the trophies and other details will be published to-morrow. The annual competition should bring out a big field.

TWENTY OUT LAST NIGHT FOR ROAD RACE PRACTICE

The road race class numbered twenty in last night's practice run from the Y.M.C.A. This is an encouraging increase and it should be higher still on Thursday night. There is no expense to this training a pair of running or lacrosse shoes a sweater and preferably the regular running pants, comprise the usual equipment, but for these workouts the item of dress should not occasion any concern.

ELIMINATE CANADIANS FOR U. S. GOLF TITLE

DEAL, N.J., Oct. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Playing on wet links in a heavy rain all the Canadian entrants in the United States' championship golf tournament were eliminated in yesterday's qualifying round of 18 holes at the Hollywood Golf Club here. Miss Kate Robertson of Montreal did not appear at the tournament. The Misses Sybil and Hazel Kennedy, of Montreal, sisters, had cards of 100 and 101 respectively, and Miss Wilda Gage of Toronto, had 110. Miss Doris Chambers of Great Britain withdrew after playing round in approximately 106.

Great Britain and the United States tied for the qualifying medal in the opening round when Mrs. Latham Hall of Mid-Surrey, England, and Miss Glenna Collett, the 18 year old star of Providence, R.I., led the field with 85 each. Miss Cecil Leitch, Canadian, British and French champion, was second in the standing with 87, and Miss Alex Stirling, the defending United States' champion, had an 89.

GIANTS HAVE EDGE ON PITCHING BUT CARL MAYS MAY PUZZLE THEM

(United Press).

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—New York to-day made its Giants favorite over its Yanks to win the World Series, starting at the Polo Grounds. Half a million dollars in Giant money, suddenly thrown in the betting market to-day, caused the odds to swing to 11 to 10 on the National Leaguers.

Most of the betting was done at the Jamaica rack track and the Stock Exchange.

EVERS FAVOURS GIANTS.

NEW YORK, October, 4 (Canadian Press). — Johnny Evers, former manager of the Chicago Cubs, favours the Giants for the World Series. He says the Giants is a greater team than many think, but readily admits that Babe Ruth may prove a stumbling block to the Giants' success.

"Outside of Ruth, though, I think the Giants have the edge," he declares.

"SEMI-READY WEEK" OF FASHION AND PHYSIQUE TYPES

DEMONSTRATION OF PHOTO-TYPE METHOD OF TAILORING CLOTHES FOR MEN IN SEMI-READY SUITS AND OVERCOATS

On Monday next begins the "Semi-ready Week," which will be more than just the Fall Fashion Opening, for it will comprise a new and larger display of the Semi-ready physique type system of tailoring.

Many have tried to imitate this method of making clothes, but none have carried it to the precise conclusion which the originators of the system scientifically worked out when they created and named their product "Semi-ready tailoring."

With new patterns and styles on show, with suitings and overcoatings in a diversity of models, the real reason for an open shop and a warm invitation just to see, the real reason for a "Semi-ready Week" is to emphasize the fact that the physique type system allows the use of the finer cloth materials and gives scope to clever, skilful tailor work.

The display next week is under the direct supervision of a special representative of the Semi-ready system—one of the directors of the Company.

The idea is not to sell clothes, so much as it is to show their adaptability—to every man, no matter how hard-to-fit he may think he is.

Thornton Bros. will have such a display of clothes as they never had before, each with the "Semi-ready" label that is the mark of trade for suits of higher grades.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The gap between Domestic and Foreign Oils widened during the morning, most of the former extending their gains, while Royal Dutch and Shell Transport became heavier. Industrials, as featured by General Electric, Pressed Steel Car, Replogle and Nova Scotia Steels and Haskell and Barker, rose 1 to 1½ points. Inactive specialties, particularly Asphalt, Assorted Dry Goods First Preferred, Kresge and American Snuff, gained 3 to 6 points. Rails remained apathetic. Liberty Bonds were active, the second, third and four 4¼'s recording the highest quotations of the year. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Domestic oils again were in demand at the opening of today's stock market on higher prices quoted for food products in Pennsylvania and Wyoming fields, but European issues of that class continued their recent reactionary course. Selling of sugar shares was resumed on the unfavorable trade outlook. American Sugar preferred fell 2 1-2 points to a new low record and Cuban sugars were subjected to further pressure.

Selling for profits impaired gains among Oils at midday, but Rails then assumed the lead. Pacifics, Coalers and Cotton Carriers, particularly Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific Preferred, Texas and Pacific, Rock Island, Kansas City, Southern and Reading showed gains of one to two points.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Price changes on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning were kept within narrow limits, with a fair amount of business being done, however. Brazilian, which has been easing off fractionally recently, staged a small rally this morning and closed half a point above yesterday at 12¼. Winnipeg Railway and General Electric advanced a quarter point each, while Ontario Steel Products and Toronto Rails lost a quarter.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange steady; demand 3.73½: Canadian dollars, 9 1-8 per cent. discount.

MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).— The local stock exchange was fairly active during the first half hour this morning, but prices were inclined to be weak. Atlantic Sugar, after closing at 30 5-8 yesterday, opened at 30 3-4 and then fell off to 30 1-2. Brompton was also weaker by a quarter point at 22 while Dominion Steel lost a half to 2 points. Riordon was unchanged at 3.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press). — Opening wheat prices, which varied from unchanged figures to one cent higher, with December 1.18⅝ to 1.19¼, and May 1.23¼ to 1.23 3-4, were followed by a slight decline and then by moderate upturns.

Corn was firm with wheat. After opening unchanged to ¼ cent higher, including December at 49 3-4 to 49 7-8, the market scored additional gains.

Oats derived strength from other cereals, starting 1-8 cent off to a like advance, December 36¼ to 36 3-8 and then made a general upturn.

Sharp declines took place later owing in a large degree apparently to the absence of export business. The close was heavy, 2 3-4 to 3 3-4 cents net lower, with Deceber 1.15 to 1.15 1-2, and May 1.19 to 1.20.

GREATEST OAT CROP IN SASKATCHEWAN YET.

REGINA, October 4 (Canadian Press). — Despite severe weather conditions, the largest oat crop in the history of the Province and the second largest wheat crop are foreseen by the Statistics Bureau of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture.

HUNGARIANS WITHDRAW.

BUDAPEST, October 4 (Canadian Press). — Hungarian troops began to withdraw from the second zone of Burgenland along the Austconstruction for the purpose of the dred gendarmes will remain at Oedenburg at the request of the Inter-Allied Commission for the purpose of maintaining order under the authority of that body.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Louis Glaum, the gorgeous 'vamp' who has been so successful in the type of story exemplified in "Love," "Sex" and similar productions, has a new vehicle in "I Am Guilty!" at the Capitol this week. A vivid and melodramatic tale, with spectacular costuming and backgrounds, it provides much scope for the exercise of Miss Glaum's ability. In it, she plays the part of a neglected wife, who takes a last fling at pleasure in the shape of a riotous party with chorus-girl friends and their admirers. The fatal end to the party and its subsequent effect on her life make some powerful situations.

Buster Keaton has a screaming farce in "The Goat," his new comedy, and there are a couple of big vaudeville acts: Merle and Newton in a skit entitled "The Clerk and the Girl," and Adams and Taylor's big novelty act, juggling, dancing and hoop rolling.

AT THE GRAND.

"JOHNNY ON THE SPOT."

"Johnny on the Spot" is the vehicle that Rex and his capable company have chosen for this week's offering at the Grand, and Peterborough's favorite stock company won fresh laurels by their presentation of this breezy comedy last evening, a capacity audience evidently enjoying every moment of the production. The farce deals with the efforts of a cowboy to save his pal's sister from the dubious Duke who, with an eye on the family fortune, wishes to marry her. As the Johnny of the tale, "Rex" does some of the best work he has given a Peterborough audience. The part was made to order for him, and he extracts the last ounce of fun out of a role that is as full of laughs as an egg is of meat. Wm. Yule, as a very funny valet, and Wm. Seymour, as the fortune-hunting Duke, share the honors of the occasion, while Zana Vaughn and the other feminine members of the cast score heavily. "Johnny on the Spot" certainly touches the spot. The vaudeville numbers are as pleasing as ever.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

One of the most pleasing offerings of the season will be an elaborate revival of "Charley's Aunt," which William C. Grew is sending through Canada for a coast to coast tour. No play of recent years has equalled this quaint creation. It deals with three college boys and friends who lived under rather strenuous conditions in a celebrated university town.

An exhilarating plot combined with many amusing and hilarious situations reated a million laughs.

"Charley's Aunt" will be shown at the Grand Opera House, matinee and night, on Saturday next, October 8, with a high-class Metropolitan cast, headed by the notable comedian, James (Jimmy) Swift.

"FRENCH LEAVE."

On October 14 we are to have one of the best shows of the season at the Grand. "French Leave" means a "hasty, secret departure," and the clever young Englishman, Reginald Berkeley, who wrote the play, has provided a comedy which is simple in theme, yet filled with dramatic incidents. Fancy the situations arising from a young, attractive Englishwoman posing as a Frenchwoman in Paris, vamping officers and men, only to land herself, her husband and everyone connected with them, into the most 'awful' trouble, when a French officer decides that Juliette must be a spy. Her husband, caught with wifey behind the lines, is reprimanded, the old general expects a call down and only the Goddess of Chance saves the situation.

The present tour of "French Leave" was sent to this country by Mr. and Mrs. Coburn, of "Better 'Ole" fame, and Marc Klaw, with Trans-Canada Theatres Limited, present an offering that ranks with any Metropolitan performance. Among the audience in Kingston on Monday night, I noticed a party of military men in a box and many others of Kingston's best known society folk. During a four or five hours' journey together on the train the leading woman, Miss Madge Surtees, told me that she knew at once by the response from the audience that it was largely military. At His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, the company played to wonderful business, and capacity houses are expected in Toronto next week at the Princess Theatre. Mr. Edwin, a prominent member of the cast, was seen here as the archbishop with Tyrone Power in "The Servant in the House." Mr. Romane was stage manager for Mr. Esmond and Miss Moore during part of their tour last year, and Miss Surtees! If I were to tell you all about her, I should so far exceed the space limit that our courteous editor would be obliged to snip and cut ruthlessly. But some time again, I'll tell you about her stage experience in England, Australia and New Zealand. Her gowns are beautiful—she is clever and cultured—in Montreal she stopped at the "Ritz," and was entertained by some of the best people in the city. In spite of "French Leave" being reminiscent to a slight degree of war time, I agree with Morgan Powell, in the Montreal Star: It is a clever play with an excellent all-English cast.

—LAURA.

AT THE ALLEN.

FIRST FIVE YEARS ARE THE HARDEST.

Patrons of the "Allen" Theatre will have a chance to see the old truism of "The first five years are the hardest," portrayed in real life, which is an actual reflection of real life, when the Goldwyn picture, "Dangerous Curve Ahead!", by Rupert Hughes, began its engagement there yesterday for three days.

This original screen story by one of America's best known novelists and short story writers lets the observer share the joys and the troubles of a typical young American married couple, as well as see how they meet them. The story begins with the marriage, then details the daily differences that result in the usual family squabbles. Later on, when the children come, and the family fortunes improve, the kind of troubles change.

Social ambition begins to cloud the days of the young wife; and the conflict becomes a question of whether she should sacrifice the care of her children to her desire to shine in society. But this, too, is solved in a dramatic episode new to the screen.

The first five years are finally lived through; the children have had innumerable hair-breadth escapes from injuring themselves or each other; and the husband and wife find that their hardest trials have been met and overcome.

E. Mason Hopper directed "Dangerous Curve Ahead!" as only a man with keen insight and strong sympathies could. The author, Mr. Hughes, declared that Mr. Hopper's work was a revelation of restraint and delicacy without sacrificing any dramatic values of the story.

AT THE REGENT.

Theatregoers who have usually seen Edith Roberts in some wildly exotic role will enjoy the little Universal star's interpretation of a subtle dramatic characterization at the "Regent" Theatre today. The star appears as a small town girl with a big town problem to solve. She does it with an understanding appeal that wins her new dramatic laurels. Casson Ferguson, the popular young leading man, plays opposite her. The picture is called "The Unknown Wife."

MAYO IN SHARK MASTER.

Natives on the South Sea Island of Amanu are suffering from a pestilence. When a ship burns at sea and a baby white girl is brought ashore on a raft, they accept her as god-sent and raise her as a queen. Her word is law and her whims are commands.

When she is eighteen, Arthur Dean, prominent San Francisco society and business man, is shipwrecked on the island. The white queen, known as The Flame Flower, saves his life from the natives and falls desperately in love with him.

She tries every means in her power to win his love, but he is unmoved, either by the warmth of her affections or the beauty of her being. He thinks only of the lovely sweetheart he left in San Francisco.

The islanders are jealous of Dean and "frame" a murder on him, seeking to take his life by sacrifice. The Flame Flower wins his release but he is banished to an isolated and uninhabited island. The Flame Flower joins him, leaving her subjects to think she had committed suicide by jumping to the sharks.

Dean's life on the island with the tropical beauty is unusual and romantic. Finally, the San Francisco girl, spurred by her lover, comes in search of him. They meet on the beach but a nameless horror holds them apart. The two women are pitted for his love. Then something occurs which causes the San Francisco girl to turn away sadly and go back to her ship, alone.

The Flame Flower, in the meantime, thinks she had lost, and jumps into the shark infested sea. Dean rushes to her rescue and fights the hungry sharks, finally getting her safely ashore. They watch, arm in arm, as the rescue ship puts out to sea.

ELECTION NEWS

GOULD FINDS THE GOING HARD.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

ASSINIBOIA, Sask., October 4.—O. R. Gould, M.P., the first Farmer member of the Dominion House to be elected as such, is finding it hard going to secure a nomination for the coming election.

The farmers in the Assiniboia constituency are conducting their nomination on the primary system, and at a convention held in his municipality, Gould was turned down, securing the votes of only seven of the forty delegates.

It is possible he may secure the nomination at the constituency convention.

LEMIEUX WOULD AVENGE INSULTS TO QUEBEC.

ST. JEROME, Terrebonne County, Que., Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Declaring at a big meeting here yesterday that he would never forget the insults hurled at Quebec in 1917, Hon. Rudolphe Lemieux added, "I would not be worthy of my name and race if I forgot."

He claimed that there was an insidious annexation movement going on, it being said that Canada would not be able to pay its debt and that the United States would have to meet it. He warned against such a campaign. Jules Edouard, Prevost, chosen as Liberal candidate for Terrebonne County in the coming election, said that the 1921 election should avenge Laurier.

SPRINGHILL, N.S., October 4 (Canadian Press). — "Hew out our own tariff course to suit our people," was the advice of the Prime Minister to a large gathering last night, and "no more fiscal arrangements with the United States," the sane and clearly right policy for Canada was one of moderate protection. Without a tariff Canadian industry would be absorbed by the great industry of the country to the south.

Hon. Mr. Fauteaux, speaking in French, urged setting aside racial prejudices which threatened to divide the people and for all to unite for the good of Canada.

ONE PARTY MAY WITHDRAW FROM VICTORIA ELECTION.

LINDSAY, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press)—With the Liberal-Conservative convention slated for October 19, speculation is rife as to who will be the likely candidate. The names of T. H. Stinson, Dr. Hall and ex-warden Powkins, are mentioned, but none of them appear to be hankering for the office. There is some talk of the Conservatives giving way to the Liberals, and the Liberals giving way to the Conservatives. In the meantime the U. F. O. candidate is in the field and organizing.

WEDDING BELLS

DONOVAN—LEAHY

A pretty wedding took place at 8 o'clock this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Rev. P. Costello united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mary Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Leahy, 511 Sherbrooke street, and William C. Donovan son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Donovan of Belleville.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss M. Doherty, was smartly attired in suit of navy tricotine with navy ostrich feather hat and mink fur. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary O'Toole, a cousin of the bride, wore a brown velour suit trimmed with beaver. Her hat was of black velvet and she carried Premier roses. During the ceremony, sweet vocal solos 'O Salutaris Hostia' and an "Ave Maria" were rendered by Miss Annie Simons.

After a dainty wedding breakfast at which only the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties were present, Mr. and Mrs. Donovan left on the noon train via G. T. R. for South Bend, Ind., Chicago and Detroit. They will reside in Peterboro.

Many beautiful and useful gifts testified to the popularity of the bride who has been identified for many years with musical circles in the city.

THOMPSON—BAILEY.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Toronto on Saturday, Oct. 1st, of Thelma Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Bailey, of this city, to Mr. Alexander A. Thompson, of Toronto, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Thompson, of Lakehurst. The Rev. Mr. Bertram Nelles of Dale Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Tohmpson, of Toronto.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in her travelling suit of navy blue broadcloth, with a small hat of panne violet, with silver crown and a corsage bouquet of sunset roses and lily of the valley.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the King Edward Hotel, where a dainty lunch was served, after which the happy couple left for Buffalo and other points.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in Toronto.

OBITUARY

MRS. C. H. SHIELD.

The death occurred Monday morning, after a prolonged attack of pneumonia, of Jennie Marshall Graham, wife of C. H. Shield, of 153 Benson Avenue. Mrs. Shield was born in January, 1871, near Mount Pleasant, in Emily Township, being the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Graham. In 1894 she married Mr. C. H. Shield, and after spending some years in Cavan, Mr. and Mrs. Shield moved to Peterborough in 1911, this city continuing to be her residence till the time of her death.

The deceased was a prominent member of George Street Methodist Church, taking a leading part in many of its activities, and particularly in the work of the Sunday School, in which she was the teacher of a large class of ladies. She was actively interested in temperance work, having been for years president of the local W.C.T.U., and an officer in the Independent Order of Templars. She was also for some time connected with the Local Council of Women.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband, one son, Mr. Thomas H. Shield, who is at present studying in the O. A. C. at Guelph; her father, Mr. W. S. Graham, of Mount Pleasant; two sisters, Mrs. Garnet Shield, of Mount Pleasant, and Mrs. Mark Shield, of Gilbert Plains, Man., and two brothers, Richard and Thomas Graham, both of Mount Pleasant.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the George Street Methodist Church, to Little Lake Cemetery.

A MARKET SHREW

Three young girls went down to the market last Saturday morning, with a number of well-developed flowering plants, which they had nurtured and cared for all through the summer.

Renting part of a table, the young ladies proceeded with business. After some few sales had been made, a person came up to the table, we will call her a woman, began a system of inspection; bartering and playing on the sympathies of the young saleswomen, by telling them of a sick girl at home "who loved plants," secured a little beauty for five cents. A moment later she returned to the attack, and so manoeuvred with the kind feelings of the three girls, as to secure three more plants for ten cents; think of it, four fine, healthy, robust flowering plants for fifteen cents. Oh, ye gardeners of Peterboro! What think ye of this?

But this was not all. Dame Shylock was not yet finished. She came back—they usually do—and told the sympathetic girls that they might send a plant to her sick child a present, which they did. Here was five fine flowering plants secured by the deepest, darkest, most contemptible fraud ever practiced outside of he-heathendom.

Oh, wait. I question if you could find a savage so depraved. Talk about stealing, defrauding, pilfering; ransack the world's vocabulary, and you will not find words strong enough to set forth this withering dishonesty. Stealing the funds that the young people hoped to augment, and by so doing, help to send the gospel of Christ over the seas.

And yet some people doubt the existence of a hell. Well, if there is not such a place there should be, and a big mistake has certainly been made. But, was this really a woman? A French and British soldier lay side by side on the battlefield wounded. At some distance, what seemed to be a woman, was robbing the dead. Seeing her movements, the Frenchman lifted his rifle to his shoulder, took steady aim and fired. She rolled over dead. The Englishman cried out, "Oh, shame, shame, you have shot a woman." "No, no," said the Frenchman, "she be no womans; she be devall." Well, this fact remains, that the plants which the Mission Band had cultivated all summer, in hope of raising funds for God's mission work, were stolen upstairs in the market building, and in the interest of truth and Christian Knighthood, we must say, by a woman.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the 'fruity' 'taste of 'California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine 'California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babes and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

LOCAL LETTERS HELD UP FOR EXTRA POSTAGE.

New postal regulations which came into effect on Saturday last require four cents postage on letters to the Old Country. The public will avoid the annoyance of having their Old Country letters held up by observing the new rate. Other regulations are: In Canada, United States and Mexico, three cents for the first ounce and two cents for each additional ounce; to all other countries, ten cents for the first ounce and five cents for each additional ounce. Postal cards to points in Canada, Great Britain, United States and Mexico remain at two cents, and are six cents to other countries.

In Peterborough yesterday about seventy-five letters were held up on account of not having the increased postage.

DINNER CANCELLED

The dinner of the Fish and Game Protective Association which was to be held at the Empress Hotel on Thursday evening has been cancelled as the main speakers are unable to be present owing to pressure of business in Toronto. The Committee found that a date between the end of the deer hunting season and the 15th of December would be a better time to get all the hunters together and the dinner will take place at a date to be announced later.

SOCIAL GATHERING

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Carver and Miss Alice L. and Mr. Harry Carver have returned home from attending the Carver-Harwood wedding which took place in Toronto on Saturday, October 1st, in St. Paul's Methodist church.

TWO GRIEVANCES BEFORE COUNCIL

ALLEGED NUISANCE ON BETHUNE STREET RAILWAY TRACKS AT NIGHT.

The Grand Trunk Railway Co., will be asked to remedy what is termed practically an all-night nuisance on Bethune street occasioned it is alleged, by shunting, whistling and steam-blowingo-ff and thus disturbing the slumbers of near-by residents.

In this connection W. H. McIlmoyle and a number of residents on Bethune street petitioned council Monday night, to use their best officers in an effort to secure the removal of engine house and water tank at the Charlotte station, and otherwise have the nuisance complained of abated.

Mr. Head, in speaking to this question, complained that the tracks on Bethune street, from Brock to Dalhousie streets, constitute practically a shunting yard that blowers of engines are left open late into the night, and he conveyed the impression that some engine crews seem to delight in, annoying residents on Bethune street.

Ald. Phelan—"These complainants pay taxes into the corporation's treasury, and are entitled to protection from Council."

On motion of Ald. Whitehouse and Jones the Railway Committee will discuss this complaint with local Grand Trunk Agent MacNab.

Another Complaint

The Carpenters and Joiners Union protested that some outside labor is working at the Filtration Plant construction, 10 hours a day, and his union requested Council to see that the 8 hour day is observed and all work there conserved as far as practicable for Peterborough labor.

On motion of Ald. Gainey and Morrison, Council will ask the Utilities Commission to remedy this situation as far as is possible.

H. R. H. KENNER IN REPORT TO SCHOOL BOARD SAYS COLLEGIATE ACCOMMODATION SHOULD COME FIRST.

CITY HEAVILY BURDENED WITH EXPENDITURES NOW

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education took place last evening, with the following members present: Dr. F. C. Neal (chairman), Mrs. W. R. Morris, Messrs. G. H. Thompson, J. M. Greene, R. Denne, J. W. Worth, J. A. McKone, and A. A. Fowler. There were present also: Mr. A. Mowat and Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, Ald. Joseph Crowe, and three members of the Home and School Council, Mrs. Medd, Mrs. McCullough, and Mrs. Connelly.

A communication was read from the Owners' and Tenants' Association of Peterborough, enquiring as to why a contractor for certain apparatus in the Prince of Wales' School was permitted to install an electric motor procured outside the city when satisfactory equipment might have been purchased here, particularly in view of the fact that there was so much unemployment just now. The Board decided to instruct their secretary, Mr. G. H. Thompson, to write Mr. S. T. Medd, secretary of the Owners' and Tenants' Association, to the effect that this contract had been let in its entirety to Mr. R. G. Sturgeon, and recommending the Association to make enquiry from him.

A communication from Mr. A. W. Turner, tendering his resignation from the Industrial Committee of the Board, on account of lack of time to attend the meetings, was received with regret, and Mr. B. F. Ackerman was nominated to replace Mr. Turner on this committee.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner wrote notifying the Board that, according to new legislation in the High Schools Act, no fees would be required to be paid by resident pupils of the Collegiate Institute after September 1st of this year.

A letter was read from Mr. Herbert Bradburn, secretary of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute Athletic Association, asking that the Board of Education make their usual grant towards curtailing expenses of their annual field day, which takes place on Friday next.

On motion of Mr. Denne, seconded by Mr. Greene, the Board voted $50 towards defraying the expenses.

Mr. F. W. Miller reported that 58 employment certificates had been issued during the month.

Dr. A. W. McPherson's written report on an examination of school children in connection with the mild epidemic of scarlet fever and diphtheria, said that the danger did not lie with the acutely ill children, but with four sources: (1) Concealed

THE WEATHER

There was a very close approach to the freezing point this morning, the temperature being at 33 degrees. Probably below freezing point was reached on the lower lying sections. Cold air is heavier than warmer, and naturally sinks in the valleys. In addition it is less disturbed by any breeze, which has a tendency to raise the temperature. Freezing point is late in reaching here this year, but can be looked for at any time now.—W. P.

GUARD AGAINST DEMONSTRATION BY UNEMPLOYED

CORDONS OF POLICE THROWN AROUND LLOYD GEORGE'S RESIDENCE IN DOWNING ST.

PREMIER DEVOTES HIS TIME TO JOB PROBLEM

LONDON, Oct. 5. — Premier Lloyd George returned to London to-day after more than a month's holiday in Scotland, and went immediately into conference with Labor leaders, regarding the unemployment crisis.

Fears of demonstrations at Downing street on the part of the thousands of jobless who yesterday rioted in Trafalgar Square, led the authorities to throw cordons of police about the Prime Minister's residence.

Lloyd George intended to devote the entire week remaining before the proopsed Irish conference to seeking a solution of the problem of unemployment, which for England has become more pressing than in Ireland. British Labor party leaders, including J. D. Thomas, railwaymen's head, called on the Prime Minister.

PRESS COMMENT IS CRITICAL OF POLICY

LONDON, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press.) — Morning papers in their comments on the Premier's speech at Gairloch last night, declare that the present cogitiations of the government should have been undertaken long ago.

The Manchester Guardian says that local authorities, when the government offers them financial authority, for public improvements, seem inclined to say "Thank you for nothing." The proposed credit scheme would have to undergo transformation if it is to appreciably affect unemployment.

The Morning Post regrets that no Minister has yet referred to an inter-Imperial emigration scheme, which ought to be devised with the help of the overseas dominions.

ALL VALUABLES IN HOUSE AND 160 CASES OF LIQUOR STOLEN

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 5. — Taking advantage of the absence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Newcombe from their home on an island ten miles east of Fort Frances, five armed robbers moored their motor boat, with a scow in tow, to the wharf and proceeded to loot the premises.

While three of them forced the daughters, the butler and the cook to stand with their hands above their heads and their backs against the kitchen wall, the other two looted the home from attic to cellar and loaded the spoil in the scow.

When Mr. and Mrs. Newcombe and their son returned home about 10.30 o'clock they noticed the strange boat moored, but thinking it belonged to visiting friends, made their way, unsuspecting, to the house. They were met by the gunmen, who sprang out from the bush fringing the paths to the house. With their hands aloft, they were marched into their house and made prisoners.

One hundred and sixty cases of liquor were stolen. When the loot had been stowed away the bandits made good their escape.

The bandits used an airplane to reach the scene without being noticed as strangers. Latest reports state that a quantity of the liquor has been recovered cached along the shore of Rainy River. One man giving his name as Cameron has been arrested.

BURGENLAND PROTOCOL IN NO WAY TO AFFECT ATTITUDE OF HUNGARY

ITS SIGNING CONSIDERED A "PAPER CEREMONY" BY AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Oct 5.—(Canadian Press).—Hungary's action in signing the Burgenland protocol is regarded by the Austrian Government as a "paper ceremony". The protocol will in no wise affect the attitude of Hungary toward Burgenland, it is believed, except that Burgenland will not be regarded as en entente colony or sphere. Hungarian raids in this district along the Austrian frontier continue. A band yesterday entered Hauebrumn, plundered dwellings of natives and levied a cash tribute upon the Jewish residents.

YANKS TAKE FIRST GAME OF WORLD'S SERIES, WHITEWASHING GIANTS BY SCORE OF 3 TO NIL

BOOTLEGGERS DO LARGE BUSINESS

By Paul R. Mallon.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

POLO GROUNDS, N. Y., Oct. 5th. — This is an unconfirmed story, subject to denial if Volstead makes any inquiries; but unofficially, the bootleggers did not do a bad business at all around the polo grounds last night. What with 500 baseball fans lined up in the cold and rain with nothing to do but wait for morning, and doing it, it was only natural that some of our unacknowledged trades people should hie themselves out this way with their wares.

The furtive eyed merchants on the look out for the numerous cops, who sidled up and down the long line of fans, with many a motion to and from the hip pocket, did a thriving business.

Liquor, alleged and otherwise, was to be had by the drink or by the pint. Prices were not exhorbitant. For $8 a fan could get a pint of perfectly good synthetic gin right from Holland ——street.

ADVANTAGE IS TO REST WITH INITIAL BREAK

THIS WAS FANDOM'S ANTEBELLUM VERDICT— BOTH TEAMS CONFIDENT OF WINNING WORLD TITLE.

POLO GROUNDS STORMED BY HUGE EARLY CROWDS

(By HAROLD D. JACOBS,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The team that lands the first punch will win.

That was the ante-bellum verdict of fandom to-day as the crowds gathered to witness the opening encounter of New York's civil war.

So evenly are the Giants and Yankees matched—in the opinion of grandstand strategists—that an overwhelming advantage will rest with the initial break. Contrary to most World Series, the fans look for slugging matches rather than pitchers' battles. In the average series, the pitchers are usually working far above their season's form, but in the present struggle the cash customers are confident the bat willl be mightier than the curve.

BOTH LEADERS HOPEFUL.

By HENRY L. FARRELL,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.— Nothing missing. It's the Word's Series and the customary scenes are all in place. The early morning crowds, the "hot dog" stands and lemonade booths on the corner, the urchins peddling coffee to the valiant waiters in front of the bleacher window, the usual fun in the usual way.

The Giants and the Yanks are ready. All New York faces under all New York caps furnish the new feature of this years fall baseball classic.

Seven times a pennant winner, and six times an entry in the World's Series, John J. McGraw, the big girthed, gray leader of the Giants starts his club to-day against the Yankees in his drive for his second world's championship.

New York is divided between them. The Giants have the heart of the old-time fans, but the new generation is backed up solidly behind the great Babe Ruth.

Sentiment shown in the betting proves that big burg divided. Odds of 6 to 5 are being offered on either club. Wall Street reported to-day that close to $200,000 had been put up on the Giants. Freak bets are more popular.

With all the details arranged, the crowd assured, the umpires ready and the weather fine, everything was known this morning but the batteries.

Miller Huggins, the half-pint size leader of the Yanks, made no bones of it.

"Mays if he's anyways near right," Hug said.

McGraw was not certain.

"No secret stuff," he said. "I don't know. Either Art Nehf or Phil Douglas. Maybe the Yanks don't like a left hander.

DOUGLAS AND MAYS FIGHT PITCHERS' BATTLE—BABE RUTH'S SINGLE SCORES MILLER IN FIRST---M'NALLY STEALS HOME ---MEUSEL HITS TRIPLE AND NEGLECTS TO TOUCH FIRST BUT SCORES PECK---RUTH FANS TWICE.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The New York Yankees took the first game of the world's series from the Giants at the Polo Grounds here this afternoon by 3 to 0. Douglas, hurling for the National Leaguers, and Mays, in the box for the Americans, fought a great battle, six hits being obtained from Douglas and five from Mays. Both pitchers received airtight support, there being no errors.

Babe Ruth, the great Bambino, started things for the Yanks when he singled in the first, scoring Miller. The Yanks got another counter in the fifth when McNally stole home from third. In the sixth Meusel knocked what would have been a three-bagger had he not neglected to touch first base. He scored Peck, however.

The great Bambino, after his single in the first, was unlucky. He was passed when he came up the second time and the other two times he fanned ignominiously.

Mayor Hylan rose in his box and tossed out a shiny new ball to Pitcher Douglas. Play started at 2.11.

Line-Up.

Umpires: — Rigler, Moriarty, Quigley, Chill.

First Innings.

Yanks—Miller was safe at first on a drive that went through Rawlings for a single. Peckinpaugh up. Peck sacrificed, Douglas to Kelly. Ruth up. Ruth singled to centre, scoring Miller. The crowd went crazy. The bleacherites jumped up and threw hats high in the air when the great Babe turned back to first. R. Meuzel up. Meuzel hit into a double play, Frisch to Rawlings to Kelly. One run, two hits, no errors.

Giants—Burns up. Burns out, Peck to Pipp, on the first ball pitched. Bancroft up. Bancroft out, Ward to Pipp, on a nice play. Frisch up. Frisch singled to centre on the second ball, a hard line drive. Young up. Young out, Mays to Pipp. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

Yanks—Pipp up. Pipp out, Rawlings to Kelly on the second ball. Ward up. Ward walked on four straight balls. McNallly up. McNally out, Frisch to Kelly. Ward reaching second on the play. Schang up. Schang fanned, looking at the last one. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants— Kelly up. Kelly flied to Ruth, who made a nice running catch on the first ball. E. Meuzel up. Meuzel flied to R. Meuzel. Rawlings up. Rawlings was hit by a pitched ball and took first base. Snyder up. Snyder out, Schang to Pipp. No runs, no hits, one error.

Third Innings.

Yanks—Mays up. Mays out, Rawlings to Kelly, in the second ball pitched. Miller up. Miller out, Bancroft to Kelly. Peck up. Peck fanned, the third being called. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Douglas up. Douglas flied to Ruth. The Babe juggled the ball, but finally got it and saved himself an error. Burns up. Burns out, Peck to Pipp. Bancroft up. Bancroft out, Ward to Pipp. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Yanks— Ruth up. Ruth walked after getting the count of 2 and 3. R. Meuezel up. Meuzel popped to Frisch. Pipp up. Pipp sacrificed, Frisch to Kelly. Ward up. Ward out, Bancroft to Kelly. Kelly made a beautifu stab of Bancroft's wild throw, in time for the put out. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Frisch up. Frisch singled to right field. It was his second hit and was a smashing liner in front of Meusel. Young up. Frisch stole second. It was a close play, and the Yanks raised a big howl. Young out, Mays to Pipp. Frisch reaching third. Mays made a nice play in retiring Young. He slipped and fell going after the bunt and threw the ball while on his back. He tore a big hole in the trousers of his uniform and time had to be called while it was pinned up. Kelly up. Kelly fanned, swinging hard at the third. Meusel up. Meusel out, Peck to Pipp. No runs, one hit, no errors.

The Yanks didn't take kindly to Quigley's decision in Frisch's steal, but were eventually driven back to their position. With Frisch on third and only one out, Kelly and Meusel lacked the punch to bring him home.

Fifth Innings.

Yanks— McNally up. McNally doubled to left. Schang up. Schang tried to bunt. Snyder tried to nip McNally off second and nearly threw to centre. Schang sacrificed, Douglas to Kelly. Mays up. Mays fanned swinging wildly at one right in the groove. Miller up. McNally stole home. Snyder dropped the ball when it looked like a sure out. The Giants objected strenuously to the decision, but Rigler waved them back to their place. Miller out, Frisch to Kelly, on a nice play. One run, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Rawlings up. Rawlings out, Peck to Pipp on the first ball. Snyder up. Snyder out, Peck to Pipp. Douglas up. Douglas out, Pipp unassisted. No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Yanks—Peck up. Peck singled through Bancroft. Ruth up. Peck went to second on a passed ball. Ruth fanned. He looked at the last one. The great Bambingo thought it was a pass, but he merely laughed as he walked to the bench. R. Meusel up. Peck scored when R. Meusel tripled to the centre field fence. Pipp up. Umpire Moriarity called Meusel for failing to touch first base on his triple. Kelly noticed the slip up and called the Umps attention to it. Kelly stepped on the base for the out. Pipp walked. Ward up. Douglas nearly nipped Pipp off first, but the Yankee made it by a quick slide. Pipp out stealing, Snyder to Rawlings.

Giants— Burns up. Burns out, Mays to Pipp. Bancroft up. Bancroft out, Pipp unassisted. The Yank first baseman took the grounder and raced to the bag, beating Bancroft to the base. Frisch up. Frisch got his third hit when he tripled to the centre field fence. He made the base in a slide on a very close play. Young up. Young out, Peck to Pipp. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Yanks—Ward up. Ward fanned swinging at the third strike. McNally up. McNally out, Rawlings to Kelly, on the first ball. Schang up. Schang walked. Mays up. Schang was out when he was hit by Mays batted ball. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Kelly up. Kelly hopped to Ward, who ran far over near the right foul line for the catch. Meusel up. Meusel out, Ward to Pipp on an easy chance. Rawlings up. Rawlings singled to right. It was a Texas Leaguer that dropped in front of Bob Meusel. Sydner up. Snyder forced Rawlings, Peck to Ward. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Yanks— Miller up. Miller popped to Bancroft in short left. Peck up. Peck out, Rawlings to Kelly. Ruth fanned, swinging hard. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Smith batted for Douglas. Smith flied to Ruth on a long drive. Burns out, Peck to Pipp. Bancroft up. Bancroft flied to Ruth. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

McNally singled ot left, Ward taking third. Shang up. Snyder tried to nip Ward off third and McNally stole second. Schang fanned the third strike being called. No runs, two hits, no errors.

HOW ELECTIONS SPLIT COUNTRY

STATISTICS SHOWING VOTE IN PREVIOUS FEDERAL CONTESTS

OTTAWA, October 4 (Canadian Press). — How have different parts of the Dominion voted in the past? Recent history, in this regard, is of importance in endeavouring to solve the puzzle of the present election, with its confusion of parties and independent candidates.

The election of 1917 can hardly, perhaps, be taken as a reliable guide. It was held in the stress and strain of war, with the idea dominant of securing a conclusive peace. Members elected were endorsed either by the Prime Minister or by the leader of the Opposition. The Independent vote which, from 1896 onward, had generally returned a few members, fell by the wayside. To the thirteenth Parliament, elected in 1917, and shortly to give way to its successor, not a single Independent, officially declared as such, was returned. Yet it is a curious commentary on the whirligig of fortune that it was this same thirteenth Parliament which saw the gradual loosening of old party ties, the growth of the Independent vote from the cross benches of the House, and the final emergence of the National Progressive Party with Hon. T. A. Crerar, formerly Minister of Agriculture in the Union Government, as its leader.

In 1917, with the exception of Quebec and Prince Edward Island, the Union Government swept every Province. In Quebec, out of 65 members returned, 63 were supporters of the Opposition. Prince Edward Island divided evenly with two members each way. After the general election of September, 1911, the political complexion of the House of Commons was:

	Cons.	Lib.	Ind.
Ontario	72	13	1
Quebec	27	37	1
Nova Scotia	9	9	0
New Brunswick	5	8	0
Manitoba	8	2	0
British Columbia	7	0	0
Prince Edward Is.	2	2	0
Saskatchewan	1	9	0
Alberta	1	6	0
Totals	133	86	2

This was the election which marked the defeat of Reciprocity with the United States. Under previous Liberal administrations, from 1896 onwards, Liberals lost ground in Ontario, but gained it in Quebec. In 1896 there were 43 Liberals returned from Ontario and 49 from Quebec. On the same occasion there were returned 44 Conservatives from Ontario and 16 from Quebec. In the election of 1908 the Liberal representation from Ontario had dropped to 36, while the Conservative increased to 48. Liberal representation from Quebec increased to 53. The number of Conservatives returned from Quebec dropped to 11. In 1911, when the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to defeat after fifteen years of office, the Conservatives increased their representation from Ontario to 72; the Liberals dropped to 13. In Quebec, Conservatives jumped ahead to 27; Liberals fell to 37.

Since 1896, the representation of the Prairie Provinces in the House has been largely increased, and would have been increased still further, no doubt, had a Redistribution Bill been brought down prior to the general election. In 1896, Manitoba elected two Liberals and four Conservatives (the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were not created till 1905); in 1900, 2 Liberals and 3 Conservatives; in 1908, 2 Liberals and 8 Conservatives—repeating the latter figure in the election of 1911.

Saskatchewan in 1908 elected 9 Liberals and 1 Conservative; in 1911 9 Liberals and 1 Conservative.

Alberta in 1908 returned 4 Liberals and 3 Conservatives, and in 1911, 6 Liberals and 1 Conservative.

Under the distribution in force, Quebec with its 65 seats will, in the coming election, return 9 more members than the three Prairie Provinces and British Columbia combined. Ontario with its 82 seats will return 26 more members than the four Western Provinces mentioned.

WEDDING BELLS

DONOVAN—LEAHY.

A pretty wedding took place at 8 o'clock at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, when Mary Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Leahy, 511 Sherbrooke Street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to William C. Donovan, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Donovan, of Belleville. Rev. P. Costello performed the ceremony. The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was smartly attired in navy tricotine suit, with navy ostrich feather hat and mink fur. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary O'Toole, a cousin of the bride, wore a brown velour suit trimmed with beaver, a large black velvet hat, and carried a bouquet of Premier roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Lloyd Donovan, of Belleville. Miss M. Doherty played the wedding march, and Miss Annie Simons rendered two sweet vocal solos, an "Ave Maria" and "O Salutaris Hostia." After a dainty wedding breakfast, catered for by Mr. T. Hooper, at which only the immediate relatives were present, Mr. and Mrs. Donovan left on the noon G.T.R. train for South Bend, Chicago, and Detroit.

Many useful and beautiful gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple. The groom has been identified with the C.N.R. for some years, and the bride has always been active in musical circles in the city.

Census figures place the population of the United States at 10,710,620, comprising 94,820,915 whites, 10,463,131 negroes, 244,437 Indians, 110,010 Japanese and 61,639 Chinese.

IF BILIOUS, SICK TAKE CASCARETS FOR THE BOWELS

Get a 10 cent bottle now.

You're headachy! You have a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, your lips parched. No wonder you feel mean. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are gone by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets — they work while you sleep. A ten-cent box will keep your liver and your bowels clean, stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets too because they never gripe or sicken.

CLASH THREATENED BY EUROPE POWERS OVER DISARMAMENT.

Chief Dispute Between Land and Navy Disarmament Advocates.

LONDON, Oct. 5. — (United Press).—The approach of the date set for the disarmament conference at Washington finds the European powers which have been invited, and others who have not, busy today arranging the personnel of their delegations and preparing suggestions for agenda.

In England, the critical Irish situation and unemployment are absorbing the entire time of the Prime Minister and of members of his Cabinet, who are likely to represent Britain at Washington on November 10. "Conversations" are being held, however, and the Foreign Office is co-operating with British naval and military experts in the preparation of armament facts and figures. It is believed here that Lloyd George will be unable to go to Washington for the start of the conference.

France is rushing its preparations. The Government is discussing agenda. Premier Briand will ask a vote of confidence on October 18 for his proposed trip to the United States. The French delegation has been virtually selected, although Briand's critics insist that he will himself be unable to attend. A political crisis here is predicted for early November.

Italy is looking forward to the Washington conference with gratification, for disarmament by all the powers would be particularly pleasing to the financially "hard up" Government. It is felt here that Italy is closely in touch with the views of President Harding on disarmament.

Belgium, although not formally invited as yet, has chosen a delegation of five, and is discussing the agenda of the conference.

At Geneva, the League of Nations assembly regards the Washington conference as having put it on the shelf, as far as disarmament is concerned. None of the powers can agree to anything the league may propose until they find out what is to be done at Washington. Despite this, some enthusiasts are going ahead with the league's plans.

The chief dispute at the conference, so far as Europe is concerned, promises to be between advocates of land armaments on the one hand and naval power on the other. France and Britain seem certain to come to grips over this question, France insisting she needs a large standing army, and England being unwilling to relinquish the freedom of the seas as maintained by the British navy.

DISSOLUTION ANNOUNCED-ELECTION DATE WITHHELD

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

FRED J. SLADE CHOSEN BY NORTHUMBERLAND U.F.O.

A FEATURE OF CONVENTION WAS THE ADDRESS OF MISS AGNES M'PHAIL. U.F.O. CANDIDATE IN SOUTHEAST GREY —MRS. OWEN HOEY OTHER MAIN SPEAKER.

ONLY TWO BALLOTS

WARKWORTH, October 5. — With an overwhelming plurality on the second ballot, the U.F.O. of Northumberland County chose ex-Warden Fred J. Slade, of Haldimand Township, as their candidate in the Federal elections at a big convention here on Tuesday afternoon.

The result was announced at six o'clock, after a five-hour session, fulfilling predictions that Mr. Slade would be the favourite and would carry the convention.

Six men were proposed as follows: A. W. Macklam, ex-Reeve of Brighton Township, F. J. Slade, Sam Clarke, M.P.P., Cobourg; Rev. Thomas McKim, of Haldimand Township; Charles S. Rutherford, V.C., also of Haldimand Township, near Colborne; and J. C. H. Willoughby, M.D., of Cobourg.

The result of the second ballot showed the standing of the nominees with the following votes: Slade 204, Willoughby 65, Rutherford 48, and McKim 21.

Nomination Unanimous.

The chairman, F. W. Jones, of Castleton, declared Mr. Slade nominated, and on Mr. Rutherford's motion, seconded by Dr. Willoughby, the nomination was made unanimous. According to the addition of the votes on the second ballot, 338 qualified delegates were present. It was stated that the expected number was 360, or six from each of the sixty polling sub-divisions in the Riding.

Hall Was Packed.

Warkworth's Town Hall was crowded by many of Northumberland's most prominent and evidently most prosperous farmers. They weren't all there, but it was an imposing assembly, including a large number of women, and thoroughly representative of the Riding.

The delegates went about their task in a serious mood, which rested upon the audience as a whole until

SETTLERS IN NORTHERN TOWNSHIP SELL CATTLE

APSLEY NEWS

APSLEY, Oct. 5.—The experiences of cattle selling related by some of the farmers would be ludicrous were it not for the near tragedy that the results brings to the victims. At this time of the year settlers generally depend on the sum received from the sale of their stock to meet notes, interests on mortgages and similar expenses, so that one can sympathize with him in the present slump in prices—hence the "near tragedy" mentioned above. Two instances related this week are worth recording. One man shipped a cow to Toronto and instead of the substantial cheque he was confidently anticipating was notified that after deducting all expenses from the proceeds of the sale there was a debit balance of one dollar to the buyer. Another who aso shipped a cow in the place of the twenty or thirty dollar cheque he hoped to receive got a similar statement, in this case the debit balance being three dollars The latter replied that he had no money but that he was shipping his best cow wich he hoped would liquidate the debt. So, what with wolves and —less-than-nothing prices, stock-raising is not a get-rich-quick industry in this district.

Held Reception.

An enjoyable event took place in the Parish Room, Apsley on Thursday evening, when a reception was held in honour of Mr. and James Downing, who returned on Tuesday from their wedding trip. About 125 guests were present. The Rev. C. Spence in a brief speech conveyed the congratulations and wishes of assembled guests to the newly married couple, to which the bridegroom responded in a very able manner.

Dancing was indulged in until midnight, when supper was served at the bride's residence, Apsley House.

Nine Sheep Killed.

Mrs. Grant suffered a serious loss on Friday night when no less than nine out of her flock of 14 sheep were killed and wounded, presumably the work of the wolves, who have been creating such havoc in the neighbourhood of late. The sheep had been shut in the barn every night until Friday, when during the storm the fence was blown down and the flock wandered to the pasture with the above lamentable result.

Resident Dead

The sad news of the death of Norman Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Reynolds, Clarincarde, was received here last night. He died in Toronto, after a long illness at the early age of 26. The body arrived here to-day and will be interred in the cemetery at Apsley to-morrow.

Harvest Thanksgiving

The Harvest Thanksgiving was held at St. Paul's Anglican Church Lasswade, on Sunday afternoon, the church being very prettily decorated by the young members of the congregation. The service which was conducted by the Rev. C. Spence,

Big Unemployed Demonstration In London; Labor Leaders Are Losing Control of Unemployed

LONDON, England, Oct. 6. Canadian Press. — What the police characterize as the biggest demonstration of the unemployed ever known in London occurred yesterday, when about 10,000 workless, including hundreds of women, some of them carrying babies, assembled on the Thames embankment and then marched to Trafalgar Square. Finding that closed to them they marched to Hyde Park, where speeches were made demanding work or maintenance.

Harry Gosling, one of the foremost labour leaders, speaking before the London County Council, said:

"The labour leaders are on the brink of losing control over the unemployed. Unless the unemployment question is settled immediately there is bound to be a row, not only in London, but all over the country.

After leaving the Hyde Park section the demonstrators tried to renew the meeting in Trafalgar Square where demonstrations are forbidden except on Sundays, owing to interference with the traffic.

The police were prepared and prevented the demonstration but the crowd scattered about the Square, from which they were driven by the mounted police down Northumberland Avenue. Here a portion of the crowd threw bottles and stones, injuring several of the police. An attempt was also made to rush the Grand Hotel.

PREMIER DEALS WHOLLY WITH TARIFF ISSUE, URGING NECESSITY OF SUPPORTING PROTECTION.

WILL ANNOUNCE ELECTION IN FEW DAYS—LOUGHEED

OTTAWA, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press.) —Dealing wholly with the tariff issue, and urging upon the men and women of Canada the necessity of supporting the protective tariff of his party, the election manifesto of Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen was issued here late yesterday afternoon, following the official announcement of the dissolution of Parliament. The dissolution announcement was made at 5.40 at the conclusion of a lengthy meeting of cabinet. Sir James Lougheed, acting ahead of the Government in the absence of the Prime Minister in the east, stated that the date of election would not be fixed until complete lists of the returning officers were secured from all the provinces, but that it would be known within a few days.

The Premier's manifesto follows: To the People of Canada:

"Parliament has been dissolved. The people of Canada, its men, and for the first time its women, are called upon to determine, in what will inevitably be a contest far-reaching and momentous in its outcome, what shall be, through the strenuous journey that very plainly is ahead of us, the character and direction of our policy.

CONFERENCE OF VETERINARINS IN OTTAWA SOON TO DISCUSS BEST MEANS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—A conference of veterinarians to discuss the best means of improving the health of Canada's live stock is to be called at Ottawa for November 15 and 16, it was announced last night. Probably no live stock producing country in the world has a better record for freedom from disease than has Canada, said Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, a condition largely due to the inspection system carried on by the department's health of animals branch. The work of keeping Canadian stock free from disease and giving it an even firmer reputation than it now enjoys is not be done by individuals or small groups; this is work, says Dr. Grisdale, which must be done by a centralized organization for all Canada. Accordingly, serious consideration will be given at the forthcoming conference to the formation of a national veterinary association to work in conjunction with the department.

CLASS ANTAGONISM.

The member for West Peterborough, in the Legislature, referring to the Dominion elections, declares that "we must have men who will save us from class antagonism and utter selfishness." There is no quarrel with that statement, but there will be much natural curiosity as to where such men are to be found. Does Mr. Tooms imagine that there is any hope of securing them say in the ranks of the United Farmers, an organization whose membership is confined to people of one walk of life, whose candidates are selected by convention at which only United Farmer delegates are expected to attend and who not only want to choose their own candidates, but expect to guide their actions afterward by cracking a recall whip over their heads? Mr. Tooms supports such an administration in Ontario. Does he think that class antagonism has decreased since the advent of the Farmer-Labour Government or that any political movement which has for its goal the securing of reins of government by the representatives of one particular class can possibly do anything else but eventually arouse the hostility of other classes?

THE RECALL SYSTEM.

Candidates for the United Farmer nomination in East Peterborough had to sign the recall, a proceeding that will make the Farmer standard-bearer in the event of his being elected, little more than a rubber stamp manipulated by the Farmers' clubs. The recall is an American emblishment that has drifted into Canadian politics via the American farmers, who have settled in the Canadian prairie provinces. Few Canadians outside of the Agrarian party have any use for it, for it robs the member who has subscribed to it of any opportunity of using his own judgment. Although he is in a position by reason of his being brought closely into touch with public affairs to form a more accurate opinion of the issues of the day than his constituents, the recall system negates the advantage his experiencee should give him, for unless he carries out the instructions of the class which elected him, he is liable to be faced with a demand for his resignation. And the fact that the organization which placed him in the field had not enough confidence in their choice to trust him without solemn warning, is not the highest possible recommendation in the eyes of the rest of the electors.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

The returned soldiers of Peterborough are not escaping the effects of the industrial depression, and naturally many of them are without employment, with the result that there is bound to be distress and suffering among the families of some of the men unless assistance is forthcoming. It is with a full realization of these facts that the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Great War Veterans' Association is marshalling its forces and building up its financial reserve to meet the emergency that is inevitable. The Auxiliary already has to its credit the successful carrying out of a large amount of relief work among the families of those who fought, but there seems reason to believe that what has been accomplished is light in comparison with what will have to be undertaken during the coming winter. The officers of the Association are not dodging the issue, however, but in an effort to secure at least a portion of the funds that will be needed, a grand bazaar has been arranged for Friday and Saturday in G.W.V.A. Hall. The patronage the public should be ready to give this event, and the assistance should be such as to enable the Auxiliary, commencing its relief operations, with funds sufficient enough for the many demands that will be made upon the organization.

CRYING GLOOM.

Some men staged a gruesome affair at their banquet on Saturday, a pleasant denouement, says the Hamilton Spectator. Old Gloom was buried with fitting ceremony and from his ashes Miss Optimism arose, phoenix-like, full of life and joy. It is too bad that the general depression cannot be spirited away in this facile fashion. But after all, gloom is a thing which could be easily banished, given the will and a united effort. It is an incontrovertible fact that people get very largely what they want and what they work for. Here is the human family living on the earth, so lavishly endowed by its Creator with all things necessary for its comfort and happiness. The exercise of industry and good will is all that is required to "shape this sorry scheme of things entire more closely to the heart's desire." With democratic governments, subservient to the will of the people, and with nations leagued together for the good of the whole human race, who can doubt that we are moving on to juster conditions and better times? The setback given to the League of Nations by its rejection in the United States, is deplorable; but something like it is proposed from that quarter, and a beginning is to be made at the armaments conference. So far as industrial conditions are concerned, they, too, rest on the same principle of good will and cooperation. Optimism service, united striving after great ideals—these are the sure heralds of a bright future. Let anyone of us cultivate them as much as we can, and help to hasten the advent of the golden era we feel to be near at hand.

MEN WANT TO WORK.

In some of the large centres of the United States they have resorted to the practice of putting unemployed men up on an auction block to be sold for so much an hour to the highest bidder.

Some of the states forbid this form of human merchandizing, holding that it is too suggestive of the days of slavery.

To the man who subjects himself to the humiliation of the auction block the process must be painful in the extreme, and yet it goes to show to what lengths men are driven to secure employment.

There are always men who do not want to work, or if they do want work they insist upon hand picking the circumstances to the point of the impossible.

For this class there is small call for sympathy.

On the other hand, there are in Canada, as well as the United States, men who honestly and sincerely want to go to work. The needs of their family and of their own personal requirements make it necessary that such should be their course.

Many of these deserving people can find nothing to do to-day.

The man who wants to work, and who must work in order to provide for those near and dear to him, and yet can find nothing to do, is one of the biggest problems this country or any other country, has to face.

The man out of work, faced daily by the fact that he is falling down on the task of providing for those who have a right to look to him for support, is not going to be an A1 citizen.

His mind is in a state where the agitator can get in his worst work and it is not a hard matter for some glib-tongued radical to point out that things as they exist to-day are all wrong.

The best antidote for all this is work, and the whole community should think seriously on this point in order that the greatest amount of work can be opened up at a time when it is needed.

Do not imagine that that body known as "the city' or "the government" is going to do the whole thing in this regard. Each individual citizen and firm can do something.

Holding back now with contemplated work, extensions or operations is going to make that much less work and activity. Waiting and delaying for a little better price or a cost shaved down still more has almost ceased to be a business virtue.

It is much better to plan NOW to provide WORK than to imagine we are making a virtue out of charitable doles later in the season. — Belleville Ontario.

ROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Rereesentatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Potato digging is general in the Province and reports are practically unanimous to the effect that potatoes are turning out very much better than was expected earlier in the season. The crop has matured considerably during the past few weeks, and while it will no doubt be less than average, the shortage will be much less than was formerly expected. In Dufferin County potatoes have been selling at $1.00 per bag, in Temiskaming $1.30 to $1.50 per bag, and in Port Arthur district, which has a good crop of exceptional quality, from $1.00 to $1.50 per bag.

Apple picking is also very general. In some of the apple sections the crop is comparatively good, but on the whole is below average. Northumberland reports a good fair crop of high-grade apples with prices up to $5.00 per barrel f.o.b. Simcoe County reports Northern Spies as being more plentiful than other varieties and being marketed at $5.50 tree run. "Dealers buying apples at good prices," is the report from Durham, while in Dundas prices are quoted from $6.50 to $9.00 per barrel. The severe windstorm of last Friday did a great deal of damage to apples still on the trees in Dundas County and in Lennox & Addington and some other Eastern Ontario sections.

Fall work on the farm is making satisfactory progress. Ploughing in many sections has been retarded on account of the dry weather, but it would appear that more than the average for the time of the year has been completed. There is a slight increase in the acreage in fall wheat, and the fact that the harvest was finished up so early has been responsible for an unusual amount of work being done, putting the land in shape for next year's crops, which should result in a larger acreage next year.

Silo filling is finished in many sections and silos this year have, as a rule, been entirely inadequate to take care of the record crop, which has been of excellent maturity as well as exceptional quantity.

Live stock prices still obtain at very low levels. Lennox & Addington reports fat cattle at 2c to 5c per lb. veal calves 5c to 7c and hogs 9c. Generally speaking, however, the farmers are not disposing of their foundation stock and taking the Province over the number going to market is only moderate.

The milk flow has been well maintained for the season of the year and prices for dairy products have been reasonably steady, although there has been a slight drop in cheese prices in some sections.

FRED J. SLADE CHOSEN BY U. F. O. IN NORTHUMBERLAND

Miss Agnes McPhail, who has the distinction of being the U.F.O. standard-bearer in South-East Grey, dispelled it, or perhaps, more correctly, heightened it, with a fighting speech, marked by biting wit and broad satire, and punctuated with frequent laughter and applause. The young teacher—young in spite of her thirty-one years, which she has frankly and publicly admitted, indicating her scorn of old trifling reticences, who has been lifted from the obscurity of a little red schoolhouse to the floodlight and hurly-burly of a Federal campaign—astonished her audience by her trenchant thrusts at the Government, at the old parties, and even at the foibles of the farmers themselves. Her manner of address is epigrammatic, forceful, and replete with unexpected quips and verbal twists that commanded the closest attention. She made a deep impression, and more than confirmed the reports of her ability which had preceded her. In fact, at the close of the convention the departing crowd seemed more possessed of her message or the manner of it—perhaps both—than they were of the duty they had just peformed in nominating Fred Slade as their candidate.

Women Main Speakers.

The only other speaker, in addition to the nominees, was Mrs. Owen Hoey, of Seymour Township, who was second only to Miss McPhail in the oratorical honours of the afternoon.

F. W. Jones, of Castleton, presided, with Thomas Hoskins, of Haldimand Township, secretary. The scrutineers were George Huff, of Brighton, George Carlaw, of Percy Township, and Fred Harper, of Roseneath.

Recall Question.

In spite of its five hours' duration, the convention ran along expeditiously and smoothly, with the possible exception of a minor incident which arose out of a question as to whether all the men proposed for the nomination were members of the U.F.O., and were prepared to sign the recall.

Chairman Jones admitted that he could not answer the first question.

"Possibly that rule has not always been carried out," he said. "The one thing they try to throw at us is that this is class. If we are in a class that is no more than the others have been. The Premier told us in Ottawa that we didn't belong to any class, and that we should be at home working. Some want us to broaden out until we'll be no place. What we want are our right, and if we don't get them we'll be left."

To the other question George Carlaw replied loudly, "I wouldn't ask a man to sign the recall."

"He's no U.F.O. man if he doesn't," replied the interrogator.

"You didn't ask Mr. Montgomery to sign," Mr. Carlaw reiterated, referring to the last Provincial election. "There are lots of them in Toronto who haven't signed it."

"How about the round robin in Toronto?" the questioner at the rear of the hall flung back.

Mr. Carlaw replied that he couldn't say as to that.

Aimed at Clarke.

"Clarke's got a position; let him stay there," shouted the man in the audience. Mr. Carlaw had proposed Sam Clarke, M.P.P., and evidently the questions had been directed at Clarke being advocated for the nomination.

Mr. Jones ended the discussion with a conciliating suggestion: "I wouldn't make too much of this recall. What we need is to hold together no matter what we do. The other fellows will hold together. Let's be unanimous."

Miss McPhail Scents Herring.

Miss McPhail opened her address with a blunt reference to this incident, and to the antecedent proposal of Sam Clarke by Mr. Carlaw, seconded by C. H. Curtis, of Warkworth. Mr. Clarke is in the West, and in his absence Mr. Carlaw said he had the assurance that Mr. Clarke would accept the nomination if it was given unanimously to him.

"Keep out that Sam Clarke herring drawn across the trail," said Miss McPhail. "I know men wouldn't say that, but I say what I mean, and let people do what they will about it. On no grounds should that have been admitted. If Mr. Clarke wishes to join Premier Drury, he has only a few steps to cross the floor of the Legislature. The point is that he is a Liberal member. Keep . . . If that had gone through, I'd have refused to speak here."

Ideal Candidate.

Discussing her ideal of a candidate, Miss McPhail made the prefatory remark that if she couldn't influence her audience she might as well have remained away, saving both her time and the cost of her trip. The ideal candidate, she continued, must be upright and God-fearing. That didn't mean that he must be praying all the time, but if he hadn't resisted temptation he hadn't developed the will needed in the house of temptation, known as the House of Commons.

Alluding to the beginnings of the U.F.O. in its political activities, Miss McPhail stated that the U.F.O. had been unpopular prior to 1919. But when Manitoulin sent Beniah Bowman to Toronto, not for power, but to put into practice certain principles, other constituencies did likewise, and to everyone's surprise the U.F.O. swept the polls with a majority.

Some Were Windfalls.

"But a good many of the men in Queen's Park were windfalls. There's no hiding that; but men and women don't make that mistake again. Take the man who has been grounded in the faith, who is trying to put into the movement, not take out of it. Get a good Conservative, and he'll take all there is out of it."

Miss McPhail stoutly defended the recall system, and said she had been delighted to sign it. She couldn't feel happy at Ottawa if she knew she hadn't the confidence of the electors who had sent her there.

The increased sessional indemnity called forth an indignant protest. "Let them take $2,500 and no more. The rest is dirty money. One of the first things the farmers should do is to bring in a Bill reducing the salaries of the members of Parliament to $2,500. They raised the salaries to $4,000, and that was a Government that waved the flag, and played the National Anthem, and told everybody how patriotic they were."

The Hand-shaking Kind.

One of Miss McPhail's pet aversions is the hand-shaking species of politician. "Don't get the hand-shaking type," she advised in further delineating an ideal candidate. "You know that pump handle type. Ordinary folks don't have to shake hands every four hours. The people I know best I scarcely shake hands with at all. You don't shake hands with your wife every morning.

"They tell you you'll lose in a three-cornered fight. You'll win a five-cornered one, if you carry it through with the enthusiasm you are starting with. But if you were defeated, and you were honest in your fight, your defeat would be your victory. Do you get that?"

Class Movement?

Miss McPhail denied that the U.F.O. was a class movement raised against the city people. "No. They did that fifty years ago. We are simply trying to raise the standard of our class." On that point she asserted that farmers should be proud of their class. She herself was proud to be the daughter of a farmer, even the great-granddaughter of one. She was as proud o fthat as though it were royal blood flowing through her veins. She appealed to farmers to rid themselves of any feeling of inferiority. "When we are on a level with city people, we can shake their hands on terms of equality; but while they are masters and we are slaves, there can be no friendship."

"The only farmer who has any money is the man who has had it left to him, the third generation, or the man who got his money elsewhere and bought a farm."

"That's right," commended a voice in the audience.

The 1917 Election.

As blessings often come disguised as clouds and are not recognised until the disguise has fallen away, so had the election of 1917 been a blessing in disguise, said Miss McPhail. As a result of it, to this day the pulpit, the press, and the Government had lost prestige with the people. In 1917 it was declared to be an unholy thing to vote against the Union Government.

"Sir Robert Borden got some Liberals—and I don't think they were hard to get—and said, 'We'll make a Union Government.' He told the farmers to produce—to produce more butter, grain, and hogs; and when at Ottawa they said they couldn't produce any more, he told them to go home and let the women feed the hogs. For this greater production farmers were promised exemption. Now, I'm not defending that, nor do I say that they had any right to exemption, but I merely mention the fact that the farmers were promised exemption. And farmers, with that old-fashioned common-sense, knew that they could do one of two things—they could send their boys to France or they could produce."

"Farmers loved their sons," continued Miss McPhail, "and they fell for this. Then Arthur Meighen, who, by our grace, is Premier—or shall I say acting Premier, until we get one—with that brilliant mind of his, conceived the Wartime Election Act. By that he hand-picked the women who were entitled to vote."

Sons Conscripted.

Miss McPhail stated that with the aid of the farmers the Union Government was returned with the biggest of majorities; but the ink had hardly dried on the ballots when the Government conscripted farmers' sons.

Pausing for a moment Miss McPhail broke the silence with a short, swift question—"Didn't they?"

"You're right," someone replied.

Increased Salaries.

And this was the Government which had gone on spending money like water. They had made great promises to the soldiers, and had given them land settlement. "Quite frankly I'd rather go to jail than take one of those farms, because I would know the length of my term, but under the settlement scheme there is no such guarantee of light and freedom. Then they gave the men some measly little money, but took $4,000 for themselves. That's why I would not touch it."

The tariff was not the issue in this election, Miss McPhail declared, giving the denial to Premier Meighen, but it was a factor of the issue.

The Issue.

"The issue, men and women, is whether you people and all the people such as I have been addressing every day for the last week shall govern yourselves, or are a few autocrats at Ottawa going to rule you?"

Miss McPhail briefly and clearly explained the tariff principle. "I believe some industries need protection, but let them put their books on the table first, and when they have proved that they are poverty-stricken and helpless, we can keep them as paupers. If some of the manufacturers were slim-waisted, upstanding men, I think many of our industries would be in a better condition. Now, that's not my idea; a manufacturer told me that. But when manufacturers come along in limousines and you only see them when they pass by on the road, and ask for $474,000,000 as a gift from the people, we are going to say (and Arthur hasn't decided the date yet): 'No! Enough! We're through!'"

Reciprocity Bill.

Miss McPhail next referred to the Reciprocity Bill in 1911, stating that Laurier got that idea on his Western tour when he discovered the sentiment of union among the farmers.

"You old Grits, I know that hurts you," she added. "That Bill was the greatest thing ever offered to Canada," she said.

"The manufacturers controlled the Conservative Party at that time. They had controlled the Liberals before. Through the Conservative Party they had poured out the ugliest corruption and the most anti-American dirt we had ever smelled or felt. And there were places in Canada where the Stars and Stripes were trampled under foot to celebrate the victory."

"They pulled the wool over the farmers' eyes, and wool's pretty cheap now. You can hardly give it away; so look out."

Passing to the results of the Fordney Bill passed by the United States Government, Miss McPhail said in July milk shipments from Canada had decreased 24,700,000 pounds, cheese one and a half millions, and cattle shipments decreased one-third. She contended that what was good for the farmers was also good for all such agricultural towns as Weisworth. The people made their living from business with the farmers, and their profits increased in step with the better conditions in agriculture. Prarie towns in the West are wiser than those in Ontario, because Ontario has no entire crop failures. Consequently they knew nothing of severe credit restrictions.

Responding to a vote of thanks passed to herself and Mrs. Hoey, Miss McPhail said:

PIONEER DEAD.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press). — Joshua Callaway, 91, a pioneer citizen and prominent in the public life of the city, died at his home here yesterday. He came from England with his parents in 1843, settling in the township of Stanley, Huronic County, Ontario. Mr. Callaway had been a resident here since 1870.

Old People

Bitro-Phosophate feeds the nerves and old people need it to make them feel and look younger. It's the one best nerve builder for weak, nerve-exhausted men and women and that is why McDermid & Jury guarantees it.

Whose fault is it when your husband is cross at breakfast?

If you hit your thumb with a hammer you wouldn't blame your thumb for hurting.

Then why blame your husband whose nerves may have been pounded by tea or coffee, and whose rest probably has been broken by the irritation of the thein or caffeine it contains?

If you stay awake half the night you don't feel any too cheerful.

The thein of tea and the caffeine of coffee are known drugs. If their use is persisted in, sooner or later the nervous system may give way.

Then you may have insomnia, or disturbed sleep. Your nerves and tissues will be robbed of that stability essential for normal and happy living.

You can avoid this possibility if you'll stop drinking tea and coffee and drink instead, rich, pleasing Postum.

Postum is the delicious cereal beverage with a satisfying flavor. It affords the advantages of a hot drink, without the ill effects of tea or coffee.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Try it with the family for a few days, and see what a difference there'll be—how it will permit Nature to bring sound sleep and strong, sturdy, quiet nerves. Sold by grocers.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

FOCH GOING TO U. S. FOR ARMS CONFERENCE.

PARIS, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press). — One department of the French delegation to the Washington Conference on Armaments and Far Eastern affairs has been definitely settled upon, namely, military. Marshal Foch, accompanied by General De-ticker, Captains L'Hopital and Dumoury and Lieut. De Souderan, will sail on the steamer Paris from Havre, October 22. Contrary to published reports, General Wiegand will not accompany the mission.

ARREST OF THE ALIS MAKES NO IMPRESSION.

LONDON, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press).—A Reuter cable from Bombay says the arrest of the Ali brothers and other agitators against the Government has apparently aroused little excitement outwardly.

Meantime Gandhi maintains that the alleged offence of the Ali brothers is nothing new, and says he intends to persuade the Sepoys and police to resign as soon as he is convinced that they are able to support themselves by the spinning wheel.

IMMIGRATION PLAN TOO HUGE SAYS HUGHES

LONDON, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press).—A Reuter cable from Melbourne says that Premier W. M. Hughes, referring to an interview with the Australian Emmigration agent, cabled from London, who is alleged to have recommended the despatch of 100,000 emigrants yearly to Australia from the British Isles, says it would be folly to pour such a population into Australia until adequate arrangements have been made for making them wealth producers.

SWEDISH MINISTRY FORCED RESIGN

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 5. —(Canadian Press).—The Cabinet of Premier Oscar von Sydow resigned yesterday as a consequence of the result of the recent elections in which the socialist groups won 106 seats in the Second Chamber of Parliament.

It is expected former Premier Hjalmar Branting will be asked by the King to form a new ministry, to be entirely socialistic.

EGG PRICES RISE.

MONTREAL, October 5.—Canadian Press. — The local market for cash grain was much quieter yesterday. There is no change in the flour situation. A steady feeling prevails in the mill feed situation and the demand for rolled oats was good. The prices are about steady in baled hay. A stronger feeling has arisen for strictly new laid eggs with prices up 2c a dozen but the other grades are unchanged. There is a fair demand for potatoes. Business in butter is slow and the cheese market is quiet.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT IN FEDERAL FIGHT.

PORT CREDIT, Oct. 5. — Canadian Press. — Speaking at the U. F. O. meeting here last night in connection with the candidature of Herbert Taylor, Hon. Manning Doherty stated that one of the good reasons for the interference of the Ontario Government in the Dominion election was that the Liberals and Conservatives in the province had called into question the administration of the Drury government and subjected it to unjust criticism.

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.

This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition.

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:—

"For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirits and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect.

"A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefits received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

HORSE RAN AWAY WITH REV. HUGHES

WARSAW HAPPENINGS

WARSAW, Oct. 5.—When Rev. Hughes was returning from the service at Buckhorn Sunday his horse ran away and he was found on the road unconscious. When Mr. Hughes came to he was not much the worse and later started from Young's Point to hold afternoon service at Warsaw. But a slight accident happened his car, so that the Warsaw service was delayed until evening.

Two Accidents.

Miss Cora Drain cut her foot about a month ago and is now confined to bed with the injury. The doctor thinks she will do well now.

Mr. Stewart Miller, when at Mr. Ed. Dewart's threshing on Saturday, had a very narrow escape. Stepping on the platform, the board gave way and he was precipitated eight feet to the floor with a pitch-fork in his hand. The fork turned and its tines just missed Miller's breast, but tore into his arm.

Methodist Events.

The Methodists held their Sunday School rally service Sunday evening. The programme had been well practiced by children and was admirably rendered. Rev. Weir's address was very helpful.

The Union Endeavor League meeting will be held in the Methodist basement on Thursday evening, with Mrs. Weir leading.

Ladies' Aid Met.

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid was held in the church last Thursday afternoon, when Mesdames Pogue and MacPherson and Miss Shearer, a missionary on furlough from Southern China, addressed the gathering. Though the talks were interesting and instructive and all present enjoyed them, there was very little enthusiasm over missionary work. Those present did not seem to realize that they owe the first great debt to the Lord, and that if that debt is even attempted to be paid the other real church work will be the better carried on.

Rural Life.

Regular meeting of Warsaw Woman's Institute will be held in the rest room on Thursday of next week. Rev. Hughes will address the ladies on "Rural Life in England."

Women Organize.

The regular meeting of Warsaw U.F.O. will not be held this week.

There was a special meeting of the U.F.O. on Wednesday evening when a U.F.W.O. branch was organized, with Mrs. E. R. Hamblin, President; Mrs. Rufus Payne, Treasurer, and Mrs. Wallace Anderson, Secretary. A special meeting of this organization was held on Saturday evening.

THIRTEENTH PARLIAMENT

partiality, separate the permanent from the transient and distinguish big things from small; will condemn where there has been mistake and will do full justice to plans boldly conceived and unflinchingly carried through.

"The war is a memory and a proud memory, but it is no longer an issue. Canada from 1194 to 1918, under the splendid leadership of Sir Robert Borden, passed through one of those crises that reaps the soul of a people. We must now face with courage the gigantic task of reconstruction. We must sustain and improve services already established for assisting those who especially suffered from the war; we mut map out our course; so must choose policies that accord with our aspirations as a nation, that are suited to the present stage of our development, to our surroundings in the world, and to the troubled age in which we live.

"By tradition, by the sense of common inheritance and of common ideals the Dominion of Canada aspires to one destiny and one only—a destiny than there is no nobler—nationhood within the British Empire. I am convinced there is no single thing more vital to the best interests of the world than that the British Empire as at present constituted should be maintained. We enjoy the fullest autonomy, and that autonomy is not challenged and never shall be challenged. For the maintenance of the British Empire as a league of autonomous nations there are common burdens that all must share but these burdens are light and the advantages abundant, in comparison with either the burdens or the advantages of any other destiny that can be conceived. Sentiment and interest are in accord in upholding British connection.

"Forty-two years ago Canada adopted and ever since has consistently maintained a protective tariff. At the time the Canadian people decided on this policy experience had driven home two very important conclusions.

"1—Our nearness to the United States was tending to drain the natural resources of our younger country into the larger manufacturing establishment of the republic, there to employ American workmen in their development and American railways and other commercial interest in their distribution and sale. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians, workmen and others were accordinguy compelled to emigrate.

"2—After this process had continued a change in the American policy resulting in the imposition of a high protective tariff against us threw Canada into a state of reaction and depression, and to escape this penalty there was strong temptations to assume a submissive or dependent relationship towards the United States.

"Acting in the light of these experiences the Canadian people decided to build up an industrial system of their own. To thus develop our own resources and keep our people here earning wages and salaries and profits therefrom, a protective policy was essential. A study of the last forty years will clearly show that the conclusions drawn by our father in 1878 were sound and right conclusions. These years have been years of continuous development through good times and ill; the markets of our towns and cities have become more and more the reliance of our agricultural producers. The value of our manufacturing, mineral and agricultural production has multiplied many times over. Being able to depend so largely on an ever-expanding home market we have produced upon a scale that enabled us to enter markets abroad and so successful have we been that the trade of Canada has multiplied over and over again. Our exports last year were fourteen times in value what they were in 1890 and four times what they were as late as 1910. Our total trade is now over seven times what it was twenty years ago. Indeed, the per capita trade of Canada stands in the front of the larger nations of the world and has stood as high as 1 2-2 times the per capita trade of the United Staes. We have taken the strong self-reliant course and have been able to pursue that course and maintain our prosperity regardless of the policy of any other nation.

"For some years past and very emphatically in recent years a determined movement has been on foot seeking to reverse the tariff policy of the Dominion. The official opposition in the House of Commons, now led by Hon. Mackenzie King, has made repeated and varied demands in Parliament for the wiping out of tariff schedules. Finally that party was called into convention August 1919, which convention unanimously passed the following resoluton:

"'That the best interesst of Canada demand that substantial reductions of the burdens of customs taxation be made with a view to the accomplishing of two purposes of the highest importance.

"'First—Diminshing the very high cost of living which presses so severely on the masses of the people.

"'Second— Reducing the cost of the instruments of production in the industries based on the natural resources of the Dominion, the vigorous developmentof which is essential to the progress and prosperity of our country.

"'That to these ends, wheat flour and all products of wheat; the principal articles of food; farm implements and machinery; farm tractors; mining, flour and saw mill machinery and repair parts thereof; rough and dressed lumber; gasoline, illuminating, lubricating oils; nets, net twines and fishermen's equipments; cements and fertilizers should be free from customs duties, as well as the raw material entering into the same.

"'That revision downwards of the tariff should be made whereby substantial reductions should be effected in the cost of wearing apparel, footwear and other articles of general consumption, other than luxuries, as well as on raw materials entering into the manufacture of the same.

"'That the British preference be increased to 50 per cent. of the general tariff.

"'And the Liberal party hereby pledges itself to implement by legislation the provisions of this resolution when returned to power.'

"This resolution, though frequently evaded and more often avoided, sometimes paraded to entice allies, sometimes entombed to conciliate friends, nevertheless stands as the solemnly recorded unanimous pledge of the Hon. Mackenzie King and his party. It is not a declaration of principle; but a concrete binding commitment to specific acts.

"But a stronger and more menacing enemy has arisen. For some years past there has been growing up first on the prairies of the west and later through selected parts of eastern Canada a party backed by a costly and persistent propaganda, the purpose of which is to reverse the tariff policy of this country. This movement, led by the Hon. T. A. Crerar and Mr. H. W. Wood, has also set down its immediate tariff demands, in black and white. They need not be here repeated. The resolution of the Liberal convention quoted above substantially embodies, indeed was modelled on the platform of the Wood-Crerar party. The latter, however, demand the free entry of coal and vehicles, unrestricted reciprocity with the United Staes and free trade with England within five years. The federal Liberal party of Alberta merging its demands in the agrarian platform has officially demanded, as well, free trade with the United States within five years. There is no need of drawing fine distinction. The great mass of those subscribing to these demands are determined propagandists of free trade. They are determined opponents of any protective system in this country and their goal they are resolved to reach by as rapid means as they can command.

"The immediate enactments which both sections of the opposition are pledged to put into effect inevitably mean the abandonment of the protective system. No system can be defended or can continue which strips hundreds of the most essential industries of this country of all tariff protection. It is therefore beyond dispute both because of the intent of the vast majority behind these programmes and because of the logical consequences of the programme themselves, that the real thing we are called upon to resist at the present time is a free trade policy for Canada.

"The United States protective tariff, much reduced in 1913, was last March restored to the most prohibitive level in force for many years. Even as their tariff stood they had sold this country in the last five years goods to the value of nearly eighteen hundred million dollars over and above the value of all they bought from us. They have now imposed high customs taxes with a view to purchasing still less from us and as a part of such policy they have placed almost prohibitive barriers against farm products of this country.

ULSTER PARLIAMENT ADJOURNED TILL DECEMBER.

BELFAST, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press).—In moving the adjournment of the Ulster House of Parliament until December 13, and giving the Speaker power to summon it to meet again in case of emergency, Sir James Craig, the Premier, said yesterday:

"This course is somewhat unusual, but the prospect before us seems equally unusual, and no one can tell what the next few months may bring forth. I certainly would feel very much strengthened by the knowledge that if an untoward event arises at any time this House will be called together so that the feelings of the members and the feelings of the Ulster people may be voiced on any proposals put before us.

"I have received no further invitation to a conference in London or elsewhere, and maybe I will receive no such invitation in the near future. This resolution will guard against anything unexpected."

A Gentle Way to End Corns

The Modern Method—Scientific, Easy, Quick and Sure

THE old corn enders were harsh, crude and uncertain. They came into disrepute.

Then a world-famed laboratory created a new method, and millions have adopted it.

The new way is Blue-jay—liquid or plaster. One applies it by a touch. The pain stops instantly, and soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.

To pare a corn and keep it now is folly. Stop it the moment it appears. Remove it in this gentle way.

Watch one corn go when Blue-jay is applied. You will let it deal with all corns after that.

NO NEED OF TECHNICAL SCHOOL AS YET

carriers. (2) Those released from quarantined homes. (3) Carriers. (4) Contacts from various sources. All children absent from school should be examined immediatley on return and necessary swabs of nose and throat taken. A certificate should be required from the M.O.H. before releasing anyone from a quarantined home. About 100 swabs have been taken in suspected cases among the children, and the Provincial Laboratory reported the presence of diphtheria in 16 of these.

A detailed report from Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, with regard to the question of a Technical School, was as follows:

Peterborough, Ontario.
October 3rd, 1921.

To the Members of the Board of Education.

Madam and Gentlemen,—I have recently been in correspondence with the Principals of the Brantford, Chatham, Niagara Falls, Sarnia, and Windsor Collegiate Institutes and with the Vice-Principal of the London Technical School in order to secure the benefit of their experience in technical education. A copy of that correspondence I have placed in your hands. This may be of assistance to you in arriving at a conclusion as to what is the best policy for Peterborough to adopt.

Two questions are being asked at at the present time by the citizens: (1) Is there an immediate need for increased accommodations at the Collegiate Institute? (2) If provision must be made for vocational education, what, under existing circumstances, is the best way of making that provision? These two questions I shall endeavor to answer as briefly as I can.

With reference to the first question, I have repeatedly stated that the opening of a Technical School would not materially lessen the attendance at the Collegiate Institute. The correspondence I have received confirms the truth of that statement. Mr. Hone, Vice-Principal of the London Technical School, says: "I do not think the opening of a Technical School would materially lessen the attendance at the Collegiate Institute for some years to come." Mr. Overholt, Principal of the Brantford Collegiate Institute, says: "I do not think that the introduction of a Technical School very materially lessens the attendance at the Collegiate Institute." Mr. Twohey, Principal of the Chatham Collegiate Institute, says: "A Technical School will not appreciably lessen your attendance. At all events, we are not affected by the Chatham Industrial School, as the boys and girls, when they pass the entrance, in spite of a very active propaganda, cannot be kept out of the Collegiate Institute. Most parents, rightly or wrongly, are ambitious that their children should get at least a taste of higher education, even if they afterwards enter the mechanical occupations."

Now what about our present accommodations? There are eleven class-rooms in the Collegiate Institute building. In September these were occupied by 379 pupils. Form 4 with 42 pupils, I.A with 39, I.B with 40 and I.C with 39, have too many pupils for effective work. The other forms are satisfactory. So there is no more available room at the Collegiate Institute at present.

In addition to the 379 pupils in attendance at the Collegiate Institute, we have 110 pupils in the commercial department for whom at present there is no room. These are being temporarily accommodated in the discarded South Central Public School. This arrangement is very unsatisfactory for them for several reasons. The building itself is in many particulars unsatisfactory. The pupils are deprived of the use of the Institute library. There are no facilities for physical culture. The pupils are also deprived of training in manual training and household science, and they are cut off, more or less, from the corporate life of the Collegiate Institute.

So much for the present, what about the future? When the Adolescent School Attendance Act is properly enforced there will be a largely increased attendance in the secondary schools of Ontario. Some at least of these adolescents—and to my mind a very large number—will seek a purely academic training. The active interest, very noticeable at present, in secondary education, seems to arise from a lively appreciation of its benefits. It is now realized that there is nothing more valuable or indispensable. There is a widespread feeling, too, among business men and employers that University matriculation should represent the minimum of education, and there is a growing disposition to demand from all who seek employment this certificate of intellectual development. Matriculation is already taking the place of the High School entrance examination as a standard of attainment.

Again, what about the non-resident pupils? Many have sought admission, but some have been refused. At present we have 89 non-resident pupils attending the Institute. They pay a fee of $25 each. This is about 25 per cent. of what it costs to educate them. When you have room for all the non-resident pupils who may seek admission, and you notify the clerk of the county that you are prepared to admit them, by an Act passed at the last session of the Legislature the county is obliged to pay 80 per cent. of the cost of educating the county pupils who may attend. So at present by not admitting all who apply you are losing considerable money on the non-resident pupils. Victoria County, I may say, voluntarily pays to the Lindsay Board of Education 100 per cent. of the cost of educating the county pupils.

In the next place we have no domestic science or manual training equipment in connection with the Collegiate Institute. At present our classes are sent to the old Collegiate building to get instruction in these subjects. We also have no gymnasium, and the Education Department says that the Government grant will be withheld until one is built.

These are some of the reasons why I say decidedly that there is an immediate need for increased accommodation at the Collegiate Institute.

I am more or less diffident about answering the second question, as I do not pretend to be an expert in industrial education, but I shall give you my candid, and I hope unprejudiced, opinion, and you may take it for what it is worth.

Dr. Miller, an officer of the Education Department, in response to the request of the Peterborough Advisory Industrial Committee, made an industrial education survey of the city last year. In his report he puts this question: "Is the need for vocational education in Peterborough sufficient to justify the establishment of a day vocational school under the Industrial Education Act?" His answer is as follows: "In the light of the facts revealed from the survey it is clear that the answer to the question must be in the affirmative. Such provision is a real necessity if the following educational needs are to be met." He then enumerates eight needs which you may find by referring to his report.

You will notice that he uses the word need. I agree with him when he says that the need for vocational education in Peterborough is sufficient to justify the establishment of a day vocational school, but I am strongly of the opinion that there is not a sufficiently urgent demand at the present time for vocational education to justify the establishment of such a school.

The demand may come, but it will take time. As Mr. Hone, of the London Technical School, says: "The matriculation and teachers' courses are so well known that through force of habit, if nothing else, the great majority of those in the class which has contributed students to these, will continue to do so. Also the study of the cultural subjects (languages particularly) and attendance at the Collegiate are considered by many superior from the standpoint of social status to practical studies and attendance at the Technical School. It is one of our greatest problems to overcome this prejudice, and ours is a Technical High School giving a full matriculation course in addition to the industrial and technical courses."

In view of the fact, then, there is an immediate need of building an extension to the Collegiate Institute, and in view of the fact, also, that the city has recently been involved in some very heavy expenditure made necessary by the throwing of a span across the Otonabee River, the erection of the Prince of Wales' School, and the building of a filtration plant, do you think it advisable at the present time to advocate the building of a Technical School? In my humble opinion it is not.

What then is to be done? The problem must be solved in some manner, for the Adolescent School Attendance Act requires Boards of Education in every urban municipality with a population of 5,000 and over to establish and maintain suitable courses for adolescents between 14 and 18 years of age.

Instead of building a Technical School, why not establish an industrial or technical department in connection with the Collegiate Institute? The Industrial Education Act makes provision for this. This is the policy strongly advocated by the Principals of Brantford, Chatham, Niagara Falls and Sarnia Collegiate Institutes, and even Mr. Hone, of the London Technical School, although he advocates a separate Technical School, says that there are decided advantages in having all the courses under one head in the same school. He gives the following four reasons:

1. It largely does away with the prejudice against technical education, as all secondary pupils are attending a Collegiate Institute.
2. It tends to lessen the distinction between manual and brain workers.
3. It makes it easier to place a student in the proper line of work.
4. It is more economical as the same teachers, shops, gymnasiums, and class-rooms can be used in the same courses.

The grants from the Department of course will not be as large. The Act says: "Where an Industrial Technical or Art School is established as a department of a Collegiate Institute, the grant of 50 per cent. will apply only to the cost of that part of the building which is to be used exclusively for industrial, technical or art education. But with the approval of the Minister a grant of 25 per cent. will be paid on the cost of an Assembly Hall, a gymnasium, a library, or laboratories used in common by pupils of the Industrial Technical or Art schools and the pupils of the Collegiate Institute occupying the same building."

Would it not be possible, then, when building a new wing to the Institute, to make provision at the same time on a small scale for vocational training? This would be sufficient for some years to come. Then when the financial skies become clearer, and the classes in the vocational work become larger and more numerous, a Technical School, separate and distinct from the Collegiate Institute, could be erected, and the class-rooms and laboratories thus vacated could still be used for Collegiate Institute purposes.

In conclusion, I wish to say that if I were to consider merely my own interests in this matter, I would advise the immediate extension of the Collegiate Institute, to be used exclusively for academic work, but as I am afraid that the majority of the ratepayers will not sanction this, I am advising the next best thing, that is, the establishment of an industrial department in connection with the Collegiate Institute.

Sincerely yours,
H. R. H. Kenner.

Industrial Committee.

Following the reading of Mr. Kenner's report, Mr. J. W. Worth reported as follows:

"Your Advisory Industrial Committee beg to report that at a meeting the committee of the whole, held on September 27th, the following resolution was passed: "That this committee is of the opinion that a day vocational school under the Industrial Educational Act is necessary, as shown by Dr. Miller in answer to that query, after careful research and study of the situation in Peterborough. He said the school would also supply additional accommodation that will soon be needed for the Industrial Night Classes."

A great deal of discussion took place after the reading of Mr. Kenner's report and the resolution of the Advisory Industrial Committee. Mr. Fowler was of the opinion that the consideration of these was too big a problem for the regular meeting, and that a special meeting of a committee of the whole Board should be necessary to consider the matter, this meeting to take place within the next three weeks.

This motion was seconded by Mr. Greene, but Mrs. Morris was of the opinion that a public meeting should be held at which the ratepayers might be present, as they, having subsequently to 'pay the shot,' should be entitled to a careful consideration of such an important matter. In Mrs. Morris' opinion, either Dr. Miller or Dr. Merchant, representing the Department, should be invited to be present at this meeting and be asked to present the case in as clear a manner as possible, as there is a difference of opinion as to the demand for technical education in the city. A public meeting, with discussion, would help the Board of Education to understand the degree of demand or total lack of public interest in the matter. Mrs. Morris cited the example of St. Thomas, whose mayor, at the request of the Board of Education, called such a meeting at which the case was carefully explained to the ratepayers.

Discuss the Question.

Mr. J. M. Greene felt that the Board should meet and discuss the question before asking Dr. Miller to address either the Board or the citizens. Mr. J. M. Worth thought that Mr. Kenner's report would require careful study, and as the meeting of the Advisory Committee which recommended that a vocational school was necessary, had been composed practically of ratepayers, (only two members of the Board of Education being present) that in his opinion showed the leaning of outside opinion in the matter.

Mr. Fowler's motion for a meeting of the whole board to discuss the matter being still before the Board, Mrs. Morris made an amendment, seconded by Mr. J. W. Worth, that Dr. Miller be asked to be present at this special meeting, to answer any questions that might be put to him on the matter. Dr. Neal, having the deciding vote, cast it for the amendment, which carried.

Ald. Crowe, remarking that he was present only as an observer, recorded his approval of the consideration of the Industrial School. The city expected Dr. Miller here in the near future and explain the situation. "We will watch it closely," said Mr. Crowe. "I would be favorable to having a technical school in connection with the Collegiate Institute, rather than do without it at all."

Mr. A. Mowat reported that a class room for primary pupils had been opened in the South Central School, with Miss M. Pakenham in charge.

Open Meeting.

Mrs. Morris submitted a report from the Prince of Wales' School for some chairs to be used for open meetings, which was referred to the Property Committee, and also suggested that the Board fix a certain fee to be received by the janitor of this school in return for the use of the auditorium by different school associations. This was referred to the Supervision Committee. With regard to the grant for Playgrounds, Mrs. Morris reported that eight swings had been installed at King George School property, and swings were being replaced at the other schools.

Mr. A. A. Fowler, seconded by Mr. J. W. Worth, moved that the secretary of the Board write the Police Department, requesting that they give more protection to the "million dollars' worth" of school property in the city, which has been suffering a great deal of damage to its grounds by the action of boys in injuring trees, shrubs, flowers, etc.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

With the Peterboro' Rangers

The Peterboro Rangers paraded last evening at the Armouries with Lieut-Col. A. W. McPherson in command. A number of new recruits were absorbed into the regiment and several of the companies will soon approach their normal strength. Among the new recruits is a number of young men who during the war were unable to enlist. The present membership of the regiment includes a number of ex-service men as well as a arge number of new beginners in military life. There is a marked spirit of comradeship among the rank and file and the various activities of the regiment make a strong appeal to the new recruit.

Pipe-Major J. Thom of "B" Company Pipe Band, has had seven and one half years service in the Imperials. Four years and a half of this was served during the war. He was Pipe-Major of the 51st Highland divison during the war, and was gassed at Cambrai. The leading drummer of the Pipe Band is John Winning who was wounded at the 2nd Battle of Ypres. The bass drummer is S. McMillan, who served in the flying corps in Italy. Other members of the band are J. Mackay, a former member of the 74th Battalion, Ottawa, L. McDonald, a piper from Lucknow, Ontario and D. Grant, who was a crack shot with the Peterboro Collegiate cadets.

Captain (Rev) James Rollins, chaplain of the regiment was on parade last evening. When the indoor baseball league gets under way, Captain Rollins promises to be a contending factor.

Another trip will be made to the rifle ranges on Saturday next. This is a good chance to get in some shooting practice before the cold weather sets in.

Officers and men of the Rangers are looking forward to the inspection which is scheduled for December 8th.

Captain Max Yelland, who was recently appointed medical officer for the Rangers was on hand last night and looked over a number of new recruits. Most of the newcomers found their way to the stores department.

An indoor baseball league will be started at an early date. Lieut.-Col. W. McPherson is also arranging to have the men's recreation room opened and other activities started.

Quartermaster S. Whatley, secretary of the Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans, is a recent addition too, finding a new interest for his military activities the efficient staff of the Peterboro Rangers.

Adjutant J. Dunkerly is one of the busiest men in the regiment. Last night he was working overtime in an effort to catch up with an accumulation of detail wich always follows a change of command and the opening of the fall season.

"B" Company in command of Major Gordon Hall is one of the strongest companies of the regiment at the present time. This company still has three or four openings for as many good recruits.

The pipe band under the direction of Pipe-Major J. Thom is a feature of "B" Company. It consists of four pipers and three drummers. The officers of this company are Major Gordon Matthews, The Sergt-Major ro, Lieut. Bruce Mills and Lieut. Gordon Matthews. he Sergt-Major is S. Garrett a member of the original 2nd Battalion.

METHODIST RALLY IN REID STREET HALL

IN CONNECTION WITH NEW ORGANIZATION CALLED METHODIST SOCIAL UNION.

The members of the four Methodist churches in the city are holding a rally to-night at eight o'clock in the Reid street hall, and it is expected that there will be a large crowd present. The rally is under the auspices of a new organization called the Methodist Social Union. This Union was formed in the late spring at a largely attended meeting held in the George street church, and has for its object the co-ordiantion of all Methodist work in the city. Every Methodist and friend of Methodism is eligible for membership, and all are being urged to join. It is expected that the Union will hold several such rallies as to-night's during the winter, and leading sepakers are to be brought in to address the gatherings. The union is forming committees to stimulate aggressive work in the various churches of the city, particularly along the lines of evangelistic and educational work young people. It is also expected that if in the future any extension in church or Sunday school work should be necessitated by the growth of the city, it will be carried on under the guidance of the Union. In short, the aim of the organization seems to be to increase the efficiency of Methodism in this city as a force working for the Kingdom of God. The organization has already commended itself to the people of the churches, and they are joining in large numbers.

The rally to-night will be presided over by Rev. H. M. Manning, the president of the Union, and an inspiring programme has been prepared.

RIFLE CARTRIDGES IN LOCAL GARBAGE

FULLY LOADED AND READY FOR DISCHARGE ON HITTING FIRE OF INCINERATOR.

Unless some person or persons do not exercise sufficient care to avoid gun cartridges getting mixed up in garbage sent to the incinerator for burning, some one may suffer serious if not fatal injuries one of these days. Only this morning a wicked looking clip of four fully loaded rifle cartridges were discovered among the refuse ready for the fire, and the men report that not unfrequently of late explosive discharges have been heard within the furnace indicating that bullets are flying. Should the furnace doors happen to be open when such explosions occur, the attendants will be in danger of suffering severe hurt or possibly sudden death. But apart from this menace the arches of the incinerator are liable to serious damage resulting from this either careless or deliberate practice and there is a severe penalty for conduct which endangers either life or property.

Ald. R. N. Jons, chairman of the Council's property, besides issuing this warning also asks that people strain their garbage. Great quantities are found to be simply saturated with water when gathered, adding to the unpleasantness of garbage collection and increasing the cost of burning.

SPORT COMMENT

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, October 5. — At noon the cops and a young army of photographers were still in possession of the field. One of the trusty guardians of the public was hanging ambitiously over the Grant Monument in centrefield, trying to better see the offender that was making him the target for a barricade of peanuts.

Little Blonde McCuaig, moscot of the Giants, was the first one in uniform on the field. He staggered under a load of bats and laid them out carefully in front of the McGraw lair. He was a very important young person, and posed for the movie cameras with a bored expression on his face.

Unmindful of the lunch hour, the band was still making harmonious noises, but the crowd wasn't paying much attention.

Frankie Frisch was the first player to reach the club house. The young third baseman of the Giants smiled bashfully when the crowd outside the gates recognised him.

The Giants strolled on to the field at 12.2 p.m. The crowd gave them an ovation, wave after wave of cheers sweeping the ground from the stands.

Elmer Miller, Hawkes, and Ferguson were the first Yanks to show up at the club house.

Bob Meusel, walking very lame, was in a few minutes later. He replied 'Yes," when asked if he would play.

The "Bambino" was resplendent in a new fall outfit. He had a bright yellow cap pulled down on one eye and a brand new polo overcoat, pulled back, exposing a very loud striped shirt.

Ruth disappeared in the club house and came out a few minutes later with a handful of autographed baseballs for some charity workers.

Miller Huggins sauntered in with a bunch of fans. In his smallness he could hardly be bettered.

The batteries were announced as Mays and Schang for the Yanks, and Douglas and Snyder for the Giants.

Harry Harper, the solitary Southpaw, was the first of the Yank pitchers to loosen his arm. He tried his twisters on Al Devormier, the young second string catcher. The Giants went out for fielding practice at 1.30. Cecil Agernon Causey, Hugh Jennings and big Ed. Brown worked with the stick. The Giant infield performed spectacularly, with Frisch pulling some sensational stops and throws. It was announced that Charles Rigler would officiate behind the plate, with Moriarity at first base, Quigley at second and Chill at third. Less than 25,000 fans were in the stands at 1.45 when the Yanks went out for practice.

The crowd again gave them a big hand. It seemed very much like a Yankee day from the stands. Behind a band and a flock of cops, Governor Miller and Mayor Hylan marched across the field just before the game. John Heydler, President of the National League, was also in the party. They occupied a box adjoining Judge Landis, Commissioner of Baseball.

Phil. Douglas, the shuffling one, of the Giants, went out to warm up at 1.50. The crowd stood with doffed hats while the band played the National Anthem. A squad of Yanks walked out to centre field and placed a huge floral wreath on the monument erected in honor of the late Eddie Grant, former infielder of the Giants, who fell in the Argonne. The four umpires came out a few minutes before game time and conferred with the captains of the two clubs. The ground-keepers came in and manicured the soil around the plate and laid out new chalk lines for the batting box.

Waite Hoyt went back to the Yank dugout leaving Mays alone to warm up. Several of the Giants stood back of Phil Douglas and watched him put over his fast ball. Both Mays and Douglas looked to be in great form. Douglas especially getting a fine hop on the ball.

The sun was shining brightly just before game time. The stands were in the shade, however, and it was chilly.

A great yell went up from the stands when the Giants took the field at 207. Miller, the Yank leadoff stood at the plate with his bat and waited while the Umpires ran the photographers off the field. Some of the photographers objected, but they quickly followed orders when several high police officials stepped out of the Mayors Box and started in their direction.

PETERBORO MASONS VISIT LAKEFIELD

INITIATE THREE CANDIDATES FOR CLEMENT LODGE

Officers of Royal Arthur Lodge A. F. and A. M., this city, had charge of the work at Clementi Lodge, No. 313, Lakefield, last night, and, following the initiation of three candidates, the local Masons were royally entertained by their Lakefield brethren.

There were about 25 members of Royal Arthur Lodge in the party that went to the northern village in four or five automobiles. The officers who put on the work there were:

WAS THIN, WEAK AND MISERABLE

MRS. BRADLEY GAINS 16 POUNDS AND IS PICTURE OF HEALTH SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"My friends tell me I look the picture of health—I know I never felt better in my life, and it's all on account of what Tanlac did for me and nothing else," said Mrs. H. S. Bradley, of 217 Wilson street, Hamilton, Ont.

'I don't know what was the matter with me, but for seven years I didn't have what could be called a well day. I managed to keep out of bed most of the time, but I always had a depressed, tired out, weary feeling. I was subject to miserable, dizzy headaches; my temples would just throb until I could hardly stand it. I was almost a nervous wreck from suffering and loss of sleep.

"My father and sister had both been helped by Tanlac and they persuaded me to take it. I was thin, weak and miserable when I started on it, but I am like a different woman now. I have a wonderful appetite, my digestion is perfect, have gained sixteen pounds in weight and am back to my normal weight again. All my nervousness is gone and I sleep like a child all night long. Friends stop me on the street now to congratulate me on how well I look. Tanlac was certainly a blessing to me."

CHILE HAS LARGE DEPARTMENT STORES

SANTIAGO, Oct. 5.—(United Press).—The department store idea has hit the bull's-eye in Chile. Comparatively a recent institution on anything like a large scale in this country, it has demonstrated its success, the perennial bargain hunter is always evident.

Recently a large force of reserve policemen were necessitated to keep order in the entire block occupied by the city's largest store on the occasion of the opening of a sale.

Santiago now has two large, well-equipped department stores, handling everything from garden tools to groceries. A few weeks ago one of them opened a tea room, and it attained instant popularity, particularly among the youth of the city.

Most of the stocks sold by the department stores are imported from England, France and the United States. Among the American articles sold are shoes, food-products, hats and some textile products. American goods are popular, but their prices are not, and buyers are not taking chances of repeating heavy losses which have been incurred on account of the swift rise in value of the U. S. dollar.

CHALLENGE CARVELL AS TO HIS HEARING PHONE APPLICATION

OTTAWA, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press). — A definite challenge to Hon. Frank Carvell, as to the propriety of his sitting as chairman of the Railway Commissioners on the hearing of the application of the Bell Telephone for increased rates, because of his connection with the New Brunswick Telephone Company, was a feature of the session this morning. R. A. Reed, appearing for the Attorney-General of Ontario, was the challenger. Mr. Reed stated that two formal appeals had been made to the Government against the increase in rates granted last April, and until they had been disposed of, the matter should rest.

TAMMANY-HEARST COMBINE TESTED

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press).—When Father Knickerbocker goes to the polls at the city election, Nov. 8, he will have an opportunity to vote for at least six candidates for Mayor, though one of them is in prison.

The candidates are:

Democratic—Mayor John F. Hylan.

Republican-Coalition—Henry H. Curran.

Socialist—Jacob Panken.

Prohibition—George K. Hinds.

Farmer-Labor—Jerome de Hunt.

Workers' League (Communist)—Benjamin Gitlow.

Gitlow, a former assemblyman, convicted of criminal anarchy, is serving a term at Sing Sing prison.

Preliminary skirmishes indicate that the main battle will be between Mayor Hylan, a candidate for re-election, and Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, who won the spirited four-cornered primary race for the nomination by a plurality of more than 30,000 votes.

Mayor Hylan seeks re-election on the grounds that he has made good in his four years' term as chief executive; that he has been the friend of the people; has fought fought "big interests" and kept the traction fare down to five cents.

Mr. Curran, who has been in city office for 10 years, has not yet decided upon his platform in detail, but has indicated that he would follow the "five minute" platform used in the primary campaign. The main issue, he believes, is that of conducting the city affairs on a business-like basis. He maintains Mayor Hylan's administration has been inefficient.

Mr. Curran and the Mayor do not belong to the mutual admiration society. They have clashed frequently. When the annual police parade was held some months ago, Mr. Curran was not invited to the reviewing stand, so he mounted a fire hydrant and viewed the blue-coats as they marched by.

REPORT REDS TAKE VLADIVOSTOK CITY

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(United Press).—An unofficial wireless report from Riga to-day stated that a Bolshevik army had captured Vladivistock.

This was the first indication if any this fighting was proceeding in the extreme eastern theatre of war. Lacking confirmation of the report miliary experts were inclined to consider it another of the meaningless rumors frequently put into the air from Russian wireless sources.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Lack of outside interest enabled sorts to depress prices soon after the opening of to-day's stock market. American Sugar fell another point to a new low record. Crucible Steel, American Woollen, Sumatra Tobacco, Baldwin Locomotive, General Electric and Columbia Graphone Pfd, also were heavy. Preliminary quotations for Foreign Exchange were mostly higher.

The early re-action became more pronounced among the specialties during the morning. Sumatra Tobacco Preferred fell 4½ points. Columbia Grafaphone Preferred extended its loss to 3½, and Kresg forfeited about half of yesterday's advance. Tobacco and Paper Specialties were heavy, with Motors and some of the Equipments. Dealings in Rails were light and irregular. The feature of the foreign exchange market was the strength of sterling or British bills. Call money opened at five per cent.

Call money eased to 4½ points during the mid-session, but the effect upon the market was negligible. Utilities, as represented by Gas shares and Western Union, were active and firm, but the leaders, especially Mexican Oils, sustained further losses.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC RAGING IN CHILE

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 5. — (United Press). — The smallpox epidemic raging in Chile had assumed serious proportions to-day. More than 3,000 cases were reported in Santiago alone. One hundred and fifty cases were being reported daily and it was estimated the death rate was more than thirty percent.

MANY CAUGHT IN MARK'S COLLAPSE.

"Get-Rich-Quick" Investors Expected German Industrial Recovery.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press).—Speculation in the German mark in the United States since the armistice has reached an unprecedented point, according to international bankers here.

Thousands of persons in all walks of life, hoping to get rich quick, it was stated, have invested heavily in the German currency, which recently collapsed to a point below one cent for the first time in financial history.

The buying first started in the midsummer of 1919, when the mark, whose pre-war value was 23.8 cents, was selling at 7 3-4 to 8 cents apiece. New York appeared to be the distributing centre. Banks and foreign exchange houses were flooded with orders from small investors. Small foreign exchange houses sprang up on prominent corners, cigar stores and other business houses began to do a flourishing business in the mark.

While the wave of mark buying was at its height, peddlers hawked the German paper on the streets, and one distributor is known to have made a house-to-house canvas.

Bankers said this buying continued as the value of the mark declined, when the German industrial recovery failed to materialize as quickly as the "get rich quick" investors had expected. Some weeks ago when the German paper began to hit new low levels, many of the small investors as well as others began to "cash in," and they are believed to have taken hundreds of thousands of dollars in losses.

Many of the speculators, however, bankers assert, are holding their marks for a new rise and are buying the currency at the new low rates and equalizing their losses. But the wave of buying has been greatly checked, they declared.

While bankers are reluctant to discuss the probable outcome of these speculations, they declare, however, that only a readjustment of reparations payments, improvement in Germany's economic situation, or the extension of commercial credits to German manufact urers for raw materials, will bring above an improvement in the value of marks.

BRITISH SHIPS CROWD U.S. FROM PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 5.—(United Press).—British ships are doing the bulk of the carrying trade of the Philippines, according to figures issued by the Bureau of Customs covering the foreign trade of the islands for the first half of 1920.

Of the commerce with the United States, goods valued at $7,218,000 were shipped in foreign vessels chiefly of British registry, while the value of goods carried in American vessels was only $38,615,000. British vessels carried exports of the Philippines valued at $46,383,000, while the value of exports carried in American vessels was but $38,728,000.

Revenue figures also show that Europe and the United Kingdom are getting the import trade of the Philippines away from America. American firms do not hesitate to buy goods in England or Europe, including Germany, in preference to buying them in the United States. The foreign countries offer better credit terms and sell at lower prices.

Farmers in Denmark are required to number and initial ea ch egg sent to market. If one or two eggs are bad, the farmer is fined; if three are bad, he is boycotted.

The following information in regard to this issue is summarized from a letter by Mr. Gordon F. Perry, Chairman of the Board of the English Electric Company of Canada, Limited:

THE COMPANY: The English Electric Company of Canada, Limited, is associated with and holds the exclusive manufacturing rights in perpetuity for Canada of The English Electric Company, Limited, of Great Britain, and through the Canadian Company all selling, engineering and construction work in Canada will be done. It also has for Canada all the patents, designs, processes, etc., of the English Company, and can export to the United States and Newfoundland.

The Company, through an arrangement for the purchase of capital stock, will control The Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited. It therefore immediately becomes well established and in possession of a modern manufacturing plant with a continent-wide sales connection.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION: The English Electric Company, Limited, of Great Britain, is the largest manufacturer of electrical equipment and apparatus in the British Empire. It controls and operates under one management a number of long-established and well-known concerns. The research, engineering, contracting and sales departments of the British Company are placed at the Canadian Company's disposal.

THE CANADIAN CROCKER-WHEELER COMPANY, LIMITED: The executive, engineering and sales organizations of The Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, remain intact. With the control of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, The English Electric Company of Canada, Limited, will secure the patents, designs and processes of that Company. Crocker-Wheeler generators, motors, electrical equipment and accessories are well-known, having been used throughout America for many years.

The balance sheet of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, as of March 31st, 1921, shows that current assets are in excess of current liabilities by a ratio of over 8 to 1. Since 1912 the Company has paid its preferred dividends regularly and has shown average earnings on the common stock at the rate of over 24% per annum since that date. The total cash dividends paid on the common stock during the past six years have been more than 70% of the original capital invested.

PROPERTIES: The properties of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, at St. Catharines, Ontario, are extensive and modern in every respect. The works have been extended and improved from time to time to handle the increase of business. The plant is now several times its original size and can be readily further extended to handle increased production.

ASSETS: The Consolidated Balance Sheet, prepared by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, shows the Company to be in a very liquid position. Current assets are in excess of current liabilities by approximately $787,000, and the surplus, which is largely invested in current assets, is equivalent to approximately three years' dividend requirements on the new issue of preferred stock.

EARNINGS: The average annual earnings available for dividends of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, for the past five years have been on a basis which is more than sufficient to pay all dividend charges on this issue. A reasonable estimate would place the combined earnings of the Company at a sum which would ensure the common stock holders an attractive return and greatly enhance the value of the common shares.

MANAGEMENT: Mr. R. A. Stinson, Vice-President and General Manager of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, is President and General Manager of the new Company. Co-operating actively with him and his present organization will be not only the Advisory Board, but also the research, the engineering and the construction departments of The English Electric Company, Limited, of Great Britain.

GIANTS AND YANKS, VERY EVENLY MATCHED, CLASH THIS AFTERNOON IN FIRST GAME OF BALL CLASSIC

TWO TEAMS WILL BEGIN BATTLE FOR BASEBALL CHAMPION SHIP OF UNIVERSE, WITH TWO OF THE GREATEST GAL AXIES OF STARS EVER ASSEMBLED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—The dream of the Metropolitan baseball fans has become a reality.

For years local followers of the national game have hoped for a world's series battle between the New York National and American League teams. Now, after 19 years of waiting, the Giants and the Yankees, winners of their respective league titles, are to grapple for the supreme prize of professional baseball, the championship of the universe.

On the historic Polo Grounds this afternoon the rival league 1921 pennant winners meet in the first of a series of best five out of nine games, which is expected to add record-breaking features to the long history of the world's series. Led by John McGraw and Miller Huggins, the Giants and Yankees will scamper out on the diamond shortly after noon with a combination of stars seldom, if ever, equalled in the annals of the game.

In the grey travelling uniform of the Yankees will be Babe Ruth, the clouting king of the baseball world, with a record of 59 home runs this season; Carl Mays, famous underhand hurling artist; Catcher Wally Schank, veteran of three past world's series, against whose speedy throwing arm runner after runner has tried to steal bases, only to be thrown out standing up; Roger Peckinpaugh, one of the best shortstops on the major circuit to-day, and Bob Meusel, heavy hitting outfielder.

Opposed to this galaxy of stars, the Giants will offer Frank Frisch, the Fordham Flash—one of the fastest infielders that ever played a skinned diamond position; George Kelly, leading home-run hitter of the National League; Emil Meusel, brother of the Yankee Bob Meusel, also noted for his extra-base poling of the ball; Dave Bancroft, one of the most finished shortstops of modern baseball, and Pitchers Toney, Nehf and Barnes, all twirlers extraordinary.

While close followers of baseball hold the opinion that neither the Giants nor Yankees of to-day are the great playing machines that made earlier world's series history, such as the Athletics of 1910-11-13, under Connie Mack, and the Chicago Cubs of 1906-07-08, when Frank Chance led one of the fastest and smoothest working infield combinations in the history of the game, the two local teams possess both the color and personality for a sensational and thrilling series. It will be, however, more individual than team or combination feature play, and this, in some respects, is expected to heighten the glamor of the clash when the clubs swing into action.

Regardless of the question of individual brilliancy against mechanical playing perfection, the fact remains that never in the history of Greater New York's participation in world's series has the interest in the outcome been so keen. Twice before have the Giants and the Yankees met on the home diamond in the post-season series of 1910 and 1914. In each case the National League club was the victor, the Giants winning the first clash four games to two, with an extra tie contest for good measure, and the second, four games to one. In 1910, 103,000 spectators paid $81,462.50 to witness the play, while four years later close to 40,000 fans contributed $30,563.75 for the privilege of watching the struggle.

Last night, the baseball and financial statistician is predicting record-breaking attendance and gate receipts, and there is much in the way of advance data to bear out these predictions. Reserve seats and boxes under the control of the teams are reported to be sold out. Thousands of spectators, who would have been willing to pay a premium for the privilege of reserving a seat, must take their chances in the long lines of standees already forming before the gates leading to the unreserved sections of the stands. While the Polo Grounds is not the largest baseball arena in the country, it is predicted that should the series go seven or eight games, as is generally expected, the total attendance and gate receipts will surpass figures made in past series.

Enthusiasm is not confined to the fans of Greater New York and its suburbs, however for thousands of visitors are pouring into the city for the sole purpose of witnessing the games. Hotels reported their accomodations taxed to the limit, and officials of the clubs were beseiged by late rivals trying to purchase tickets, with none available.

It is generally conceded among the wagering fraternity that the Giants and the Yankees are about evenly matched. As a result, what betting is being done is at even money or very slight odds. One enthusiastic admirer of the Giants may offer 10 to 9 on the chances of the Nationals winning, while a few blocks away some Yankee rooter may think that the bludgeon of Babe Ruth warrants odds of 6 to 5 on the Americans' chances.

Attempts by the experts to analyze the chances of the two teams generally results in about the same situation of uncertainty and doubt Not in recent years have two teams entered in the most important baseball battle of the season with less apparent advantage one way or the other. Of the gameness and fighting ability of both clubs there is not the slightest doubt. Their gallant struggle for the pennants in the closing days of the season is the only proof that need be offered.

In attack, impartial followers of the game are inclined to give the Yankees a slight margin of advantage. With their heavy hitting ability they are dangerous contenders until the final out. Defensively, the team is not always as steady as admirers would wish for. It is also doubtful if the Yankees play with the same team co-ordination that the Giants have shown at times this year.

Viewed from another angle, it may be said that if the Nationals excel in team work, the Americans balance the scales with the individual power of their players. Much will depend upon the ability of the pitchers to hold the opposing batters in check. This is particularly true in the case of such clean-up hitters as Ruth, Kelly, the Mousel brothers and other extra base hitters in the rival clans. In base-stealing and strategy on the base lines, which may or may not have an important bearing upon the final outcome, the Giants are generally thought to have a slight edge.

BABE RUTH,

Home Run King, one of the biggest factors upon which the New York Yankees rely to defeat the Giants in the World's Series.

So far as the physical condition of the players is concerned both teams will enter the fray one hundred per cent. strong. In the final workout yesterday, both clubs had their full force on the field and reported after the practice that each and every man was ready. The Yankees had the Polo Grounds exclusively for their work during the forenoon and put in a two-hour session under the watchful eye of Manager Huggins. After luncheon the Giants indulged in a similar limbering-up, in which Assistant Manager Hugh Jennings directed operations. In both cases the practice was secret and only the players were permitted inside the locked gates. The managers of neither team would give the slightest inkling as to their selections for pitching assignments to-morrow.

Although the forecast for the openng day of the play called for fair weather, there was a hint of autumn in the air and the early arrivals who took their places in line last night before the bleachers gates for the usual all-night vigil, came prepared to pass as comfortable as night a possible with the aid of blankets, stools, lunch boxes and the regular accessories which go to make up the camping equipment of the rabid baseball fan. Long before midnight the sandwich and hot coffee venders were doing a profitable business and the lines of men and boys were growing in length as they stretched away into the darkness.

The Giants on Paper

(By the United Press.)

GEORGE J. BURNS, left and centrefielder of the Giants, is known around the Polo Grounds as "Pious George," because of his modest and retiring disposition on the field. He is regarded as one of the best sun fielders and all-around gardeners in the major leagues. A great lead-off man, a dangerous batter, a smart base runner, a brilliant fielder and a heady player, who "has never thrown to the wrong" base, Burns needs only color to be ranked with Speaker and the greatest. He was born in Utica, N. Y., in 1889, where he started his professional career in the New York State League in 1909. He came to the Giants in 1912 and has been with them ever since. He is five feet seven inches in height and weighs 170 pounds. He bats and throws right handed. His home is in Little Falls, N. Y.

EMIL ("IRISH") MEUSEL, older brother of the Yankee "Bob" Meusel, was fortunate enough this year to be pulled out of a cellar place with the Philadelphia Phils into the world's series money. Meusel plays left field for the Giants, Burns having been moved over to centre to make room for him. Meusel was born in Oakland, Cal., June 9, 1894. He broke into the game in 1913, with Fresno, and late in the same season was grabbed by the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League. He had a trial with Washington in 1914, but was farmed out to Elmira in the New York State League, where he stayed until 1916, when he was drafted by Birmingham of the Southern Association. The Cubs drafted him in 1917 and turned him back to Los Angeles. The Phils grabbed him in 1918 and he stayed with them until this season, when he came to the Giants in a trade after he had been benched. He has always been a good hitter, and this year turned out to be a regular slugger. He used to have a weak arm, but he has overcome it and is a good fielder. He is five feet eleven inches high and weighs 175 pounds. He bats and throws right handed, and lives in Los Angeles.

ROSS ("PEP") YOUNG, right fielder, is one of the best hitters in the National League and a fine fielder. He is the best man in the league handling balls off the right field wall. Young was born in Shiner, Texas, April 10, 1897. He broke in with the Austin Club of the Texas League in 1914, but was released. He came back in 1915 with Houston, where he remained until 1917. McGraw saw him while the Giants were on the spring training trip in 1917, and sgned him. He was farmed out to Rochester in the middle of the season and came back the next year to stay. He bats left handed and throws right handed; is five feet eight inches, and weighs 162 pounds. His home is in San Antonio.

DAVE ("BEAUTY") BANCROFT is one of the best mechanical shortstops in the major leagues. Mental lapses at times prevent him from being rated as the best in the game. He was born in Sioux City, Iowa, in 1892. He started in 1909 with Duluth in the Minnesota-Wisconsin League and joined Superior in the same season. In 1912 he signed with Portland in the Pacific Coast League, where he stayed until the Phils bought him in 1915. Last summer, when Fletcher's legs went bad, McGraw traded him to the Phils for Bancroft and a cash consideration. Bancroft filled up a hole in the infield that had been a problem for several years, and proved a valuable mate for Frank Frisch. While not a heavy hitter, he is dangerous at the bat. His work has been hampered this year by chronic stomach trouble. He is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 145 pounds, and bats and throws right handed. His home is in Superior, Wis.

FRANK FRISCH, the "Fordham Flash," is one of the greatest young ball players developed in years. He is the best all-around third baseman in the major leagues, and a brilliant performer at second base. He is the fastest man in the National League, the best base runner, a brilliant and spectacular fielder and a hard, consistent hitter. He combines all the essentials of a truly great player. McGraw picked him up off the Fordham University nine, where he was developed by Arthur Devlin, the famous old Giant. Frisch was a brilliant football player and was rated as one of the fastest halfbacks in the east. He was also good enough for the tracksquad, but he turned his attention to baseball. He has been with the Giants two years and was a sensation from the start. He is the only native New Yorker in the club. He is twenty-three years old, is five feet ten inches high, weighs 165 pounds, throws right handed and bats either — He lives on Long Island.

FRANK SNYDER came to the Giants on waivers three years ago and now finds himself a first string catcher in a world's series. After two years with the semi-pros around San Antonio, he went to Flint in the Southern Michigan League in 1912, where the St. Louis Cards got him late in the season. He didn't have much of a chance in St. Louis, and was sent to Springfield in the Central League, where he played in 1913. The Cards recalled him in the middle of the 1914 season and used him behind the bat and on first base. Poor stick work caused him to be put on the market in the middle of the 1919 season and the Giants got him at the waiver price. He is only a fair catcher, reliable and steady, but his batting has developed some since he came to New York. He is six feet two inches in height and weighs 200 pounds. He bats and throws right handed. His home is in San Antonio.

MIGUEL A. ("MIKE") GONZALES, Cuban catcher and substitute first baseman, has been working in the bull pen for the Giants for three years. Once in a while he gets a chance to go behind the plate for a few innings, or hit in a pinch. He was born in Enosburg, Vermont, in 1886. He started his professional career in 1912 with the Havana Reds and was signed in 1913 with the Boston Braves. He then put in a half season with Long Branch and went to the Cincinnati Reds in 1914. The Reds traded him to the Cards in 1914 and he remained in St. Louis until 1919, when he was transferred to the Giants. He is five feet eight inches in height and weighs 165 pounds. He throws right handed and bats left handed. His home is in Havana.

GEORGE KELLY, home-run king of the National League and one of the most earnest workers on the Giant club, never has worked into the affection of the fans. His colorless personality and his awkwardness afoot caused him such "razzing" when he first came to the club that only a very courageous heart enabled him to stick it through and eventually make good. He was born in San Francisco in 1896 and started playiny ball on the coast. The Giants bought him in 1915 from the Victoria Club of the Northwestern League. He was in the army in 1918 and in 1919 was traded with four other players to Rochester for Catcher Earl Smith. He came back to the Giants last year and has held first base regularly. He is a powerful hitter and a fair fielder. He is six feet three inches in height and weighs 200 pounds. He throws and bats right handed. His home is in San Francisco.

EARL SMITH, young catcher, worked most of the season against right-handed pitchers. He was in Sheridan, Ark., in 1897. He began to attract attention while working behind the bat with the Rochester Club of the International League. The Giants traded Kelly and four other players for him in 1919, and he has been with the club ever since. He got his first chance to make good this season. He is a good mechanical catcher, a good batter, but a slow thinker. He bats left handed and throws right handed, stands five feet ten, and weighs 168 pounds. His home is in Hot Springs, Ark.

JOHNNY RAWLINGS, second baseman, is another victim of good luck in getting away from a tail-end club to a pennant winner. Doing bench duty with the Phils, he was regarded only as a fair player and did most of his work as a pinch hitter. He got his chance with the Giants, and has been playing fine ball since he changed uniform. He was born in Bloomfield, Iowa, in 1892, and broke into the major league with the Braves. He was then traded to the Phils and came to the Giants this summer. He is five feet eight inches, weighs 168 pounds and throws and bats right handed. He lives in Los Angeles.

FRED TONEY is one of the mainstays of the Giant pitching staff. He is one of the biggest pitchers in the major leagues and an experienced veteran. He was born in Nashville, Tenn., December 11, 1889. He took up professional baseball as a pitcher with the Winchester Club of the Blue Grass League in 1908. He was signed by the Chicago Cubs in 1911 and released in 1912 to Louisville. The Cubs recalled him in 1913 and then sent him back. He pitched with Brooklyn and the Reds in 1915. The Giants bought him from Cincinnati in 1918 and he has been in New York since. He has always been a very effective pitcher.

JESSE BARNES is another veteran of the hurling staff who is comparatively young. He was born in Guthrie, Oklahoma, in 1894, and started pitching with Keokuk of the Central Association in 1912. He went with Davenport of the Three-I League in 1913, and had a trial with the Chicago Cubs in 1914, but was turned back to Davenport. The Braves bought him in 1915, and he was traded to the Giants in 1918 in the Doyle-Herzog deal. He was in the army in 1918.

ARTHUR NEHF, the chief southpaw of the club, is one of the highest type men in the game. He is a mechanical engineer by profession and a talented pianist. He was born in Terre Haute July 31, 1892, and was educated at Purdue. He got his real start with Kansas City in 1913, but was released to Sioux City in the Western Association. Kansas City brought him back in 1914, but released him to Terre Haute in the Central League. The Braves bought him in 1914 for $3,000 and sold him to the Giants in 1919 for a reported sum of $55,000.

PHIL DOUGLASS, the "Shuffler," is one of the most noted "prodigals" in the game. He was born in Rome, Ga., June 17, 1890, where he started to pitch in 1910. After a season with Macon he was given a trial by the Chicago White Sox in 1912, but was released to Des Moines. The Sox brought him back in 1913, but released him to San Francisco. He bobbed up in 1914 with the Cincinnati Reds and the following season spent his time in Brooklyn and Chicago with the Cubs. In 1916 he was released to St. Paul and came to the Giants in 1919. He had one of his best seasons this year.

WILFRED ("ROSY") RYAN and PAT SHEA are two youngsters on the staff. They pitched Toronto to second place in the International League last year and were considered the best acquisitions of the season. Ryan started at Holy Cross. He is 23 years old and is a native of Worcester, Mass. Shea, also 23 years of age, developed a sore arm during the training period this season and was released to St. Paul, being recalled later.

HARRY ("SLIM") SALLEE, the sheriff of Higginsport, Ohio, is one of the veteran campaigners of the National League. He was born in Higginsport February 2, 1885, and started pitching for Birmingham in 1905. He came up with the Yanks in 1907, but was farmed out to Williamsport in the Tri-State League. He came back with the Cards in 1908 and remained in St. Louis until 1916 when the Giants bought him for $10,000. The Reds bought him in 1919 and he came back to the Giants this season by the waiver route. He was used mostly this season as a relief hurler.

EDWARD BROWN, utility outfielder, came up with the Giants this year from San Antonio. He is a good batter, but is slow on his feet as the result of a broken leg sustained several years ago. He throws and bats right handed, is 29 years old and lives in San Antonio.

WILLIAM A. CUNNINGHAM, utility outfielder, after ten years' campaigning on the Pacific Coast, came to the Giants this season from Seattle. He is 26 years old, bats and throws right handed and lives in San Francisco. He is a good batter and held a regular berth before the purchase of Meusel.

"SEMI-READY WEEK" AN INSTITUTION OF MATURE AGE

QUARTER CENTURY ELAPSED SINCE THE PHYSIQUE TYPE SYSTEM OF TAILORING WAS ORIGINATED.

With the advent of "Semi-ready Week" on Monday the originators of the "Semi-ready" physique type system will have completed their twenty-fifth or silver anniversary in business.

Few can recall the name of anyone in the wholesale clothing business before that time. For a full quarter-century Semi-ready tailoring has held the stage, and so well-known have their garments become that many people think the term "Semi-ready" has a secondary meaning instead of being, as it is, the product of one big tailoring house in Canada, with a branch in England.

"Semi-ready" succeeded from the first, for it was a tailoring system that saved men both time and money and gave them precisely what they wanted—good clothes, quickly fitted, at a fair price based on the economy and efficiency of a wholesale system.

The slender and the stout man can be as well fitted as the average man. The erect man requires a different shoulder design to the stooping figure.

The tall, stout man can get just what he wants as well as the short and corpulent figure.

The patterns of each style or design are made for seven distinct and different physique types.

"Semi-ready Week" calls for a call from the man who knows that quality and style do not mean a staggering price when the Semi-ready label is in the pocket. They will be to-day's goods at to-day's lower prices.

BRITIFH WOMEN GOLFERS AHEAD

CHANCES OF CAPTURING U. S. TITLE INCREASE

DEAL, N.J., Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press.)—Chances of the British delegation to capture the United States' women's golf championship increases yesterday in the first round of match play of the national tournament at the Hollywood Golf Club. Three British contenders—Miss Cecil Leitch, champion of Great Britain, Canada and France; her sister, Miss Edith Leitch, and Mrs. Latham Hall, survived yesterday's round in most impressive style.

Miss Cecil Leitch had an easy opponent in Mrs. R. H. Hammer, of New York. She won by eight and seven. Despite the fact that the British champion had no need to extend herself during the round her trip to the turn in 41 against a head wind increased respect for her wonderful driving power.

One of the greatest upsets of the day was the defeat of Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R.I., the eighteen-year-old phenomenon, who tied with Mrs. Hall for the qaulifying medal Monday, by Miss Edith Leitch, three and two. Miss Leitch played her usual steady game, while the Providence girl was off in her putting and made one shot into a ditch.

The battle royal of the day was the match between Mrs. Hall, who tied Miss Collett yesterday in the qualifying round, and Mrs. W. R. Gavin, of New York, which went to 20 holes. Mrs. Hall won as the result of Mrs. Gavin tamping her footprints in a bunker with her club before she had played out. She made the same mistake in the qualifying round Monday and it cost her two strokes. Yesterday it cost her the match under the rules.

Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta had no trouble in surviving. She eliminated Miss Harriette Shepherd of Hartford, Conn., seven and five.

FREIGHT RATES ARE BLAMED FOR FOOD PRICES IN THE EAST

By DAVID L. BLUMENFELD.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The problem of forcing lower food prices in the east is now being considered by experts of the Department of Agriculture, it was learned today.

One cause of present high food prices in the east is high freight rates, which apparently cannot be forced to pre-war levels for some time, officials said. Their solution is that the east must strive to feed itself more and not depend so much on shipments from the west.

A subsidy for eastern farms in order to encourage farm production has been suggested and is being considered, but considerable objection has been raised to it. Some plan may be suggested to Congress.

Officials said it is cheaper to send a barrel of apples from Seattle to London via the Panama Canal, than by rail to New York. Meat and cereals can be shipped from the Argentine cheaper than from the Dakotas to the eastern towns.

"The west and south cannot afford to produce enough for the stomachs of the big eastern towns, with freight rates at their present altitude," one official said.

For some time, it was said, the department had been considering the question of the east feeding the east.

hard last mile in both pennant races.

Huggins denied this morning the tale that Frank Baker, the veteran series campaigner, would replace McNally at third base. Baker has been on the bench with bad legs since the Yanks started their last drive for the pennant. McNally has been playing such a beautiful game that his manager refuses to break up the combination.

Earl Smith, the Arkansas butcher, probably will do the catching for the Giants. He is a very effective hitter if he does not carry excessive baggage upstairs. Wally Schang, the sparse locked veteran of a flock of world's series, is sure to do most of the catching for the Yanks.

All of the betting and all of the attack seems centred around Babe Ruth. Will Babe Ruth hit the Giant pitchers and will McGraw let him hit? are the absorbing questions.

"It all depends on the situation," McGraw said to-day when asked if the Bam is to get a free ticket every time. No manager would put the ticking or winning run on the bases. It all depends."

Both clubs are in great spirits. Bob Meusel, the big Californian in the Yankee family, is the only near casualty. He has a cold that will not prevent him from playing.

"The Giants are all fine and we know that we are going to get the series. It's a hard fight though and it may go the limit," Dave Bancroft, captain of the National Leaguers, said.

Roger Peckinpaugh, the field leader of the Yanks, figures that: "We're ready because we had to play to the last minute. Any American League pitcher ought to be able to tell wh, we'll win the series."

The probable line-up:

Giants—Burns, c.f., Bancroft s.s., Frisch 3b.; Young r.f., Kelly 1st b., E. Meusel l.f., Rawlings 2b., Smith c., Nehf or Douglas p.

Yanks—Miller c.f., Peck s.s., Ruth l.f., R. Meuel r.f., Pippe 1b., Ward 2b., McNally 3b., Schang c., Mays p.

Umpires—Moriarity, Chill, Quigley and Rigler.

500 WAIT ALL NIGHT.

By PAUL R. MALLON,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 5.—Thousands of rabid Gotham fans and hundreds from out-of-town stormed the Polo Grounds early to-day for World's Series seats. By 8 o'clock there were 1,500 in line at the bleacher entrance, and every elevated subway and railway train and taxicab in this part of New York brought others to swell the ranks.

About 500 weary but eager fans had been there all night, undeterred by rain and cold.

They had their reward this morning when those who had slept at home last night arrived to find long lines between them and the choicest bleacher seats.

Hebrew Lits and Goodyears of Toronto play a sudden death game this afternoon to decide the opposition for the winner of the Picton-Peterborough series. The Lits eliminated Milliken, the Scarboro League winners, who had put Stouffville out of the race.

A win for Canadian Generals at Picton to-morrow afternoon will bring them against either Lits or Goodyears. The winner goes into the championship finals with Caledonia.

All campaign workers are reminded of the P.A.A.A. meeting at the Y.M.C.A. this evening at 7.15 o'clock. The meeting will be short.

Collegiates promise a well-balanced team for their first game with Belleville here on Saturday afternoon.

Hillcrests hope to make the tears drop at Oshawa this afternoon. But it would be a nice thing to see old man Patton go in ond send the visitors home with a defeat.

TO FORCE DOWN U. S. RAIL RATES.

Shippers Unanimous in Bitterness Against High Rates.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Railroad rates in the United States are going to be forced downward. This is the conclusion of the best informed members of Congress who have been watching the railroad situation keenly and who at the same time, in the course of the recent recess of both Houses, have been visiting home States and have been feeling the pulse of public sentiment. The reports brought back to Washington by members of both Houses as to the bitterness of the farmers and shippers generally against high freight rates of the railroads are striking in their unanimity.

Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission, predicts rates, especially agricultural rates, will be forced downward. The roads themselves are taking steps toward some reductions. The Interstate Commerce Commission has before it a proceeding to bring about reductions on grain, grain products and hay. There is talk in Congress that if the commission does not lower rates Congress may step in and exercise the authority it undoubtedly has to lower rates itself.

Talk about Congress is also that in keeping rates high as they have the roads have pursued a short-sighted policy and have aroused needless public opinion against them without adding to their receipts from traffic. One result of the public feeling on the subject has been to arouse increased Government ownership talk. Among farmers and farmers' organizations there is a noticeable feeling that the Canadian roads are serving their agricultural constituents much more intelligently than those of the United States. The strong and growing pressure for waterway improvement, for such projects as the one via the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence and the one of great development of barge traffic on the Mississippi, as well as free tolls through the Panama Canal and the building up of U. S. shipping for the coast trade through the canal—such pressure is greatly strengthened by the antagonism to the present level of freight rates.

Predictions are freely made that the railroad question, including the rate question, will be much in the limelight in Congress this fall and winter. The fight begun in the Senate by the agricultural "bloc" against any tax on transportation is an indication of the situation.

The recent report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the consolidation of the U. S. railroads into a score of systems, thus simplifying the present management, is bound to attract much notice. While there will be opposition to some features of it, it is an interesting fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission has been advised there is marked railroad support for it. There is no reason to doubt the railroads of the United States will undergo a gradual process of consolidation, the weaker roads being swallowed up by the stronger.

NUMBER OF ENGLISH IDLE IS DECREASING.

With Dogged Faith in Future Country Slowly Getting Back to Normal.

By LLOYD ALLEN,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Oct. 5.—England is steadily overcoming the overwhelming business debacle of last May and June, when the ugly threat of anarchy was everywhere mentioned in connection with the bitter coal strike—and is now enjoying a consistent week-by-week business improvement.

It's a long uphill climb back to the position of twelve months ago, even. But with the characteristic British dogged faith in the future, the country is slowly straining back to normal.

Surest indication of remarkable recovery are Ministry of Labor statistics on unemployment.

Official Ministry reports show that over half a million workers have been placed on pay-rolls since mid-June. However, the number of workless at this moment is still sufficiently large to cause everyone considerable worry.

A brief glance at the official figures, however, shows the seriousness of the position in June, and the extent of improvement already registered.

On June 24 (the high point of British unemployment) there were 2,177,800 workers absolutely idle and over half a million on part time.

For August 19 the latest available official figures show 1,640,600 workless with less than half a million part timers.

In other words, the workers are gradually being absorbed back into productive work at a rate of between 20,000 and 40,000 weekly.

These figures include many women and girls, as well as boys. Classified into the sexes, the workless of August 19 are as follows:

Men	1,242,400
Boys	61,100
Women	290,000
Girls	47,000
Total	1,640,500

Meanwhile, the miners themselves are not enjoying their wartime prosperity. Some 100 mines are idle and 20,000 miners are workless.

England is beginning to hope that the great crisis of strained relationship between capital and labor passed when the famous Triple Alliance—composed of railway workers, transport men generally and coal miners—failed to function in producing a general strike that would have halted most of the activities of national life.

And there is further hope—encouraged by the attitude of responsible labor leaders themselves—that the regime of the "hot heads" in the labor movement has ended, or at least been so thoroughly discouraged that the resumption of a long era of industrial peace and general prosperity will, ere long, be ushered in.

COULD NOT EAT FIRE: HE WAS ON A DIET

NEUILLY, Paris, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press).—"He eats it alive, a real fire-eater from India, a real Hindu," shouted the spieler in front of his ballyhoo at the Neuilly Fair. "If you don't believe he is a real Hindu speak to him in the Hindu language and he will answer you."

A distinguished looking gentleman stepped up and commenced addressing the fire-eater in Hindu. The latter was silent and perplexed. The dark stranger spoke to the ballyhoo man in all the known dialects in India, but still the latter remained silent.

"You're not a Hindu," shouted the spieler to the stranger, "you're not talking Hindu, but gibberish. If you're a Hindu why don't you eat a little of this fire?"

"I can't just now; I am on a diet," replied the Prince of Kapurthala—for it was the genial Hindu Prince seeing the sights. The Prince has been quite a figure around Paris and Deauville this season. He reached the third round in the mixed doubles, teamed with the Princess in the world's hard-court tennis championships at Saint Cloud.

"MAMMA'S AFFAIR" IS CONNIE TALMADGE'S NEW SPARKLER

There is coming to the screen of the Allen Theatre Thursday "Mamma's Affair," the screen version of Rachel Barton Butler's Harvard University prize play. Constance Talmadge, the star, wins new laurels in this vehicle.

"Mamma's Affair" is presented by Joseph M. Schenck and is released by Associated First National. The screen adaptation was made by John Emerson and Anita Loos, past masters at preparing stage material for screen use. Among the support appear Kenneth Harlan, Effie Shannon, George Le Guere and other well-known players. The photoplay is said to have received remarkable commendation wherever shown and its advent here is awaited with interest.

AT THE GRAND.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" NOT A MOTION PICTURE

One of the Few Good Comedies That Has Never Been Given Over to the Screen.

"Charley's Aunt," that good old comedy which has been classed with the perennial plays because of its superbly human faculty of irrepressable laughter has been revised. Modernized and staged with scenic production by William C. Grew, the well-known producer, and is now on tour with a superb company.

Mr. Grew has left nothing undone which would help this glorious revival of the laughing hit of the decade establish a new record in laughter making.

The cast includes such well-known figures as James W. Swift, Gustav Bowman, Patricia Rand, Frank Harvey, Edythe Ketchum, Blanche Wallace and others.

The appearance at the Grand on Saturday next, matinee and evening, should signal for the turnout of the "old guard" as well as the lovers of laughter of this later generation for "Charley's Aunt," which will please one and all.

"JOHNNY ON THE SPOT."

The title of this play suggests that somebody moves quickly and at the right moment to a certain place. The person is named Johnny and he does his "buddy" in goal a mighty good turn when he rushes east to pass himself off as the brother of the girl about to marry a nobleman. Nothing is funnier than to watch the cowboy pretending to be used to city ways and drawing-room manners. If anyone doubts that exclusive people at Long Island are "swanky," just let them see "Johnny on the Spot." There is much clean, wholesome fun throughout the comedy, and they say Rex is funnier than ever in this role. I can't imagine him being really "rough," but no doubt he will acquit himself so well that he will give a fine impersonation as usual.

LAURA.

MID-WEEK DRAMATIC NOTES.

To be sold out every day at five o'clock is nothing out of the way these days at the Grand Theatre. The popularity of the Rex Company instead of waning, seems to increase constantly, and a season of permanent stock appears assured. The reason, aside from the excellence of cast and plays, for this success is not difficult to understand. After all, there is something very satisfying in the fact that week after week one can sit and watch people who have become fellow citizens, who live among us and are interested in us.

With the return of the company from Kingston, we almost expected to find the offering for this week a bit tame after the splendid performance of "Fair and Warmer." Mr. Snelgrove in his curtain speech at Kingston said that the billing "extra special" gave an erroneous impression. All his work is always the best that careful stage direction can produce, the same attention to detail goes into every production, and so the standard is never lowered.

"Johnnie on the Spot" has proved a great success, and we are all looking forward anxiously to the next attraction, which will be entirely different from the farce comedies of the past few weeks. Versatility is a great asset and every stock actor or actress of any experience acquires this quality, which means much in after years.

"Seymour and Williams" is the team name of the two clever people who furnish such good between acts specialties. They have been in the vaudeville business for a dozen years or so, and have been headliners on the best vaudeville circuits in the United States and Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Seymour, for they are a very devoted married couple, have played singly and together in nearly every town or city in the United States, and both have long Broadway runs to their credit. Looking at Miss Williams, I can scarcely believe that she has had so much experience. She is very youthful—in fact, girlish looking—her face in spite of specialties and character work has scarcely a line visible and her good nature causes her to see fun in everything. I asked her if she ever grew tired of the strenuous work she does, and did space only permit I could unfold a story of "life on a vaudeville circuit" that, were my pen sufficiently powerful, would cause amazement at the lives these people live.

Until Mr. Seymour and Miss Williams joined the Rex Company, they never did straight dramatic work, but were at the top of their profession in singing, dancing and talking acts.

Mr. Seymour has the distinction of having played for many years with George M. Cohan, that inimitable American producer, manager, and song writer. At the time when the now famous George Cohan was a member of the "Four Cohans," as they were known to vaudeville lovers from one end of the country to the other. He was just the clever son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cohan and brother to Josephine. No one, much less his parents, dreamed of the unique position to which little Georgie aspired and subsequently attained. And Billy Seymour told me how he often went on and did Cohan's part when the latter was ill, the audience never being any the wiser. 'Little Johnny Jones," one of Cohan's greatest successes, was taken out on the road with Seymour in the title role, and now we can sit every week and see one of the very best men in his line in the profession. Miss Hazel Williams told me that in order to make a success at vaudeville one must possess a vivid personality, much pep, and the ability to catch the attention of your audience at once. There are only fifteen minutes in which to make good, and you must "arrive" the moment you come out. By the way, the latest recruit to the vaudeville stage is Elinor Glyn, author of "Her Great Moment." She is signed up for a long term contract, they say, at $500.00 per week.

After this dissertation on vaudeville, I feel sure that every patron of the Rex Stock Company will watch Mr. and Mrs. Seymour with renewed interest, realising, if they failed to before, what clever artistes they are.

The coming of a new version of "Charley's Aunt" should awaken much interest among people who really enjoy clever comedy, abounding in genuine humour and funny situations. Mr. Wm. C. Grew has provided a very good cast to support Mr. James W. Swift, who is a popular comadian with an excellent reputation. The original "Charley's Aunt" was W. S. Penley, who played the role for three years at the Shaftesbury Theatre, London. This performance constituted a record at the time, no other farce ever playing such a long run at the one theatre.

NEW SWIMMING RECORD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press).—Checking up has shown that Miss Charlotte Boyle of the New York Women's Swimming Association established a new world's record for women in the 220 yards event when she negotiated the distance in 2.51 2/5 in the Metropolitan A. A. U. championship swimming meet. Unofficial reports at the time of the meet gave her time as 2.21 2/5.

Miss Boyle was credited with having set the previous record in 1920 by swimming the 220 in 2.53 4/5.

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR.

Between thirty and forty members turned out to the first practice of the above organization in the J. M. Greene and Company's music studio last night.

Some new faces were noticed amongst the choir, and they are more than pleased with their initial practice, and with the older members are looking forward to an even greater measure of success than last season.

Every enrolled member is asked to be in his place at eight o'clock next Tuesday evening, and it is the intention of the management to have several new compositions to place before them.

Last night the Choir renewed their acquaintance with some of the old favorites and rehearsed a new one, Sullivan's "Beleaguered," and the men are already feeling in good voice so early in the season.

The enthusiasm shown in the first practice points to another successful season.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM BRADEN.
The death occurred suddenly yesterday of Mr. William Braden in his 77th year. Mr. Braden, who is a native of this district having been born on the Rice Lake Plains, was an old resident of Smith township, and later of North Monaghan. He moved in some years ago to the city and lived for some time on Maitland avenue, where his wife died three years ago. Last spring, he went to live in Douro, one mile north of Nassau, at the residence of his son, Lorne. He was in the city yesterday doing business, and started to drive home in the afternoon with his daughter-in-law. On the road home, he was stricken with paralysis and had to be helped into the house, dying about 8 o'clock in the evening. Dr. J. M. McCulloch was called, but could do nothing for him.

Survivors are one son, Lorne, a daughter, Mrs. Alex. Elliott, of Smith, and two sisters, the Misses Minnie of Calgary and Annie of Keene. The funeral will take place to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his son near Nassau, proceeding to the Little Lake cemetery.

AT THE CAPITOL.

ELSIE FERGUSON WEARS THIRTY-NINE GOWNS IN "FOOTLIGHTS."

No fewer than thirty-nine gowns are worn by Miss Elsie Ferguson, who takes the part of an American girl, impersonating a Russian actress in "Footlights," a Paramount picture which comes to The Capitol Theatre to-morrow. Dainty morning dresses, luxuriant gowns for afternoon and evening, filmy negligees and daring sport costumes constitute her wardrobe in this splendid production.

Miss Ferguson, who has been termed the most beautifully dressed woman on the screen, considers this one of the most delightful roles of her career. "The gowns have helped me in my interpretation," Miss Ferguson said, "just as they helped Lizzie Parsons to lose her identity in Lisa Parsinova. My only regret is that the audiences will not have an opportunity to see the exquisite colouring of the gowns."

As Lisa Parsinova, Miss Ferguson wears the creations of the most prominent modistes of Paris and America. Beside being the last word in fashion, they have the added interest of having a Russian note. Everyone of the thirty-nine changes from the silver cloth and pearl evening dress, to the velvet bathing suit, are original in design and unique in treatment.

Besides this splendid production which is super special 7 reel picture a brand new two reel Mack Sennett comedy entitled "Love's Outcast" with Ben Turpin the cock eyed Prince of Laugh-Makers, the usual big vaudeville acts and the balance of the program is filled with excellent short reel subjects. A RALLY OF WOMEN'S MISSIONARY CIRCLE

FORCIBLE MESSAGE FROM MRS. H. H. LLOYD, OF TORONTO

A large gathering of the men and women of Murray Street Baptist Church tok place in the Lecture Hall of the church last evening, to hear Mrs. H. H. Lloyd, of Toronto, speak to the members of the Women's Missionary Circle at their annual autumn rally.

Mrs. Lloyd based her remarks on a text from 1st Corinthians, chapter 13, her theme being "Love." Her message was given in a very clear, forcible, and practical manner, and was teeming with interest from beginning to end.

At the close of the address, a social hour was spent. Dainty refreshments were dispensed from twelve tables representing the twelve months of the year, which were prettily decorated with autumn flowers and foliage, as was also the Lecture Hall. Miss Lilliam Eastwood sang in splendid voice, "God's Garden," accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Webber.

NEW YEAR WAS OBSERVED HERE BY THE HEBREWS

With full orthodox ceremony the Jewish New Year was observed in Peterborough by the Jewish community. From Sunday's sundown to last night the Jews united to observe this important festival.

As there is no Jewish minister in Peterborough, Rabbi Nathenson, of Toronto, who is a native of the Holy Land, and recently came to this country, conducted the services in the Tabernacle, and led the community in the religious observance of the New Year.

No work of any kind was done by Jews during the holiday, and on Monday and yesterday their places of business were closed.

Services in the Tabernacle commenced at 8 a.m., and continued till noon, and in the afternoon were from 4 to 6, and in the evening from 7.30 till 8 p.m.

Monday saw the commencement of the year 5682 in the Jewish calendar, although it was not the beginning of the first month, as in the Roman system. The month of Tisri, of which Monday was the first day, is the seventh month of the Jewish calendar.

A week from to-day the Jews observe one of the most important religious dates in their church history—the Day of Atonement. Commencing at sundown on Tuesday, the Jewish community enter a solemn fast till Wednesday at sundown, and in prayer and service observe the Fasting Day with due solemnity.

INTERNATIONAL INTRIGUE LIES BEHIND MURDER

SUCH IS BELIEF OF INVESTIGATORS IN CASE OF JAPANESE FOUND STRANGLED IN HOTEL

TWO SECRET SERVICES THOUGHT TO BE INVOLVED

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(United Press).—A trail of international intrigue, involving the secret service of at least two foreign powers, was believed by special investigators today to lie behind the mysterious murder of Nitaro Yasuhara, a Japanese, found strangled in the Hotel Empire yesterday.

A general alarm has been sent out for another Japanese, who is believed to have lured the dead to his doom. Evidence that the murder was committed according to the best scientific principles of Ju-Jitsu led police and detectives to the theory that a fellow countryman of the slain committed the crime. Papers found upon the body of the victim indicate he was in the employ of another foreign power. Testimonials from a British Government official are among documents which have been turned over to special agents in charge of the investigation. That the papers were left carelessly scattered upon the body of the victim led to a suggestion of revenge .The dead man was a cook but no evidence could be found of his ever having worked in that capacity in this country. He was identified as having lodged at a Japanese Club for some little time. As for the suspected slayer, nothing could be learned of him and it was believed he had come recently to this country in search of Yasuhra.

PLEADED GUILTY TO STEALING A WATCH

WM. PENWICK, ALIAS ELMHIRST, IS REMANDED FOR SENTENCE

William Penwick, alias William Elmhirst, 20 years of age, pleaded guilty in Police Court this morning to theft of an English silver watch valued at about $12 from Thomas Hardie, Aylmer street on September 4. He was remanded till Wednesday, the 12th for sentence.

Penwick better known as Elmhirst is now on suspended sentence from County Court on a charge of attempting to cash a forged cheque, and when Judge Huycke allowed him to go on suspended sentence he ordered that the young man make weekly reports to the Chief of Police. If he failed to carry out the edict of the court Judge Huycke asked that he be brought before him again and Elmhirst will likely be taken before His Honour as he has failed to report to the police and left the city without notifying Chief Newhall But evidently repenting his hasty action he wrote the Chief from the woods where he worked for two weeks, and on returning to the city he was placed under arrest.

According to the police Elmhirst and Hardie were living in the same house on Aylmer street, Hardie having rooms upstairs and Elmhirst downstairs. When Hardie went away to spend Labour Day Elmhirst gained admittance to his premises and secured the timepiece. Later he disposed of it to Cecil Mahaffey and Mahaffey, who is 24 years of age, was charged with receiving stolen property. He also pleaded not guilty and was remanded till the 12th.

Elmhirst it is stated charges Mahaffey with complicity in the theft. The former is on the hill for a week but Mahaffey has been allowed to go to work on his own recognizance.

TRIS SPEAKER INDIAN PILOT REACHES HERE

IS ACCOMPANIED BY LESLIE NUNAMAKER

Eager to forget, in the fishing and shooting opportunities offered by the Peterborough district, the worries of their sensational race with New York for the American League honors, Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Les Nunamaker, catcher of the same club, arrived in Peterborough at noon to-day for their annual outing as the guest of Messrs. Chris. Graham and T. H. Hooper. The two famous players reached here on the 11.55 C.P.R. train, and left at 12.20, via the G.T.R., for Belleville with the party of Peterborough mystic shriners who are attending the shriner initiation ceremonies there. In the party which travelled in a special car were C. G. Graham, T. H. Hooper, Ald. R. N. Jones, Cyril Lech and Percy Hooper.

Speaker looks to be in better shape than he was last year when he visited here. In fact he declares that in spite of the loss of the pennant, he has been less worried than a year ago.

"I haven't had much chance to see the Giants play, but I think the Yanks will win," was the Cleveland manager's reply to a query from The Examiner as to the world's series.

Nunamaker, who did some brilliant catching for the Indians after O'Neill was hurt in June, and who was himself the victim of an accident by which he broke his leg, is still lame, but is able to get around, and he is looking forward to the outing at Rice Lake.

Three other Cleveland sportsmen are expected here to-morrow, and the party will likely go down to Idyl Wyld on Saturday.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Shorts met with little opposition in their further depression of prices at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. Passing of the quarterly dividend on Sumatra Tobacco soon effected a decline of 2¼ points. Mexican Petroleum lost 1¼, although Pan-American Petroleum, with which it is affiliated, gained one point.

Early quotations for foreign exchange indicated an extension of yesterday's general advance.

Pressure relaxed before the end of the first hour, the 4½ per cent. opening rate for call money exercising a beneficial effect. Mexican Petroleum made a full recovery, and Coppers and Sugars were one to two points higher. Before noon, however, the selling movement was resumed, centering in Tobaccos and soon spreading to Steels, Euipments and European Oils.

Liberty Bonds were moderate active, virtually all the 4¼'s advancing to the highest quotations of the year.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 1¼ cents lower, with December 1.10 3-4 to 1.11½, and May 1.15 to 1.15 3-4, were followed by an upturn to well above yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Corn, 1-8 cent to ¼ cent lower, including December at 48½, made a moderate advance.

Oats started unchanged to 3-8 cent off, December 35 to 35¼, and then hardened all around.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Trading was quiet on the local Stock Exchange during the first half-hour this morning, and only a few of the leaders put in an appearance. Brompton was traded in at 21, its closing quotation yesterday. Dominion Steel was weak, being quoted at 25, a point below its last sale. Laurentide, however, strengthened a half to 71.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange easy; demand, Great Britain, 3.77. Canadian dollars, 9 1-16 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—With the exception of some activity in Ontario Steel Products, the morning session of the Stock Exchange was a dull affair. Ontario Steel was rather active, and after early weakness, during which it touched 49, a point below yesterday, the stock re-acted to 50. Elsewhere, price changes were confined to small fractions.

English-owned Roads Fighting Argentine Govt.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6.—A serious conflict between the Argentine Government and the majority of the railroads in this country has developed as a result of the refusal of the roads to reduce freight and passenger rates in conformity with the order of the Minister of Works. The Government has threatened to cancel the authority of local managers of the roads, which are English-owned.

ARE HOLDING WHEAT FOR A BETTER PRICE

CITY MILLERS SAY CROP IS MOVING SLOWLY AND IS OF INFERIOR QUALITY.

Millers in the city state that the wheat crop is moving slowly to the elevators, the farmers apparently holding back for a better price. Wheat is being bought at around $1.25, barley 70 cents and oats at 45 cents. This time last year the buyers were offering about $2 for wheat, $1.00 for barley and 60 cents for oats. Flour, which is now retailing at $4.75 a half barrel, was $7.25 one year ago.

The grains, particularly the wheat, is of a very inferior quality, the millers say, and one of the authorities stated that it was the lowest quality he had ever seen.

MUCH IMPRESSED WITH CITY'S GROWTH

ERNEST HODGSON, FORMER PETERBORO' BOY, RETURNS TO STATES AFTER VISIT HERE.

Mr. Ernest Hodgson, who has been here for some time, visiting his mother, Mrs. Lois Van Every, friends, renewing old acquaintances and recuperating from a attack of chronic rheumatism left yesterday on the C. P. R. midnight express via Montreal, for his home in Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Hodgson was one of Peterboro's leading musicians in the 90's and conducted several orchestras, for church, concert and dancing music.

The first Sunday School Orchestra was organized by Mr. George Wholton of the famous 13th Band of Hamilton, who was a clarionettist of exceptional ability and conducted by him for some time. Mr. Hodgson played flute and Piccolo.

In 1898 Mr. Hodgson organized and conducted an orchestra in connection with the Charlotte street Methodist Church (now Trinity) until he removed to Yonkers, N.Y., in 1902, where he continued his studies in music, removing to Sprinfield in 1909, where he is now the conductor of the 'Chase Memorial Orchestra an orgaization playing Concert music only. Mr. Hodgson's vehsatility enables him to play violin, flute and saxophone and also teaches music.

A former member of the 57th Band, Peterborough, he donned the uniform lately with them at the recent exhibition.

Peterborough and its surroundings have proven very beneficial to Mr. Hodgson and he is much impressed with the steady growth and improvement in his old home city.

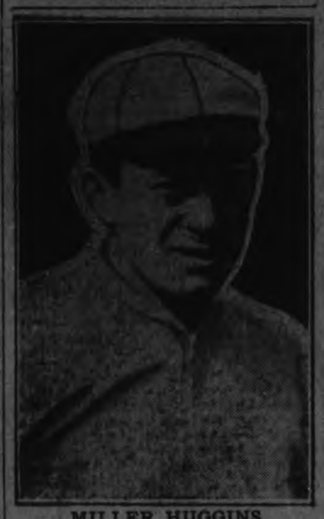
YANKS AGAIN SHUT OUT GIANTS BY 3 TO NIL; GIANTS GIVE NEHF POOR SUPPORT; 3 ERRORS



MILLER HUGGINS,

The midget manager of the Yankees, who, in spite of the fact that his players dislike him and the fans ignore him, has brought the Yanks up from a second division team into the pennant winning class. He was formerly manager of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League.

NEHF AND HOYT ENGAGE IN PITCHERS' DUEL, NEHF GETTING WEAKER SUPPORT—YANKS DRAW FIRST BLOOD IN FOURTH WHEN WARD SCORES--RUTH ATTEMPTS TO STEAL HOME WITH TWO DOWN BUT BATTER FANS--GIANTS WALK RUTH.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 6.—The Yanks made it two straight in the World's Series here this afternoon, shutting out the Giants 3 to 0. Hoyt pitched a great game for the winners, holding the Giants to two hits, and Nehf gave him a good battle, allowing the Yanks only three hits. The Giants' fielding was weak in spots, however, three errors being chalked against them, and the breaks went to the American Leaguers.

The Yanks drew first blood in the fourth, when Ward scored on Schang's sacrifice. In the eighth, with the bases loaded, Ruth scored on a sacrifice by Pipp and Meusel stole home, Smith dropping Nehf's wild throw. The Yanks nearly got another counter in the fourth when Ruth attempted to steal home unsuccessfully.

Nehf was apparently afraid of the big Bambino, and refused to give him one he could hit, passing him.

The stands were filled ten minutes before the game. It was estimated that there were 38,000 present and the crowds kept pouring in from all entrances. The line-up:

Giants—Burns c.f., Bancroft s.s., Frisch 3b., Young r.f., Kelly 1b., E. Meusel l.f., Rawlings 2b., Smith c., Nehf p.

Yanks— Miller c.f., Peckinpaugh s.s., Ruth l.f., R. Meusel r.f., Pipp 1b., Ward 2b., McNally 3b., Shang c., Hoyt p.

First Innings.

Giants—Burns up. Burns fanned, swinging. Hoyt got him on a curve ball, and he swung wildly for the third strike. Bancroft up. Bancroft out, Hoyt to Pipp on a bunt. Frisch up. Frisch out, Ward to Pipp. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Yanks—Miller up; Smith drew an error when he muffed Miller's high foul. Miller walked. Peck up. Smith tried to nip Miller off first base, and Kelly saved him from a wild throw by a one-hand stab. Peck sacrificed, Nehf to Kelly. Ruth walked on four straight balls, while the crowd booed Nehf. R. Meusel up. Meusel lined into a double play, Frisch to Rawlings. No runs, no hits, one error.

Second Innings.

Giants—Young up; Young out, Pipp unassisted. Kelly up. Kelly fanned, standing with the bat on his shoulder when Hoyt grooved the third one. E. Meusel up; Meusel out, Pipp unassisted. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Yanks—Pipp up; Pipp walked. Ward up; Ward out, Bancroft to Kelly, Pipp pulling up at second. McNally up; Frisch took McNally's grounder and tagged Pipp out on the base line for a very smart play. Schang up. McNally out, stealing, Smith to Rawlings. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Giants—Rawlings up. Rawlings singled to left. It was a measly little pop fly that neither Ruth nor Peck could get under. Smith up. Smith popped to Peck. Nehf up; Nehf fanned, swinging, and Rawlings was nearly nipped off first, but he made the bag in a slide. Burns up; Burns forced Rawlings, Peck unassisted. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Yanks—Schang up; Schang hopped to Bancroft. Hoyt up; Hoyt got a big hand. Hoyt reached first on a single. It was a pop fly which Rawlings ran back to get and dropped after making the catch. Miller up. Hoyt was almost nipped off first by Smith, the Yankee pitcher beating the thrown by a whisker. Miller flied to Burns, Hoyt holding first. Peck up; Peck walked. Ruth up; Ruth walked, filling the bases. R. Meusel up, popped to Bancroft. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Including in their party Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland League team, last year's world champions, and Leslie Nunamaker, Cleveland catcher, a large party of Peterborough Mystic Shriners left for Belleville at noon, where they will attend the Shriner initiation ceremonies there, at which 200 are expected to cross the burning sands. GOLDEN WEDDING OF MR. AND MRS. W. HARPER

HALE AND HEARTY COUPLE CELEBRATE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF MARRIAGE.

To-day Mr. and Mrs. William Harper, 195 London street, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. Fifty years ago, on the 25th of July, they were married in Peterboro, but waited until to-day for more pleasant weather to celebrate the occasion. Before and after their marriage they lived in Lakefield for 54 years, moving to Peterboro about 18 months ago. Verging now towards the four score mark they are a hale and hearty couple, and intend to celebrate the occasion with a high tea to about a dozen of their friends this evening. The large dining room at their home was charmingly decorated with ferns potted plants and tall vases filled with asters, marigolds and cosmos, the piece de resistance of the table being a wonderful four-storey cake, made by Mrs. Harper with the same ingredients that went into her wedding cake, 50 years ago.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Harper came of a long lived family, their parents on both sides having reached an advanced age. Mrs. Harper possesses a picture of herself with four brothers and sisters, taken after an absence from each other of 60 years. Of those now living there remain only herself and one brother.

OBITUARY

REV. JOHN BECKET.

Rev. John Becket, aged 83, died at his home, 20 Avoca avenue, Toronto, on Monday, after a year's illness. Deceased was born in Otonabee township, Ont., educated at Peterborough, Weston and Toronto and was a graduate of Knox College. For more than 30 years he held pastorates with the Presbyterian ministry and for several years was stationed in the North Bay territory. At the time of his decease he was a member of Deer Park Presbyterian church. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Martin, Miss Agnes M., and a son, Dr. James Becket. A sister, Mrs. P. G. Walker, and a granddaughter, Miss Marjorie Martin, also survive.

CARS DERAILED ON THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY

Traffic on Belleville Line not Interrupted, However.

Several cars of a southbound freight were derailed three miles south of Campbellford on the Belleville line this morning but traffic was not interrupted. The run-off was evidently not of a serious character. At the G. T. R. station the Examiner could get no information beyond the vague detail that there had been a derailment on the line and that the track was now clear.

PAPER CUTS DEFICIT.

LONDON, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—The Sunday Express, one of Lord Beaverbrook's papers, announces that it has succeeded in reducing its weekly deficit from one thousand pounds to thirty-four pounds.

A War Hero

The French press pays tribute to a hero of the war, whose death has just been announced, according to a Reuter dispatch from Paris to "The London Daily News."

The hero in question was named Diamond, and was a cat who attached himself to the French in the lines before Amiens. Every day Diamond might be seen threading his way through the entanglements to the German front trench.

The Poilus were afraid that some harm might come to their mascot, and in order to protect him they tied a packet of cigarettes round his neck before he started out on his daily ramble, bearing the words: "I bring you cigarettes; do not kill me." Diamond, being a war veteran, had a right to a comfortable home when the armistice was signed, and was sent to an animals' home superintended by the Countess Yurkevich at Neuilly, where he has now died.

REPORT MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says we must keep feet dry; avoid exposure and eat less meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid less meat, drink lots of water, and above all take a spoonful of salts occassionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed itno the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood af this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to elimate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to elimate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

In Japan, when anything goes wrong with an automobile, owners are instructed to notify the police immediately.

BIG DISPLAY OF HORSES FEATURE OF KEENE FAIR

JUDGING WAS NOT COMPLETED UNTIL DARK—ENTRIES WERE MANY AND OF EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY—OTHER CLASSES WERE WELL FILLED ALSO.

ATTENDANCE LARGE

So numerous were the entries of horses at the Keene fair on Wednesday that the judging was not completed until dark. The crowd had gone and only the officials and interested exhibitors remained. Gone too was the canvas of the midway, folded up and checked through to Millbrook or Warkworth. The village homes were alight with Fair time hospitality extended to relatives and friends who were tarrying for supper and for the entertainment in the community hall by Asa Huycke's concert company. Night had descended upon the febrile beauty of the expansive woods on the east side of the Indian river, glorified by the rich colours of autumn, and the horned harvest moon stood out in the west, when the last business of the 1921 Fair was wound up by A. E. Grass, of Columbus, Ont., who judged the horses. On returning the records of this class to secretary J. A. Drummond, Mr. Glass expressed his congratulations to the directors of the Otonabee Agricultural Association for the fine showing of horses they had assembled this ycar.

And the other classes were well filled, especially the cattle, fruits, vegetabdes and grains. The others were well up to if not in excess of the average, and the Fair as a whole was written down as a thoroughly gratifying success. Only the weather was open to criticism, and it turned out so much better than was feared at noon, when rain was falling from cheerless, threatening skies, that with sunlight and a big crowd the directors hadn't the heart to mention the uncomfortable chill in the air. The weather cleared up by one o'clock, coaxing out the automobiles from the township, the city and other distant sections, the Alderville Indian band arrived twelve strong in their scarlet uniforms and accompanied by many visitors from along the lake who came on the steamers Rainbow and Geneva.

Politics Buzzed.

One of the unannounced features of the afternoon was the quiet but palpable undercurrent of politics which even the dullest observer could catch the drift of. John A. Sexsmith, whose term of office expired with the dissolution of Parliament announced yesterday, was a conspicuous visitor, his customary smile weakened by the presence of his erstwhile supporter, G. Arthur Brethen, who won the U.F.O. convention at Norwood on Monday and who was presumably sounding Otonabee's sentiment. Incidentally a report of some of the expressions that were heard might make interesting reading, but political rumours must be considered mighty unreliable after the defeat of Warden W. E. Griffith of the East Peterborough U.F.A. convention, although, according to information that drifted in from the east, Warden Griffith

Busy Season In Lakefield

VARIOUS ORGANIZATIONS GETTING READY—PERSONAL MENTION.

LAKEFIELD, October 6. — The various organizations are banding together for the season's work and from the indications the fall and winter will be a round of gaiety. The firemen are planning to give a series of concerts and the G. W. V. A. Ladies' Auxiliary will resume the card parties which were so popular last year. A dance on armistice night is spoken of and "lest we forget" those not so fortunate as we are a tag day under the auspices of the Veterans will be held in aid of the widows and orphans of the devastated regions.

The Curling Club are in great fettle and with the splendid accommodation which will be afforded them in the new rink they expect to win fresh laurels in the roarin' game.

Hockey enthusiasts are preparing for a season when Lakefield will resume the high place she once held in hockey circles in the district.

Young and old are looking forward to an old fashioned Canadian winter with lots of winter sports.

Funeral Yesterday.

The funeral of the late Jane Gordon Shields, wife of W. H. Down of Douro, took place on Wednesday afternoon to the Lakefield cemetery, followed by a large concourse o f friends and relatives. Mrs. Down was a resident of Lakefield and Douro for years and was well known. She is survived by her husband and one daughter, Miss Ella, and a sister, Miss Shields of Lakefield.

HORSE UNEMPLOYMENT IS SERIOUS PROBLEM

SUDBURY, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press). — Unemployment among horses in the north is a serious question. Lumbering and construction contractors estimate that between the Soo and North Bay there are eight hundred heavy working horses for which there is no work and no sale, due to the almost complete cessation of work in the woods. Horses right now are a drag on the market and equines which two years ago brought from $500 to $700 a team, can now be had for from $200 to $300.

TUNNEL TURNED TO FURNACE AS TRAINS CRASH

MANY TRAPPED IN BURNING WRECKAGE IN HALF-MILE TUNNEL UNDER PARIS.

FIREMEN ARE UNABLE TO EXTINGUISH THE FLAMES

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press) —Many persons are believed to be dead and burning in the wreckage of a rear-end collision of two suburban trains in the half-mile tunnel leading to the St. Lazare Railroad Station, from which five bodies already had been recovered at 9 o'clock last evening. Twenty seriously injured persons and 53 slightly injured also had been recovered.

Seventeen coaches were burning, and firemen, almost helpless, were cutting a hole through the roof of the tunnel through the pavement of Rue De Rome, hoping to create an upward draft in order to allow the smoke and gas to escape. Both trains were filled with homeward bound commuters, and authorities say that anyone remaining in the tunnel is almost certain to be dead.

The collision occurred when the 5.52 train for the suburb Marley-le-Roi, crashed into the rear end of a train for Versailles, which left four minutes earlier on the same track, but which stopped inside the tunnel for some unexplained reason. Cries for help and moans were audible at both ends of the tunnel.

It is feared that those who were trapped in the burning wreckage may never be identified, as they would surely be burned to a cinder in the intense heat, yet unreached by the firemen, who were directing streams of water from both ends of the tunnel.

Later it was learned that the fire started by explosions of small illuminating gas tanks in the coaches of the telescoped train. The train for Versailles had stopped to repair a broken coupling, when the collision occurred. Hundreds of the injured were able to escape by running through the dark tunnel along the track to both ends. Troops were called out immediately to surround the scene of the disaster.

EMPLOYMENT INSTEAD OF RELIEF BASIS OF NEW GOV'T PROPOSALS FOR ALLEVIATING UNEMPLOYMENT

Senator Gideon Robertson,

Minister of Labor, who announces the Federal Government's new proposals for alleviating unemployment, the basis of which is providing work whereever possible instead of relief.

IN ORDER TO CREATE WORK, FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WILL BEAR SHARE OF EXCESS COST OF MUNICIPAL WORK.

OTTAWA, October 6. — Canadian Press. — The Government proposals for unemployment relief during the coming winter made public by Senator Gideon Robertson, the Minister of Labour yesterday afternoon, include an offer to bear a share of the cost of municipal work above the normal cost provided an equal share share of the excess is borne by the provincial and municipal governments. This the government believes would encourage the creation of work. Where work cannot be provided the Federal Government will continue to bear one-third of the amounts actually paid out by the municipalities for unemployment relief. The other two-thirds to be borne equally by the provincial and municipal governments.

In his statement outlining the Government's proposals, Senator Robertson says that unemployment relief has been and must necessarily continue to be, primarily a municipal responsibility and in the second instance a responsibility of the province. Further he cites that because the present situation is due to causes beyond the control of local or even national control that the Federal and Provincial authorities so co-operate in helping create and provide employment. Where employment cannot be furnished to workmen willing to work to aid in providing food and shelter for them and their dependents until the emergency is past. The statement stipulates that Federal funds used for unemployment relief must be disbursed only through responsible municipal authorities.

"Municipality to bear the normal cost, that is to say, the cost of carrying on the said work in the normal working season.

"Estimate of normal cost to be approved by federal government's engineers in the Department of Public Works.

"That municipal, provincial and federal governments bear equally and jointly the actual cost over the estimated normal cost.

LIBERAL CHIEF SCORES RECORD OF GOVERNMENT

DECLARES LIBERAL PARTY INTENDS TO KEEP TARIFF

AMHERST, N.S., Oct. 6.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—Immense audiences of Amherst and Cumberland County citizens, estimated to include some 6,000 persons, yesterday afternoon gathered in the Arena Rink to hear Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and other prominent Liberals.

Dealing with the manifesto of the Premier, the Liberal leader said Mr. Meighen began by claiming for his Government the credit of conducting the war and ended by declaring that his Government had extended the franchise to women voters. But Mr. King, asserted, there was no one who believed that the Government of Arthur Meighen had carried on the war, and no one who did not know that Mr. Meighen and his friends had refused the vote to three quarters of the women of Canada. The record of Mr. Meighen had been one of reaction when reconstruction was needed, said the Liberal leader, and one of autocracy when the country was crying out for a return to democracy and freedom, economy and retrenchment in public expenditures.

In 1917 Sir Robert Borden, Mr. Meighen and others had appealed for support in winning the war. They asked the people to forget past Government records and unite to win the war. Then there was to be a return to old parties. "The Government of 1917 was a coalition to win the war," declared Mr. King. "Will anyone say that this Government is a win-the-war coalition?"

The Spinney bill opening the civil service to patronage had been a most reactionary measure.

Precedents and customs had been brushed aside by Mr. eMighen, the Fair, but not much change in temperature.

The foolish man who built his house on the sand

He gave an example in folly which anybody can understand.

It isn't so easy, however, to sense the mistake of trying to build the body on foods which lack essential nourishment.

Here, again, is a foundation of sand which gives way when the test comes.

Many a food that tastes good lacks honesty of nourishment to equal it's taste. Thus it tempts the appetite into mistakes that often are costly.

Grape-Nuts is a food which helps build bodily endurance for life's stress and storm. The full nourishment of wheat and malted barley, together with the vital mineral salts so necessary to bone structure and red blood corpuscles, with phosphates for the brain, is retained in Grape-Nuts. The long baking process by which Grape-Nuts is made gives the food a natural sweetness and an unusual ease of digestibility and assimilation.

Served with cream or milk, Grape-Nuts is fully nourishing, and whether eaten as a cereal at breakfast or lunch, or made into a pudding for dinner, Grape-Nuts has a particular delight for the appetite. Sold by grocers.

MAKE IT A RECORD.

The people of Peterboro are once more reminded of the annual Tag Day of the local branch of the Children's Aid Society, which takes place on Saturday. The financing of the year's operations of the Society is largely based upon this annual drive and as $2000 is required this year the response on Saturday should be even more general and generous than in the past. All preparations have been made for the event and the public is urged to give the collectors a cordial greeting and a substantial donation. In the news columns of the Examiner during the past few days references have been made to some features of the work of the Society. It has not been possible to go into these at length, nor is there an opportunity of doing anything more than merely outlining a few of the outstanding phases of the activities of the Society. Sufficient has however been published to convince the citizens that the work carried on by the Children's Aid Society deserves the generous support of the community. That support should be readily forthcoming on Saturday, and the total collected should establish a new record for a drive of this kind.

TECHNICAL SCHOOLS.

The question of a technical school for Peterborough is not one that should be hastily decided. The city has been called upon to incur heavy expenditure upon municipal enterprises, such as the Hunter St. bridge, the Prince of Wales School, and the filtration plant, while the building of a sewage disposal plant cannot be delayed much longer. These undertakings have been expensive and before embarking upon the establishment of a technical school, the question should be earnestly considered from all angles. Is the demand for such an institution great enough at the present time to warrant Peterboro shouldering the greater part of the cost of a technical school?

Principal Kenner's letter to the Board of Education sugests a compromise scheme that should not be passed over lightly. More accommodation, he points out, is necessary at the Collegiate, and will have to be provided soon. Why not then, asks Mr. Kenner, in building a new wing to the Collegiate Institute building, make provision for a certain amount of vocational training. That would probably take care of all the pupils who wanted training of the kind for a few years at least, and then if it was considered advisable to erect a technical school entirely separate from the Collegiate Institute, the rooms in the Institute then vacated would be available for ordinary Collegiate work.

In view of the fact that increased accommodation must be provided in the Collegiate Institute, Mr. Kenner's suggestion that a technical department be established there, instead of building a technical school, is likely to find favor with many ratepayers.

INVESTIGATE PRICE.

The other day The Examiner referred to the objects of the Owners' and Tenants' Association, remarking that they were of a nature that could be endorsed and supported by all citizens interested in the welfare of Peterborough. The Association, in endeavouring to live up to its objects, should avoid being made the clearing-house for all kinds of trivial complaints, or at least should see that such complaints are quietly investigated and substantiated before publicity is given to them. The influence of an organisation of this kind is weakened if the impression is allowed to be created that the Association is ready to back up any half-baked grievance that may be brought to its attention. Properly functioning, the new body can be of great assistance by co-operating with the municipal government along many lines. Criticism, when it is constructive in nature, is always beneficial, and the Association should not lose sight of that fact, nor should it fail to remember that it is not always wise to jump at conclusions. For instance, the Association sent a letter to the Board of Education recently objecting to the fact that an electric motor procured outside of the city had been installed in the new Prince of Wales School. Had the Board of Education been responsible for such a purchase, there would have been reasonable ground for complaint, but as a matter of fact, the motor was just part of a contract that had been let to a local dealer, and the Board had nothing to do with the matter.

THE PORT OF LONDON AUTHORITY.

The most satisfactory event of the week in England was the annual report of that unique organisation—the Port of London Authority.

It anounces the most prosperous year in its history. It has made a net profit of over $7,000,000 on a total revenue of $40,000,000.

It has handled 32,758,604 tons of incoming and outgoing goods. This is more than twice the tonnage of 1918, but it is slightly less than that of 1914.

Roughly speaking, it has charged 1 per cent. on a total of $4,000,000,000 of exports and imports, so that its dues have not been excessive.

It is now in revenue the first port in the British Empire, and in tonnage it is very slightly below Liverpool.

Its report shows it to be in a most satisfactory position. It has raised the wages of its 5,000 employees. It has given them $80,000 to buy a new recreation ground. It has paid $3,000,000 income tax; and after paying dividends on $112,000,000 of capital, it has added fully $3,000,000 to its surplus.

All told, the Port of London Authority, in the 12 years of its existence, has made a total net profit of $56,000,000. Its 4 per cent. stocks are now selling at 67, and its 5½ per cent. stocks at 96.

London is slowly forging ahead of Liverpool, as a port. It has nine railroad systems, whereas Liverpool has only three and it has the superb advantage of a home market of 7,500,000 people.

The 300 docks of the Thames are more than 17 miles in length. A new dock was opened by the King last July, and was named after him—King George the Fifth Dock.

The oldest dock in London is the Howland, which dates back to 1703. The most picturesque is the "Execution Dock," where pirates were hung in chains. An the most modern is the group of docks at Tilbury, where a traveller may sit in a first-class hotel, and see 1,000 ships pass in a day.

This port of London Authority is a strange hybrid. It is an original blending of three strains — Capital, Labour, and Civil Service.

Like the duck-billed platypus of Australia, which is partly a land animal, partly a bird, and partly a fish, the Port of London Authority is an organisation that embodies in itself three very different elements.

It is governed by a board of 29 members. Of these, 18 are elected by dock firms and labour unions; 10 are appointed by Government departments; and a chairman is chosen from outside. Mr. Harry Gosling, for instance, the leader of the dockers, sits side by side with Lord Ditchie and Admiral Field. The chairman at present is Lord Davenport.

The creator of this three-in-one organisation was no less a person than Mr. Lloyd-George. In fact, the Port of London Authority stands as the most beneficent and enduring achievement of his whole career.

If Lloyd-George can only do for Ireland what he undeniably did for the London docks, he will win a name as one of the most constructive Prime Ministers that Britain has ever had.

The story of the docks was one of strikes and deficits until the Authority was organised. There was constant war between the four large dock companies and the rivermen.

In general, the dock companies had made very little money since the policy of Free-trade broke up their monopoly. They had no money for improvements, not even for maintenance.

In 1900, a Royal Commissoin went into the whole matter. As usual, it pointed out the disease, but offered no remedy. There was a deadlock in Parliament, and nothing could be done.

Then Lloyd-George plunged into the mess. He was at that time the President of the Board of Trade. He went to the dock companies and persuaded them to sell out for $90,000,000, payable in stock. He planned and organised the board of 29 members. He put the docks of London at once on a self-supporting basis, without spending a dollar of Treasury money. It was beyond all doubt the most practical thing he has ever done.

Very little is heard of the Port of London Authority. It is too efficient and harmonious to have much publicity in the daily press. But it stands as a model organisation, both from the point of view of profits and of public service.—Herbert V. Casson in Barron's.

EDITORIAL NOTES

With Swindle and Good and Scratch already listed among the candidates for Federal honours, the column writers should not be short of material.

The income tax returns will not be talked about very much at the political meetings of the Agrarian party. They do not form a very convincing argument for handing over the Government to the Progressives.

Merchants are hoping that the Federal elections will be over in time to allow people to "do their Christmas shoping early."

The unemployment problem might be more easily solved if as many people got as excited over it as they do over the world's series.

Sir Robert Borden is not to be a candidate in the coming election. The former G.O.C. has no longer to re-enlist in the ranks.

Wise and Otherwise

Hot air expands and rises, this may explain some folks ascent in the world.

Once there was a Flapper who entered a telephone booth and came out within two minutes. Central couldn't get a connection for her.

Another fact which supports Shakespeare's comparison of the world to stage is that ham actors always get swelled heads.

Modern Maid—I dressed so hurriedly, I'm afraid I forgot something.

Visitor—It wasn't your dress.

McGraw is said to be depending on his pitching staff to win the World's Series. Well, as Ring Lardner says, both teams can boast of pitching staffs that are airtight—like cattle cars.

LIBERAL CHIEF SCORES RECORD

Liberal leader asserted. The most sacred of these was the right of Parliament to scrutinize all public expenditures.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had dissolved Parliament to consult the people on reciprocity. But the Borden-Meighen Governments took over 20,000 miles of railways without a word with or from the people. The Grand Trunk agreement was forced down the throats of Parliament. This was a Government of autocracy, not of democracy.

Government was carried on today, controlled, said Mr. King, by political autocrats and industrial plutocrats. "Until that combination is broken (and the people now have their opportunity) you cannot have free and proper government," Mr. King declared.

Mr. King, referring to Canada's Canada grow beyond the colony been denounced for demanding that Canada grew beyond the colony stage and to nationhood.

There was no true Canadian who did not believe in, and hope for, the tightening of the bond between the different parts of the empire, said Mr. King.

Mr. Meighen talks free trade, the Liberal leader added. No man in Canada could talk of free trade as today's tariff policy in Canada. "We must keep a tarifi, and so far as the Liberal party is concerned we intend to keep a tariff. But there is need of tariff revision," the Liberal leader concluded.

Hon. H. S. Beland, referred to a statement that he should preach harmony in Quebec. Every province must plead guilty to having raised a few mischief makers, he said, but they were an infinitely small minority.

Mr. Meighen's manifesto was a 'hymn to protection" Dr. Beland declared. There was five points in the manifesto; first, Mr. Meighen says "I am right;" second, "My opponents are bad;" third, "I am good;" fourth, "Mr. King is wicked and, fifth, "I am the descendant of Abel and Mr. King is the descendant of Cain".

"What Can You Do?"

One of the first questions asked the man seeking a new position is, "What can you do?". If you say "I can save money", and produce a Merchants Bank Pass Book that shows regular weekly or monthly deposits, you need no other recommendation. The man who saves systematically—knows the value of money—is providing for the future—is ambitious—is using his head as well as his hands—and the Savings Account proves it.

Indoor Life

Spending more time indoors makes women far more subject to constipation than men.

The liver becomes sluggish and torpid, the bowels constipated and the system poisoned by impurities.

If you would get away from the myriads of ills which result from constipation, it is only necessary to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The benefits from their use are as lasting as they are prompt and certain.

Mrs. John Barry, 18 St. Amable Street, Quebec, Que., writes:

"This is to certify that I was troubled for years with constipation and tried all kinds of medicines without relief. At last my husband suggested that I try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and must say that they have given me more relief than all the medicine I have taken during the last fifteen years. I may also add that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles with excellent results."

FELL FROM RAILWAY VIADUCT, PORT HOPE

PORT HOPE, Oct. 5.—Two young men, Ernest Bryson and a companion had a rather thrilling experience here Monday night, when they climbed over the parapet of the railway viaduct to escape a freight train backing up from the station. The freght was slow in crossing the bridge and the men became so fatigued with hanging to the sleepers that Bryson dropped to the road below, a distance of 45 feet, sustaining a fracture of one leg at the knee and a broken ankle. The other man managed to hang on until his cries for help brought assistance and he was hoisted to safety on the viaduct.

Both men came here from Trenton in search of work, arriving on the evening train, and instead of going under the viaduct to make the town, as directed, they attempted to cross the structure. Bryson has no fixed home but has worked in Oshawa.

THE THRIFTY SCOT.

As an illustration of thrift and determination, the story of Sir William MacGregor, at one time Lieutenant-Governor of British New Guinea, would be hard to beat.

Sir William, when completing his training at a Scottish university, found his money becoming exhausted. He could spare no time from his studies in which to earn any. Something had to be done, so MacGregor called his old Scottish landlady into consultation as to ways and means.

"Well, Mr. MacGregor, how much a week can you find?"

"Half a crown."

"Well, I can do it for that."

And this is how she did it. MacGregor had a bowl of porridge for breakfast, two fresh herrings or one red one—the cost of the fresh ones being identical with the cured one—for dinner, and another bowl of porridge for supper. He completed his course and took the gold medal for his year.

SCIENCE TO CURB RUSSIAN PLAGUE.

By WILFRID FLEISHER
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The spread of epidemic in Russia in the wake of the great famine does not threaten Western Europe, in the opinion of Dr. Roux, head of the Pasteur Institute. Medical science has made such progress that epidemics can be checked and great cataclysms such as visited Europe in the Middle Ages can be averted.

"I believe," said Dr. Roux, "that we know enough about such epidemics as typhus, cholera and plague to protect our frontiers. Germany and Poland are the countries which face the greatest task, as they are in first line, and in their hands mainly lies the responsibility for the security of Western Europe.

"The best course open to the nations of Western Europe is to associate themselves with the international relief work already on foot, and particularly to keep close watch along the Russian Polish frontier.

"Refugees who are infected or may be bearers of germs should be thoroughly cleansed, and suspected cases should be kept under surveillance for a certain period. Typhus is only carried by lice, and plague by fleas, and once these removed, the victim is no longer a source of danger to his neighbor.

"As for cholera, vaccination is an effective preventative. It rendered great services during the war to the Greek, Roumanian and French armies in the Near East. Typhus vaccination cannot be very widely used, as no method has yet been found of breeding the typhus microbe and the serum must be taken from infected persons, which, of course, limits the amount of serum available."

RICHARD HALL & SON LTD

BY THE WAY

The prototypes of the gold brick vender of today, in the Tenth Century, labored with iron ore, sulphur, blow pipes, fire, water and mysterious abracabrais.

The alchemists of that time considered that sulphur, mercury and salt were the prime elements of which the entire world was composed and they believed that by combining these elements with other substances they could produce gold or any other substance.

A more ancient opinion which held sway from time of Aristotle was that all things are composed of earth, air, fire and water.

The "proof" of this view was that a stick of wood on burning can be seen to give off fire, water, and air in the form of smoke, and earth in the form of ashes. Throughout ancient times this view was accepted and a large part of the history of chemistry in Medieval Times is the dispute between this old and the "vulgar, modern" view that mercury, sulphur and salt were the true elements.

An experiment by Van Helmont, in 1630, tried to prove that water is the source of all other materials by planting a willow tree weighing five pounds in a tub of 200 pounds of earth. He watered it carefully for five years and then found that the tree weighed 169 pounds, while the tub had lost only a few ounces in weight.

The development of modern chemistry was delayed 100 years by the theory of "phlogiston." According to this theory, which held sway from 1650 to 1780, combustion was the driving out of a mythical substance called phlogiston from the material burned. When it was shown that air is necessary for combustion the theorists answered that air simply combined with the phlogiston. When it was shown that the products of combustion are heavier than the original substances, that iron rust, for example, is heavier than the iron from which it is formed, the theorists answered that phlogiston has negative weight and the object must get heavier when it is driven out by fire.

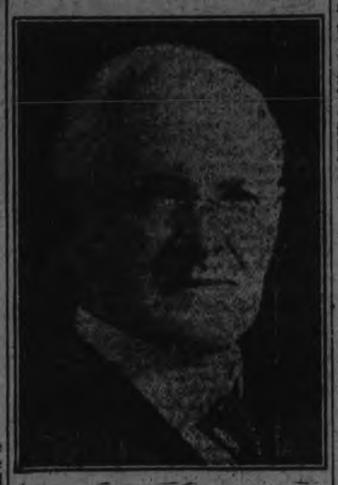
MEASURES MOOTED FOR SUPPRESSION OF CHILD CRIME

DOMINION CONFERENCE ON CHILD WELFARE WORK OPENED

WINNIPEG, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—As a preventative to child delinquency and the breeding of adult criminals, many recommendations for amendments to existing measures and new legislation tending to better control and upbringing of children in the home were advocated at yesterday's session of the Dominion Conference on Child Welfare Work, the first of its kind to be held in Canada. It is expected out of this conference will come the organization of a permanent association for the care of neglected, dependent and delinquent children.

A complete census and classification of children in the Dominion, and pensions to worthy widowers bringing up families, to mothers whose husbands were in jail, to deserted mothers, and to unmarried mothers, were suggested as a means for coping with the child delinquency problem. Inter-provincial reorganization for administration of the Mothers' Allowance Act and a uniform scale of allowances for the whole Dominion was another measure put forward by several speakers.

COMING TO PETERBORO' SUNDAY, OCTOBER 16



Rev. Joseph Hogue, of St. Paul, Minn., Evangelist and Bible Teacher

Mr. Hogue, whose portrait appears above, is one of the foremost evangelists of the day. Of Scotch-Irish descent, he was converted in the Old Land under the ministry of D. L. Moody, and speaks with the same old-time fire and fearlessness that made Moody famous as a successful soul winner.

Evangelist Hogue is also noted as one of the most capable and thorough Bible teachers of the West, having taught theology for many years in one of the leading Bible schools of the West. Prof. Campbell, of McMaster University, Toronto, said after hearing his wonderful messages, "He is one of the greatest Bible teachers I have ever listened to."

He is sane in his methods, sound in his teaching, deeply spiritual in his experience. It is surely most fortunate that we have been able to secure the services of this splendid veteran of the gospel and we devoutly trust that his ministry may result in an old-fashioned, heaven sent, sin-confessing, Bible-loving, church-going revival.

Mr. Hogue will begin his campaign on Sunday, October 16th, at 11 a.m. in the Tabernacle on George Street, the only interdenominational church in the city. Bethany Tabernacle is now under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, with headquarters at New York City, and is the only branch of this society in the city.

The pastor, A. G. Doner, and the entire executive of this congregation, cordially invite the fullest co-operation of every church-worker and Christian interested in the revival of the whole Church of Christ, and especially in the salvation of the unsaved. Our motive and aim is not to add members to Bethany Tabernacle but to build up the Body of Christ in Peterborough and to bring to decision for God and Heaven, every unregenerate soul that will come in, at the same time leaving them uninfluenced to unite or fellowship with the church of their choice.

We earnestly solicit the believing prayer of every Christian in the city to the end that a great and far-reaching spiritual tide will sweep every congregation in Peterborough and that hundreds may be saved for Christ and the Church and from hell and eternal damnation.

FIRST MOVE FOR DISARMAMENT BY THE TSAR OF RUSSIA.

U. S. Sponsored Second Attempt in 1907.

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — What will the Washington Disarmament Conference accomplish?

With the hopes of peoples everywhere for some action to limit and reduce the staggering burdens of war preparations gratified by President Harding's call for the Washington Conference, these same peoples now are anxiously awaiting an answer to the question of what relief will come from this great international gathering.

Delegates and advisers of the conference now are studying previous attempts to reach some agreement among the nations of the world for a limitation of armament.

The Washington Conference is not an original attempt to effect a limitation of armament, except insofar as armament limitation in this conference is to be linked with discussions to settle outstanding problems in the Pacific and the Far East, now held to be the main contributing causes of the feverish race in armament competition.

The first attempt, initiated by the Czar of Russia, was made at the First International Peace Conference at the Hague in 1899, and the next principal effort toward this high end, sponsored by the United States Government, was at the Second Hague Peace Conference in 1907.

Both attempts failed, it is shown in the official records of these conferences in the archives of the State Department here. The net results were the following sets of resolutions:

In 1899.

"The conference is of opinion that the restriction of military charges, which are at present a heavy burden on the world, is extremely desirable for the increase of the material and moral welfare of mankind.

"The conference expresses the wish that the governments, taking into consideration the proposals made at the conference, may examine the possibility of an agreement as to the limitation of armed forces by land and sea and of war budgets."

In 1907.

"The Second Peace Conference confirms the resolution adopted by the conference of 1899 in regard to the limitation of military burdens; and in view of the fact that military burdens have considerably increased in nearly all countries since the said year, the conference declares that it is highly desirable to see governments take up again the serious study of that subject."

RAND McNALLY VS. HENRY FORD.

After reading an interview with Henry Ford on the unparalleled service rendered by his Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad, the editor of "Our Family Bulletin," a publication in the interest of the employees of Union Pacific, checked up the statements with those found on page 894 of Rand McNally Railroad Guide for August, 1921. There the editor extracted travel information which led him to make the following observations:

"As the only true test let us take a trip on the through train the entire distance from Detroit to Ironton, 378.4 miles. Ah, we find that the 'through' train is the only train, and that, after all, it is not a 'through' train; it ties up all night at Bainbridge. What shall we do? Take a flivver? Never, we shall adhere sternly to our original purpose.

"We take No. 2 at 8.10 a.m., and after an all day ride we arrive at Bainbridge at 6.25 p. m. Here we tie up and spend a joyous evening swapping yarns at the village tavern. But what is a lay-over of 15 hours and 46 minutes between friends? We would do far more for Henry; 'deed we would—anything short of swabbing out the scuppers of a 'peace ship' with Madam Schwimmer to boss us. The following day we resume our gladsome journey at 10.11 a. m., arriving at Ironton at 2.20 p. m., only thirty hours for a trip of 378.4 miles.

"Well, perhaps we can do better on the branches. We turn to the Wellston branch. Alas, no trains are scheduled. Let's try the Kingman branch. Here is hope, for while no trains are listed, we find a word of promise. It is marked 'train service irregular.'

"The vaunted service, then, must be on the line connecting Detroit and Toledo, two big cities. Here is where we shall find hourly express service. One look and we turn sadly away. It is marked, 'No regular passenger service maintained.'"

While his motion failed to carry by seven negative votes against the mover's solitary one it was agreed that Belleville's present system of assessing is somewhat defective, and Assessor Kerr was voted two assistants during a period of four months in hope of improving the method.

LOOKING DOWN ON THE CROWDED ROOFS OF LONDON

The hill in the foreground is Fish Street Hill and the Monument was erected to recall the great "Fire of London."

She needs it—
"The Iron Food for Vitality."

True Beauty Food

is an "iron food" like raisins. Serve daily as a breakfast fruit for best results

Stewed Raisins

Serve for breakfast every morning and get your daily iron this way.

Cover Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins with cold water and add a slice of lemon or orange. Place on fire; bring to a boil and allow to simmer for one hour. Sugar may be added but is not necessary, as Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins contain 75 per cent natural fruit sugar.

Raisin Pie

Men are quickly refreshed at night by a dessert like this.

A more delicious breakfast dish than stewed raisins served with cream never has been known—just try and see.

You'll want it every morning.

The food-iron of the raisins will be an every day supply, if this becomes your regular fruit dish. The blood absorbs the iron; and vigorous vitality, if you possess it, is thus protected. Where vitality is lacking, it is frequently restored in this delightful way.

The greatest charm of woman is vitality. Its signs are bright eyes, healthful energy and a pretty rose tint on the cheeks.

You need but a small bit of iron daily, yet that need is vital.

Pale, tired women are given this attractive dish for breakfast at a famous sanitarium in Battle Creek. For physicians know that value of the raisin.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use Sun-Maid Raisins, made from California's finest table grapes—American raisins, processed and packed immaculately in a great modern California plant.

Seeded (seeds removed); Seedless (grown without seeds); Clusters (on the stem). Also a fine, ever-ready dessert.

Raisins are cheaper by 30 per cent than formerly—see they are served regularly in your home.

Desiring to practise genuine thrift at home, many thoughtful people have decided that it is wiser to invest once in a Hoover than to invest repeatedly in new rugs. For this efficient cleaner saves rugs from wear by gently beating out all nap-cutting, embedded grit. It preserves rug beauty by lifting crushed nap and reviving dulled colors as it electrically sweeps up all clinging litter. It suction cleans. Only The Hoover does all these things. And it is the largest-selling electric cleaner in the world.

ELECTION NEWS

FARMER-LABOR SPLIT

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 6.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner).—Farmer and Labor in West Lambton agreed early this morning to disagree. The executives of the I. L. P. and U. F. O. of West Lambton met last night to discuss the arrangements made in Bridgen last year when these parties agreed to support a candidate at the forth coming election. The Labor party insisted that the Farmers either withdraw their candidate or cal a new convention when both parties could either agree upon a platform or separate.

R. J. White, the Farmer candidate was agreeable to a withdrawal and to call a new convention but the majority of the Farmers favored a straight Farmer nominee. The Labor party then gave definite notice that the existing agreement was at an end and a break so long talked about between the parties became a fact. Members of the I.L.P. then left. The Farmers remained in session for some hours. No statement was given out by them.

The Labor Party will call a meeting at an early date to discuss the situation. While it is among the pos may be chosen later it is generally thought the party would support the candidate favoring a protection policy.

The executive committee of the Liberals met yesfterday afternoon and discussed the political situation in this country. While no particulars are available, it is understood that a convention of the party will be held in Sarnia on October 18, to select a candidate.

FRANCO-BRITISH WAR SEEN BY LONGUEUIL CANDIDATE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—That Canada had been committed to war against France in case Great Britain and France could not agree on the Silesian question was the fear expressed by Joseph Archambault at a meeting at Longueuil, following his nomination as Liberal candidate for that division at the forthcoming Federal election.

Hon. Rodolph Lemieux deprecated the treatment of the tariff as a dogma, and deplored the introduction of a third party into the Province to split the ranks of Liberals as in 1911.

A definite pronouncement against the nationalization of railways was made by Mr. Archambault.

OIL LIGHT BEATS ELECTRIC OR GAS

BURNS 94% AIR

A new oil lamp, that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common keresene (coal-oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig street W, Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month. 6 20 3 17

CRERAR OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN

SAYS PROGRESSIVES NO LONGER PART OF CLASS MOVEMENT.

BRANDON, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. T. A. Crerar opened his campaign here last night and received a very enthusiastic reception from a big audience.

Declaring that he detested class legislation he admitted that since its incepton among the farming community the Progressive movement partook of a class movement, but the Progressives were now drawing themselves to all classes of people.

He argued that the Premier had not submitted a constructive policy, declared that the Meighen administration was a government of "Big Business" and denied that protecton had made Canada prosperous.

BRUTAL ASSAULT IN EAST CITY

LAUNDRY RAIDED AND INOFFENSIVE GHINAMAN BEATEN UP

At an early hour yesterday morning, while the owner was asleep in the south end of the building at Hunter street east, two desperadoes entered the laundry by the rear door, seized the little Chinaman by the throat, strangled him until he was nearly dead, and battered him in the face and about the head almost beyond recognition. Whether the injuries extend to a broken jaw or not we have not yet learned, but Kong Lee is now in Nicholls Hospital in a pitiable condition.

The object of the raid seems to have been money, but while the wretched pair choked the innocent little laundryman and demanded his money, they secured nothing of pecuniary value.

Kong Lee is an upright, honest man, working 18 hours daily in order to bring, by his hard earnings, his little boy from China. He is a member of the Mark street church and Sunday school, and the hint that anything like a gambling affair being mixed in with the brutal attack is absolutely without foundation.

A reward of $25.00 may be expected by any person who will give such information as will lead to the conviction and due punishment of the perpetrators of such a deed of villainy.

BAZAAR WILL OPEN TO-MORROW

The bazaar under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A., which opens in the G. W. V. A. Hall to-morrow afternoon, and will be continued on Saturday, should be a great success. Great preparations have eben made by the ladies for the event and it is hoped that a substantial sum will be raised for the relief work among the families of Peterborough's war veterans. The bazaar will open at 2.30 to-morrow afternoon and Rev. J. Rollins will give an address at 2.30 o'clock.

MEDICAL ATTENTION TO UNEMPLOYED, FREE.

Hamilton Physicians Adopt a Policy Which Should Be Emulated by Peterborough Physicians.

The Hamilton doctors have agreed on a policy in regard to the unemployed, which might well be emuated by Peterborough's Medical fraternity. Dr. F. B. Mowbray, president of the Hamilton Medical Society, has notified the city's authorities on behalf of the Society to the effect that members would attend to all illness among the unemployed This attention would not be limited to a single visit, but the sick persons would be given such treatment in their homes or at the city hospital as was necessary.

The society had been prompted to take such action through a desire to be of benefit to the city at large and to relieve cases of illness and distress. Only two conditons were named, however, in connection with the proposed measure. The persons applying for medical assistance must give the name of their family physician, if any. The application must come through the city relief office, at which inquiries as to the actual circumstances of the applicant would be made.

The first visit would be made by the physician before any enquiries took place, however. Through this means there would be no delay in medical assistance in cases of emergency.

$75,000 A YEAR FOR JUDGES NOW MOOTED BY FORD

TO SECURE THEM AGAINST POWERFUL INTERESTS

DETROIT, Oct. 6. — (United Press).—Vastly higher salaries for United States Judges, as a step to speed the progress to a "new era", was proposed by Henry Ford in a statement to the United Press today.

Ford wants supreme court justices to be paid $75,000 annually with federal judges receiving a salary below $25,000.

Judges then would be "secure from the resentment of powerful interests against whom, they might be called upon to decide," the automobile manufacturer said.

CITY REPUDIATES POLICE STRICTURES

LONDON, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Liverpool City Council has repudiated the strictures passed by a Judge concerning the conduct of the police during the recent disturbances in Liverpool Art Gallery. Commenting on the action of the police, the Judge said that he hoped their conduct on the occasion was not characteristic of the general manner of police, and that they should realize that they must not make their hand heavier on the public than is necessary. Some of the citizens declare, however, that since the police a year ago, the force has been recruited from ex-service men, who perhaps had not forgotten all the methods of violence in attack that were quite properly inculcated in training to fight the Boche.

Human Nature In All Its Angles Work of Children's Aid Society

Next Saturday Will Be The Annual Tag Day, Two Thousand Dollars is The Objective---Work at the Shelter.

Next Saturday will be the annual tag day for the Children's Aid Society. The board has set its objective at $2,000, not a very exorbitant amount if one considers the excellence of the cause. Much of the work accomplished by the Children's Aid Society is kept from public knowledge, for the very good reason that much of it has to do with those manifestations of human nature which have to be remedied by the kindness and consideration of charitable-minded people, and the society feels that no good end would be served by the publication of many cases which come up before it for consideration. The welfare of the child is the main object, and every official of the society keeps that thought before him or her at all times. The Superintendent spends a great part of his time travelling up and down the district, looking into cases and watching out for the treatment of wards of the shelter.

Human nature in all its angles; this is what is the main consideration of the Board of Directors and the officials in charge. There are cases where guardians overwork their young helpers, like the farm, where most of the work was done by a fourteen-year-old boy, boys who will not work when placed out, who run away back to evil home associations, original sin working in young minds like the child who set a whole community by the ears with his unlimited talent for fabrication and tale-bearing, and the little boy whose mischievous proclivities led him to "chase the goose and kill the goslings," to break the windows and finally be sent back to the shelter in disgrace; peculiar complaints like that one which refused to keep a little girl because she was too quiet, and the yearning of a fifteen-year-old boy, for the "shanties." He wanted so badly to be sent back to the woods and learn to be a lumberman that he offered to forfeit his share in his dead mother's estate of $250 if his desire might be granted. And then there was the child whose privately kept expense account showed an inordinate fondness for liquorice sticks. And people like the woman who professed a great fondness for her young ward, but whose neighbors accused her of beating the girl at frequent intervals.

The children at the shelter are a healthy, happy-looking young brood. They have a fine big place to play in, and a garden to train in the fine weather, with some swings and a sand-pile for the kiddies. The Matron and Superintendent are kind and thoughtful and very popular with their young charges, and the Board of Management, without exception, is a conscientious body whose main thought seems to be a careful consideration for every phase of life of their adopted charges.

EVENING GOWN

The newest neckline for evening wear is shown in this frock of heavy black crepe metlesse. The narrow panels of the skirt, faced with white crepe and trimmed with flat flowers are a happy inspiration to break the severity of line. Ermine fur bands collar and arms.

FOLLY OF IMITATION.

To be as good as our fathers we must be better. Imitation is decipleship; when someone sent a cracked plate to China to have a set made, every piece in the new set had a crack in it.

—Wendell Phillips.

A Grand Bazaar

All arrangements are now in order for the grand bazaar to be held by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G. W. V. A. in their hall on Friday and Saturday of this week. The ladies have been busy for months making preparations for the event, and they have an immense number of useful and fancy articles on hand to furnish the different rooms into which the hall will be divided. This was the original idea and has been carried out by the committee in charge; to have a number of small rooms, representing an entire house, and sell in each room articles appropriate to their surroundings. There will be a kitchen, dining-room, den and living-room, a fortune-telling enclosure with gypsy attendants and a sale of flowers. In the kitchen there will be plenty of home-made bread, buns and cake, and there is a large quantity of embroidery, towels and underwear for sale. Afternoon tea will be served on both days, and there is a fish-pond for the juniors. An interesting feature will be a demonstration of basket-making by Mr. H. Lord, returned disabled veteran of the great war.

Household Hints

A banana has as much fuel value as an egg.

Use a granite kettle and wooden spoons for pickling.

Seal letters with the white of an egg and they cannot be steamed open.

Vegetable goulash can be canned and used when desired as a vegetable or in soups or stews.

Stockings will last longer if you sew a piece of ribbon three or four inches wide at the top where the supporters fasten.

To clean bath mix whiting with water. Rub it over the bath; rinse out thoroughly with warm water. Dry with a clean cloth.

If your range has a hot water reservoir, food can be kept hot by placing it in covered glass jars and setting in the hot water.

Deviled cheese is savory on crackers. Mix to a paste two cupfuls of grated cheese, one beaten egg, a pinch of salt, paprika, pepper, sauce and onion juice.

The paper from bolts of ribbon is just the thing for placing under organdie, crepe and other soft materials when sewing it, so there will not be puckering. Keep in the machine drawer where it will be handy.

A New Note in Education

Play takes such a prominent place in the life of a child that it is not surprising it should be made an increasingly prominent factor in school work. The kind of culture the schools are giving to our children is revealed in the holidays by the character of the amusements with which children provide themselves, and where singing and dancing, acting and rhythmic games are part of school work, and where the inside and outside occupations and games made an harmonious whole, the holiday period at home tends to become happier and pleasanter for all. As parents, too, take more and more interest in the school life of their children, co-operating with the teachers instead of standing aloof from them as critics, this also helps to make the holidays a more interesting as well as happier time.

A great number of experiments are being made all over England on the lines of what is called the "new freedom," which, being interpreted, means "the cultivation of inward as opposed to outward restraint." Of course, there still remain thousands of schools of the old rigid code-and-time-table type; there still remain schools where parents never know the real conditions; but these are steadily becoming fewer. The new experimentalists are elbowing out the old traditionalists, and the new methods require the co-operation of parents to make them succeed, and no longer separate the school and the home. Indeed, if the new methods are to be a real success the conditions of school and home must harmonize, and it is desired that parents should keep in close touch with the work of the classroom and even with the fun of the playground.

The new ideal in educations is to teach self-control and to aim at service, and this does not harmonize with the old practice of giving rewards for conduct or efficiency in the shape of marks and prizes and pocket-money. That kind of incentive is seen to degrade rather than to dignify those who are influenced by it. Yet it is parents rather than children who have to be converted to an appreciation of something better. The best teachers know they will have to wait for some parents to reach up to their own level in psychology, and the temptation before many teachers is to play down to the level of the parents' understanding. But the more the parents are drawn into co-operation, and the more interested they become, the better will the teacher be able to work. It is hard to make some parents see that certain occupations, like gardening, may have valuable effect in training character and in developing special faculties even where the boy or girl may never have a garden to cultivate; it is much easier to get them to understand that an unsuspected physical defect is causing mental deficiency! But through the obvious it is possible to lead on to the unseen, and the teacher must never lose hold of the fact that the aim of education is to make for completer living, to produce well-equipped citizens.

The simplest lessons in sociology as given to children are often just what parents themselves most need in order to make them understand that they, too, are creating a heritage which their children in turn will pass on, either nobled and improved, or cheapened and depraved. If to be able to give service as citizens becomes the aim the teacher has in helping the child to gain knowledge and understanding, the parents' co-operation should strengthen that aim by carrying the obligation to give at least as much as one receives into family and friendly relationships, from the elder to the younger, the debt of love and patience, of care and tenderness, being received from one generation and paid to the next.

In a volume just brought out by Methuen and Co., entitled "Educational Experiments in England," Mrs. Alice Woods gives an account of many experiments now being made in schools and communities, which show how psychology and education, working together, have put quite a new valuation on 'teaching"—so-called. She writes of the old methods with sorrow and regret: "We adults have decided from the outset what is good for the child, some of us with some insight into child-nature, others with none. . . . We have bound the child with creeds, conventions, and doctrines of adult-making. . . . We have thought it necessary to reward or punish continually in order to lead him into paths of righteousness, while all the time there is within him an inborn love of goodness which our systems fail-is to make use of the experience of the race and of ourselves, to let the child enter into his inheritance, and yet to set him free to make his own discoveries. Of old we did nothing but the first; and the modern tendency is to ignore our own findings altogether. We discover the happy medium. . . ." After describing many experiments, in the spirit of a sympathizer too experienced to be prejudiced one way or the other, Mrs. Woods is brought to the conclusion that "co-operation will be the prevailing law in all our educational work," and emphasizes its being "co-operation between the generations, and between the sexes as well as between parents and other educators, for it seems clear that we shall be nearer the ideal when parents and teachers are working closely together in a way possible only with day schools."

In the concluding pages of this delightful book we are reminded of something we too easily forget. "Those of us who lived through that wonderful September of 1914, when our whole nation was uplifted by a vision of future peace and righteousness, and for a while all jarring ceased, have learned an unforgettable lesson of the possibilities of human nature. The potentialities within us were for an all too brief period revealed to us. . . . We believed in the value of human nature." And she quotes Dr. Adler in corroboration of this: "Not individualism and not altruism is the satisfying doctrine. Not the good of self, nor the good of others apart, but a higher, over-arching good, to promote which is, alike, the highest good of self and of others."

These are some of the ideals which the new note in education brings to our minds at the opening of another year's work on behalf of, and with, our children.—L. H. Yates, in "The Queen"

About Women

"The Bystander" (London, Eng.) for Sept. 7th says:

Advantage of the Superfluous Woman.

Why is it that male commentators seem to be, for the most part, so perturbed about the excess of women over men revealed by the recent census? The women themselves, so far as I can see, are quite philosophical about it. This being so, I can see no reason for men professing any anxiety about the matter. For them, indeed, it should be a matter of self-congratulation. Do these men think that they would be more comfortable, or better off in any way, in a country where women were in a considerable minority? If so, let me assure them that they are making a great mistake. The individual importance of Smith, Brown, Jones and Robinson is enormously enhanced by what they so fatuously speak of as the "superfluity" of women.

"Lords of Creation."

How many of our Smiths' Browns, Joneses and Robinsons would be left to languish as wall-flowers in the ballroom of life if they were obliged strenuously to compete with the whole male world for the favour of one fair member of a small female minority? Believe me that lots of us who still flatter ourselves as being among the "Lords of Creation" would, in such conditions, have little of our "lordliness" left to us. As things are, we may still claim that Nature deems the male Briton as worthy of some margin of choice in this important matter. Nature, I see is considerate in this way also to Belgium, France and Italy—all allies in the Great War. But for a generation preceding the war she had been gradually depriving the males of the Central Empires, Germany and Austria-Hungary, of this privilege. In them the proportion of males to females was steadily rising.

The Best Women.

It is obvious that the healthy perpetuation of a race depends upon an ample female population. In their early days the ancient Romans had to help themselves from their conquered foes. Our way is better—let us have our own women, and lots of them. They are the best in the world.

A Novel Idea

A curious but successful experiment is being made on a number of private lawns in Kent, England, and is about to be tried by a golf club in the neighborhood of Greenhithe. The idea is the novel one of substituting the guinea pig for the mowing machine and the weed killer. Around the lawn a low wire barrier is arranged, and into the inclosure are turned a number of guinea pigs; or better, a passage is made from their hutch to the lawn. The animals at once attack all the worst weeds—the plantains first, then the dandelions and daisies. These broad-leaved plants, which no mowing machine will touch, are killed by the persistent cutting of the guinea pigs' teeth. When they have finished the weeds, which are broad-leaved and succulent, they proceed to the grass. In a short time the lawn looks as if it had been cut by the closest machine. The persistent cutting of the leaves kills the weeds, which can stand almost any other treatment, but does no harm to the grass.

TRADES COUNCIL ENDORSED TECHNICAL EDUCATION PLAN

DEPUTATION FROM BOARD OF EDUCATION DISCUSS PROPOSITION WITH TRADE UNION LEADERS — LABOR BODY WILLING TO CO-OPERATE.

PUBLIC MEETING SOON

Technical education in the city of Peterborough received the stamp of approval of the Trades and Labour Council last night. A sympathetic hearing was given a deputation from the Board of Education, and resolutions were passed, that the Council endorse technical education for Peterborough, and support the Board in their efforts to meet the situation satisfactorily. Also that a public meeting be called for open discussion by the ratepayers or the problem which confronts the Board of Education.

James E. Miller, Assistant Director of Technical Education, had been invited to attend last night's meeting and explain Peterborough's requirements in the way of a technical school, but he wrote that he could not attend, as he was severing his connection with the service to become, on 1st October, Professor of Education in Indiana. He said he was referring the request to Dr. Merchant, who is Director of Technical Education, and he enclosed (1) a copy of Dr. Merchant's last annual report, 2) a copy of recommendations and regulations, and (3) a copy of the new Vocational Education Act as passed at the last seshion of the Legislature.

Dr. Miller's letter was received.

Difference of Opinion.

President F. Mesley told Dr. Neal, Roland Denne, Mrs. W. R. Morris, and Inspector A. Mowat, representing the Board of Education, that the deputation had been invited to explain to the Council the situation in Peterborough in regard to establishing a technical school.

"There seems to be quite a difference of opinion on the needs of Peterborough for such school," he said.

"I, being chairman, cannot state what the Board of Education will say in regard to technical education," replied Dr. Neal. "I feel, however, that Peterborough needs technical education, as every city does."

Dr. Neal said he favoured, because of the Board having to confine itself to as low an expenditure as possible, having a technical extension to the Collegiate Institute. He pointed out how the Adolescent Act requires boys from 14 to 16 who are working to put in 200 hours a year in vocational training, and he believed they might as well go full time to a technical school.

It was not known yet how great the demand for accommodation would be, and for this reason the Board's chairman thought it would be in the interests of citizens to have the Technical Department associated with the Collegiate at first.

Taxpayers the Jury.

While considering the needs of the boys and girls, Dr. Neal reminded the Council that the taxpayers constitute the jury judging the case. Hamilton had had difficulty in getting adequate attendance, and for this reason he advised only a modest beginning here.

Ald. Joseph Crowe asked if the Principal of the Collegiate would have control over the technical part or if a new head would have to be secured. He was informed that there would be only one Principal over both departments, with a staff in charge of the Technical Department under him.

Dr. Neal said half of his salary would be paid by the Government.

A Sane Proposition.

After hearing letters from the principals of various schools, telling of their success or failure, with the President for the information of the Council, R. Denne commended the proposed technical extension to the Collegiate Institute for the Council's approval as the most sane way to surmount the cost difficulty with a minimum expenditure.

The Collegiate is now so crowded that 110 pupils in the Commercial Classes are accommodated in South Central School, besides Primary Classes, he said. If this building is crowded now, what will it be when the Act requires large numbers of adolescents to attend school?

Mr. Denne here asked the Council if the most reasonable plan to supply greater accommodation at the Collegiate and also room for a technical department was not to build an extension to the school. This extension was needed, he pointed out, if the city is to be the educational centre for the district. If there were 400 children here from the county going to school, it meant considerable, financially, to the community. "If we're going ahead industrially, we must go ahead educationally," he concluded.

Get Boys When Young.

Arthur Sharpe, one of the delegates, commended technical education. "You've got to get the boy when he's young. He'll improve then. The people are not educated up to this yet. I think, perhaps, we had better start an educational campaign first. It's the man who can't afford to send his boys to college who is going to benefit," he declared.

T. H. Lane, who temporarily filled the vice-president's chair, supported the plan as outlined. An extension to the Collegiate was required, and would allow of freedom of change, if necessary.

Extension Needed.

It is necessary to increase the accommodation at the Collegiate because the Department is contemplating, Dr. Neal said, allowing Collegiate Institutes to give one or two years' University training to relieve the congestion at Toronto. It is important, he continued, that Peterborough be ready to provide this additional instruction.

Only One Course.

In a concise manner, Mrs. W. R. Morris presented the case for technical education, and made a very favourable impression. As a member of the Advisory Committee to the Board of Education on Technical Education, she said there had been only one course of action open to the committee after Dr. Miller made his favourable report. A technical school was recommended, but the members of the committee saw that if the Board wanted an extension to the Collegiate, a compromise would have to be reached.

Mrs. Morris said the London school was filled from cellar to garret, according to Dr. Merchant. Brantford tried to get a school, but failed to pass a by-law in that regard, because the school taxation is at present very high. London school, she said, had in attendance 150 greater than last year, because of the Adolescent Act. Windsor is planning a large school, and Ottawa is seeking a way to increase their accommodation.

Enforce Act.

While there will be some leniency the first year, Dr. Merchant had informed Mrs. Morris, the Adolescent Act will be strictly enforced.

Praised the Scheme.

Mrs. Morris praised technical education, but pointed out that academic work was also required in connection with the educational plan, so that mental as well as mechanical development follows. Commercial classes should be held in the technical department, and the Government would contribute 50 per cent. of the equipment and not less than 50 per cent. of salaries. If a gymnasium were maintained in connection, a grant of 25 or 50 per cent. of its equipment would be made, and also assistance in paying the instructor's salary.

"It would work out most reasonably for us," said Mrs. Morris, "and I hope the people will only see it that way."

Night Studies.

Dr. Neal pointed out that the rooms would be used at night for vocational training. Mr. Denne was of the opinion that the ratepayers would support the extension to the Collegiate.

Labour Members.

That there were none of Labour's nominees on the Advisory Committee, Dr. Neal said, was because of the committee having been struck before the Board knew of its composition, and he denied personal knowledge of the Trades Council's recommendation to this effect.

Ald. Crowe and Treasurer T. Darrah asked about the representatives they should have had. The Act called for three representatives of employers and three of employees.

Mr. Denne remarked that there was no intention to ignore the Council's request.

These nominations were made at the suggestion of Mr.: J. W. Worth, Mr. Lane said.

Mrs. Morris commended the Toronto system, where, as a matter of courtesy, the Council nominates the three Labour members, and Mr. Worth likely had a similar idea in mind for Peterborough, she concluded.

Endorsed Project.

On the motion of Ald. Crowe, a vote of thanks was extended to the members of the Board, and another resolution was also adopted that the Council endorse and support the Board in their policy of technical education.

Dr. Neal replied that they appreciated this co-operation.

Another motion, moved by T. H. Lane, and adopted, was that a public meeting, as mentioned, be held soon, so that an open discussion of the question by the ratepayers can take place.

United Farm Young People

The Peterboro Branch of the United Farm Young People of Ontario held their regular monthly meeting in the U.F.O. Rooms on Simcoe street on Tuesday evening of this week. Members of the local branches of the U.F.O. and U.F.W.O. were their guests.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "O Canada" followed by the reading and adoption of the minutes of the last meetig. The response to the roll call was in the form of current events, mostly dealing with the activity in political circles.

Instructive Address

Mr. F. C. McRae, agricultural representative, then gave a very instructive address on The Results of Prof. Leitch's Farm Survey. He impressed his audience with the fact that many farmers are prone to believe they are making a profit, whereas they are not even making the interest on their investment. He pointed out that the extent of a farmer's investment was the original cost of his farm, plus the cost of his machinery, depreciation on machinery, cost of buildings and depreciation on same, and the value of all his farm stock. Therefore each year a farmer has to make at least 5 per cent. on his investment before he can claim to be getting a cent for his own labor and that of his family. Farmers with poor farms and poor cattle who were not making 5 percent. interest on their investment would be as far ahead financially if they invested their money in some thing else and stopped work. Prof. Leitch's survey included fruit growing, dairying, stock raising and grain growing farms, in the Niagara Peninsula and in the Counties of Middlesex, Oxford ad Durham. It showed that no matter in what branch of farming a man engaged, the profits were practically the same as those of a man engaged in any other branch. It showed also that the farmer's income depended more upon the class of stock he kept than upon the difference in crops.

Stock Judging

Before closing his address, Mr. McRae referred to the county stock-judging competition to be held on October 20th. The prizes range from $15 to $1, fifty dollars of this prize money being contributed for this purpose by the East Peterborough County U.F.O. executive. Peterboro U. F. Y. P. O. boys expect to enter this competition. At 9.00 a.m. on Oct. 20th., they will judge dairy cattle at the farm of C. E. Moore, Smith township, horses and swine will be judged at the farm of Wm. Roberts and Sons, and beef cattle at M. E. Smithson's farm in Otonabee.

Mr. A. A. Powers, manager of the United Farmers Co-operative company, was present, and in a short but exceedingly interesting address showed how all tariff charges were ultimately paid by the farmer.

Mr. J. C. Campbell, candidate of the National Progressive Party in the West Peterboro bye-election, in a short address, complimented the club upon their success along educational and social lines.

During the evening, Mr. Jas. C. Petrie rendered a humorous song and Miss Mildred Archer gave two splendid readings.

A pleasant hour, which took the form of a pie social, finished a very enjoyable evening. The refreshments of coffee and pie of many varieties, in charge of Messrs. Harvey Webber, Stanley Cann and the Misses Mabel Grant, Alberta Fowler and Mildred Archer, were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The U.F.W.O. members present extended a hearty invitation to the Young People to visit the U.F.W.O. at their next meeting.

The following programme was arranged for the next meeting to be held in the U.F.O. rooms on Tuesday, Nov. 1st at 8:15 p.m.

1 Response to the Roll Call with Current Events.

2. Readings of the Club Paper—Short articles to be contributed by members.

3. Debate: Resolved: That a college education is not necessary for a successful farmer. Miss Mildred Archer and Mr. H. A. Quinn taking the affirmative and Miss Mabel Grant and Mr. Melville Scott, the negative.

4. Paper on "Economics" by Mr. Harry McKee.

6. Recitation: Miss Aberta Fowler

7. Hallowe'en Festivities—Games, Lunch, etc.

This, the first November meeting, will again be an opening meeting, to which U.F.O. and U.F.W.O. members are invited.

BLACK AND TANS ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN DISORDERLY

CORK, Oct. 6.—(United Press.)—Black and Tans, many of them alleged to have been drunk, are alleged by inhabitants of Dunmanway to have caused reign of terror, reminiscent of pre-armistice days, in the County Cork village last night. Volleys were poured down the streets, houses entered and civilians maltreated and one man killed, according to eye witnesses. The Crown forces say they were first fired on from the town.

YANKS COCKY AFTER SHUTOUT WIN; GIANTS' SPIRIT NOT BROKEN YET; BETTING FAVORS YANKEES 10 TO 7

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, October 5. — "There are some more games," quoth the Giants.

"Winning five games is almost a week's work," saith the Yanks.

They're both at it again to-day.

The Yanks were cocky to-day. From Babe Ruth down to little Banjo Bennett, they all felt the title within their grasp following their 3 to 0 victory on the first game of the World Series.

When New York learned with amazement of the thousands of empty seats during the opener yesterday, she prepared to move out to-day within the shelter of Coogan's great bluff.

Forty thousand, a full house, was expected for the second game this afternoon.

Waite Hoyt, the pink-faced Brooklyn High School boy, was ready to pitch for the Yanks, while Art Nehf, the Perdue southpaw, was waiting for the call from McGraw.

After their shut-out victory yesterday in the opener, the Yanks jumped from an even money choc to a ten to seven favourite to-day.

The fans showed by their attitude yesterday that the big town is with the Yanks, and there was more indication of the same sentiment this morning in the betting.

The Giants were badly whipped yesterday, but they didn't heave a hangover this morning.

"Hand it to the Yanks. They played our game and beat us at it; but it's only the first game. We might look pretty good ourselves," Manager McGraw said.

"The boys are feeling fine, and Mays figures he could pitch every day. That's the spirit of the whole club. But the Series has hardly started," Manager Huggins of the Yanks said.

OSHAWA LOST NERVE IN THE BIG SERIES

The Oshawa ball club can hardly expect to receive the congratulations of the other teams of the Central League cricuit on their record in the two games played with the Hillcrests. It is the poorest showing the Central League has made in the O.B.A.A. semi-finals since the League was organized, as Belleville won the title two years ago and the Petes made Hamilton go three hard games for the championship last year. It seems to have been simply a case of lost nerve on the part of the Oshawa outfit. They could not stand the pressure of the big series and were miles below their Central League form in both games. They would never have won the pennant in President Kimmel's circuit with the quality of ball they dished up against the Hillcrests, and the exhibition they gave on their own grounds was a bitter pill for the scores of fans from all over the Central League who gathered at Oshawa to see the battle. When it comes to Ontario honours Oshawa teams seem to be poor stretch runners, the lacrosse and baseball outfits both faltering at the wire.

CANADIAN WOOLLENS' TEAM FOR SATURDAY

The players on Saturday next, October 8th, will be as follows:

Goal, Hillman; backs, Chambers and Crowe; half-backs, Cridland, Frost, Roberts; forwards, Lomax, Gaskill H. Jones, J. Shaw, Downes. Reserves, Swan, Shuttle.

MISS LEITCH ELIMINATED

BRITISH CHAMPION DEFEATED BY MRS. LETTS, CHICAGO, ONE UP

DEAL, N.J., Oct. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Play for the United States' women's golf championship on the Hollywood links here yesterday reached its dramatic climax when Miss Cecil Leitch, British, Canadian and French champion, to whom the prize of the tournament had been practically conceded before the qualifying round, was defeated by Mrs. F. G. Letts, Jr., of Chicago, one up.

Miss Leitch met disaster on the home green, and so unexpected was the denouement that the gallery was silent for a moment before it remembered to acclaim the victor. The feature match of the day was a battle royal. Mrs. Letts lost the first three holes and picked up at one of them. She was two down at the turn. From that point on, however, the Chicago woman, who is a former western champion, gave a remarkable exhibition of grit. Although outdriven by the British girl, her steady putting enabled Mrs. Letts to reach the home green all even with her poponent.

Then came the tug-of-war. Each of their balls lay on the green about 40 feet from the pin. Miss Leitch over-ran by about 15 feet, with her approach put, while Mrs. Letts was short by about ten feet. Miss Leitch mised her next put and walked away disconsolately. Mrs. Letts held the second put for a par four.

Graceful even in defeat, the British champion clasped her successful rival's hand warmly and congratulated her. Then several other Chicago players lifted Mrs. Letts to their shoulders and carried her to the club house.

"I had a wonderful opponent, who didn't crack." In these words Miss Leitch later explained her defeat.

Chances of the championship going to the British delegation are still serious, although the elimination of Miss Cecil Leitch has removed the most dangerous contender. Miss Edith Leitch, her sister, displayed the best approaching and putting of the tournament by defeating the clever Miss Mildred Gaverley, four and three. Her recoveries and her chips from traps dead to the pin amazed the gallery. At one trap Edith played practically in the footprints of her noted sister and succeeded where she failed.

Mrs. Latham Hall, who is competing as a representative of Mid-Surrey, England, increased respect for her ability by defeating Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago, the western champion, five and three.

Miss Alexa Stirling, who is defending the title, had no difficulty in defeating the gray-haired veteran, Mrs. Caleb Fox, of Philadelphia, five and four, but the champion's golf disappointed her admirers.

BENEFIT GAME AT RIVERSIDE ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Fans are reminded that the benefit game for Roy Cherrett, the Peterboro shortstop, will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, with the C. G. E. team opposing the Central League outfit. It is interesting to note that Saturday's testimonial is to be played on the anniversary of one of the most sensational plays that Cherrett has pulled off. Just a year ago Saturday the Petes were battling the Hamilton Plowites at the Riverside Park, and Cherertt won the game in the 11th innings by scoring from second on Murray's tap to second baseman Reaume of the Hamilton crew. Reaume fielded the drive cleanly and had his arm drawn back ready to throw Murray out at first, when he realized that Cherrett instead of stopping at third was sprinting for the plate. By the time he shifted his throw to the counting station, Cherrett was close enough to the disk to elude Cumpson, the Ham's catcher, with a hook slide, and the Petes had won 2 to 1. Recollection of that and similar plays should result in a big crowd of fans out on Saturday to honour the Petes' infielder.

MEMBERSHIP OF P.A.A.A. GROWING

EVERY PROSPECT OF 500 MEMBERS BY END OF THIS WEEK

Officers and other workers on the P. A. A. A. drive listened to some splendid reports at the meeting of the Association held last night at the Y. M.C.A. Three hundred paid up members were reported, and prospects were said to be good for a membership of five hundred by the end of the week. Fifteen honorary members were reported.

It appears to be simply a matter of the workers getting the time to cover the ground. The response by the public has been splendid.

Greybirds' Good Season.

At a meeting of the Lindsay Baseball Club, it was decided to publish a financial statement. The Post says: The financial report was presented. It will be published in to-morrow's Post. The citizens will be glad to learn that the club came out on the right side of the ledger. In fact the money collected from citizens at the first of the season can be all banked for next year's team. This excellent condition of affairs exists despite the fact that more money was spent on the diamond, etc., than ever before. Truly, the Lindsay Ball Club is a great and growing institution.

Winners' Big Margin.

The baseball winners yesterday all piled up lopsided scores. Yankees beat Giants 3 to 0, and slipped in a steal home. Louisville, American Association champs, overwhelmed Baltimore by 16 to 1. Hillcrests hit Patton's offerings at will and won the semi-finals series with Oshawa by 12 to 2, getting seven runs in the fifth. At Guelph, Hamilton Plowites were eliminated from the O.B.A.A. senior division, the Leafs making it 20 to 2. In Toronto, Hebrew Lits put Milliken on the shelf, the count being 11 to 7.

McCarney With C.G.E.

Canadian Generals have good weather for their game in Picton to-day. Chris. McCarney made the trip and will likely do the hurling for the locals. According to a report, this winner will be sent against Hebrew Litson Saturday.

GROUPING FOR CURLING TANKARD

On October 19th., the Ontario Curling Association will in annual session, vote on, a proposition that the primary round of the Ontario Tankard be played in four groups instead of sixteen. A motion to this effect has been made by G. H. Giroux. The suggestion has been made that to accomplish this a winner be declared in every four groups, which brings the competiton down to four winners for the Tankard finals.

The official plan of grouping for Ontario Tankard is:—

Group No. 3—Bobcaygeon, Cannington, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Millbrook Norwood Peterboro. Play at Lindsay. Umpire J. D. Flavelle.

District No. 2—Group A—Bobcaygeon Cannington, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay. Play at Lindsay. Umpire—W. E. Ressor. Group B—Keene, Lakefield, Millbrook, Norwood, Peterboro. Play at Peterboro. Umpire—R. M. Waddell. (Final to be played at time and place named by Secretary of the O.C.A.)

JUNIOR RUNNERS WORK-OUT TO-NIGHT

The junior runners will have a workout to-night and Charlie Thorpe, who is coaching them, asks for a full line-up when he starts them off. On Monday 20 of them came through a two-mile sprint in good condition. That was a stiff test, as also will be the run to-night. The spirit of the juniors is splendid, says their coach, and next week there will be three try-outs. Some of the seniors are beginning to show an interest. "Jim" McMartin is going into training and several other vetefans have mentioned entering the coming senior contests.

The "Y" is enthusiastically supporting the road race, and its doors are open to all runners, whether members or not.

Juniors, remember to-night's run.

GOOD DUCK SHOOTING.

Out on Pigeon Lake there is a fine harvest of ducks for gunners, according to William Knott, veteran guide, who has been showing Americans staying at Kawartha Inn where they can bring down the plump ones.

Guide Knott declared that there were more ducks on Pigeon Lake than he had seen in years, although there were no extraordinary numbers at Chemong. All the Americans have been getting good bags, and if any Peterborough gunners want to be shown a real shooting ground the Indian guide asks them to get in touch with him at the village.

The Yankees on Paper

By the United Press)

ELMER MILLER, center fielder. Miller was purchased by the Yanks from the Mobile Club in July 1915 He was released to the Baltimore Club under option early in 1916 and later recalled. He was a regular with the Yanks in 1917, and up to July 1918 when he entered the army. In April, 1919, he was released by the Yanks to the St. Paul Club of the American Association, where he developed into one of the heaviest hitters on the circuit with a batting average of .314 in 1919 and .333 in 1920. His fielding average was .966. On August 5, of the present season he was purchased by the Yankees.

ROGER PECKINPAUGH, one of the best shortstops in the major leagues, was born in Wooster, Ohio, in 1891. He first attracted attention while playing in the Cleveland City League in 1909. The following season he was taken on by the Indians as a utility man, but was released under option to the New Haven Club of the Connecticut League. He was recalled in 1911 and then turned back to Portland in the Pacific Coast League. He was recalled again in 1912. In 1914 he was traded to the Yankees for Strang and Lelivelt, acting as manager from September 12 to the close of the season. He had his best batting year in 1919, when he hit .305. He is a brilliant fielder and one of the smartest players in the game. He bats and throws right handed. His home is in Cleveland.

ROBERT WILLIAM MEUSEL, right fielder, the best thrower in the major leagues and one of the best natural hitters, was born in San Jose, California, July 19, 1897. He started as a first baseman for Spokane and batted .311. He jumped into prominence as a third baseman with Vernon in 1919, when his batting earned for him the title of the "Babe Ruth of the Pacific Coast League." He came with the Yanks in 1920, where he alternated as a third baseman and outfielder and batter .328. Only a rather lazy and listless nature prevents Meusel from being one of the greatest stars of the game. He is fast, has a wonderful arm and is a heavy batter. He is erratic in the field, careless on the bases and at times totally indifferent. He stands 6 feet 2½ inches, bats right handed. His home is in Los Angeles.

WALTER PIPP, first baseman, was born in Grand Rapids Mich. in 1893. He started his career with Georgetown University, where he played for two years. In 1910 he played with a semi-pro team in Hastings, Mich., and then went to Kalamazoo in the Southern Michigan League in 1911 and part of 1912, when he was sold to Detroit. He was released in 1913 to Providence in the Eastern League late in the season to Scranton. Detroit recalled him in 1914 and then turned him over to Rochester in the International League. He was sold to the Yankees in 1915 for the waiver price, to get the club up to strength. He has held first base continually since then. He had his best batting year in 1918, when he finished with an average of .304. Pipp is a good steady player and a dangerous hitter. He is a better player than he is generally credited with being. He throws and bats left handed, is 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 180 pounds. His home is in Grand Rapids.

AARON L. WARD, second baseman, is twenty-four years of age. He was purshased by the Yankees from the Charleston, S. C. club in June, 1917. He reported to the club in July of that year and has been on the roster ever since. He entered the army in 1918, but was mustered out in time to rejoin the club for the 1919 season. He was handicapped by illness and injury in the 1920 season, but in spite of it, he developed into one of the best fielding infielders in the American League. He is not consistently a hard hitter but he is always dangerous. He starred at third base, but was shifted over to second, where he made just as good. He is 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs 165 pounds. He bats and throws right handed. His home is in Fort Smith Ark.

FRANKLIN J. BAKER, star third baseman of the famous Athletics and former "home-run king" of the major leagues was born in Trappe, Md., March 13, 1886. After three years spent in semi-pros he became a member of the Athletics in 1909, where he was a bright hitting and fielding star until 1915 when he had personal differences and refused to play any more with the team. He spent 1915 in the semi-pro ranks with Upland, Md. In 1916 the Yankees purchased his contract for a reported sum of $25,000. In the winter his wife died and he remained away from baseball for a year. Early in 1921 he was prevailed upon to return to the Yankees and after being reinstated by Commissioner Landis, he went back to third er and a dangerous hitter, shraoese place, where he played in old-time form. Baker has lots of his old speed, but he is still a reliable fielder and a dangerous hitter. His work at third place steadied the infield and was a prominent factor in smoothing some of the friction that was keeping the Yankees down in the race. Baker farms during the winter and is one of the finest characters in baseball. He throws right handed and bats left handed. is 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs 173 pounds. His home is near Tranne Md.

FRED HOFFMAN, catcher, is one of the younger members of the club. He is 22 years of age and comes from St. Louis. The Yanks bought him in 1919 from St. Paul of the American Association. He hadn't finished a hitch in the navy and did not report until the spring of 1920. In fifteen games last year he batted .292

AL DeVORMER became the second string catcher of the club in his first season on the big time. The Yanks got him from the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast League, where he starred for two years. He batted .242 last season and fielded .976. His home is in Grand Rapids. He is regarded as one of the best young catchers in the game.

BOBBY ROTH, utility outfielder, is the most traveled player in the American League. He has worn six big time uniforms. He broke in with Racine in 1911 as an outfielder and went to Kansas City in 1912. The White Sox bought him in 1913 and then sent him to Cleveland in the Joe Jackson deal. He was with the Sox three seasons and then went to the Atheletics. He went to Boston then in the Jack Barry deal and later to Washington, coming to the Yanks this year. Roth had trouble with his legs this year and spent practically the entire season on the bench. He is 28 years of age and lives in Burlington, Wis.

NELSON HAWKS, utility outfielder, is 22 years of age and comes from San Francisco. The Yanks bought him from Calgary, where he batted .359 last year. He is six foot tall and weighs 175 pounds. He bats and throws right handed.

MIKE McNALLY, third baseman, proved himself a useful person to the Yanks this year. When Huggins secured him in a trade with the Boston Red Sox, the fans wondered what would be done with him. However, when Frank Baker's legs went bad, McNally stepped in and not only played the most brilliant baseball of his career. McNally is 27 years of age. He had a long career in the minors and came to the Red Sox as a seasoned player, but his weak stick-work kept him from getting a regular berth. He is a flashy fielder and has been hitting hard and timely with the Yanks. He is 5 feet 11 inches in height, weighs 155 pounds and bats and throws right handed. His home is in Scranton, Pa.

WAITE C. HOYT, first string hurler, is the veteran "kid" of the major leagues. Although but twenty two years of age he has had six years' service in the major leagues. He was born in Brooklyn, September 9, 1899. The Giants picked him off the Brooklyn High School nine in 1916 and then farmed him out to Mt. Carmel of the Pennsylvania State League. When the league failed he went to Hartford, and then to Lynn. The Giants recalled him in 1917, and then turned him over to Memphis in the Southern Association. He finished the 1917 season with Montreal in the International League and then came back to the Giants in 1918. He finished the season with Nashville and Newark, and in 1919 came back to the Giants, only to be released to Rochester. He went from there to New Orleans. In 1919 he bobbed up with the Boston Red Sox, where he stayed until this spring, when he was traded with Wally Schang, McNally and Harper for Pratt, Ruel Vick and Thornnahlen. He was not expected to do much with the Yankees, but he developed in mid-season to one of the best hurlers on the staff. He is 5 feet 11½ inches in height and weighs 100 pounds. He throws and bats right handed. His home is in Brooklyn.

HARRY C. HARPER is the only southpaw on the Yankee pitching staff. He was born in Hackensack, N. J., April 24, 1895. He broke into the major leagues with Washington, but only acted as relief pitcher in five games. In 1915, Washington released him to Minneapolis, but recalled him in 1916. He remained with the Senators until after the 1919 season, when he was traded to Boston. He came to the Yankees last winter in the big deal with Hoyt Schang and McNally for Pratt, Ruel Vick and Thormahlen. He has never been much more than a .500 performer. He has almost been useless to the Yanks all season, as he broke a finger early in the season and was laid up until mid-season. He bats left handed, is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 198 pounds.

ALEX FERGUSON, one of the young hurlers, was born twenty-three years ago in Bloomfield, N. J. While pitching for a sem-pro club in his home town, he was signed by the Yanks in September, 1916. He was farmed out for development in 1917 and spent 1918 in the army. He was sent to Toledo in 1919 and to the Jersey City Club of the International in 1920, where he won 21 games and lost 13. He batted .260 and fielded .947. The Yanks recalled him in September, 1920. He is 6 feet 2 inches in height, weighs 165 pounds and lives in Bloomfield.

JOHN J. QUINN is the veteran of the Yankee club. He was born in Haseltown, Pa. July 5, 1885. He broke into baseball in 1903, and after a five-year cruise through the semi-pros and minors he came to the Yankees, where he was released to Rochester in the International League. He spent 1913 with the Boston Braves and went back to Rochester in the International. He pitched for Baltimore in the Federal League in 1014 and 1915 and then went to Vernon in the Pacific Coast League for three years. He returned to the Yanks in 1919. Last year he was one of the best pitchers in the league until mid-season, when his arm went back on him. He still has a few good games left in him. He is a hard worker. He is 6 feet tall, weighs 196 pounds and lives in Chicago.

THOMAS A. ROGERS is one of the late newcomers to the Yanks. He is a right-handed hurler, who was purchased from Buffalo in August, this year. With Buffalo last year he won 14 out of 29 games, and up to the time of his transfer this year had won 13 and lost 8 games. He is 25 years old, 6 feet ¼ inch tall, and weighs 190 pounds. He broke into professional baseball in 1914 with Nashville. He had a trial with the St. Louis Americans, and joined the army in 1918. He was with the Athletics in 1919.

WILSON FEWSTER, utility infielder and outfielder, is twenty-five years of age, and was born in Baltimore, where he started his professional baseball career in 1917. He was purchased by the Yankees late in the season of the same year. He voluntarily retired in 1518 to engage in "essential employment" and rejoined the club for the 1919 season. He played in 81 games, batted .283 and fielded .946. During a preseason exhibition game in the spring of 1920, with Brooklyn, he was hit on the head by one of Jeff Pfeffer's fast balls and sustained a fractured skull. Following an operation he returned to the club, but played only in 21 games, batting .286 and fielding .973. He was switched to the outfield in the early part of the 1921 race, but was not physically strong enough to play regularly and was displaced in favor of Miller. He is 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs 156 pounds. He bats, and throws right handed and lives in Baltimore.

WALTER H. SCHANG, first string catcher, was born in Wales, N. Y., August 22, 1889. He started his baseball career with the Pullman team in the Baltimore City League, where he caught in 1910 and 1911. He went with Buffalo in the International League in 1912 and went to the Philadelphia Athletics in the 1913 draft. In 1915 he became versatile and was used by the Athletics behind the bat, on third and in the outfield. In the winter of 1917 he was sold to the Red Sox along with Bush and Strunk, for $60,000, and Gregg, Thomas and Kopp. Last winter he was traded to New York. He is 5 feet 9½ inches tall, and weighs 185 pounds.

CARL W. MAYS, the only underhand pitcher in the major leagues and one of the best of the Yankee pitching staff, was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1891. He had his first real trial in 1913, with Portland, and after two seasons there, went to Providence. He joined the Boston Red Sox in 1915, winning 24 out of 32 games. Starting in 1917, he became one of the most effective pitchers in the American League. In the middle of the 1919 season, he jumped the Red Sox, claiming he could not win with the club. He was sold to the Yankees for a reported price of $345,000. Ban Johnson, president of the American League, suspended him indefinitely, and the Yankee owners went into a court and secured an injunction. A bitter factional fight resulted, which later almost caused the disruption of the league. Mays again figured in the limelight over the unfortunate Ray Chapman incident. In the hottest part of the 1920 race, Mays hit Chapman in the head with a pitched ball and killed him. Some of the American League players started a "black-list" on him but the trouble was smoothed over. Mays is a hard worker, but is inclined to be openly critical of his defence when errors are made behind him. He is 5 feet 10½ inches in height, weighs 175 pounds, and pitches and bats right handed. His home is in Mansfield, Mo.

ROBERT F. SHAWKEY, known popularly as "Bob the Gob," is one of the Yankee pitching aces and for several years one of the leading pitchers of the league. He was born in Brookville, Pa., December 4, 1890. He started his professional career in 1911 with Harrisburg in the Tri-State League. From there he went to the Athletics, but was released almost immediately to Baltimore, where he remained until the middle of the 1913 season, when he was recalled to the Athletics. He was traded to the Yankees in the middle of the 1915 season. In 1918 he enlisted in the navy and returned and to the Yankees in 1919. Shawkey has always been an effective pitcher. In seven years of major league experience he has never allowed an average of more than a fraction over three and one-half runs a game. Shawkey is a willing worker and is on the field every day knocking them out in batting practice. He was bothered with a sore arm this year, and was not as consistently effective as in the past two years. He is 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighs 175 pounds and throws and bats right handed. His home is in Philadelphia.

WARREN H. COLLINS, also "Rip" and "Two Gun," is one of the first string hurlers. He was born in Weatherford, Texas, on February 26, 1897. He broke into professional baseball with the Dallas club of the Texas League and pitched there for five years. He came to the Yanks in 1920 and won 14 out of 23 games. He was expected to become one of the best pitchers of the 1921 season, but he developed a sore arm and did not live up to form. He is 6 feet 1 inch inheight, weighs 205 pounds. He throws and bats right handed. His home is in Austin, Texas.

"SEMI-READY WEEK" AT THORNTON'S SEMI-READY SHOP

EXPOSITION OF THE WONDER-FITTING PHYSIQUE TYPE SYSTEM EXEMPLIFIED IN GENUINE SEMI-READY CLOTHES.

Commencing on Monday next, Thornton Brothers will conduct a Fashion and Fitting Exposition of the Semi-ready Tailoring system. He will be aided by members of the the Semi-ready Tailoring system, bring with them a complete and comprehensive exhibition of garments to fit every man of every physique type — a large stock of suits and overcoats such as few stores can afford to carry.

There will be suits for everybody —including the Goliaths among men.

The display will not be confined to the higher priced materials, but will include pure woollens at $25 and $30. There will be British navy blue serges in pure woot at the latter figure.

It will be proven beyond doubt that there is no man who cannot be perfectly fitted in a Semi-ready shop.

It will also be demonstrated that with quality of work, no manufacturer or merchant can offer such splendid values in suits or overcoats.

During the whole period of soaring prices the Semi-ready tailors stuck to their policy of putting the price in the pocket, a price based on the cost of the cloth. No man or merchant could possibly profiteer with Semi-ready clothes. The suits shown are to-day's goods at to-day's prices—and one can have a replica of any garment tailored to special measure in five days.

RUGBY GAME IS POSTPONED

On account of their inability to get gorunds the Collegiate Rugby team has postponed its game with Belleville scheduled for Saturday, the schedule having been re-arranged to suit the local team. The Collegiate crew had a good practice last night and will be in the best of shape for their first game.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The first game at the Oval on Satday is called for 2 p.m., between the Canadian Woollens and G.W.V.A. Mr. Howarth will officiate. These teams played a drawn game two weeks ago, so Saturday's fixture promises to be exciting.

The second game is called for 3.30 p.m. This match is between the Comrades and C.G.E. The Comrades team has gained considerable strength, and are confident of victory over the Electricians on Saturday. Mr. McKinley will handle this game.

FRENCH OPPOSE PLAN.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press)—French writers assert that the proposed plan that France enter the Washington Conference prepared to bargain with the United States relative to mutual responsibilities in the Pacific and Europe would not be carried to consummation.

MISS TALMADGE BRINGS TWO STAGE PLAYS TO SCREEN

which is directed by Victor Fleming, is now featured at the Allen Theatre. The screen adaptation was made by John Emerson and Anita Loos and is released as a First National Attraction. With the exception of Kenneth Harlan, the cast is composed of those who originally created the individual parts in the Broadway production, including Effie Shannon, Katherine Kaelred, George Le Guere and Gertrude Le Brandt.

Without a single day's vacation in between Constance has already begun work on her next picture, "The Man from Toronto," which will be the first of a series of two of three comedies to be directed by Chet Withey. "The Man from Toronto" is adapted for the screen by Grant Carpenter, from Douglas Murry's three-act play of the same name. his play was produced in New York by Henry Miller, under the title of "Perkins," and is still running in England under its original name, "The Man from Toronto." Kenneth Harlan will be seen as Miss Talmadge's leading man, and others who have important parts are Geo. Fawcett, James Harrison, Flora Finch W. R. Webb and Florence Short.

AT THE CAPITOL.

STRONG CHARACTER IN TRANSFORMATION REVEALED IN "FOOTLIGHTS"

Transforming an American girl, reared in a simple New England town, to a pampered Russian actress, is every bit as hard as it sounds. In "Footlights" a Paramount picture starring Elsie Ferguson coming to the Capitol today, this developement is shown step by step.

Lizzie Parsons, the American girl, as played by Elsie Ferguson, took two years of complete isolation and hard study to accomplish the feat. Her entire life had to be changed. She had to surround herself with Russian servants and teachers. Instead of simple American food, she had to acquire a taste for herrings. For coffee, she learned to drink tea, mixed with lemon and whiskey, without sugar, and she had to replace her after-dinner apple with cigarettes. The hardest sacrifice that she had to make was when her little kitten was taken away as being too American and she was given a monkey, an animal she loathed to make a pet of.

But Lizzie Parsons succeeds, as only an American girl can succeed, in the transformation. Her sham is not discovered even by Russians. Elsie Ferguson who is starring in the picture brings the role of a keen interpretation. Reginald Denny is leading man and others in the cast include Marc MacDermott and Octavia Handworth.

This splendid big 7 reel production a two reel Mack Sennett comedy "Loves Outcast" with Gen Turpin as the featured comedy star. The balance of the program is well selected, the music always good, the seats comfortable and the air always fresh and clear, the vaudeville acts the best to be obtained—in fact the Capitol is the Ideal family theatre of Peterboro. Fan, Fan.

AT THE GRAND.

CHARLEY'S AUNT LAUGHING HIT

The elaborate revival of the most charming of comedies, "Charley's Aunt" for a coast to coast tour of the larger cities, brought up a discussion recently in the Lambs Club of New York, as to the reasons for its great popularity, for the play had shown a verility that promises to equal "Rip Van Winkly" "The Old Homestead" and 'The Music Master.' It was finally agreed that it was due to its capacity to please more different kinds of people than any other play, combined with the advertising that it received from back which is English speaking was the best seller for from three to five, and still books, regardless of how small the stock may be.

As a play its rich and continuous humor please the men who wish to go to the theatre for a hearty laugh, the thoughtful mothers find the problem which "Charley's Aunt" (from Brazil) had to face a most appealing study, the young man and his girl and the young husband and his wife find the heart interest which surrounds Donna Lucia a sweet romance.

A large company of character players carefully selected for their parts constitute one of the best comedy orginizations on the road today.

"Charley's Aunt" will be presented at the Grand Opera House, Matinee and night on Saturday next, October 8th.

WILLIAM RUSSELL IN THE CHEATER REFORMED.
(FOX.)

A Story of Usurped Identity with the star in a dual role. The Tale of the Redemption of an Ex-Convict who adopts his Dead Brother's Name, and Assumes his Place at Home and Church. Interesting and Entertaining. Directed by Scott Dunlap.

Better than it may be imagined by those who have seen William Russell time and again in Western plays, does he play this radically different role in radically different surroundings—that of a minister in a New York village.

While the whole is not at any time particularly compelling it is entertaining and the theme is one which will appeal wherever the patronage aproves the reformation theme. Russell does good work in the leading role, but he shares honours with a lad who appears as his pal and offers the humorous tinge that relieves the seriousness of the whole. Seena Owen plays the part of Carol McCall with graciousness and ability. Sam de Grasse qualities as the ene of Dr. McCall and Carol.

In the story de Grasse as Edinburgh covets the love of Carol, the wife of the Rev. Dr. McCall, his friend. In an effort to win her, when his own wife divorces him, he displays to her a prison record of her husband. Before she has time to obtain the latter's explanation of it, he is killed in a wreck. "Lefty" McCall, his twin brother, an ex-convict, in eagerness to start life again with a clean slate, usurps the minister's place in his home and community. The climax comes when Carol, to shield her husband from threatened notoriety, promises to go away with Edinburgh. The cleverness of "Lefty's" pal saves the day and the woman and the ending is a happy one.

In Knox church, Bobcaygeon, Miss Muriel Cochrane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McGregor, of Bobcaygeon, was united in marriage to Albert Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Girven, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Drumm on September 21st. The groom was assisted by his brother, Armona Girven, of Peterborough, and the bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, the Misses Elaine and Stella. Among the out-of-town guests there were Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Girven, father and mother of the groom, Miss Isabella and Mr. O. R. Girven, sister and brother, Mr. S. Girven, uncle, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mortimer, Mr. A. E. Sproate, Mr. Russell Mortimer, all of Peterborough.

HOPE—HOPE

On the evening of September 28th a very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. McKenzie, Presbyterian minister of Knox Church, Peterboro, at the home of her father, Mr. John C. Hope, Otonabee, when his youngest daughter, Mary Edith, became the bride of Mr. Donald Cameron Hope.

The bride looked charming in a gown of blue satin trimmed with black sequin and carried a corsage boquet of sweetheart roses. Her little niece, Jessie Graham, acted as flower girl, carrying a basket of roses and ferns.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Stuart Graham, sister of the bride.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond bar pin, to the flower girl a pearl necklace and to the pianist a bar pin.

Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present.

After supper the happy couple motored to Peterboro en route to Toronto, Niagara and points west. The bride travelled in a navy blue tricotine suit with hat to match, and sable furs. On their return they will reside near Villiers.

MORE OUTRAGES BY EXTREMISTS AGAINST PEACE

SEEK TO PREVENT SETTLEMENT OF IRISH PROBLEM—CASUALTY LIST REMINISCENT OF PRE-ARMISTICE DAYS.

SEVERAL YOUNG MEN ATTACKED AND INJURED

DUBLIN, Oct. 7. — Extremists seeking to prevent a peaceful solution of the Irish problem by the Irish conference called for to-morrow in London, to-day continued the outrages which have made this week's casualty list read almost like those of the pre-armistice period.

Armed and masked men, claiming to be members of the Irish Republican Army, entered a number of houses in Thurles during the night. They attacked and seriously injured a number of young men of the town who were not identified with politics. Many of the victims were left lying unconscious and several were reported as likely to die to-day.

There was no trace of the intruders.

Weather Prophecy By Unhonoured Prophet

George Hardle has brought back from Apsley a bit of weather prophecy that is somewhat interesting if not accurate. While on his last trip there he sought 'Doc' Sheppard's opinion as to what the winter had in store for this part of the globe, and the doctor promptly replied that it was going to be mild.

'There's no berries on the cedars" said the 'Doc," "and when there's no berries on the cedar, that's a sign that there won't be much feed for the birds and squirrels or any other creatures that eat cedar berries."

While making the rounds of the village Mr. Hardle happened to pass on the prediction that the fast approaching winter had no frosty rod in pickle for humanity, and he quoted his authority for that cheerful opinion.

"Pshaw", said the villager, "Doc. Sheppard told you that, eh! Why the Doc doesn't get far enough away from his door to know whether there are any cedars around here, not to say anything about the berries on them."

Asks U. S. Congress To Probe Masonic Order and the K. of C.

WASHINGTON, October 7 (United Press). — Congress is asked to investigate the Masons, Knights of Columbus, and all other secret orders, in a sensational resolution introduced in the House to-day by Representative Upshaw, of Georgia.

Declaring that a special investigation of the Ku Klux Klan would be unjust, Upshaw demands that Congress turn the spotlight on the oaths and rituals and other secret workings of all secret organisations existing in the United States.

UTILITIES REVENUE FROM MAINS FALLS BELOW REQUIRED TEN P.C.

CHAIRMAN HICKS SAYS COMMISSION COULDN'T DO MUCH WITHOUT INCREASED WATER RATES.

EMPLOYMENT QUESTION UP REGARDING WAGES

A report showing the cost of construction of mains and services up to September 30, 1921, was made by R. L. Dobbin, Waterworks superintendent, to the Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon that showed the revenue to be derived from most of them fell short of the required 10 per cent. of the total cost.

The total cost of the extension on Roger Street, from Sophia to James, was $1,681.99. On this there was a shortage of $16.83 below the 10 per cent. necessary to meet debentures and maintenance. On Lansdowne Street the total cost was $4,088.10, and there was a shortage of $54.67. On George Street South be reported a shortage of $4.74. A surplus of $21.19 was shown on Downie Street extension southerly from Edinburgh. Relaying Water Street with 8-inch main cost $2,617.68, and there was a shortage in revenue of $196.33. Relaying on Simcoe Street caused a shortage in revenue of $24.62. Services off old mains seem to be the only money makers. Over $2,000 worth were put in, and a surplus of $501.68 was reported here.

Net Surplus $188.70.

On all the work to date this year there has been a net surplus of $188.70, over ten per cent. of the cost of the work in other words, while the work has cost $12,932.82, total revenue has been $1,481.97.

Increased Rates Needed.

"If we didn't have increased water rates we wouldn't be able to do much, would we?" remarked Chairman Robert Hicks. "We'd be in the 'soup'," was the Superintendent's vernacular but emphatic reply.

The Commission discussed possible extensions to the system that could be made with the greatest revenue assured, and finally Euclid Avenue was settled upon as the first scene of action. Murray Street will come second. The resolution as passed was that a main be laid on Euclid Avenue, from Armour Road to Erskine Avenue, providing eight houseowners apply for water, and if they do not apply in a week, a 14-inch main be laid on Murray Street, east of the Monaghan Road and Cambridge Street, providing houseowners between Cambridge Street and the Monaghan Road apply.

Shortage on Euclid Avenue.

On Euclid Avenue, Mr. Dobbin reported they would fall short of the required 10 per cent. of the cost by $68. Six of eleven residents on the street want water; if two more were signed, although it would still make a loss, the work could be satisfactorily proceeded with.

H. O. Fisk asked if they could get some Government assistance on this work, which was to be carried out to give employment.

The City Clerk replied that the Provincial Government had not assented to the Dominion scheme, and until they did the Dominion matter seemed to be in abeyance.

Discussing laying the 14-inch main so as to reach the boundary, it was thought best to run it up Cambridge, taking up the present 5-inch main and west on Murray to avoid a rock cut. If run up McDonnel 'rock would have to be cut through, and on Walnut also likely encountered.

Chairman Hicks believed that they should hold some work over till next year, or they would find themselves with no work at all then. The Superintendent also counselled maintaining a surplus of work.

"Euclid Avenue is something we'll have to carry for years," said Mr. Hicks.

"Yes, because most of them are

MILLIONAIRE CROP IF THE MARK RISES

(United Press).

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. — Americans have invested half a billion dollars in German marks, according to authoritative information obtained in banking circles here to-day.

Should the German currency ever reach its pre-war value of 24 cents, a new crop of American millionaires would be created from the investment.

Unless steps are taken to stabilize the mark, however, bankers fear that these documents of millions may be shattered and that investors may face losses instead of gains.

NINE SCHOONERS IN CLASSIC RACE

NOVIA SCOTIA EVENT SCHEDULED FOR TUESDAY NEXT.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

LUNENBURG, N. S., Oct. 7. — Nine schooners, at least perhaps twelve or more, will take part in the Nova Scotia fishermen's schooner race of Halifax, October 11, it was announced here last night, following a meeting of the Lunenburg and Halifax race committees.

As the day of the "ocean classic" draws near, interest increases, and indications now are that this year's Nova Scotia race will totally eclipse the elimination race staged last fall.

The nine schooners which have already entered are: Donald Cook, J. Duffy, Bluenose, Canadian Delewana, Independence, Alcala, U. A. R. Corkum, and Senora. This list, with two or three others likely to be added, includes several different types of schooner, varying from the Senora, an old clipper which has been fishing for nearly a quarter of a century, to the Bluenose and Canadian, built only last spring, and the one topic of talk among the fishing folk is as to their relative motive. The schooners also are owned in different places, and there will be tremendous sectional rivalry as the day of the race approaches, Halifax, Lunenburg, Lahave and Shelburne being particularly interested.

EXTENSIONS OF HYDRO SERVICE MAKE PROGRESS

WORK ON NEW RURAL LINES BEGUN AND ENGINEERS EXPECT SCHEME TO PROVE SUCCESSFUL

2300 CONTRACTS CLOSED FOR POWER IN COUNTRY

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Oct. 7.—Work up on rural extension of the Hydro is now actually in progress in the Townships of Nepean and Saltfleet, located in the Counties of Carlton and Wentworth respectively. At several other points in the Province materials are all at hand, and the building of the transmission lines will start at an early date. "If the winter proves severe, it probably will check work on the greater part of the projected extensions, since the saving of poles will be the only operation which could be economically pursued if the frost was deep in the ground.

To date, the Provincial Hydro Commission has already closed between 2,300 and 4,000 contracts with new consumers desiring to benefit by the rural extensions. This represents a total of over 500 miles of transmission line which can be erected as soon as conditions justify it.

Negotiations are also in progress for many more miles of line, and it is anticipated that next summer, when the farmers are more familiar with the scheme, there will be a deluge of applications. Thus far, the Hydro engineers have organized and held 180 meetings in various parts of the Province to explain the terms of which the power was being offered to rural users. For light and power contracts they require a minimum of three consumers per mile to undertake to buy power on a basis of three horsepower each per year, as the total load used is increased, the cost per unit is decreased.

Hydro engineers are confident that inside of a very few years every farmer within distributing range of a generating centre will regard Hydro Electric as being as much of an indispensable asset as his telephone or agricultural machinery.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press) — France is assurred of reparations payment and Germany is given means to avoid possible bankruptcy through an agreement signed yesterday at Wiesbaden by French and German officials for their Governments. EPIDEMIC ABATES IN THE SCHOOLS

From statements made by the M. O. H. Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, and by Dr. A. W. MacPherson, Medical Officer for the Schools, who has been conducting an examination of children in the schools and by Mr. A. Mowat, inspector of public schools in the city, it appears that the epidemic of the children is abating to a certain extent. Only two cases of infection have been reported within the last two days, which is considerably less than usual in that space of time. A number of swabs sent in recently to the Provincial Laboratories have not yet been reported on, but precautions of the strictest nature are being taken by the school authorities and physicans to lessen the danger of infection.

GLASGOW PAPER PREDICTS WEAK LABOR SUPPORT

COMMENTING ON CANADIAN ELECTIONS, SAYS FARMERS HAVE STOLEN MUCH OF LABOR'S THUNDER.

THINKS CLASS FEELING IN POLITICS REGRETFUL

LONDON, October 7 (Canadian Press). — The Glasgow Herald, in an editorial to-day on the forthcoming elections in Canada, thinks that the Labour Party in Canada is so strongly individualistic that it is unlikely to win much support for its proposals, comprising state ownership.

"A good deal of Labour's thunder has been stolen by the Farmers' Party, the rise of which, says the editorial, is by far the most outstanding feature of present day politics. While one cannot but sympathise with many of their aims, it is a matter of regret that sectional feeling should have organised itself so militantly in national politics.

DISCOVER GIRL'S BODY PIERCED BY 25 KNIFE WOUNDS

MADISON, N. J., Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Pierced by twenty-five knife wounds, the body of Janet Lawrence, aged twelve, reported missing yesterday, was found concealed behind a log in Kluxen Woods near here to-day. Her throat had been slashed and her heart pierced. There are several clues which might lead to the early arrest of the suspect.

GIANTS SLAUGHTER YANKS 13-5 CHASING THREE YANK PITCHERS

GIANTS BREAK SPELL AND SCORE AETER BEING SHUT OUT FOR 20 INNINGS—BOTH TONEY AND SHAWKEY KNOCKED OUT OF THE BOX IN THE THIRD, EACH TEAM SCORING FOUR RUNS—RUTH HITS SINGLE WITH BASES LOADED, SCORING TWO.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 7.—After being held scoreless for 20 innings, the New York Giants turned the tables on the Yanks today in a sensational slugging match, knocking three Yankee pitchers out of the box and burying the American Leaguers under a 13-5 score.

The scoring bee started in the third, when the Yanks drove Toney, hurling for the National Leaguers, to the showers, scoring four runs. In this innings Ruth knocked a single with the bases loaded, scoring two men.

The Giants followed suit in their half of the third, batting Shawkey from the mound, and piling up four counters.

Barnes took the mound for McGraw's men and held the Yanks down. Quinn, twirling in place of Shawkey, held the Giants until the last half of the seventh when he suddenly blew up, allowing the Giants four runs before they had a man out. McGraw yanked Quinn and put Collins in his place. But Collins was knocked for four more runs and was chased to the showers for Rogers before the Giants tide stemmed. The Yanks crossed the plate once in the eigth and did not score again. The Giants got one in the eigth.

Yanks.	Giants.

Quinn, p.	Barnes, p.
Collins, p.
Rogers, p.

First Innings.

Yanks—Miller up; Miller lined to Frisch, who made a beautiful stop of a smashing drive. Peck up; Peck out, Rawlings to Kelly, on an easy chance. Ruth up. The crowd went crazy when the Babe went to bat. Ruth fanned, swinging. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Yanks—R. Meusel up; Meusel doubled to left. It was a pop fly that dropped in short left centre, and which neither Burns nor Bancroft could reach. Pipp up; Pipp sacrificed to Kelly. R. Meusel reached third. Ward up. R. Meusel was out when Rawlings tossed Ward's grounder to Synder at the plate. McNally up; McNally forced Ward, Bancroft to Rawlings. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—E. Meusel up; Meusel singled to right but was nearly nipped off first by a rifle throw from his brother Bob in right field. It was the Giants' Meusel's first hit of the series. Rawlings up; Rawlings lined into a double play on the first ball, Ward to Pipp. It was a most spectacular play; Ward went high in the air and pulled it down. Snyder up; Snyder singled to left. Snyder was out, Schang to Peck, when he tried to reach second on a short passed ball. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Yanks—Schang up; Schang walked. Shawkey up; Shawkey singled to right on the first ball, Schang going to third. Miller up; Miller singled to right, scoring Schang, and Shawkey pulling up at second. It was the first ball pitched. Peck up; Peck walked, filling the bases. The crowd acted like maniacs when Ruth came to bat. Bancroft, Snyder and Toney held a conference near the box. Toney looked toward McGraw on the bench, and went back to the mound. Ruth smashed to right for a single, scoring Shawkey and Miller. Peck stopped at third. R. Meusel up. Toney was removed from the box and Jess Barnes came in to relieve him. Ruth was nearly nipped off first. Ruth out stealing, Snyder to Rawlings. Peck made no attempt to come in on the play. R. Meusel walked. Pipp up; Pipp out, Rawlings to Kelly, Peck scoring and R. Meusel taking second. Ward up; Ward fanned. Four runs, three hits no errors.

Giants—Barnes up; Barnes singled to left, a Texas Leaguer. Burns up; Burns flied to Miller, who made an easy catch after a short run. Bancroft up; Bancroft singled to right, Barnes pulling up at second, apparently afraid of Bob Meusel's arm. Frisch up; Frisch walked, filling the bases. Young up. Jack Quinn warmed up while Shawkey and Schang talked it over. Young walked forcing in Barnes with the first Giant run in twenty-one innings. Kelly up. Schang talked it over again with Shawkey. Bancroft scored when Kelly walked. E. Meusel up. The Yank team gathered around Shawkey and Jack Quinn walked in from the bull pen. Shawkey went to the showers, and Quinn, the spitball veteran, joined the conference in the box. Quinn now pitching for the Yanks. Meusel out, Pipp unassisted, Frisch scoring. Rawlings up; Rawlings was safe on a single to Peck, Young scoring. It was a stubborn grounder that Peck handled cleanly, but threw low to Pipp. Snyder up; Snyder fouled out to Pipp. Four runs, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Yanks—McNally up; McNally was hit by the first pitched ball. Schang up. Slim Sallee was warming up in the bull pen. Schang singled to right, but was cut down trying for second, Young to Rawlings. McNally reached third on the play. Quinn up; Quinn fanned. Miller up; Miller fanned, swinging. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Barnes up; Barnes out, Ward to Pipp. Burns up; Burns tripled off right field wall. The ball was handled very poorly by R. Meusel; who misjudged it off the wall, and chased it to centre field. Bancroft up; Bancroft fanned, swinging. Frisch up; Frisch walked. Young up; Frisch stole second; Young out, Peck to Pipp. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Yanks—Peck up; Peck flied to E. Meusel. It was Meusel's first chance in the series. Ruth up; Ruth struck out, swinging at a low curve. R. Meusel up; Meusel safe at first on a hit that bounced off Bancroft's shins. Frisch made the play, but was too late. Pipp up. R. Meusel out stealing, Snyder to Bancroft. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Kelly up; Kelly fanned, swinging wildly at a bad ball. E. Meusel up; Meusel flied to Miller. Rawlings up; Rawlings out, McNally to Pipp. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Yanks—Pipp up; Pipp out, Kelly to Barnes, who covered first for a pretty play. Ward up; Ward singled to right. It was a hot liner that whizzed by Kelly. McNally up; McNally called out on strikes. Schang up; Schang popped to Rawlings. No runs, one hit, no errors.

The Yanks, unused to battling on even terms with the Giants, began crabbing from the bench in this innings, and drew several warnings from the umpires. Barnes was still pitching great ball.

Giants—Snyder up; Snyder singled to right on a liner between Meusel and Miller. Barnes up; Barnes hit into a double play, Quinn to Peck to Pipp. Burns up; Burns singled to left, a hot grounder between Peck and McNally. Bancroft up. Burns stole second; it was a close play, and Peck, who took Schang's good throw, beefed about it. Bancroft out, Ward to Pipp. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Yanks—Quinn up; Quinn flied to Burns. Miller up; Miller called out on strikes. Peck up; Peck out, Bancroft to Kelly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Frisch up; Frisch singled to centre on the first ball. Miller made a great effort at a shoe-string catch, but failed to hold the ball. Young up; Young doubled past Pipp. Frisch pulled up at third. Kelly up; Kelly walked, filling the bases. E. Meusel up; he doubled to right, scoring Frisch and Young. Kelly pulling up at third. Rawlings up. Kelly scored, and Meusel also scored when Rawlings singled to centre. Quinn was taken out of the box, and Rip Collins replaced him. Quinn's collapse came very sudden-

CARE OF WAXED FLOORS

If the waxed floor is badly spotted, apply a little benzine or turpentine on a soft cloth. This will remove the wax while it removes the spot and must be allowed to evaporate before the spot is re-waxed.

Scouring with steel wool is a really safe way to remove soil spots which are ground in, made during moving or something similiar.

After the spot has been removed rub over the surface with a soft cloth dampened with a solution of wax and turpentine. Rub until dry and polished. This should be done with a weighted brush. If not dried thus, the surface is liable to be sticky.

The use of water on waxed floors should be avoided because it tends to whiten the wax and take from the beauty of the floor.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

HIGH PRAISE ACCORDED TO WARWORTH FAIR DIRECTORS

BUILDINGS AND GENERAL EXHIBITION PLANT PRONOUNCED ONE OF BEST AND MOST COMPLETE IN ONTARIO---LOCKIE WILSON AND HON. MANNING DOHERTY PAID TRIBUTES.

GREAT CATTLE SHOW

With a new $6,000 cattle barn, 160 feet by 72 feet, seemingly as big and airy as the Brock Street Rink, the Warkworth Fair stepped out into the three-day class on Thursday with an agricultural exhibition that would compare favorably with the very best between Toronto and Ottawa. This is no exaggeration. There may be some truth in the weary expression that when you have seen one country fair you have seen them all, but if ever you go to Warkworth go prepared for a surprise.

It has two buildings for sheep and swine, respectively. Each is 60 feet by 20 feet, and designed upon the plan the Peterboro Exhibition expects to follow when the local Board reaches that stage of expansion.

These two substantial buildings are sheeted on top and sides with galvanized iron, except in the upper part of the sides which are left open. Down the centre of each building runs a wide aisle for the convenience of the public. Then there is a central, and formerly the main building, for the display of fruits and vegetables, and the handiwork of the women including the products of the kitchen, the sewing room and of some art rooms. This is a spacious building in itself, and the the exhibits were of high merit. Most of the larger fairs could'nt boast of as good a collection of water colours, etchings and other works in that class.

An Excellent Plant.

The other departments located in the building were equally well filled Harry Lush was discovered presiding in the poultry tent, and according to his statement the poultry show was a "dandy". None of the half-mile tracks in the district have produced better races than yesterday's card, and the directors were holding their best events for the big crowd to-day. Their grandstand is of respectable porportions, on a par with the rest of the Fair plant which evoked from Hon. Manning Doherty the warmest commendation In fact Mr. Wilson declared the new cattle barn the best he has seen outside the major cities.

The Work of Farmers

In brief the Warkworth Fair is above the country class, rather it represents the accomplishment of the farmers of one of the richest agricultural districts n Ontario. It shows all the signs of community prosperity plus the spirit of progressivesness that raised these build ings and paid for the entire except its latest addition, which the president Mr. George Hutchinson said wasn't worrying his Board.

Used as Rink

The new cattle barn is fitted with collapsible stalls which will be used only at Fair time and such occasions but which in winter will be removed leaving a big space for skating and hockey. On the north side and under the same roof is a wing now equipped with stalls for the race horses. Fifteen of them from Belleville, Port Hope, Peterboro and other towns were housed in it yesterday. Next winter the stalls will be gone, and the members of Warkworth's new curling club will have their own ice along side the skating ice.

No Financial Worries

How do they do it? Mr. Hutchinsn told the Examiner that the directors first obtained a grant of $500 from the council of Percy township Then on August 10th the Fair Board put on races that netted $900 and to-day's crowd will leave $2,000 or more in the treasury according to C. H. Curtis, a well known exhibitor on the Peterboro circuit of Fairs. Mr. Curtis maintains that none of the bigger exhibitions in this district and that means in eastern Ontario are in the least superior to Warkworth's.

Big Showing of Cattle

The big cattle barn was filled early yesterday afternoon and there were more entries due before the judges started to work. Lorne Evans the young director in charge of this class, stated that Hereford cattle were not as numerous as last year when 70 entries of Hereford alone were shown, but the Holsteins. Short Horns, Aberdeen-Angus and other classes were better represented with the result that the cattle competition was better balanced by reason of the bigger showing of the standard varities.

Workworth's Fair owes its singular success to the interest shown by the many breeders of livestock and to the exceptionally productive farms throughout east Northumberland. The credit belongs to them, and while the three day Fair was a venture yesterday's attendance and its attraction features more than satisfied the directors.

Children Admitted Free

The programme opened with a parade of the children of the village and vicinity. Two hundred or more of them, led by the pipe band of the Arlie Marks Company, who are billed in Warkworth for fair nights, marched in procession to the grounds. Boy scouts, and girl guides and the smaller "cubs" were in the van, and other children from the schools brought up the rear. They were marshalled by James Bamber assistant scout-master, in the absence of W. R. Atkinson, school teacher in Warkworth, and scout master, who was attending the teachers' convention in Campbellford. The fair was free to the youngsters yesterday, and apparently there were no absentees.

The Races

After the address by Hon. Manning Doherty and Lockie Wilson the races were started by George Tice of Belleville. The results were as follows:

2:18 Class

Hoozier Boy, Jas. Thomas, Colborne; 1 1 1
Sunny Jim, Van Alystine and Johnston, Port Hope; 3 2 4
Harry H, R. Elmhirst, Indian River; 2 3 5
Helen C, Dr. Alyea Colborne: 5 4 2
Billy Patch Geo. Powell, Belleville 6 6 3
Lloyd George, E. Jones, Peterboro 4 5 6

2:40 Class

Hon. Manning Doherty At Warkworth Fair

The farmers of Canada took their loss with mighty little grumbling. Let the captains of industry and finance take their losses.

The buying strike is a consequence of the artificial support of prices.

The country that first gets down to normal conditions will be the first to forge ahead.

We must find markets for our products. Of what use is greater production if we cannot sell what we produce.

The farmer who will come through the crisis best is the man who hangs on to his good breeding stock.

The real object of a fair is to induce our young men to compete with their fellow farmers so that we may go on improving the live stock of Ontario.

MANNING DOHERTY URGES MORE GENERAL DEFLATION

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE SAYS FARMERS TOOK THEIR LOSS WITH LITTLE GRUMBLING, BUT OTHER INDUSTRIES ARE ARTIFICALLY HELD UP.

HENCE THE BUYING STRIKE

WARKWORTH, Oct. 7. — Officially opening the East Northumberland county fair here to-day, Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario Government, declared that the farmers of Canada had ungrumblingly suffered excessive losses in the process of financial deflation, and appealed to other branches of industry to assume their share in order that the country as a whole could get back to normal and sound conditions. He avoided politics entirely, confining his address largely to a discussion of means by which industrial stability might be restored, and Canada again set securely in the path of national prosperity and progress.

Hon. Mr. Doherty was accompanied by Mr. Lockie Wilson, superintendent of agricultural exhibitions in this province. They were introduced by Rev. Father Ferguson, who briefly referred to the work Hon. Mr. Doherty and Mr. Wilson in their respective spheres. Mr. George Hutchinson of Warkworth, president of the Fair Board, welcomed the visitors.

"I want to congratulate the directors of the Warkworth Fair upon the fact that, unlike some other Boards, they have not lost sight of the real purpose of agricultural fairs," said Mr. Doherty. "I take this opportunity of congratulating the directors and all the people of this district upon the splendid additios nyou have made to your fair plant. Your new stock barn is one of the finest I have seen, and the extent of the exhibition in the various classes is particularly deserving of praise.

Purpose of a Fair.

The principal object of a Fair is not to give prizes here and there to big breeders of live stock. It should be a real effort to induce the young men of this province to come out and exhibit, to compete with their fellow farmers so that we may go on improving the live stock of Ontario.

I appreciate the fact that people like to meet their friends at a fair, that it has an important social aspect, and that a certain amount of amusement is justified, but I say don't lose sight of that principal object, the improvement of our agricultural products."

Farmers Face Crisis.

"The agricultural industry in Canada," Mr. Doherty continued, "has never been face to face with a greater crisis than it is facing to-day. With wheat selling in Alberta yesterday at 96 cents a bushel and 400 steers averaging 1200 pounds each selling two weeks ago at 1 1-2c. a pound ,and when we realize the prices that were paid two or three years ago I say that agriculturists are facing the most tremendous crisis in the history of Canada.

We expected prices would come down, but I don't think any of us had the idea that in suih a short time our produce would take such a tumble as has been experienced in the last year and a half. Farmers are dazed at the prices tumbling all around them. During this period of deflation the farmers of Canada have

LAY BASIS FOR CHILD WELFARE ORGANIZATION

WINNIPEG, Oct 7.— (By Canadian Press).—The basis of a permanent organization to deal with problem of child protection and welfare was laid at yesterday's session of the Dominion Conference on Child Welfare when a resolution favoring organization of those engaged in the administration and enforcement of Dominion acts relating to children and child protection for conference purposes was passed unanimously. The day's discussion was productive of several important suggestions bearing on amendments to present laws and better care of children by other agencies.

The need of placing children in homes rather than institutions was strongly emphasized by several speakers. More rigid adoption of laws and personal acquaintance of state agencies with foster homes and parents was also advocated.

At the afternoon session Judge Emily Murphy of Edmonton, made an urgent appeal for increase of mother's allowances.

ENTRY OF BRITISH IN TO U. S. TAKEN UP

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press.)—The British government is taking up with Washington the entire question of the entry of British subjects into the United States, it was learned to-day.

British government officials point out that an individual may obtain the necessary vise but find upon his arrival at New York that the total monthly number from the geograph ical category to which he may belong already has been admitted, and he, therefore, would be detained at Ellis Island, with resulting serious discomfort. It was stated that a number of such cases recently have occurred.

PORTE NOT LIKELY TO TAKE PART IN MEDIATION

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7. — (Canadian Press.) — The Sublime Porte is not likely to take action with regard to mediation between the Turkish Nationalists and the Greeks, but will leave to the Angora government the entire responsibility The Nationalists declare that mediation will be successful when the last Greek soldier has left Anatolia.

KIRKHAEFER WINS FIRST BILLIARD GAME

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press.)—August Kirkhaefer, of Chicago, won the first game of play in the National three cushion billiard championship from Pierre Maupome of Mexico, yesterday, fifty to thirty-eight in 62 innings. The highest run for Kirkhaefer was 6; for Maupome 4. Charles Weston, Pittsburg, defeated Chas. McCourt, also a local entry, in the second game, fifty to thirty-nine in 72 innings. Weston's high run was seven; McCourt's two.

TURKISH POUND DOWN TO 45 CENTS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7. — (Canadian Press.) — The Turkish pound is quoted at fifty-four cents. There has been a colossal rise in sterling and the dollar, due to reports of an issue of Nationalist paper money. These reports are unfounded. The Miinster of Finance attributes the depreciation in the Turkish pound to Greek propaganda and stock exchange speculation. Under ordinary monetary conditions prior to the world war the Turkish pound was worth about $4.39.

DECLARES KING WOULD HAMPER GOVT. RAILWAYS

MEIGHEN SAYS LIBERAL CHIEF'S PLAN TO QUERY MANAGEMENT WOULD PROVE INJURIOUS.

OTHER MINISTERS JOIN IN ATTACK ON LIBERALS

PICTOU, N.S., Oct. 7.— (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)—Another large crowd greeted Premier Meighen and his colleages at the opera house here yesterday. Senator Tanner was in the chair.

Andre Fauteux, solicitor-general, declared that the result of the elections in Quebec would be a surprise to the rest of Canada and would prove that French-Canadians were sensible and sound.

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, Minister of Customs, said that a man who tried to deceive an audience was a fool, and Mr. Mackenzie King had, he thought, tried to do this.

Mr. King had, according to the newspapers, charged that $310.00 was taken out of the pocket of each family man in Canada every year in taxation. That was not true.

Hon. F. B. McCurdy, Minisetr of Public Works, ridiculed statements made by the Liberal leader, Mr. King, that the Prime Minister was

DE VALERA REITERATES IRISH UNITY STAND

DUBLIN, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press.)—The principle of Irish unity was reiterated yesterday by Eamon de Valera, the Irish Republican leader, in addressing a North Antrim deputation, the last of several delegations from Nationalists within the area of the northern parliament.

Ireland is naturally a unit, Mr. De Valera declared, and any attempt to depart from the whole nation as a unit would lead necessarily to political absurdities. He asserted that the dividing of Ireland did not get rid of the minority problems but multiplied them. He said the unity of Ireland was as much a fundamental principle as self-determination ,adding that both were based upon right and justice.

MAKE HASTE SLOWLY.

Peterborough cannot afford to be niggardly in her school policy, but at the same time this city cannot afford to be extravagant, which makes it essential that the technical school project should be carefully looked into before a policy is decided upon. Is a technical school needed in Peterborough? If such an institution were established would there be enough pupils anxious to enrol to make the undertaking worth while? These are some of the questions that suggest themselves and the more they are studied the more certain does it seem that the best course for this city is to drop for the present the idea of building a separate technical school and to proceed with the addition of a new wing for the Collegiate Institute, providing accommodation for a certain amount of manual training. In any case the Collegiate will shortly have to be enlarged, for the accommodation is exhausted, and in the opinion of many ratepayers the best possible policy would be to provide for an extension to the Institute that will include rooms for vocational classes. Some measure of technical education would be afforded by the undertaking and the situation would be taken carce of for a long time.

A SWEEPING CHANGE.

Probably at no period in Canada's history has there been such a sweeping change in political circles as has been accomplished in the past few months, a change that still continues as each day's developments marks the departure of another well known figure. Nearly every Cabinet Minister selected by Sir Robert Borden in 1917 has disappeared from the House of Commons. Sir Robert himself is not to be a candidate on this occasion. Hon. G. E. Foster and Hon. Dr. Reid have gone to the Senate. It is reported that W. S. Middleboro, chief government whip, is to be made a judge. Mr. H. M. Mowat, M.P., of Toronto, has already been elevated to the bench. Hon. C. J. Doherty is slated for a position on the International Joint Commission, Dr. Michael Clark, the eloquent member from Red Deer, will not be a candidate. Hon. W. A. Buchanan is also likely to retire. And so it goes on, each day marking the departure from public life of some well known figure. The next Parliament, no matter which group gets control of the government, will be featured by the presence of many new members and by the absence of many familiar faces. It is a remarkabe transformation.

A BETTER POLICY.

Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labour in the Federal goyernment, has outlined the government proposals for unemployment relief during the coming winter. As has been prophesied, the plan is for the Dominion government to encourage the carrying on of public works by the municipalities by paying a part of the excess cost of such works. Where it is impossible to provide work of this kind the government will follow the same policy as last winter and continue to bear one-third of the amounts paid by the municipailties for relief. The Ottawa administration recognizes that the giving of doles, with no service rendered for such assistance, has a demoralizing effect, and believes that wherever it is possible the municipalities should provide work. In order to encourage them towards that end the government proposes that the municipal, provincial and federal governments should jointly bear the actual cost above the estimated normal cost of any municipal enterprise, the normal cost, i.e., the cost of carrying on the work in question in the normal working season to be approved by engineers of the Dominion Department of Public Works.

This plan seems to be a much more satisfactory manner of dealing with the situation than was in force last winter and the local authorities should ose no time in considering what programme of municipal work can be carried on during the winter. The chief objection to undertaking the construction of sewers or other municipal operations of the same kind in the cold weather has been the increased cost of such work. The fact that two-thirds of the excess will be paid by the Dominion and Provincial government removes that difficulty and clears the way for action.

THE THREATENED RAILWAY STRIKE.

If one were to accept as final the decision of the various railway unions to strike rather than accept wage reductions, the immediate outlook would suggest ground for alarm. It happens, however, that the ultimate responsibility does not rest on the members. The executives hold the key of the situation, and there is ample evidence at hand pointing to an exceedingly cautious attitude on their part. President W. G. Lee, of the Trainmen's Brotherhood, has made that plain. He is openly and strongly opposed to militant tactics. His reasons, too, are so logical and convincing that it would seem they must prevail over mere impulsiveness.

Mr. Lee has given at least two reasons which should dispose of the strike danger. He has pointed out to his associates that wages and working conditions since 1918 were the direct results of a world war, and that during the current year reduced rates have been accepted by nearly all classes of labor. He thinks railway workers cannot reasonably ask to be immune from the general process of deflation which altered economic conditions have made necessary. The force of these two reasons alone should be irresistible; but President Lee offers three others in opposition to a general strike. The first relates to prevailing unemployment, the second to the fact that wages were raised to meet the higher cost of living during the war period, and the third to the decline of 16 per cent. in living expenses since July 1, 1920.

At this moment the matter hangs on the courage of the executives. If the sense of their responsibility outweighs their fear of criticism by the rank and file there will not be a strike. On the other hand, if they decide to wash their hands of that responsibility and take refuge behind the overwhelming vote which has been recorded, a walkout of all railway employees may occur within the next two weeks. In that event the situation would be grave indeed. The complete paralysis of transportation in the United States, and possibly in Canada, would mean at the same time the complete paralysis of commerce. It would be more disastrous than was the strike of the coal miners in Great Britain, the monetary loss associated with which has been computed at three billion pounds sterling.

It is unthinkable that a strike will really occur. The vote which has been taken has little or no significance. Mr. Lee is himself authority for the statement that on any such appeal 98 per cent. of the men will always vote in the affirmative, presumably as a matter of tactics. If that be so, then the decision which is now hanging in the balance must turn on the judgment of the executives without reference to the ballot which has been taken. In that event a way out will likely be found. The heads of the railway brotherhoods have a splendid record for independence and sagacity. They have never in the long history of the various organizations resorted to the strike weapon, and it is scarcely probable they will do so under conditions so adverse as those which President Lee says now bhtain. Sound policy should prevail. Only in resistance to great injustice could the tying up of the railways, and the infliction of immeasurable suffering on the people in common, be for a moment defended.—Ottawa Journal.

Wise and Otherwise

The crowd at the first World's Series game was comparatively small. The Jewish New Year services being on in New York at the time, that was to be expected.

A Chicago man traded a concertina for a wife. Now he regrets the deal, for he could make the concertina shut up.

But it must have been worth $44 a seat to see the great Bambino whiff the air twice in Wednesday's game.

The trouble with some of these people who "go on to say" is that they don't go on before they say it.

And as Ring Lardner says McGraw and Huggins have been playing put and take with their pitchers all season—putting and taking them out.

From the number of candidates who are entering the political fray it looks as though the ranks of the unemployed would be considerably augumented after the election.

MANNING DOHERTY URGES MORE GENERAL

taken their loss, amounting to billions, and they have taken it with mighty little grumbling. I doubt if any class or industry would have grumbled as little as the farmers under similar losses. I think it is only right that we should say to these others, the captains of industry and finance throughout this country, to take their losses."

Mr. Doherty alluded to the unemployment in the cities, to the "frozen channels of trade," to industries that had slackened any, in many cases stopped entirely, stating that these conditions were results of the effort artificially to support prices. And as a consequence followed the buying strike.

"We need machinery," he said, "but we have been borrowing from our neighbours and they have been borrowing from us. We have not been buying; so I say to the manufacturers and those of other industries than agriculture, take your loss as the farmers have taken theirs, and let us get back to bed rock and a solid foundation, because the country that first and best gets down to normal conditions will be the first to forge ahead."

Advised to Keep Stock.

Mr. Doherty advised farmers to keep their good live stock. He had sold his own steers after feeding them ten months for $400 less than he had actually paid for them. Referring to market conditions he said he was endeavoring, as he had endeavored from the ouset, to do all in his power to increase and better the market for agricultural products. Anticipating the trend of the live stock market he had tried to have the British embargo raised. This move had stirred up a great deal of criticism, but he had taken some consolation from the saying that nobody ever kicks a corpse. His latest cable advices conveyed the information that the embargo would be raised.

"For 29 years we had been appealing to a small section who were opposed to that idea. The big mass of the people had never been appealed to. Mr. Bonar Law told me that if we continued along the old method we would never get anywhere. We have made the appeal to the mass of the people and they are going to demand the lifting of the embargo I hope."

Canada Needs Markets.

"The biggest fight in the next four years will be for markets, and I consider that governments would be justified in going to any expenditure in the development of their markets. We can discharge our debt by greater production, but we must find the markets for our products. Of what use is increased production if we cannot sell what we produce. Therefore we must open the channels of trade."

Mr. Doherty said he apprehended the probaiblity of low prices so discouraging live stock breeders that they would dispose of their herds or the best part of them. "I am convinced that under the conditions you may sacrifice your good breeding stock which have taken years to develop. If you go out of oats this year, you can easily get back to them next; but not so with your stock. It will take you five, ten or fifteen years to get back to your old position. The farmer who will come through this crisis best is the man who hangs on to his good breeding stock."

Concluding his appeal, Mr. Doherty reminded his farmer audience of the youth and vigor of Canada and of its great resources. He counseled them to hold steady, to follow the middle of the road, to keep their spirits up and to stick to it, "and in a short time Canada will enter upon a new period of peace and prosperity."

Mr. Lockie Wilson.

Mr. Wilson applied his remarks to the practical side of exhibitions. Warkworth fair had splendid buildings, and the directors by their work were going to leave their section of Ontario better and more prosperous. "You have erected many buildings that would be a credit to any fair in Ontario," was his high praise. He dclared that the building provided for fruit, vegetables, and ladies' work could scarcely be beaten in this country, and the new building for cattle and horses was a big achievement. Mr. Wilson advocated co-operation between the people of the country and of the cities. They were largely dependent upon each other, and hence should work together for the common cause of upbuilding this country.

Dwelling upon the purpose of these exhibitions he said that people wished to meet each other, but primarily they went to fairs to see the produce of the farms. And in that connection he urged that every fair should have a parade of the prize winning stock in front of the grand stand.

"The exhibitors are entitled to such a parade ,and if some of them object that they can't get their stock out, or that they don't want to be bothered it would be better to let them stay at home."

Mr. Wilson observed an absence of "fakirs and thieves who can't be beat at their own games, and who can hear and give you $5 with the prospect of taking off with them $500 of your sons' hard-earned money. I do'nt see any of them here and I hope they will never be here."

AFTER HANDOUT

A local hotel-keeper who is known to have a kind heart was approached recently by a young lady who had a more than ordinarily sad tale to relate. This young lady, who was unknown to the gentleman, had a friend who was about to essay a plunge into the matrimonial seas, and the damsel in question had been asked to attend the wedding. She had bought a number of "wedding garments" but had not quiet completed her "trousseau" as she called it. She still lacked a hat and a few other essentials to a proper appearance, so she asked the gentleman to lend her the sum of $45. Security was lacking, the worth of the cause being the sole reason advanced by the lady as a reason for complying with her request. However, she failed to make the "touch" it isn't known if she finally procured the money and appeared at the wedding, or was compelled to stay at home.

FIRST TRACE OF CORN BORER REPORTED IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

F. C. M'RAE, DISTRICT REPRESENTATIVE, MADE DISCOVERY AT SCHOOLS FAIR AT BRIDGENORTH AND IS CONVINCED THAT HOLLOWED STOCK WAS WORK OF THE EUROPEAN BORER.

FIRST IN EAST ONTARIO

The first trace of the European born borer in Eastren Ontario was reported to the Examiner on Wednesday by F. C. McRae, district representative at Norwood of the provincial department of agriculture, who stated that he had made the discovery in a stock of corn from the farm of Henry Stubbs of the 8th concession of Smith. At the township schools' fair recently held at Bridgenorth, Mr. McRae happened to notice in a stock of the sheaf of corn from the Stubbs farm a small hole that at once aroused his curiosity. He broke the stock and found that it was hollow. The pith had been entirely eaten and at the top of the stock there was another puncture where the borer had evidently dug his way out.

The circumstances have been reported to the department, Mr. McRae said, and while he hesitated to make any rash decision he felt satisfied that all the signs in that stock pointed to the work of a corn borer. The case was mentioned to the Examiner on Wednesday afternoon at the Keene fair. Mr. McRae was discussing it with two other district representatives who, on the strength of his review, agreed with him in his opinion.

"This is the only case found in Eastern Ontario," he said. "The corn borer works in the stock and not in the ears of corn. Many farmers have found ear worms this year and jumped to conclusion that they were borers. These worms have been plentiful this season, but they are not borers. The invasion of ear worms is probably due to the mildness of last winter. It is the first time they have ever been found so far north, and winter will stamp them out. It is doubtful if we shall ever have them again."

DECLARES KING

an autocrat. He instanced the Government's action in granting votes to women as the most democratic move which had ever been made in Canada.

Col. Thomas J. Cantley, candidate of the Liberal and Conservative party in Pictou county, referred to the great men who had represented Pictou county at Ottawa. His oplicy was summed up in the two phrases: "Canada for Canadians," and "what we have we hold."

Premier Meighen said that the National Railways of Canada had been taken over by a directorate which was to be free from political influence and which was instructed to run the roads at the lowest possible cost. But this direcorate must be left unhampered, and inquiries by Mr. King as to management and details, the answers to which would hamper the directorate, must not be answered.

It was not autocracy to insist on carrying out a policy which was in the best interest of all the people.

The tariff was the issue in this election, said Mr. Meighen. He had not raised the issue, but he was not afraid of it. The men who had raised the issue were now trying to evade it. The Liberals at their meeting in Ottawa in the year 1919, had declared for the free entry of foodstuffs, implements of production, cement, oils, dressed and undressed lumber, and fifteen other articles. The definite policy of the Liberal party, which it was pledged to follow, was contained in that platform. If Mr. King wished to repudiate that platform, it was his affair, but it would be dishonesty for him to gain power on such a platform, and then repudiate it.

The policy of Hon. Mr. King would close up Canadian factories. "Mr. King's platform means the paralysis of virtually all the important industries of Canada," declared Mr. Meighen.

Following his speech the Premier left immediately for Glasgow.

Appetite Good, Gained 20 lbs.

Could Not Feel Better

From a nervous wreck this man was restored to health, strength and happiness.

He tells his own story in this letter.

Mr. Ralph A. Roberts, Loverna, Sask., writes:

"In 1917 I had lost all appetite, failed 25 pounds in weight, become very nervous and shaky and in fact given up all hope of recovery. For some time I had suffered from constipation, which kept getting worse, until I was fast becoming a total wreck. Doctors and their drugs were sending me to my grave at the age of 39.

"Then I read about people being restored by Dr. Chase's Medicines and after three months' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills I found that my bowels were restored to normal movement each day and the constipation was no more. I had a good appetite, had gained 20 pounds and could not feel better. I shall always be grateful for these benefits."

INDIAN FAIR A BIG SUCCESS

LARGE NUMBER FROM PETERBOROUGH PRESENT—LIST OF SPORTS

Pay day to treaty Indians of this Dominion comes once a year. It is usually made the occasion for a celebration, when the redskin uncorks a little of his pent up energy and warhoops around the family dugout. To the Mississaugas, whose reserve is situated at Curve Lake, there is a bigger day than pay day and that is the annaul exhibition. It took the government a good many years to divert the Indian's interest along the lines of agriculture. It is only necesary to visit one of the Indian's Fall Fairs to realize how successful this has been. The annual Fair at Curve Lake was accounted for yesterday and nothing was lacking to make the fair a big success. Even the weather man turned in a good day.

A trip to Curve Lake means a trip over the Chemong floating bridge and a trip over the antique ferry at Curve Lake. In fact to visitors this is one of the features of the fair. This year the Indians have anchored a footbridge at this point, but vehicles must still depend on the ferry and its man-power driven winch. Visions of slipping off into the lake or the ferry chain breaking and the load shifting down the lake usually assail the uninitiated, but such things never happen except on occasions. Chief Dan Whetung can remember when his automobile slipped into the cool dark depths of Curve Lake.

Mr. R. J. McCamus, Indian agent for this district, was among those present at the Fair. He said that it was one of the best ever hed at the reserve and spoke very highly of the efforts of the Indians to improve and enlarge this annual event. The main building contained the fruits and grains of the field, together with a collection of fancy bead work and home-made cooking. Dan Whetung, Jr., is the chief of the tribe and president of the Curve Lake Exhibition Board. Dressed in native costume and mounted on a horse, Dan looked like a real old time redskin. He posed for the movies and led the parade, which wended its way down the village street, headed by the bands. The Indians in the parade were dressed in native costume. A list of sports was arranged on the grounds such as running races, etc. These were conducted under the able leadership of Mr. Thompson Braden, of Lakefield. A large number from Peterborough took in the event.

A list of prize winners will be published in another issue.

THRILLS IN STORE FOR NEWSPAPERMEN

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Oct. 7.—(United Press.)—Thrills occasioned by riding the surf in outrigger canoes or on native surf boards, or standing on the rim of the continuously active volcano of Kilauea and gazing down into the roaring, tossing sea of molten lava, have an active rival in the keen excitement that accompanies the hunting of the shark in the waters outside the coral reef that encircles the island of Oahu.

Newspaper men who are coming to Honolulu October to as delegates to the Press Congress of the World will find that shark hunting goes hand in hand with other sports and although intensely exciting, is in no way dangerous. The shark hunters go to sea in a launch or sam pan which tows a dead white horse. When the fishing grounds are reached, the boat begins to circle about, and soon the fins of sharks may be seen cutting through the water.

If one is an expert, he may harpoon a shark as it turns over to strike, or he may try his luck with a high-powered rifle. The shark is a furious fighter and, once harpooned, or caught with hook and line, displays amazing strength. But he finally tires and is gradually hauled aboard and then dispatched.

There are few Hawaiians living today who care to meet a shark in the open water and fight him as his ancestors did. In the olden days a Hawaiian armed himself with a hard, wooden, double-pointed javelin, about 18 inches long, and with the center portion large enough to permit a good grip. He then let himself down into the water. As the shark approached and turned over to strike its great jaws open to their full width, the Hawaiian, with a quick movement, thrust the javelin between the jaws, one point penetrating the roof of the mouth and the other the lower jaw. The shark, thus unable to close his mouth, and helpless, was either speared or allowed to swim away as the Hawaiian chose.

A new passenger automobile of small structure is proposed for the American market, made almost entirely of aluminum and duralumin, and weighing a little more than 200 pounds. It is planned for two passengers, geared to a speed equal to that of the average touring car, making 75 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It is said the car can conveniently be parked in a hallway or on the roof of an apartment building.

PLAN TO RELIEVE WAR-TORN STATES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.— (Canadian Press).—The Ter Meulen Bond Scheme for the relief of war-torn nations and new states will melt "frozen credits", allow creditor nations, to extend material help, revive the productive power of countries upset by the war and will restore normal oversea trading, said Sir D. Drummond Fraser, of London, organizer of the plan for the League of Nations, in an address delivered here yesterday before the American Bankers' Association.

He emphasized the following points:

It will re-awaken the dormant confidence in the ability of importers in war-stricken countries to pay their way.

Governments may keep expenditures within their revenue.

Revenue-producing assets of borrowing countries may be mobilized for the purchase of essential imports which in turn will restore the buying power of those countries.

Lending countries of which the United States is the most important may secure, with a collateral bond, a safe outlet for exports.

The scheme does not attempt to stabilize exchanges. These were dislocated because war stocks were replaced at excessive prices in certain countries before the recovery of their export trade. Conditions of trade in these countries must be restored to normal. When they have been restored the exchanges will take care of themselves, he said.

Sir Drummond warned the bankers that restriction of the credit of European countries means an inevitable shrinkage of exports from the United States or other creditor nations and a continued stagnation of foreign trade.

Sir Drdmmond suggester the formation of National Export Corporations in each of the lending countries, United States, England, France and Italy and others, backed by a pro rata guarantee of the governments banks and other financial institutions and said that such concerns if properly managed should allow for normal foreign trade in as simple and effective a manner as the banks now handle domestic trade.

On Silk Hose

The way you treat silk stockings has a lot more to do with the way they wear than has their original prices usually. Sometimes, of course they are just such a poor quality that they aren't worth taking care of. But usually care tells more with silk stockings than it does with almost anything else.

To begin with never let silk stockings lie soiled for a week. They rot, once the moisture from the foot has permeated them. The thing to do is to wash them out as you take them off. Of course, this is usually too much trouble. Nevertheless, it is the thing to do. And of course they shouldn't be worn more than a day at a time—no more than a day without washing, that means.

Furthermore, it is said by a woman who wears her silk stockings longer than most of us do that they should be washed in cold water. And that no soap should be used. This seems rather strenuous treatment. But in her case at least it works out well, and perhaps it is the best way to do.

Another woman who is never troubled with runs in the legs of her silk stockings finds that stitching a narrow piece of black silk inside the stocings at the top prevents the runs from coming. The garter fastening goes through the extra thickness made by this silk—which, by the way, should be thin silk—and so does not pierce the fabric of the stocking.

OH, LOOK! FOR THEY'RE WEARING 'EM HIGHER IN RIGA

By EDWIN W. HULLINGER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

RIGA.—(By Mail).—They are wearing 'em higher in Riga than on the Grands Boulevards of Paris and almost as high as on Broadway. And they're still gonig higher.

While the Parisienne is busily lengthening her fall skirt and the American is trying to make up her mind one way or the other, the rosy cheeked belles of Latvia are merrily promenading with their skirts dangling just below their knees, or sometimes above.

The short skirt has finally arrived in the Baltic States. As in Western Europe, the end of the great war immediately registered itself in a shortening of skirts in every Allied country, so in Eastern Europe the final advent of peace brought the short skirt.

Peace was a couple of years late in reaching this part of the world and the short skirt was correspondingly delayed. Today, however, a casual visitor joining the Sunday fashions parade might almost imagine herself back in Paris or America.

Excepting the peasants, the women of Riga dress just as would the women of any medium sized city in the middlewest. That is, in summer. For in winter, Riga is as cold as deenest Russia.

To the American woman, with her handbag filled with American currency, shopping in Riga would be "clover." An excellent ready-made dress may be bought for fifteen hundred roubles—about three dollars at present exchange—and a serge suit at 8,000. Hats run from one to two thousand—two four dollars.

OVER THE TOP

J. Hubbert Cullen, secretary of the industrial bureau of the Detroit Board of Commerce, is called on by many inventors every month. Some are young and bashful, others are old, bearded and sagacious.

Many bring designs or models for which manufacturers, to whom they are referred by Mr. Cullen, are ready to appropriate cash, for purchase or development. But some designs and models which are brought to his office would not quite do, Mr. Cullen said.

"The war set a good many men to thinking," Mr. Cullen said. "The other day an elderly man entered my office with a suit case in which he had a model of an army motor truck. He said he had an invention which would render absolutely suicidal any attempt by the enemy to fire on a United States truck.

Would Dish 'Em.

"On the rear of the truck he had fastened what looked like an armored barrel cut in half lengthwise, so that any bullet fired at the truck would simply loop the loop in the half-barrel and would return to strike dead the man who fired it. This inventor was crestfallen when I failed to take his work."

Monday a man showed Mr. Cullen designs for another invention which would have won the war sooner.

"This man had seen the disappearing guns mounted for coast defense," Mr. Cullen said. "These are cannon which rise on a platform from behind a parapet, fire, and then disappear again behind the wall. The inventor told me he thought many battles were lost because the soldiers in the trenches could not hear the general's orders above the roar of shot and shell. He showed me a design for a platform on which the infantry could lie in a trench, with rifles loaded. On this platform the general could lift them into firing range by simply pressing a button. At the proper moment the infantry would fire and would be lowered into the trench by a second touch of the button."

Save Uniforms Anyway.

Still another inventor called on Mr. Cullen with a model of a grenade which would only behead the enemy, without spoiling their uniforms. He told Mr. Cullen that the capture of thousands of enemy uniforms in this way would save the Government much money. This particular grenade was on the end of a stick five feet long. The other end of the stick was weighted so that it would strike the ground with the bomb five feet in the air. When it exploded it would take off the heads of the opposing soldiery.

A more peaceful inventor called last week. He had designs for folding furniture for use in small apartments.

"I had seen folding chairs and beds which collapse against the wall," Mr Cullen said. "But when this man began to show me folding buffets and large folding dining room tables I told him I thought they would be valuable to someone who wanted to move out quickly without paying his rent."

FOR ROLL STITCH

Many crocheters find it difficult to make a nice roll-stitch, or pull the thread through the roll. Trying it this way may help. Having the required number of "overs" on the needle, insert hook in work, make a loop of the thread under roll, hold with finger, thread over hook, hold roll between thumb and finger, and pull through.

SHIP BODY OF SLAIN WOMAN TO LUNENBURG

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press.)—The body of Margaret McDonald Townsend, 23 years old, of Cambridge, Mass., found brutally murdered in a furnished room on West Twenty Second street last week, will be shipped to-day, to Lunenburg, N.S., for burial. The young woman was a native of that place.

One of her brothers, Robert Townsend, came to New York from Cambridge yesterday and made arrangements for having the body sent to Canada.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

TEACHERS CONVENTION OPENS —ADDRESSED THE CHEESE BOARD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 7.— At the conclusion of the Cheese Board meeting here yesterday morning, Hon. Manning Doherty delivered an address in the Public Library in explanation and in defence of the new Dairy Act which becomes effective on and after January 1st, 1922. This makes it compulsory for all cheese factories manuiacturing cheese to pasteurize the whey and pay the producers according to the butter fat contained in their milk, as indicated by the Babcock test. The Minister is a good speaker and he endeavored to impress upon the audience the justness of the Act and assured the farmers of a fair and honest deal. Some discussion arose pro and con re the virtues of the Act. At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker, to which he replied urging his hearers to co-operate with him in the carrying out of the said Act.

Convention Opens.

6 The Northumberland Teachers' Institute (Inspectorate No. 3), met in convention in the Public school. The weather was ideal and there was a large attendance. Mr. T. E. Moffat, B.A., principal of the High school, occupied the chair. Rev. C. E. Clark, M.A., conducted the opening exercises, which was followed by a very interesting address by Mr. Sirett, agricultural district representative. Mr. Thos. Chaplain, teacher of S. S. No. 7, Seymour township, gave a very clever demonstration of physical culture.

Report of the O.E.A. convention by Mr. Jones, followed. The auditorser eport was given and then appointment of committees.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m. and a most hearty welcome was extended the teachers by Mayor Meyers, Mr. W. R. Atkinson, president of the Association and delegate of the Northern Ontario teachers' trip, gave a very graphic account of the trip, explaining very clearly the mining industry and the unlimited resources of Northern Ontario. The speaker emphasized most strongly the hospitality of the people. He urged the teachers to impress upon the provincial member for this county the advantages of the trip so that he might be favorable to the continuance of the trips when next discussed in the House.

Miss Grace Payne, musical supervisor, led a chorus of Public school pupils, which was heartily encored. Miss G. Bebee gave a very forceful address on discipline, which was much appreciated and which brought forth lively discussion. Mr. Perry, of Toronto University, gave an interesting talk on picture study, which showed that he was master of his subject.

Mr. G. A. Kingston, B.A., acting principal of the Public school, gave an excellent address on the relation of trustees and parents to the teachers. The speaker illustrated his point by comparison to a 'power station.' The teacher is the dynamo, the pupils the live wires, the parents the sub-station, and the inspector general manager, each department of the service being dependent upon the other.

James Massie presented Mr. Shaw with a Past Grand jewel handsomely engraved. Bro. Shaw made a very suitable reply and extended a hearty invitation to the brethren to visit him in his new home. He also stated that anyone who would follow the rules of Oddfellowship would never go astray. Brothers Shaw is a charter member of this lodge, begin an Oddfellow for over forty years. BRETHEN GETS BIG OVATION IN LAKEFIELD

EAST PETERBORO' PROGRESSIVE PARTY'S NOMINEE OPENS POLITICAL CAMPAIGN IN NEW MEMORIAL HALL.

ASKS A SQUARE DEAL

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 7.—The first political meeting in Lakefield's new Memorial Hall was held on Wednesday night under the auspices of the New Progressive Party with Mr. Kennedy, M.P. of Glengarry and Mr. G. A. Brethen of Norwood (the Progressive candidate for East Peterboro) as speakers. Mr. E. J. Galvin was in the chair. Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Payne, Mrs. J. H. Moon Miss Payne and Mrs. McMillan took charge of the musical part of the evening.

Mr. Galvin president of the local branch of the U.F.O. made a few remarks in introducing the speakers Mr. Chas. Brown was the first speaker and being called on without any notice or preparation, he spoke for only a few minutes. He told of the formation of the Grain Growers' Association in the west in 1903, when he said, the farmer was the victim of the Railway rates the manufacturers and the elevator men. This little band has grown and expanded till now it is the great Progressive Party. The farmer does not want more than his right. "All we want is a square deal and I hope we get it and we are in a fair way of doing so," were Mr. Brown's closing words.

Got an Ovation

Mr. Brethen, received a regular ovation, when he rose to speak.

After expressing his appreciation of the manifestation of good will he said that the class of men and women who have indentified themselves with the new party augers well for the success of the campaign.

His nomination hod been unsought by himself, but he hopes to prove worthy of the great-hearted men who put him in the field. Mr. Smithson of Otonabee is a prince among men and has his (Mr. Brethen's) profound respect.

Anyone who tries to promote ill will between urban and rural communities is not working for Canada's interest said the speaker, and any one interested in Canada is interested in agriculture, (applause)

The manufacturer complains that depression of trade is caused by the farmer becoming sulky and refusing to buy, but the farmer is not buying because his receipts won't enable him to buy. He receives less than pre-war prices for his products and the price of binders and implements is more than in war time. The farmer is the bulwark of the state and should have more to say in its government, (applause) Sir John MacDonald once said they never gave the farmer anything and yet agriculture is Canada's prime industry, and if placed in its proper place the farmer could buy and the bread line and soup kitchens in Toronto would disappear. But the farmer is not protected, like the manufacturer, for instance, his prices are set in the markets of the world, while for the manufacturer the home market sets the price, and we are forced to buy at that price.

Want Equal Rights

Sir Henry Drayton said in Peterboro at the bye-election, last winter that we must keep up the factories because of the wages they pay and to protect labor. But should any man in the city be entitled to live in a higher plan than the farmer who represents the basic industry of Canada? The farmer wants equal rights to all and privileges to none. No man has a right to be put in a more favorable position than anther, continued Mr. Brethen. We have the bread line and soup kitchen. Hon. Thos. Crerar would not do anything drastic but he would operate the tarrif for the good or all and not for a few nterests only.

Mr. Brethen closed by saying that he would be back before the campaign closed. With this stunning challenge. "If we can't win the election without race or creed bickering and diversions we don't want to win, for it would be but a hollow victory." Should we win, we are going to do so fairly, and if our opponents don't love us they will least respect us.

The People's Fight

Mr. Kennedy of Glengarry, congratulated the people of Lakefield on their new Memorial Hall as being both useful and ornamental and which will serve to remind future generations of this great struggle. He also congratulated the people on their choice of a candidate, who was of the finest type of men, one they could feel proud to get behind and boost to victory

There is a great deal said today of class legislation he went on to say But dominate other classes, and Canadians won't stand for it. Those who only see a group of farmers are not big enough to recognize what is behind their splendid movement, which works for an era of fair play and justice.

The campaign fund, which was the curse of old parties, is eliminated and each constituency pays its own election expenses.

Continuing the speaker pointed out that Hon. Arthur Meighan has declared that the tarriff question is the main issue of this election. The Liberals declare that they want a lower tariff, but they were in power 15 years and they did not lower the tariff.

Agriculture the highest industry of Canada enjoys no protection and manufacturers are free traders in respect to raw materials which they import duty free. In 1894 the drawback system then formed protected the manufacturers still further and later extension of the draw-back system gave them a monopoly. Then the farmer and consuming public pay for the overhead charge caused by the over capitalization of big interests such as the Ames Holden McCready Shoe Company, the Dominion Glass Company and the Sherwin Williams Paint Company.

Canadians are not afraid to compete against any other nation in the world, and this fight is not Mr. Brethen's, its your fight for a square deal, the speaker concluded.

Mr. Thompson Braden moved a vote of thanks to the musicians which was seconded by Mr. H. J. Abbot and carried unamiously.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

TAX KICKERS, HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS?

By CARL D. GROAT

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—If one lives in Germany, he is taxed; if he dies, he is likewise taxed. At least, the city of Frankfurt am Main has hit upon the novel idea of charging a tax upon burials. If one drinks mineral water, he is taxed; and if he drinks schnapps he is taxed more.

If one plays a piano at home, there is another tax; and if one wants to hear music in a theatre, there is still another tax. The tax on "enjoyment" has had the effect of closing more than 100 movie houses here in the past few months, and has driven every circus out of Germany, either to England, France or Holland.

The latest wrinkle in taxes is reported from Saxony, where a head tax is placed upon pigeons, geese and cats. The tax on geese has caused much objection, for it has struck at the very heart—or rather stomach—of Germany, since roast goose is the Thanksgiving turkey of the Teuton.

Beer, likewise a great national institution, is heavily laden, and the authorities are planning to tax, as well, vinegar, oxygen, coal, wood and advertising posters.

Income taxes will run very heavy. The Saxon premier, for instance, has a yearly income of 76,500 marks — less than $1,000 at the present exchange—and must pay more than a fourth thereof at once in income taxes.

As a result of fines imposed on those who use profane language in more pious communities of Venezuela, a church at La Guaira is said to have been erected with funds derived entirely from the fines.

BIG PROBLEMS TO COME BEFORE WAR VETS. CONVENTION

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—(By Canadian Press) Matters of importance to every returned soldier and to the people at large will be dealt with at the fifth annual convention of the Great War Veteran's Association which will be held in Port Arthur, Ontario, October 17 to 22. Resolutions will be brought forward dealing with unemployment, re-establishment housing, pensions, immigration, returned soldiers' insurance, disarment, British Empire Service League, adjustment of exchange on overseas pay, business credits for ex-service men, federations of veterans' organizations and formation of an organization of veterans' sons and daughters.

Believing unemployment to be the most pressing problem of the day, the G.W.V.A. convention will appoint a special committee, composed of one member from each province to prepare resolutions with regard to unemployment situation, Dominion Command officials say, will occupy a considerable part of the time of the convention. Points discussed will include state unemployment insurance, proper distribution of labor through the Employment Service Council of Canada, municipal, federal and provincial governments to require all contractors to employ at least 25 per cent ex service men, the immediate establishment of provincial and local advisory councils to the Unemployment Services and cheaper railway rates for ex-service men travelling to a place of appointment.

The subject of re-establishment will bring forth resolutions looking toward the more complete establishment of soldiers. These resolutions will set forth that the G.W.V.A. will not regard re-establishment as complete until all ex-service men have been placed as near as possible in the economic position which they would have obtained but for war service. The discussion of re-establishment resolutions will include pensions, land settlement, insurance and the adjustment of overseas pay, together with pensions to widows and orphans. It likely that the Dominion Command will be instructed to again press for a committee on re-establishment at the next session of parliament.

The discussion on the amalgation of all returned men. The G.W.V.A. has issued invitations to all soldier organizations to have fraternal delegates present, and as this invitation has been accepted by a majority of other associations a full and complete statement of the situation will probably be brought down together and definite plans for an alamagation. The associations to which invitations have been extended include His Majesty's Army and Navy Veterans, Toronto; Naval Veterans, Toronto; Originals Club, Hamilton, Originals Club, Toronto; Grand Army of United Veterans, Toronto; Army and Navy Veterans of Canada Imperial Veterans in Canada, Winnipeg; Provisional Committee of and Canadian Legion, Toronto, Amputations' Association of the Great War; Comrades of the Great War and the Veterans of France.

An important section of the amalgamation resolutions will deal with the British Empire conference of Veterans in Cape Town, South Africa, R. B. Maxwell, G.W.V.A. president, represented the G.W.V.A. at that his report will go far toward showing the advantage of amalgamation in Canada. Discussion of the probability of the formation of a league between all soldier organizations of the different allied nations will be enhanced in value by the presence of fraternal delegates from the American Legion.

It is expected that under the heading of housing the convention will advance resolutions looking toward amendments to existing housing legislation with a view to securing a wider application of the Act. It is probable that the convention will instruct the Dominion Command to approach the next parliament for the approval of larger housing loans. Immigration will bring forth discussion principally on the relations between immigration and unemployment, and a resolution urging the careful selection of the types of intending emigrants.

It is indicated that the resolutions on disarmament will be along the lines of those approved by the British Empire Service League at its meeting in South Africa and will call for adequate defense of the Empire but with the understanding that armaments will not be built up for offensive purposes. It is believed that one of the mottoes of the British Empire Service League "Defence not Offence" will be adopted.

One of the features of the convention will be the discussion of the feasibility, and probably the building up of the ground work, for the formation of an organization of veterans' sons and daughters. The project has been under discussion in the various local branches for some time and it is expected that the Port Arthur convention will place its approval on the proposal.

The Port Arthur convention has been called the "Soldiers Parliament," and Dominion Command officials express the opinion that it will fully live up to its name.

It is interesting to note that one of the documents prepared for the convention contains the following affirmation of loyalty:

"We desire to reaffirm our unswerving loyalty to King and Country, and while we deplore the existence of many conditions, political, religious, racial and social which are harmful and pernicious we also realize that lasting betterment can only be maintained by the free expression of the people's will, given in a constitutional way, therefore we dedicate ourselves to the elimination of such unjust conditions and pledge ourselves to lawful and orderly procedure."

Dealing with political affiliations the document says:—

"While, as an association, we refrain from any kind, we yet urge upon member ship an itelligent interest in all political matters and commend to their support for political honors, provided always that such candidate pledge himself or herself to the support of just legslation whether originating within or without the party to which he or she may be attached."

UNCLE SAM TO TRAIN DETECTIVES

Under the supervision of the Department of Justice embryo government detectives will now be given systematic training in the technicalities of their trade. The work will be in charge of Edward J. PUBLIC BODIES LEAD FIGHT ON PROFITEERS

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press Cable) — Public bodies are now taking up a campaign against the alleged profiteering by retailers whose prices do not correspond with recent cuts announced by wholesalers.

The Corporation of the city of Cardiff in Wales, has decided to carry on an investigation into the affairs of certain shop keepers after an announcement by the Lord Mayor that he was buying frozen meat at four and one-half pence per pound for distribution among the distressed. Butchers are charging the public from eighteen to twenty pence per pound.

In Putumayo, South America, the tan-colored women have taken to painting gowns on their bodies in imitation of the fashonable set of Brazil. The usual attire was a necklace of beads.

WHO IS TO BLAME FOR JAZZ DANCING?

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—It is almost impossible to find out who is to blame for jazz dancing.

Really, this is a question which many consider by no means inconsequential. At first thought, one might pin the responsibility on the dancing teachers, but if you ask them they will shrug their tuxedoed shoulders in a rhythmic manner and plead not guilty. It's the fault of the composers, they will tell you, passing the buck in double-quick time.

The denial of the composers is sharp, their contradiction flat, and the explanation of the why of jazz music natural—they give the public what it wants.

Seemingly the public is divided in its opinion on this big question. Some say the younger generation is to blame. Jazz dancing and jazz music are, to repeat their own words, just exactly what one might expect when the youth of the land gads about in sports automobiles, simulates contempt for Mrs. Grundy's ideas, and shows a determination to do everything in a fast and snappy way.

Others maintain that jazz is a natural reaction to Victorian customs. A few of their neighbors, almost abandoning hope, resign themselves to the thought that that something called the spirit of the age is really the reason for fitful dancing styles, expressing wonder the while as to just what this little old world is coming to.

The manner in which the dancing instructors put the blame on the chaps who create tunes is exemplified by R. W. Vizay, President of the American Society of Dancing Teachers.

"Dancing is wholly a matter of music," he said. 'The reason a waltz is out of date is because there is no Strauss today to compose a real one and make the people glide to it. When good music is composed, good dancing will result. As long as you have jazz music you will have jazz dancing."

A very small proportion of couples dance properly these days, Mr. Vizay remarked. Take the ordinary ballroom, he said, and you will see twenty couples toddling, five shimmying three doing the "Chicago," and ten dancing properly. The teachers show their pupils how to dance properly, he continued, but when they leave and begin reacting to the jazz tunes of the cabaret and the roof garden—well, now, how are you going to keep 'em from shaking a mean ankle?

COST OF LIVING HITS THE LATIN QUARTER HARD.

France Losing Allied Students to Germany—Paris Alarmed.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Latin quarter is beginning to be seriously alarmed by the steady decline of its population as result of the high cost of living. Figures show that, where as 12,000 students were attending lectures at the Sorbonne in 1919, only 7,000 names were entered last year.

Although, according to American standards, the cost of studying at the Sorbonne still exceedingly low it has become a very heavy burden indeed for the average French bourgeois. To-day at least 8,000 francs per annum must be spent by a student for general living expenses lectures and books. That is the strict minimum his estimate includes very few "consommations" in the cafes where Latin Quarter students do a good deal of their work, especially in the Winter, when the rooms they inhabit are far too cold to read and write in. And a student living within this allowance will be debarred from all frolics with richer companions, which once gave the Quarter much of its easy charm.

This explains why young Frenchmen are experiencing considerable diffculty in carrying out their studies today. But they are not the only seekers for an education to suffer from after-the-war conditions. There are also fewer foreigners at the Sorbonne now than in the past. The unfavorable rate of exchange is forcing many Italians, Poles, Rumanians and natives of other friendly countries to go to the German universities instead of to the French, as they would certainly prefer to do.

The danger of this state of things is being pointed out here. It is obvious that it may ultimately result in alienating sympathies which would otherwise have undoubtedly been with the French. Indeed, it may do much to hamper the development of French thought, and means are therefore being sought to render conditions easier by multiplying circulating libraries, for instance, and also by providing more facilities in the way of students' hotels and clubs.

Longer Skirts for Shorter Days

The Disappearing Knee a Feature of the New Gowns of Velvet and Gabardine.

If One Wants to Be Very Smart, One Should Include in Her Fall Wardrobe at Least One Frock of Black Velvet, Severely Plain, to Be Worn with Collar of White Batiste Lace.

Originality Is Gained by Bands of Yellow Flanne' on a Frock of Navy Gabardine

By...
Mme. Frances
The Famous Creator of Fashions

SKIRTS are growing longer. There is no doubt about that. The knee-length skirt or one that extended but a trifle below the dimpled knee is no more looked upon with favor by the woman who is an index of correct style. True, there have been rumors for some time that the delightful abbreviated garments that were known as skirts would undergo a radical change.

But in retaliation the American woman emphatically said: "No, short skirts must stay." However, fashion can never "stay put." Its charm lies in the unexpected trails it blazes and the novel interpretations it gives to each new season's style. Of course, it is not an arbitrary dictator, for even if the tendency is toward longer skirts, still the individual need not abide by this mandate, should she realize that the shorter modes look better on her.

They may, but here comes one of the strange whimsies of fashion. As the vogue for longer skirts becomes more general, even the woman who at the present time stoutly maintains her independence by wearing a short skirt, will gradually realize that there is something not just right in her appearance. Although she may be a laggard in following fashion, yet when she makes this discovery she, too, will yield to its demands.

To show you how charming the new length is, I have pictured on this page four delightful frocks for the pleasant days of fall. Besides emphasizing the new length, they reveal some of the latest tendencies in trimmings which will, I am sure, interest you.

Very attractive is the dress of navy gabardine. It affects the simple lines that are always admirable in accentuating the youthfulness of the wearer. The combination of various materials for trimming is also appealing.

A white organdie vestee, with sleeves extending in mannish cuffs below the sleeves of the frock, gives a delightfully dainty touch to this dress. Binds of yellow flannel outline the vestee, which is crossed over in the front, as well as the cuffs. The yellow flannel is also used to trim the navy blue sleeves and outline the long V-shaped front opening.

At Right—A Fashion Point to This Frock of Black Velvet Is Added by Its Apron of Green Crepe and Velvet Embroidered in Black and White Beads.

The fronts also boast of two small panels, which bring a bright dash of color to the frock, for they are made of black patent leather barred with yellow flannel. A bind of the yellow flannel also suggests a yoke on the skirt and makes the front of the waist rather more elaborate.

The hem of the skirt forsakes the formal line of regularity, and the inverted V-shaped openings reveal again a clever use of yellow flannel. The hat that is worn with this dress is a black satin model, whose graceful lines prove most becoming to the wearer.

Red Against Black Gabardine

I have selected black gabardine for the fashioning of another attractive dress, which will be approved by the young woman who appreciates its value as a background for brilliant trimming. Against the black gabardine I have set frills of bright red linen and red beads.

The former appear both on the bodice and the skirt, where they fall in dainty ripples about the frock. The wooden beads, also bright red, are disposed in rosette-like clusters, so that they stud the belt. This trimming, by the way, is one that you will surely see much of as the season advances. It is being used not only on frocks where the beads are often of a bright color, to enliven the soft, rich folds of the material, but also on some of the new suits.

Sometimes the beads are chosen to match the color of the fabric. I have in mind at the present moment, a very lovely dress of navy gabardine, whose sole trimming is discerned in navy beads that richly pattern both waist and skirt.

But to return to the frock with the red linen frills. I would suggest that you note the distinctive sleeve in this model. It follows the graceful lines of the bishop sleeve and is finished with the snug cuff that contrasts well with the fulness just above it. A little red linen frill also enhances its pleasing lines.

The hat should surely satisfy the artistic taste of the woman to whom the frock appeals. It has a suggestion of military style about it, and as it is bright red felt it will not be lost to view when its wearer saunters down the avenue on a cool autumn morning. A black strap and a beaded rosette give it a decorative touch without in the least detracting from its swagger lines.

There is another material that will be much favored for the fall and winter frock, and that is black velvet. This is a fabric that I greatly admire. It looks beautiful when elaborated with a little color, although it is just as interesting, and indeed, I think sometimes more so, when it is unadorned.

On this page are two models which reveal alternative treatments for black velvet. Of course, while black is pre-eminent this season, there are also many delightfully rich browns that might be substituted by the woman who has not as yet felt the lure of a black gown.

Collared in Fine Batiste

If you care for a plain black velvet dress, you might like to copy the model that is cuffed and collared in fine batiste. This frock acknowledges a distant Russian inspiration in the blouse, which extends a bit below the normal waistline. It is slashed in V-style down the front and on the sleeves. Bindings of the black velvet outline this as well as the slashes on the peplum.

The dainty collar shows clustered pin-tucks and an edging of real Val. This collar is cream-colored, as this tone suggests age, which enhances the value of many a piece of lace. The cuff reveals the same delicate stitchery.

The skirt falls straight, but a touch of individuality appears at the hem, where it is slashed and bordered with a binding of the velvet.

In contrast to the simplicity of the dress is the hat. Its foundation is shining black felt, to which are attached curling sprays of black horsehair.

The other velvet dress is far more elaborate, for on the front is a long apron, of which the upper part and lining is green crepe. A wealth of decoration appears on this addition, for black and white beads are embroidered on the crepe in a mode that recalls the work of the American Indian. A little fringe of monkey fur adds to the novelty of the trimming, while this mode of adorning is again in evidence on the narrow sash ends.

The exceeding plainness of the blouse is offset by the gorgeous sleeves. These are made of the green crepe and show magnificent embroidery in the same style as that which is used so effectively on the apron.

A black satin hat is worn with this velvet dress and it is unrelieved by any touch of color.

Should you wish to copy the lines of any of these dresses you might vary the color combinations as well as the materials, for when I create such frocks I consider not only the harmony of line and color, but also the woman who will wear them. Doubtless you have given enough thought to dress to know which colors are most becoming to you, while the matter of correct lines is also important.

In the realm of accessories there is much of interest at this time. Some very lovely feather combs are being shown. These are both large and small. Frequently the tops are outlined with tiny pasted feathers. Wonderful colors are united in these little bands. Many rich blue greens that suggest the peacock are noted.

Prices for rolled oats were steady. The market is quiet with an easy undertone for baled hay. A good steady trade continues in eggs and there is a steady demand for potatoes. UNABLE TO COLLECT ON RURAL CREDITS

WINNIPEG, Oct. 7.— (Canadian Press.) — Rural credit societies of Manitoba will be forced to extend time for payment of $1,000,000 of farmers' notes until next fall, according to information obtained here. Total outstanding loans of the societies amount to $2,000,000. It is expected $1,500,000 of the loans will be collectable this fall and new notes payable in 1922 will be accepted for the balance.

Excessive rains, which held up threshing operations, and lowered prices of grains and live stock, are the reasons the societies are unable to make full collections this fall.

SAYS SHOOTING WHITWORTH WAS ONLY ACCIDENT

WILFRID MEHARG TESTIFIES IN HIS OWN DEFENCE

HAMILTON, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—In his own defence, Wilfred Meharg, charged with the murder of Dr. Edward Whitworth at Binbrook last December, last night told a story of a criminal life of Association with a gang of bandits, the holding up of stores and farmers on highways and finally of the crime which led to the trial for his life.

He declared that when they went to rob the store at Binbrook, Dickenson, his companion, rushed to the cash box, but was intercepted by Whitworth. He fired a shot to scare the doctor, but when he saw it had no effect he rushed to the assistance of Dickenson and in grabbing Whitworth the revolver discharged.

FIGHT CROP PESTS WITH POISON GAS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(United Press).—The Chemical Warfare Service, which devised deadly gases for destroying men during the war, is working to produce poisons that will rid the country of the boll weevil and other pests.

"The developments of war must be the implements of peace," Brigadier-General Amos A. Fries, chief of chemical warfare of the army, said in announcing the coming campaign.

Successful chemical drives against rodents in Cuba recently predict equal success for extermination by the same means of the boll weevil and other agencies which are seriously damaging the crops of the country.

War against all manner of destructive pests will be undertaken by the War Department, of which the boll weevil is perhaps the most dangerous to agriculture, while the rodent is probably the greatest menace in the cities.

At present the army is working on a request from Representative Philip D. Swing, of Imperial Valley, California, who hopes to use poison gas to exterminate the blackbird pest in that community. He was told that the Chemical Warfare Service could make a poison that would kill some of the birds and drive off the others, but that the farmers would have to content themselves with using the crops for food and fodder alone, as the chemicals would destroy the reseeding value of the fruit.

The Congressman pointed out that as things stand the farmers get neither food or seed. He was then assured that the Government would undertake a new series of experiments that would protect both the grain and its re-seeding qualities.

On Fashions

Russian green is a color innovation.

The "four-leaf clover" hat is smart and new.

Fringed sport skirts are made of plain blankets, with the fringe left on the hem edge of the skirt just as it was on the blanket.

Changeant taffeta full skirted frocks with fitted bodices are getting to be the rule, rather than the exception at smart hotels.

Some of the frocks made of heavy cloth are belted with narrow cloth girdles, which are tied in long tasseled ends below the hem of the skirt.

Irish picot lace edging a filmy little jacket of chiffon and the tiniest of rosebuds outlining that in wool embroidery makes one of the daintiest and most Dresden-like bed garments.

An autumn attraction is the duvetyne suit adorned with kid. If the suit be dark, red or green is used for trimming—or orange. Any bright shade in kid while the blouse worn is of the same shade. Black and red seem favorite combinations.

INSURANCE AGAINST BURGLARY COMES HIGH

RATE ON DWELLINGS IN PETERBOROUGH RAISED FROM $7 TO $10 FOR $1000 PROTECTION.

Burglary insurance comes high, now that the country is dry, and although of late years advanced far beyond the pre-war level, a few weeks ago climbed to new heights. The Examiner has been informed by one of the leading Peterboro insurance men that the rate on dwellings has recently been raised from $7 to $10 per $1000 insurance. This general policy protecting your house from burglary will not protect your cellar in Ontario, although it will in Quebec whede thefts of liquor are not yet common.

Wet Goods

General burglary policies once covered a man's "stock," but the companies have found the risk too great and are now charging $75 per $1000 to insure "wet goods" against theft.

Burglary insurance has been marked by general advances in rates, it was stated, because of the gdeater risks the companies feel they are under with rampant crime in the country; and such insurance is being carried to a larger extent, by merchants, although some business men, such as furriers, find it difficult to get protection, for valuable furs can be removed in broad daylight without suspicion. Jewellers also are paying highly for protection.

On account of hold-ups in many sections of the continent, banks and all financial institutions are protecting themselves from loss should their messengers be robbed.

A greater number of dwellings are being insured against burglary these days although the rates are now doubled since pre-war times. Then a home's contents (wet or dry) could be insured at the rate of $5 per $1000 insurance carried; now it is $10 per $1000 without the company guaranteeing to protect one's liquid possessions in any shape or form. And yet many cellars are still insured the Examiner is assured.

A CORRECTION...

The late James Elmhirst, who was killed in an accident near Westwood, was a brother of Mrs. F. D. Armstrong, of Peterborough, not of Mrs. Bert Armstrong, as stated in Thursday's issue.

U.S.-JAPAN TROUBLE TALK IS NONSENSICAL STATES GENERAL WOOD

TOKIO, Oct. 7.— "All this loose talk about trouble between Japan and the United Staes is nonsense," Major General Leonard Wood declared, addressing a banquet given him here by the American-Japanese Society. General Wood was decorated with the Order of the Rising Sun by the Japanese Government.

NOW SLEEPS ALL NIGHT, HE SAYS

HAMILTON MAN TELLS OF WONDERFUL CHANGE SINCE HE BEGAN TAKING TANLAC.

"Tanlac caps everything in the way of medicine that I've ever run across, and I want to tell you it's certainly done the work in my case," said William Pluman, of 14 Bay Street South, Hamilton, Ont.

"Before I got hold of Tanlac I suffered terribly with indigestion and stomach trouble, and had no appetite at all. The little I managed to eat caused me intense pain, and I suffered so from bloating at times that when I lay down to sleep I would just almost smother. I was also troubled a great deal with constipation, had awful headaches and dizzy spells, and at times it was all I could do to stick to my work. I had such severe pains in my arms and elbows I could hardly put my coat on, and was simply in a terrible fix. I would lie awake most of the night unable to sleep, and would get up in the mornings feeling worse than when I went to bed.

"Yes, sir, this was the condition I was in before I got Tanlac, but the medicine has changed things around for me completely, and I now feel like an entirely different person. I have the best kind of an appetite, my stomach never troubles me any, and I never have an ache or pain. I sleep like a log all night, and just feel fine all the time. Tanlac has certainly been great in restoring my health, and I don't hesitate to give it all the credit."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

UTILITIES REVENUE

only one tap places," said Mr. Dobbin.

"Walnut Street wants a main badly, but Cedar Street needs it perhaps worse, as they have a sewer but no water. I feel that one of these streets, if not two of them, should be done," stated the Chairman.

What plan to follow puzzled the Commission for a long time, but the final decision was to issue the ultimatum to Euclid Avenue residents. If eight residents apply they get the water; if not, the Commission will go ahead and construct the large main on Murray Street, west to the boundary, to be later linked up with the 10½-inch main on Wellar Street.

Check Up Wages.

R. L. Dobbin and H. O. Fisk will make a report in regard to the wages paid in their respective departments in comparison with wages in other place. Chairman Hicks asked for a report. "If we're going to do more work to give employment, wouldn't it be well to check up our labor with other places." Mr. Dobbin said 10 of their men were getting 40 cents an hour, three 45, and three 50 cents. Mr. Fisk said they were paying linemen 65 cents, but this was 10 or 15 cents below the Bell rate. The Bell have always paid higher wages, he stated. New men being taken on are not receiving 65 cents, he added.

"I think we want to spread out what money we have as far as we can," said Mr. Hicks.

"Give as much work as we can with the money," was Mr. Mason's idea.

"Be fair, that's the main thing," Commissioner Sisson remarked.

It was decided to charge the Canadian Packing Co. ,rental for water metres owned by the Commission, and all the water used be combined into one reading. It was stated the filter plant of the company is rapidly being proceeded with, and their use of the city water will not be large from now on. The city water will be used for all sanitary processes, but for sluicing out the plant river water will be used. It was revealed that during July and August the company paid $1,617.63 for water, and from August 31 to September 31, $767.68.

BRONZE MEDAL FOR EIGHT CANDIDATES

Examination Results in Connection With the "Y" Swimming Pool.

An examination in Life Saving Methods in connection with the swimming pool, was conducted at the Y.W.C.A. last evening from five to seven o'clock, by Miss Olive Bettle of Toronto. Eight candidates took the examination, and all were successful in obtaining the bronze medal of the Royal Life Saving Society. Mrs. D. Loomis and the Misses Doris Goodwin, Nellie Thomas, Lillian Wade, Minnie Warman, Selina White, Jean Thompson and Jean McLaughlin were the successful candidates. Miss Thompson and Miss McLaughlin are members of the staff of the Y.W.C.A.

These ladies have all been trained this season in live-saving methods by Miss Emma Carroll, and it is doubtless due to her excellent methods that all were successful in passing the examination.

After the examinations, refreshments were served in the pleasant dining room at the Y.

CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL IS A WONDER SO FAR

Think of three experienced oil men with three different tests, all coming to the same conclusion namely, that there is oil and lots of it and listen! One of these three can distinguish between gas and oil and he says there is more than one immense body of gas. He does not think he says "he knows it" and has located it for us

Is there anything you know with such a prospect? If you know of one we would like to hear it. We are thoroughly convinced we are about to uncover great wealth and have put more than we can spare of our own money in it. One week more for the first chance. 1d

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How To Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind and stomach acidity, and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous, because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the surface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest them. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented, unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and frequently an ulcer is the first sign of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before meals a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water washes the mucous from the stomach walls and draws the blood to the stomach, while the Bisurated Magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucus and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover, the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid that may be in your stomach, and sweeten its food contents. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant, and easy to take, and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milks, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure Bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

I Want to Put Dollars In Your Pocket

There is no need to make a special trip to town for a load of chop if you have a Toronto Farm Engine and Grain Grinder of your own. And besides, it will save you a few cents on every bag.

Coarse or fine chop—for cattle or hogs—I would recommend the Toronto Grinder for efficiency and economy on your farm.

A Toronto Farm Engine, too, is a great labor saver. Attach it to your pulper, pump, cutting box, cream separator or fanning mill.

Think of the labor saved! It pays for itself in one winter.

I'll put dollars in your pocket if you'll come in and discuss Toronto Farm Equipment with me.

REMNANTS OF WRANGEL ARMY AT GALLIPOLI

FORCE OF 20,000 OFFICERS AND MEN STILL CONTINUES ONE OF UNSOLVED PUZZLES OF NEAR EAST.- MORALE IS SPLENDID.

THEIR ULTIMATE ROLE

ATHENS, Oct. 5.—The ultimate fate of General Wrangel's Russian army in exile, of whom 20,000 officers and men still are encamped on the Gallipoli Peninsula, still continues one of the unsolved puzzles of the Near East.

General Wrangel has held together the best of his officers and men from among the refugee army which fled from Russia before the victorious Bolshevicki. He has hoped that his forces would be again needed in Russia to maintain a new government when the Soviet regime collapsed."

But this is a hope deferred and Wrangel's best fighting men wait in their tents and huts on Gallipoli.

Major Jean de Roover, chairman of the League of Nations commission for the exchange of populations between Greece and Bulgaria, has visited the Russian camp and brought away a very favorable impression of the officers and men. He knows something about the Russian fighting man for he was formerly the Belgian representative with Wrangel's army when it was the bulwark of the anti-Bolshevik strength in the Crimea. He says:—

Moral Good.

"In this camp, besides 1,500 women and children, there are 8,000 officers 10,000 soldiers and 2,000 cadets in the military schools. These troops have kept their military organization. Their morale is of the highest and they voluntarily submit to the most stern discipline; for in all their hardships they are buoyed up by an unquestioning faith in their chief, General Wrangel, and in the greatness of their mission.

"They are encamped under canvas or in old huts that have no doors or windows, but are always in an irreproachable state of cleanness.

"They are fed by France. In addition, General Wrangel is paying them, for the little money he still has —about a dollar a month.

"Wrangel, who succeeded in getting employment as labor corps, in Serbia and Bulgaria for nearly all his Cossack troops, is trying to get Serbia to receive his Gallipoli Army Corps. Five thousand of them are going to be used by Jugoslavia as a frontier-guard.

"As for the other regiments, the government at Belgrade is prepared to offer them its hospitality if funds are put at its disposal which will cover their upkeep for two years. The Russia Ambassador at Washington has still several tens of millions of dollars, the remains of funds that were sent him from Russia before the Bolshevik coup de'etat, to pay for the orders for war material. Wrangel is making every effort to get the few million dollars necessary for the carrying out of his scheme raised out of these funds and transmitted to the Serbian government.

Will it Fight Again.

"If he succeeds, what will be the ultimate role of this legion? Will it fight again as an army? Probably not. The general opinion in Russian circles is that Bolshevism must go under in an internal convulsion of the country, and that the tyranny of Bolshevism will be succeeded by anarchy. It will be then that elements of order, a framework of administrative and police organization will be needed by the new government to restore calm for the convocation of the Constituent Assembly. This is where the survivors of the National Russian Army hope to be of service to their country."

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore Colour, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn grey, streaked, and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked, or grey. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft, and luxuriant.

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

To see the healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside bathing every morning for a week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges or whose skin is sallow or pallid, that one week of inside bathing will have them looking and feeling better every way.

HINTS TO THE HOUSEWIVES

All market produce needs washing to remove dirt and dust, bacteria.

A little cheese flavoring improves stuffed baked tomatoes.

Garnish veal or pork with fried apple rings or steamed prunes, slightly spiced.

To keep a pie from sticking to plate sprinkle pie plate generously with flour instead of grease.

Fish is easily digested and contains the proper food values. Great care should be taken that the fish is perfectly fresh, in season, and thoroughly cooked.

In making chocolate fudge, if one teaspoon cornstarch is added to each cup sugar the fudge is sure to come out smooth and creamy with very little beating.

When making a pudding or cake with a wooden spoon, beat the mixture with the back of the spoon. It becomes beautifully light in half the usual time.

When the corks slip into salt and peppe shakers and there are no new ones to be had, small piece of court plaster will serve the purpose very well and it can be washed off very easily when the shakers need to be refilled.

RELIGIOUS SECT SAY EARTH FLAT.

Volivia Prepared to Refute Modern Astronomy.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The story of 'The Village That Voted the Earth is Flat" has an earnest adherent in Wilbur Glenn Voliva overseer of Zion the religious community that Alexander Dowie founded at Zion City, a little north of Chicago.

Declaring that there is no proof of the sphericity of the earth or that the earth has any motion, Voliva says he is "prepared to refute modern astronomy, scientifically, as well as from the standpoint of the Bible." Here are some of the points he advances:

"All standing water is level. Let any one disprove it if he can. They can not disprove it. This is conclusive evidence that the old Pythagorean-Copernician system of the spherity of the earth is false.

Seeing 82 Miles.

"A man stood at Kingston, Jamaica, and saw the lighthouse at Havana harbor, 82 miles distant, which is another conclusive proof that the spherity of the earth is a fake.

"The midnight sun has been seen hundreds of times, but it would be absolutely impossible to see it on a sphere. You would have to look through hundreds of miles of earth and rock.

"There is a railroad in South America 2,000 miles long which is almost perfectly level. The Suez canal is a hundred miles long without locks, and with scarcely any rise at all. Where is your curvature of the earth There is none.

"No wonder higher critics and modern believers in the Copernician system of astronomy laugh at the flood and say that such a thing as a flood could not occur on a globe or a spherical earth—and I agree with them. They are perfectly right. That is what the Devil intended when he invented the modern astronomical theory—to destroy the Word of God.

How About Eclipses.

"They say that eclipses are caused by the earth passing between the moon and the sun, causing a shodow; but how can you have an eclipse with both the sun and the moon above the horizon? It is a matter of record that there have been a number of eclipses with both the moon and the sun above the horizon. No one kows what causes eclipses.

"They tell you that the sun is 92,000,000 miles away. I laugh at that, not only as a mathematical, but also as a student of God Almighty's Word.

"Did God Almghty create the earth and then create a light to light it up and put it 92000,000 miles distant and make it a million times larger than the earth? What kind of a fool would build a house up in Kenosha and erect a light a hundred miles from it to light up the parlor?

"They say that science is not speculation; but if science is true, there there can be no conflict between it and the Word of God— but when it comes to the Word of God, they have not a leg to stand on. I will take the Word of God and down any modern astronomer on the face of the earth and dispose of him in less than 30 minutes."

WIFE TAKES HUSBAND'S ADVICE

And Is Made Well Again by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Springfield, Mass.—"The doctor told my husband that I had to have an operation, otherwise I would be a sickly woman and could not have any more children on account of my weakened condition. I refused to have the operation. My husband asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For the first four months I could do but little work, had to lie down most of the time, and was very nervous, but my husband was always reminding me to take the Vegetable Compound, which I did. Of my eight children this last one was the easiest birth of all and I am thankful for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend it to my friends when I hear them complaining about their ills."—Mrs. M. NATALE, 72 Fremont St., Springfield, Mass.

Sickly, ailing women make unhappy homes, and after reading Mrs. Natale's letter one can imagine how this home was transformed by her restoration to health. Every woman who suffers from such ailments should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. It is surely worth while.

NOYES SEES HOPE OF EUROPE'S ECONOMIC REHABILITATION NOW

FINANCIAL EDITOR OF NEW YORK TIMES TELLS BANKERS LESSONS OF HISTORY INDICATE THIS.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Hope of Europe's complete economic reconstruction, judged by the lessons of history, was expressed here yesterday by Alexander D. Noyes, financial editor of the New York Times, in an address before the convention of the American Bankers' Association. The judgments of financiers and other business men who have been predicting "a ruined Europe," or a "bankrupt world," he said, were distorted and not only misread economic history but misunderstood "the human element in economic progress and ignored certain facts in European finance of this very year."

"The country and its banking interests know now, and very much to their cost," said Mr. Noyes, "how completely the whole situation was misjudged in 1919, an illusion based on the assumption that there was no limit to the rise of prices and that an enormously increased trade with Europe, Asia and South America could be continued indefinitely on the basis of those prices and of a preposterous inflation of credit at American banks. But if the business community was totally wrong in its view of the world's outlook when every one was optimistic two years ago, how can we be sure that the almost unqualified pessimism that has prevailed more recently has any better justification?" The speaker said such ill-judgment is characterized by absence both of historical perspective and insight into the forces which make for economic progress.

Despite the fact that Germany and Austria have been "notorious sinners" in their unprecedented paper currency inflation, indicating apparent economic chaos, the speaker pointed out that the United States, France and other countries had passed through similar post-war experiences and had recovered.

"It is a strong perversity which has blinded so many people to the fact that these very states of ours, now in the American union," declared the speaker, "were almost the first of all to try the paper experiment of Germany and Poland and to repudiate the paper when it had sunk to nothing. We know their subsequent history under the sound money and the sound government of the American constitution. The 40,000,000,000 francs of paper money issued by revolutionary France was entirely repudiated, yet France, under the sound-money government of Napoleon, less than 10 years afterward, became the most powerful and prosperous nation of Europe. The real wealth of a nation lies in its natural resources and the energy of its people. A nation can not be economically ruined so long as it continues to possess these resources, but the facts do not prove that a government can resort to repudiation without forfeiting its right to govern, and they do not in the least set a pattern whose imitation great European nations, such as England, France and Italy could consider."

A very notable change began in 1921, Mr. Noyes said, when England took the first steps to gain control of its war-time currency notes. The minimum of £368,200,000 outstanding in December, 1920, he declared, had been reduced to £316,000,000, or nearly 15 per cent. The paper money issues of the Bank of France, which in November, 1920, were 39,000,000,000 francs, had been reduced 2,500,000,000 francs within 10 months. Considering how gradual the process of currency contraction always had been in the past, the speaker expressed the opinion that it is "a very remarkable achievement."

"Does anyone seriously suppose," he asked, "that if a sponge were passed over the paper obligations of revolutionary Russia — nominally valued now, I believe, in trillions—and if the present group of fanatics at Moscow were replaced by a sane and intelligent government, Russia would not be one of the great economic powers of the modern world?"

Mr. Noyes said that the vital question to-day is "the readjustment, the rehabilitation and the economic reconstruction of those half dozen European nations on whom fell the full shock and strain of four years' conflict." He said that no more difficult and baffling problem has been presented in at least a century, but that the restoration of national credit, the resumption of gold payments and the bringing of international exchange to a normal basis are possible of achievement. Judged by experiences of the past, he was confident a correct solution would be found.

"This is not by any means the first time that economists have proved that a war could not be paid for," he said. "But the predictions have never heretofore come true; on the contrary, it is a strange testimony of history that after the period of recuperation, longer or shorter as the case might be, even the belligerent nations turned out to have become richer and economically more powerful than ever before, the world's trade larger than ever before and prosperity and accumulated wealth greater than ever before. In this I am not giving theories or arguments but well-known facts with which every one is familiar."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Hotel Majestic,
Quincy, Near State St.,
Chicago, Oct. 3, 1921.

Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Please insert the following concerning the damaging of the Scriven Memorial at Kidd's Corners, which is on private property.

Willing to give $50 reward for the conviction of party who damaged the Scriven Memorial Stone, at Kidd's Corners, by rifle bullets.

This is a historic stone. The people of Bewdley, Rice Lake Plains and Port Hope communities could never pay the debt of gratitude they owe to the late Joseph Scriven, the author of "What a Friend we have in Jesus," giving his money and sacrificing his strength and labors for the sick and dying, namely, small pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid cases, and administered to their needs, to the poor people of his day, who were the forefathers of the present generation. It is unbelievable that people living in Christian communities should damage this historic stone perpetuating this wonderful philanthropist. So I ask the Port Hope, Cobourg and Millbrook, including Toronto and Peterborough, police and detective authorities to assist and investigate in running down this criminal who damaged this stone.

Thanking you for your co-operation, sincerely yours,

Rev. D. S. K. Byrne, D.D.

October 5, 1921.

Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your editorial tonight, I see you are strong against the recall which some of the parties have asked their prospective members to comply with. One is almost led to infer from your article that the man chosen and elected by the people should, when this high honor has been conferred, be free to act as his own mind or feelings may dictate. Now, why should any representative, who is nobly sincere in government by the people, desire to remain in this position, if those who have placed him there as their mouthpiece feel impelled to recall him and make a change? To remain in such a position, would only show an individual selfishness, which is no desirable asset for a "man of the people." We cannot say that Government members need always to have the recall enforced, for not so many months ago we had Mr. Burnham teaching the electors what they had a right to expect when pledges were given, and of his own accord, resigning office; but while Mr. Burnhim was not bound by the recall, any man who comes forward with faith in the electors should not be unwilling to subscribe to this perfectly legitimate contract, which many think is another little safeguard on the liberties of the people, the preservation of which require an ever-increasing vigilance.

Yours faithfully,

Joseph Grierson.

TO INSURE PROPER USE OF MEDICAL LEARNING

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Soundness of moral fibre to insure the proper use of medical learning was declared by the Supreme Court here to be as essential to the public health as medical learning itself.

"Mere intellectual power and scientific achivement without uprightness of character may be more harmful than ignorance," the court asserted in overruling exceptions of Dr. Arthur A. Lawrence of Boston, who had been requested to appear before the State Board of Registration in Medicine and show cause why his certificate should not be revoked for alleged "gross misconduct in the practice of his profession." A lower court had dismissed his petition to have the board prohibited from requiring his presence.

Dr. Lawrence claimed that as he had been a physician many years before the board came into existence he had acquired vested rights which could not be taken from him unless he were found guilty by a jury of having committed a crime. The opinion of the court, written by Chief Justice Rugg, said in part:

"Highly trained intelligence combined with disregard of the fundamental virtues is a menace. A physician, however skillful, who is guilty of deceit, malpractice or gross misconduct in the practice of his profession, even though not amounting to an offense against the criminal laws, well may be thought to be pernicious in relation to the health of the community.

"The circumstance that the petitioner already had been registered and given a certificate to practice medicine gave him no immunity against future legislation."

EPWORTH LEAGUE SESSIONS OPEN IN GEORGE ST.

The fourteenth biennial convention opened in George street church this afternoon at 2.30. Rev. H. W. Foley, B.A., B.D., gave an interesting address on Young People's Work in general giving, purpose and momentum to the convention in the opening session.

This evening an open session will be held, when Rev. Manson Doyle, B.A., assistant secretary of young people's work, and Mrs. (Dr.) F. C. Stephenson of the Mission rooms, who is just back from a year in China, will be the speakers.

The president of the Bay of Quinte Conference from Belleville will take the chair. A welcome to all the open sessions is extended to all.

HARVEST FESTIVAL IN ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

MARKED BY LARGE GATHERING OF CLERGY, CHOIR AND CONGREGATION.

The annual serviec of Praise and Thanksgiving for the ingathering of the harvest was held in the old parish church of St. John at 8 p.m., last evening, when a large gathering of clergy, choir and congregation assembled for the event. The church was tastefully decorated for occasion with grain, corn, fruit and other produce, flowers figuring prominently in the chancel.

The installation of the beautiful new altar and reredos, and the decoration of the whole of the interior, made it unnecessary for very much special decoration. Bread, in the form of a sheaf of corn, presented by Mr. C. E. Coleman, was appropriately placed at the foot of the altar.

The service was fully choral, the first part intoned by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, and the prayers after the 3rd collect read by the Rev. Mr. Bousfield of St. Luke's. The first lesson was read by the Rev. R. B. Grobb, of All Saints, and the second by Rev. H. Battersby, Caledon East. The Rev. W. R. Courage of St. George's, also assisted in the service.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. G. F. B. Doherty of St. Luke's, Toronto, who asserted that to say that we lived in difficult times was no new thing, instancing the struggle of the early church against terrible prosecution. The time had come, he said, to throw aside differences of opinion as to organizations and unite to present the true gospel with a united front.

"The courage of the early Christians was instanced by the consciousness they had of the personal presence of our Lord and Master with them in all their difficulties. The world needs to-day not only the teaching of Jesus as set forth in the gospels, but the good news of the presence of the world's Saviour, who according to His sure promise is with His church, and beside believers under all their trials, to the end of the ages."

The Music.

The musical part of the service was finely led by the choir under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey. The anthem sung during the collection was Stainer's "Ye Shall Dwell in the Land," with Miss Quartermaine and Mr. Fred Johnson singing the connecting solos, and last night's impressive rendering was well up to the standard aimed at by St. John's choristers.

The Thanksgiving services will be continued on Sunday next. Holy Communion at 8 and 11 a.m. Evensong at 7 with sermon by the Rev. Frank Vipond, Rector of Lakefield.

HOME CIRCLE

WISDOM.

When I have ceased to break my wings
Against the faultiness of things,
And learned that compromises wait
Behind each hardly opened gate,
When I can look life in the eyes.
Grown calm and very coldly wise,
Life will have given me the truth,
And taken in exchange—my youth.
Sara Teasdale.

Possibly the older generation cannot understand the newer principles of education, but whatever the principles used the results are expected to be more or less the same. A few things that have come to our notice recently lead us to believe that the girls and boys who came out of our old log school houses made better men and women than the boys and girls who come out of our imposing school building of today.

One thing that seems to be left out of our present day school curriculum is training in honor. What have become of the men and the women who would stick by their word once given, for all time through thick and thin. Our young men and women in these days make promises and the promises amount to as much as the proverbial scrap of paper. Whose fault is it? Not theirs. They have never been taught that it is dishonorable to go back on a promise.

We are not knocking the school. We realize they are doing their best to fit our young people for the competition they will meet in a swiftly advancing age. Yet at the same time we cannot refrain from thinking that a few of the old fashioned principles of education could well be retained in our schools. In our zeal to have our boys and girls grow into successful men and women as far as brains or money are concerned we should not neglect our duty of making honorable men and women also.

Thoughtfulness of others is a rare quality and one which few of us try to cultivate. We are all very careful to be thoughtful of ourselves, but when it comes to the other fellow it is a different proposition.

If you will find some thoughtful person and watch the situation you will find that nine cases out of ten of his regard for other people cause him not the slightest inconvenience. It is in the small things that thoughtfulness is best shown—a letter to save someone from worry—a 'phone call if you must be late for an appointment—a quick turn of the conversation to save someone embarassment—small things but sometimes they prevent a world of worry and trouble.

Intolerance is a fault easy to understand because we all have it to rather a marked degree—easy to understand but difficult to overcome. It sometimes seems strange that we meet so much intolerance when circumstances are constantly bringing conditions to our door that we would not tolerate in others last month or last year. But we always make ourselves believe that there is some excuse for us, that conditions are different with us than with anyone else. It is true that conditions may excuse us, but we should also remember it is quite probable we do not know the conditions in the other case either and they may make things quite as excusable. Sooner or later most of us will have to tolerate very much the same things in ourselves that we will not tolerate in others.

Self-esteem is a good thing but you don't want too much of it: enough of anything is enough, and no matter how good a thing is, too much is more than you need, and self-esteem is no exception to the rule.

It is well enough for a man to hold his head up and step around with an air of considerable importance, if he is really doing any good in the world by living in it. Of course a man wants to possess self-confidence, and wants to think he is just as good as anybody, but he don't want to think that the welfare of mankind hinges on his actions, or that the earth rests on his shoulders.

You cannot increase a man's circumference of thought by a tape or find out his weight in the world with a pair of scales. The expansion of personality is limitless and depends upon the amount of energy we may master.

It makes a lot of men feel better to blame their troubles on the way they were born. But they know they are wrong. A man can't fool himself.

GREAT BOON FOR SMALL CAR OWNERS

DUNLOP RUBBER COMPAN'S NEW STRAIGHT WALL, 31 x 4 CORD TIRE.

Users of cars taking 30 x 3½ rims have now available a Straight Wall type of rim, which allows the use of a 31 x 4 Straight Wall Cord Tire, recently developed by the Dunlop Tire & Rubber Goods Co., Limited.

This 31 x 4 Cord Tire, as previously stated, is made to fit the new Straight Wall rim in 30 x 3½ size, and its introduction at this date is particularly interesting because the 31 x 4 Straight Wall Cord Tire represents an extension of the Straight Wall principle in tire-building to the smaller car tire. This makes it possible for owners of "Brisco," "Chevrolet," "Ford," "Gray-Dort," "Maxwell" or "Overland" cars to use the new Straight Wall Tire—if they so wish—by converting their present Clincher Rims into Straight Wall.

Rim makers are now supplying 30 x 3½ Straight Wall Rims to interchange with 30 x 3½ Clincher Demountable Rims or Solid type 30 x 3½ Clincher Rims.

The new 30 x 3½ Straight Wall rim is exactly the same as the 32 x 3½ Straight Wall rim except that it is twenty-three inches in diameter instead of twenty-five.

"31 x 4 Straight Wall" introduces a new size in Cord Tires, one that undoubtedly will be very popular because of the records it will set for tremendous mileage.

One Car Maker has already adopted the new Dunlop Cord Tire for equipment purposes, and the prospects are that others will follow the example immediately.

31 x 4 Straight Wall Cord is supplied in both "Ribbed" and the well-known "Traction" tread designs.

ELSIE FERGUSON with Marc Mc Dermott IN FOOTLIGHTS

An honest interpretation of life as it actually exists on the stage

The story of a girl who won fame on the stage by adopting a Russian name and a "past."

And when, for love, she wanted again to be her real self—

You'll say it's Elsie Ferguson's greatest picture!

VAUDEVILLE

VERA WAYBELL, Dramatic Singer and Violinist | KELLEY AND MACKEY in Laughs and Songs

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Elsie Ferguson at the Capitol Theatre this week has a fine vehicle in "Footlights" for the display of some vivid clothes, which also provides her with a fine scope for the exercise of her talent in the impersonation of a simple country girl who hearkens to the call of the stage and becomes a "great Russian artiste" with startling rapidity. The conflict of love, which steps in to rival ambition, gives her some dramatic moments. The picture has the usual conventional happy ending, when ambition is cast overboard for good.

Ben Turpin, the slanting-eyed hero of the comedy, "Love's Outcast," is the principal figure in a court case where his amorous proclivities receive a searching investigation, and the serial, "The Purple Riders," is as thrilling as ever, with the main character awaiting decapitation on a railway track as the picture fades into "continued next week."

A dramatic singer and violiniste, Vera Waybell, who gives some excellent selections in vocal and instrumental music, and Messrs. Kelley and Mackay, a couple of high-pressure "jazz" comedians, provide entertainment in the vaudeville line for the last three days of this week.

AT THE ALLEN.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE TAKES EXAMPLE FROM EVE IN NEW COMEDY

There came to the screen of the Allen Theatre yesterday "Mamma's Affair," an altogether delightful feature.

It is a First National attraction, presented by Joseph M. Schenck, in which the always refreshing Constance Talmadge carries off the stellar honors. It is the screen version of Rachel Barton Butler's Harvard University prize play, which enjoyed a successful New York and road run last season.

The director, Victor Fleming, has succeeded in making it even more delectable than in its play form, which is paying a high compliment, as in its stage presentation it was adjudged by the critics to be one of the brighest comedies of the season.

The sparkling lines which gave the day such vogue, are preserved in the laughable titles, while the screen version, perhaps because the camera, which has "all the world" as its studio, gives wider scope to the scenes of merriment. It would be difficult to imagine a more fittingly chosen vehicle for the dainty commedienne.

Miss Talmadge not only repeats her former triumphs, but ascends to new heights in her interpretation of the role of Eve.

The cast is carefully chosen and includes Kenneth Harlan, who is Miss Talmadge's leading man, and plays the part of Doctor Harmon, Effice Shannon essays the role of Mrs. Orin, the mother of Eve, Katherine Kaelred interprets the character of Mrs. Marchant, the sycophantic friend of Mrs. Orrin, George Le Guere appears as Henry Marchant, her son and affianced husband of Eve, while Gertrude Le Brandt is "Bundy," Mrs. Orrin's confidential maid.

The adaptation was made by John Emerson and Anita Loos, who are, perhaps, our best known little adapters. Certainly they have a happy faculty of extracting the last ounce of clean humor out of every possible situation and their names have become on the screen the hallmark of excellency. Here is a glimpse of the plot. Just enough to whet the appetite. The routine must be seen on the screen to be appreciated:

First is a prologue—The Garden of Eden. With the fabled apple tree and serpent, only Eve is costumed in a daring evening gown, with a sweeping train covered with leaves, while Adam wears furs. Eve gets Adam to hand her the apple only by stimulating hysterics, which explains the raison d'etre of the play, and which, according to the titles, is dedicted to woman's staunchest ally, her "nerves."

THE LION AND THE MOUSE

By Charles Klein

The early years of the present century and the last decade of the 19th saw many changes in American business life. The man of some means fine character and flawless integrity found himself crushed between the mill stones of high finance, money and success, made gods of men who a few years before had been struggling for the necessities of life. Raised suddenly to a position of influence fully cognizant of all that wealth could provide, it seemed as though an era had set in when might spelled right. The public in general felt the pressure but the on rush of progress was so great the struggle for existence so keen that the individual was lost and everyone bowed to success. The Hearst papers all over the United states featured cartoons by Opper in which the unhappy plight of the common people was urged but it remained for Charles Klein the playwright to put into concert form the nefarious influence which was underminig American life and politics.

He wrote the 'Lion and the Mouse' using the name of the fable to attract attention to the theme of his powerful drama. The play created a sensation upon its initial presentation in Boston, with Edmund Bruse and Grace Elliston in the stellar roles.

On Monday night, 10th October, the Rex Stock Company will present this great drama, with Rex as the Lion of finance and Zana Vaughn as the mouse-like secretary.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Marc Klaw, Inc., and Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., Presents the Irresistible Comedy, "French Leave," By Reginald Berkeley.

The management begs to call your attention to the coming of "French Leave" at the Grand Opera House on Friday next, Oct. 14th, the new comedy by Reginald Berkeley, which has been the sensation of the London season, and is now in its fifth month at the Globe Theatre. "French Leave" has been endorsed by that most conservative of London critics, St. John Ervine: "The most original, witty, brilliant and attractive comedy seen in London in many moons." The cast presenting it is one of unusual excellence, composed of English players of note, including Walter Edwin, Madge Surtees, Jack Murtagh, Charles Romano, Harry J. Thomas, Genevieve Bertolacci, William Dean and John Skinner.

VISIT THEIR SHOP "SEMI-READY WEEK" FOR STYLE VIEW

NO MAN WILL BE URGED TO BUY —EXPOSITION OF STYLES AND OF THE PHYSIQUE TYPE SYSTEM OF TAILORING.

"To begin on Monday, and to continue all week, there will be a complete and comprehensive display of all the new styles in Semi-ready Clothes, and particularly of all the physique types which are exclusive to this system," said Harry Thornton, of the Semi-ready store.

"We wish to emphasize the fact that this is not a selling exposition, though any caller may make a selection if he wishes.

"It is an exhibition display of several hundred suits direct from the Semi-ready designers — a well-prepared exhibit of just what the correct styles for the season are, and particularly a demonstration of the physique type system, and the certainty that each and every man can be perfectly fitted in a Semi-ready tailored suit or overcoat.

"The garments on view arrive on Monday morning, and the display will begin after twelve o'clock. We want every man to feel free to come and see, and to know that he is under no obligation to buy, even though we have the full permission of the Semi-ready Company to dispose of or set aside any model which may strike the fancy of any caller."

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Women smoke while shopping in London.

The Young Women's Christian Association is given supplemental education to more than 80,000 girls.

The girls of Port Rico are practically well adapted for nursing, making the most skilful and exact attendants in the sick room.

The first woman to hold a seat in the Swedish Parliament is Miss Kerstin Hesselgren, recently elected at Gothenburg. For many years she has been one of the leading labor leaders in Sweden.

In the building trades women have made probably the least progress of any line of endeavor, although some are listed in practically every craft. There are women carpenters and joiners, bricklayers, masons, plasterers, paperhangers, roofers, glassworkers and plumbers.

In parts of Tryol the bride's mother gives her daughter what is known as the "tearchief" woven in fine linen, with which she is supposed to dry her eyes at the ceremony. Afterward she puts this away and it is not used again until is is laid over her face when she is dead.

ur Fand fabric combinations are smart for fall.

More normal than long waists are being noted on many new importations.

The tiny hat, with a big bunch of trimming out over each ear, is a pretty fancy of the moment.

Negliges of colored crepe with panels of black lace back and front and flowing sleeves of the lace are charming.

Wood bead embroidery is used on dark frocks. The beads are painted in bright colors and applied in big blocks.

Mole-skin being so softly pliable has been used in many instances for tailleurs of severe tailored lines with tight fitting sleeves, long, narrow, semi-fitted coat with shawl collar and a moderate skirt.

Evening slippers are elaborately decorated with the same colors of the gown, using for the background the main shade of the dress. Such combinations as pink, green and

BRITISH CABINET MEETS.

LONDON, Oct. 7. — (Canadian Press.)— The Washington conference was again one of the main topics of discussion at a long meeting of the Cabinet this morning, and with the conference with Sinn Fein leaders next Tuesday, formed the principal matters before the Ministers, despite the pressing importance of the unemployment question, which is expected, however, to come up later to-day.

TRIS SPEAKER MAY HIT THE TALL TIMBERS THIS AFTERNOON

BASEBALL MOGUL RETURNED TO THE CITY THIS MORNING—HAD TO MAKE A SPEECH.

The cheerless weather reception prepared for Tris Sepaker and Leslie Nunamaker, Cleveland baseball kings, was not in keeping with the warm way his friends and admirers have received him. Chris. Graham and Cyril Lech rushed the famous captain and his catcher off to the big gathering of Shriners in Belleville yesterday almost before they had set foot in the city. The reception given Speaker and Nunamaker by the Shriners is something Belleville will talk about for years. Both men are Shriners and were accorded unusual honors at the affair. Speaker having to occupy a chair on the paltform and give a short speech. The Peterborough Shriners told of ovation after ovation given Tris and Les. It was well both have strong wrists, for according to the Peterborough delegation everyone in Belleville apparently had to shake hands with them. Both were congratulated on the battle the Indians put up this year.

It is possible that T. H. Hooper, with his two guests, will leave this afternoon, despite the rain, in Mr. Hooper's launch for Idyl Wyld. The party were busy this morning completing their kit and were waiting for it to clear up. This afternoon there was no sign of a break in the rain, but Mr. Graham said that Mr. Hooper and the boys were in a hurry to get to the cottage and he expected they would go down to-day, although he counselled them to wait till to-morrow. The rest of the Cleveland party will arrive at noon to-morrow.

"What do you think of the world's series?" the Examiner asked the captain of the Indians this morning. "I'm not thinking much about it," he replied with a smile. "I'm trying to get away from it." "Do you think the Yanks will win?" "I think they will," he answered. "The third game is what counts. If they win three out of seven they are almost sure to win."

Speaker is allowing himself eight or ten days at Idyl Wyld and expects to leave for his ranch in Texas as soon as the outing is over. He will not motor down this year, he said.

Because of the high prices of hotels, tourists' agencies in England are complaining of the way Americans are doing" London in one day.

C. G. E. BADLY BEATEN IN PICTON PLAY-OFF

Peterboro's last chance for an O. B.A.A. championship vanished yesterday when the C.G.E. team playing away below their usual form were beaten 13 to 4 at Picton. Last year's intermediate champions played nice ball while the Peterboro crew were off color all around. The Picton team will now go into the finals for the Intermediate title. Places of business and schools closed for yesterday's game and over a thousand fans were on hand. A Picton despatch says:

PICTON, Oct. 6.—In the play-off between Peterboro and Picton this afternoon Picton landed on Frost's and McCarney's offerings in a hard manner and this and poor support at times made it easy for the victors. Picton got away to a good start, scoring 3 and 2 in the first and second, one in the fourth and seven in the sixth. Peterboro counted one each in the third, fourth, fifth and seventh. Croft for Picton was in top form, having 14 strike outs to 7 for Frost and McCarney between them. The game leaves Picton the champions of the east and they will next play off for the title with the winner of the Toronto Hebrew Litz and Caledonian game, which will probably take place on Saturday.

Score, Picton 13, Peterboro 4.

The line ups:

Peterboro—Barrie 2b; Dugan cf; Corrin 1b; Helson c; Frost p; Primeau rf; McCarney ss; Foley 3b; Legon lf; McCarney took Frost's position in the latter part of the second but later retired for Frost again in the sixth.

Picton—F. Frederick c; E. Hudgin cf; P. Harington rf; J. Welsh 2b; H. Campney lf; C. Frederick ss; Harry Campney 3b; E. Mulholland 1b; P. S. Croft p.

BRITISH GOLFERS ALL ELIMINATED

U. S. WOMEN'S TITLE WILL STAY IN STATES

DEAL, N. J., Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Yesterday matches in the national women's golf tournament decided that the title would remain in the United States, the last two of seven visiting players who started in the competition Monday being eliminated. Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, the defending champion, defeated Mr. Latham Hall, Mid-Surrey England. The score was one up, the champion taking the match at the home green, as the result of a remarkable chip from rought that carried thirty yards to within two yards of the pin.

Miss Edith Leitch, sister of the defeated British champion, Miss Cecil Leitch, lost at the nineteenth hole to Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Chicago. An uphill battle when victory seemed doubtful and better putting in te pinch featured the winner's playing.

CHERRETT BACK IN GAME AGAINST C.G.E.

A feature of the benefit game for Roy Cherrett at Riverside Park tomorrow, will be the presence of Cherret himself in the game, his first appearance since he was hurt in July. He will be out with his old team mates to-morrow in the game against the C.G.E. team.

To-morrow's game will be the last ball game of the season. Lefty McElroy will do the twirling for the C.G.E. and Howard Kirn is slated to heave them for the Petes. The game is called for 2.30 o'clock.

It is hoped that Tris Speaker and Les Nunamaker, famous Cleveland players, may take some part in the ceremonies.

The entire proceeds of the game will go to Cherrett.

PRINTER SUED LABOUR PAPER

ALEX. MILLER FAILED TO PROVE WHO WERE DIRECTORS OF DEFUNCT CHRONICLE.

An interesting case from a legal and company's point of view was heard before Judge Huycke this morning in Division Court. Alex. Miller, some time ago, entered action against the Chronicle Newspaper Limited and obtained judgment, but as the company had no assets, this morning he endeavored to make the directors of the company responsible for the same.

Judgment was given against Miller and in favour of the defendants, because the plaintiff was not able to prove who were the directors and whether they had ever been legally so constituted.

Miller maintained that those who were responsible were Thomas Lane, Vincent Crebar, Peter McArthur, W. H. Merrill and Thomas McMurray, though, as above stated, Miller was not able to carry this point. There was much controversy as to who were directors and who had the authority, some of the witnesses claiming that the one who was really responsible was Mr. T. Tooms, while others stated that he was merely the managing editor. Mr. O. Laplante acted for Miller, G. N. Gordon for McArthur and Mr. C. R. Widdifield represented the other defendants.

NEW MARKET FOR CANADIAN HORSES

DEMAND IN WEST INDIES BUT SHIPPIRG COSTS HIGH

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

EDMONTON, Oct. 7.—Shipping horses from Alberta to the West Indies will not be a real success until the costs are materially reduced, according to J. D. Smith, of the Department of Agriculture, who has returned from a summer mission to Trinidad, in charge of a trial shipment of forty-five horses bought by the Department in the southern part of the province.

It cost an average of $175 per head to buy and land the horses in the Trinidad market, and they sold at an average of $200 per head, while there was thus a safe margin for the West India firm placing the order, it is considered too small to invite going into the business on a large scale under the present conditions.

Mr. Smith found, however, that there is a demand in the Indies for good horse flesh, and the market may yet be cultivated to advantage. The shipment was fourteen days in transit from Calgary to Halifax and another fourteen days from Halifax to Port-of-Spain.

This was the first time horses were ever shipped from Canada to the West Indies. They cost $38 each in Calgary and the transportation charges were therefore four times their original value.

PETER MANNING BREAKS RECORD

LEXINGTON, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Peter Manning Irving Gleason's great five year old gelding yesterday afternoon trotted the fastest mile ever recorded in a race against time when he turned the oval at the Lexington track in 1.57 3-4. Driven by Thomas W. Murphy the speedy gelding went the first quarter in .30; the half in .59 1-2; to the three quarter pole in 1.29, and flashed under the wire in 1.57 3-4. The new record clips a quarter of a second off the oldmark held jointly by Peter Manning and Uhlan. Uhlan trotted a mile at Lexington on October 8, 1912, in 1.58 and Peter Manning tied this mark three weeks ago at Syracuse.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Alfred E. Trude, who died the seventh day of October, nineteen-nineteen.

Our loving Saviour called one day,
A loving bud to find,
And in our home he picked it out,
And took it to his home.

We laid his little body in the grave
To rest for ever more,
His soul is with the Lord we love,
Where parting is no more.

And now it's left to us
To prepare the open way
To meet and greet our little dear
In the home not far away.

BIENNIAL CONVENTION OF BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE IN GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

INSPIRATIONAL ADDRESSES ON WORK OF THE SOCIETY

The fourteenth biennial convention of the Bay of Quinte Conference of Epworth Leagues opened in George Street Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, with about 100 delegates present. The last biennial convention, held in Port Hope in 1919, numbered over 300 delegates, and it is anticipated that this number, or more, will arrive in Peterborough to-day. The territory covered by the Bay of Quinte Conference extends from Whitby on the west to Napanee on the east, and embraces about 165 leagues.

The opening session was presided over by Rev. Mr. Foster, of Belleville, and devotional exercises were led by Rev. Harold Young. An address of welcome was tendered the delegation by G. N. Gordon, M.P., and Rev. H. W. Foley, B.A., B.D., of Uptergrove, Conference representative on the General Board of Sunday School and Young People's Societies, gave an interesting discourse, entitled "A Comprehensive View of Young People's Work" (including and relating Epworth League, C.S.E.T., and C.G.I.T.). This was an exposition of the programme outlined by the Church as the ideal, with its application to the concrete Church life and its relation to Epworth League work. This was followed by an address, "The Spiritual Dynamic of All League Work," by Rev. D. R. Clare, B.A., B.D., of Brighton, which dealt exclusively with the spiritual and devotional phase animating the activities of the League.

Evening Session.

The evening session was presided over by Rev. Wesley Elliott, of Belleville, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and devotional exercises were led by Rev. F. E. Malott.

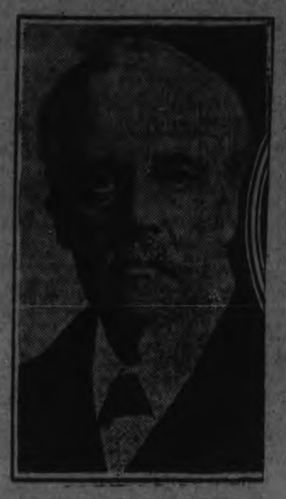
Rev. Manson Doyle, B.A., assistant secretary of Sunday Schools and Young People's Department, gave an inspirational address, stressing the good which might be served by putting into practice the spiritual emotions aroused by the convention. A programme of some sort of definite service should be the outcome of the religious spirit stirred and fostered by the emotional re-actions to the work of the convention, and the speaker warned his young hearers that there was no doubt in his mind that real Christians were coming into a time of testing such as was never experienced by their forefathers in their day and generation. "There will be many nominal Christians who will get by, but I have not a shadow of doubt that the real Christians who are going to hold the line, who are going to get hold of convictions about the Gospel and about Jesus Christ and about the great social problems of the day, are just coming into the facing of testing time such as we older people never knew or thought of." He prayed that God might give them grace to get hold of convictions that they would be ready to die for, if need be, in the testing time, and that He might clarify their ideals as to spiritual service which they might be prepared to live for.

Home From China.

Dr. F. C. Stephenson, of Toronto, secretary of the Young People's Forward Movement, who was scheduled to give an address, being unavoidably absent, his place was taken by his wife, Mrs. F. C. Stephenson, who gave an interesting resume of a visit recently made by herself and her husband to the mission fields in the hinterland of China. Mrs. Stephenson, in a plain, straightforward manner of speech that made her short talk quite impressive, related some of the experiences through which she and her husband had passed in their journey by junk and steamer up the river thousands of miles inland. Their landing at a walled and locked city at night after a tiresome journey, their final entrance after two hours' waiting to the dim-lit, narrow streets, their sojourn in Chunk-king, a city of over 800,000 people, Mrs. Stephenson's tea with the aged lady, whose abode she graphically described as one "where chickens, pigs, children and washing were all mixed up," and the celebration of a Chinese Christmas in the mission where parables from the New Testament were enacted, were all graphically described. One of the most active of the converts of the Mission in this district is the agent in that province of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, a pious Chinaman, who has already given $10.00 towards the erection of a chapel.

Mrs. Stephenson's address was followed by a few words of greeting from his mission, tendered by Dr. A. E. Best, a medical missionary home on furlough from the Methodist Hospital at Fowchow, Szechman, in western China, and from C. N. Connuergood, president of the Toronto Conference of Epworth Leagues, who brought greetings from his conference to the delegation.

During the evening, a very enjoyable vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. F. E. Ellis, accompanied by Mrs. C. S. Thompson, who also played for the several hymns.



HON. A. J. BALFOUR,

Prominent British statesman, who will head the British delegation to the Washington conference on limitation of armaments if Premier Lloyd George is unable to attend.

REPRESENTATION OF DOMINIONS IS PLEASING TO U.S.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE SAYS THEY VIEW PACIFIC PROBLEMS SIMILARLY TO U. S.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—The Tribune declares in an editorial to-day that the announcement that the British Dominions are to have representatives in the Washington conference is good news to the people of the United States.

The paper continues that the Dominions have come to view the Pacific problem much as the United States does and want to avoid trouble over China and immigration. Americans would be loath to see them without spokesmen in the Council, which, it is hoped, will clear up the threatening situation.

It was maintained by the Morning Post that the task of the conference was not to conclude agreement to limit or disband armies or navies.

"Such arrangements, the newspaper continued, "have been made before and have always ended in failure. The true purpose is to remove the cause which makes armaments necessary. The meeting at Washington should be called the conference to remove enmity."

The newspaper discussed who and what were the agents of enmity, and argued the first was "the Prussian spirit—the malefic influence which remains unchastened and a danger to the world's peace."

It asserted the second was Bolshevism, adding, "with Bolshevism, as with its parent, Prussianism, there can be no truce."

"Then comes Japan," the newspaper went on, "which is not an enemy but rather a victim of economic evils. It is natural that Japan seeking land and food for her expanding population, should contemplate the vacant spaces in Australia, the coast of the United States, the Philippines and Manchuria.

"Great Britain, as the ally of Japan, should appeal to the United States and aid in removing the causes of the distrust with which Japan is regarded."

THE WEATHER

The rainfall of yesterday and last night was a heavy one. The total up to 9 o'clock on Friday night was 1.10 inches. During the night .22 additional fell, giving altogether an inch and a third. It was about this date last year that there was a serious lack of power, owing to the alleged low water. The rainfall this fall while not heavy has been a fair average.—W. P.

WHITES DO NOT GRASP DUTY TO INDIA NATIVES

THIS IS THE GREAT CAUSE OF UNREST IN THAT COUNTRY, SAYS HEAD OF PRESBYTERIANS THERE.

LAYS MUCH BLAME TO EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—Many of the white people in India and in other parts of the British Empire fail to realize their responsibilities to the natives of India. This is the greatest reason for the unrest there today, according to Dr. J. Fraser Campbell, head of the Indian Presbyterian church, who is now paying his last visit to the land of his birth, and will shortly return to spend the rest of his life at his station in Rutlam. He speaks with authority on conditions as they are at the present time and does not hesitate to blame his own countrymen when they are in the wrong.

The government in India, he says, has been admirable, yet it has made mistakes. One of them has been the spending of so large a proportion of the money devoted to education on the higher education of the few rather than the primary education of the masses. This education was obtained by many simply to get qualifications for government posts. When there were not enough posts to go round, dissatisfaction resulted. The Indians said: "Why should not we get the posts, instead of men brought out from Britain? Let us have a government of our own that we may get the posts."

Then, too, the Bible was shut out of the schools. A very wise old Mohammedan said of this: "To shut out religion from schools and colleges will bring trouble. The intellect is being sharpened and developed, and the conscience is not being trained. Large numbers of clever but unscrupulous men will rule."

There seems, however, to be every reason to hope that things will settle down. The British Government has always been willing to give people as much influence in the government as they fit themselves for. The Reform Act goes as far as is at all good for the country. The new Council and the majority of those elected show reasonabe spirit and great enthusiasm. There are, of course, extremists who can never be satisfied, but they are few. The great body of those who have a stake in the country would fight anything which would in any way weaken the British Government. One of the most significant signs he regards as the fact that in States ruled by natives, seditionists against the British Empide are forbidden, but the greatest hope is for the spread of Christian sentiment among those who are not Christian. Native princes are much more friendly to missionaries than the British Government ever dared to be.

AN EXPERT WILL GIVE AN ADDRESS

ON YOUNG PEOPLES' WORK SUNDAY EVENING IN ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

In all walks of life, business, professional, industrial, and in church life as well, specialists are being developed for particular work. This has been found the most effective way of handling situations, and developing ideas. One of these specialists, Mr. C. A. Meyres, will address the young people in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening. Mr. Meyres is an expert on Young Peoples' Work, and will talk on this subject, with which he is the most conversant. It would indeed be unfortunate if all those who can make it convenient to be present did not take advantage of this opportunity to hear probably the best authority on young peoples' work in the province.

The choir of St. Andrew's will contribute under the direction of Mr. Crane, the musical director, and Mrs. Maurice Park, soloist, music appropriate for the occasion.

OLD POLITICAL TRADITIONS IN ALGOMA BROKEN

OPEN MEETING OF ALL PARTIES CALLED TO NOMINATE CANDIDATE — LIBERALS BACK MEIGHEN SUPPORTER.

SUPPORTS MEIGHEN ONLY ON THE TARIFF, HOWEVER

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

CHAPLEAU, Oct. 8.—While the lid still rests quietly enough upon the pot in Algoma East, its contents stirred considerably as a result of a meeting held here last night, which was addressed by G. B. Nicholson, of this town, East Algoma's representative in the Federal House until the recent dissolution.

To those who assembled in response to a call for a wide open non-partisan discussion of the Federal situation, Mr. Nicholson declared that while willing to carry the Meighen standard, should he be chosen to do so, he would accept no nomination at the hands of a hand-picked convention. The convention at Webbwood on the eighteenth, before which his name will go, must be open to every elector of the riding, he declared, irrespective of their partisan affiliation or conviction. He had called the convention upon that understanding, he averred, and would accept the nomination upon no other basis.

The meeting was the first ball pitched towards the crystalizing of a situation in this riding which as yet is distinctly hazy. In spite of unconfirmed rumors of everything from a three-cornered fight to a joint Liberal-Conservative candidate, Mr. Nicholson announced that he could not accede to the request of prominent men of all parties to run as an Independent. He stood four-square behind the Meighen manifesto. Anything else, he stated, means the commercial and industrial strangulation and dependence of this Dominion. He reserved the right, however, to steer an independent course upon all matters not covered by the manifesto. Anything else, he stated, means the commercial and industrial strangulation and dependence of this Dominion. He reserved the right, however, to steer an independent course upon all matters not covered by the manifesto.

The fact that Reeve M. Brunett, an outstanding Liberal, presided last night, and several other prominent members of that party were on the committee chosen, is regarded as deeply significant here. Mr. Nicholson's discarding of old-time political methods and recognizing the new spirit abroad against secret political diplomacy in calling for a wide open convention at Webbwood, where a candidate will be chosen, is being widely discussed in the riding.

WOODSTOCK LIBERALS MET THIS AFTERNOON

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 8.—The Liberals of North Oxford are meeting in Woodstock this afternoon to make their plans for the coming Federal election campaign. It has already been decided to place a candidate in the field and at the meeting the date for a party convention to nominate a candidate is being arranged. With the election date now set, there is a tendency to hurry things along, and the convention will in all probability be held in Woodstock a week from to-day. Several names have been mentioned as possible candidates, the most prominent being George F. Mahon, and Dr. D. J. Sinclair of Woodstock, the names of some women are also being freely mentioned as possible candidates.

The date for the Labor Convention to select a candidate to contest the provincial bye-election in North Oxford has not yet been set but the local I. L. P. are in touch with headquarters in Toronto with a view to obtaining speakers for the occasion, and as soon as these are secured the convention will be called and a candidate selected to represent the I.L.P. in the contest.

SEVERAL RECORDS SMASHED IN GAME PLAYED YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—As a result of the ineffective pitching of the Yankee twirlers, yesterday's World Series game saw a number of records smashed. Eight hits in the seventh innings made one, eight runs another, and twelve men who batted still another. Young's two hits in an innings, one a double, the other a triple, also made history.

The time required to play the nine innings, two hours and forty minutes, added a few lines to the record books. Twenty-one hits for one team in one game was never recorded before in a World's Series game. The gate receipts also created still another record, amounting to $119,007, with an attendance of 36,509. The players split $60,693.57. The two clubs share $40,462.38, and the Advisory Board gets $17,851.05.

UNDER CAREFUL MANAGEMENT HAS REVIVED THIS POPULAR AMUSEMENT.

The Peterborough Roller Rink, under the present management, has been open just one week to-night, and it has been proven beyond doubt that the management of an amusement such as this can make it popular and secure the proper patronage when carefully conducted.

The management of the rink is taking this opportunity of thanking the patrons of the rink for their co-operation in making it a place of amusement that is a credit to the city and to assure them that they on their part will give the rink every attention to bring it up to date in every respect.

FOURTH WORLD'S SERIES GAME CALLED OFF BECAUSE OF RAIN

BOTH MANAGERS CONFIDENT OF VICTORY IN SERIES—"WE'LL COME BACK WITH ANOTHER WIN," SAYS HUGGINS—"WATCH US" M'GRAW TELLS FANS—TEAMS PLAY TO-MORROW.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

POLO GROUNDS, New York, October 8. — Rain, which began just before the contest was scheduled to start, forced the postponing of to-day's World's Series game. The skies turned leaden this morning, and the weather man issued a storm warning; but in view of this being a half-holiday, a record crowd was looked for.

Both managers are confident of victory in the Series. Huggins is not discouraged, and declares: "The Yanks will come back with another win." McGraw asks the fans to watch the Giants from now on.

It was announced just before the teams were ready to take the field that Babe Ruth would be unable to play because of the abscess on his arm, which forced his retirement from the game in the eighth innings yesterday.

Weather permitting, the contenders for the world's championship will clash to-morrow (Sunday).

The Examiner will bulletin the result of to-morrow's World's Series game between five and six o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

BEAUTIFUL SETTINGS AT THE G. W. V. A. BAZAAR

LADIES' AUXILIARY OFFER A HOST OF INVITING FEATURES

The bazaar held by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A. opened yesterday afternoon in the Murray street hall, with a short address from the Rev. Jas. Rollins of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

The ladies in charge have spared neither time nor trouble in their preparations and the hall, despite the inclement weather which kept patrons at home, looked very inviting, with long lines of many-colored streamers and the fresh, attractive settings of the different booths, laid out in a miniature plan of a house.

Beautiful Hand Work.

There is a great quantity of beautiful handwork offered for sale; knitted and wool work of all sorts for seniors and midgets, dolls and teddy bears and cunning things for the baby, underwear of all sorts, ornamental and plain, table and bed linen, embroidery of all sorts, tea and dish towels in the kitchen, and all sorts of appetizing preserves, cakes and cookies. There is an exhibit of disabled soldiers' work in trays and basketry, and Mr. H. Lord also has a fine showing of basket work and beaded arrangements. There is home-made candy, a fish pond, fortune-telling booth, a tea-room and music from the G.W.V.A. band. A very attractive feature is the flower-booth festooned in pink and white, with a graceful arch above a table laden with artistic arrangements of ferns, palms, salvia, asters and other flowers.

The Workers.

Mrs. J. Skinner is convenor of the entire arrangements, assisted by Mrs. R. J. Devey, Mrs. J. Mills, Mrs. W. R. Morris, and Mrs. W. Sharpe. Convenors of the different attractions are as follows: Bathroom, Mrs. H. Staunton and Mrs. J. Black; Bedroom, Mrs. E. Houghton and Mrs. McKinstry; Plants and flowers, Mesdames W. Miller and Chambers; Kitchen and pantry, Mesdames McIntosh, Hopkins and Thorndyke; Dining-room, Mesdames W. Hughes and Wiggins; Living-room, Mrs. Biggs; Fish pond, Mrs. Austin; Candy, Mrs. McLeod and Miss E. Smith; Fortune-telling booth, Mrs. Bugg and Mrs. Massey-Cooke; in fascinating gypsy costumes, and the tea room is in charge of Mrs. Jos. Mills, with a corps of efficient waitresses.

A MERRY ANNIVERSARY

SUCCESSFUL OCCASION PUT ON BY THE "LEADER" SHOE STORE

It is quite the custom for merchants to utilize the occasion of their beginning another new year in their business history to hold an "Anniversary Sale" for celebrating the occasion, as well as to give an extra impetus to business. Such a celebration is now being focused on the buying public by the manager of the "Leader" Shoe Store, 291 George Street. Yesterday was the opening day of this anniversary sale, which is to run for another seven days. The heavy rain of yesterday was not very propitious for the opening day of this occasion; but to-day, with clearer skies, the buying public came out and responded to the attractive prices offered in footwear. Where "one dollar does the work of $1.50," there ought to be some lively selling.

MILLION WANTED TO FIGHT CONSUMPTION

COMPLIMENTLRY DINNER MONDAY NIGHT, WHEN PLANS FOR LOCAL DRIVE WILL BE DISCUSSED.

Local business men and others have been invited by Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie to attend a complimentary dinner in the Empress Hotel Monday evening, at 7 o'clock, when Mr. R. Dunbar, of Toronto, chief executive officer of the National Sanitarium Association, will explain Canada's urgent need of a million dollars with which to combat that great white plague, consumption. He will also outline the aims and work of the several institutions in treating consumptive cases, from the little child to the incipient and advanced stages; and also report progress, especially throughout Ontario, in the campaign now being waged for enlarging and placing on a permanent basis the activities of the National Sanitarium Association.

This dinner on Monday will be on similar lines to that tendered in Oshawa recently by Mr. Robert McLaughlin to nearly one hundred men representing a "drive" district lying between Whitby and Napanee, and of which Peterborough forms a part. Mr. Edward F. Hugonnet, field secretary for the association, is in town to-day, and says he has every reason for encouragement in his hope for enthusiastic co-operation here in the national campaign to raise the necessary funds, now under way and to be completed by Saturday, October 15th.

Voice of the People

A true statement, being an explanation of the case referred to in Tuesday's paper, under the heading, "A Market Shrew." The little girls offering the plants for sale were helped to re-arrange them to better advantage. As to their appearance, one of the friends of the girls asked them, "Do you think those are nice plants? You know they are not nice." One woman who wished to help the girls, said, "No, I don't want any flowers: I have lots of those in my garden, but here is 20c—10-11-12-13c — there, that is all the change I have. No, keep the flowers, I do not want them." Another woman was heard to ask, "How long have those plants been planted?" Another asked, "Is that plant growing in the can or just stuck in?"

It was at the close of the market, after the girls had sold all they could and were pretty well discouraged, and after they had 'phoned to find out what they should do with the plants and had received the answer, "Dispose of them at any price," and after they had decided that there were no more sale to be made, and were packing up to go home, that the sale referred to took place. The girls were planning how they would get the loads of plants home again, that they accepted the offer of three for ten, and sent the one to the sick little child as the buyer thought merely of relieving them of part of their burden of unsaleable plants. Some of these were left sitting in the market by the girls as not worth carrying back home again.

Gardeners would have thrown the lot on the scrap heap as unworthy of a moment's care, and the old cans and broken pots in which most of them were planted were of no value. No fear of anyone stealing such plants.

If the young people have to depend on the sale of such goods as those they will be a long time sending the gospel very far. The writer of that false report should receive their first prayers, as nothing so unkind and untrue was ever printed.

It is to be hoped these girls will have learned that it is of no use taking to market things that nobody wants. They were glad to act on the advice they received, "Take the wilted carrot tops out of your cut flowers if you want to sell them."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of the Peterboro Examiner:

Dear Sir:—

I would ask space in the Examiner to urge the Liberals of East Peterboro to call their convention as soon as possible and place their candidate in the field. Never have the Liberals had a better chance to redeem this historic Liberal riding. One couldn't help but be impressed at the recent U.F.O. convention in Norwood with the fact that it was a camouflaged Tory convention the tories were in command and ruthlessly slaughtered all aspiring Liberals regardless of qualifications. Col. T. J. Johnston ex-warden and with an excellent war record could only get 8 votes in 144 delegates and Mr. E. A. Eassón Reeve of Otonabee whose municipal record is 100 per cent efficiency only got 10 votes while three Tories divided the convention. The present warden was howled out in short order because he is not a bonafide farmer, while the other two fought it out very closely the nomination finally going to Mr. Brethen who is unknown outside his own farm except that he is an ardent Tory. Now I say the Liberals by nominating a farmer of some municipal experience especially if he comes from Otonabee will have no difficulty in carrying the riding for Otonabee always votes for its own candidate regardless of party. Either Mr. W. A. Anderson, ex-Warden or Col. T. J. Johnston or Mr. F. A. Easson or Mr. Ernie Deyell or Mr. Fred D. McIntyre could win the riding for the Liberals without any effort. So get busy call the convention elect our man an be on the Government side in the next Parliament. It was currently reported on Monday that with Brethen as a candidate there would be no Conservative in the field, this surely ought to be enough to show us what U.F.O. means.

Yours
F. S. Ross, Norwood

LABOR PAPER SCORES COMMUNIST ATTITUDE

LONDON, Oct. 7.— (Canadian Press Cable) —"Labour" the new official weekly publication of the Labour party, severely condemns the exploitation of unemployed by Communists as a "heartless, wicked game."

MILLBROOK FAIR ENTERS INTO THE THIRD DAY CLASS DUE TO WEATHER

MILLBROOK, October 8. — The Weather Man was responsible for making a three-day fair out of the Millbrook Exhibition. Yesterday's downpour of rain did not mar the attractions in the least, and to-day the Fair will blossom out bigger and better than ever.

Mr. J. N. McGill, secretary of the Fair, this morning stated that he anticipated a good crowd, as many of the farmers would combine their regular Saturday shopping trip to Millbrook with a visit to the Fair.

Early this morning the outlook was very promising, and the Fair directors have hopes of pulling out with a credit balance, in spite of the elements which for the past two years have threatened to extinguish the Fair. "Just a little hard luck!" was the way one of the directors put it.

W.M.S. CONVENTION AT WARSAW WAS BEST EVER HELD

AN INSPIRING AND INSTRUCTIVE GATHERING—PETERBORO DELEGATES PRESENT—MRS. J. K. MOORE AGAIN SUPERINTENDENT.

MESSAGE FROM CHINA

The annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society was held in Warsaw yesterday commencing at 9.30 a.m.

The program which was very comprehensive, the ideal day and the location of the convention all combined to make this one of the most inspiring and instructive gatherings ever held in the district. The credit for this is largely due to the enthusiam, faith and fine business principles of the superintendent Mrs. J. K. Moore who presided.

Mrs. Smiley and Mrs. Taylor opened the convention excercises, into which the whole congregation entered heartily making all feel "there is a place where kindred spirits blend."

The scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. (Rev.) Chapman who chose her subject from Isaih 62.

Kind Greetings

On behalf of the local auxiliary Mrs. Wason cordially welcomed the delegates and visitors to Warsaw Church and village.

Mrs. Armstrong of Peterboro ably responded to the kindly greetings.

The roll was then called and delegates responded with reports from Auxiliaries Circles and Bands. Space will not permit these in full, but all showed a marked advance, a keener interest, with more active and loyal work on the part of the several societies represented.

Interesting details of work with many plans for increasing interest membership and funds were given.

Difficult Problems

The papers were all of a very high character dealing with difficult problems in connection with the W.M.S. work. One of these was a most instructive "Map Talk" regarding the work and its need in one of the home mission fields, Manitoba. Mrs. Morton presented this special branch of the work in a way we are seldom priviliged to hear or see it.

Mrs. (Rev.) Cafley gave a stirring address on "The Golden Rule" as applied to our non-Christian sisters which was directly to the point and tended to waken the convention to a realization of their duties. It also gave us the power 'to see ourselves as these non Christian sisters see us."

Christian Stewardship

In her splendid paper on "Christian Stewardship" Mrs. Storey first appealed to the workers "to train up the children in "giving" and as leaders." An increasing use of envelope and mite box in systematic giving was a prominent feature.

Mrs. W. A. Sherin of Lakefield, phasing the thought that "prayer" and "personal effort" were the chief tools needed for this important work.

Talks on the Orient

Five-minute talks on China and Japan were given by Mrs. Leonard, Lakefield and Miss Kidd, Peterboro in which they pictured the hopeless stolid lives of these poor women and girls so clearly that we could see them. We saw also the wonderful change where Christianity had touched them and the vastness of this work for them of which we have been only touching the fringes.

A Feature

One of the outstanding features of the convention was the address by Miss Nelly Turner a returned missionary. Miss Turner assured the delegates that however anxious they might be to get home they must first listen to 150,000 reasons why they should be glad to be W.M.S. members. And also to 125,000 reasons for attending every motnhly meeting.

Contrasting pictures of the graves of our heathen sisters and those who have died in the knowledge of Christ's Salvation were given.

In our district alone in China 150,000 women and girls pass into eternity every year. This would mean a line of new graves end-to-end ten miles long, every month, 1250 graves in every mile over each which might be written, "having no hope and with out God in the world" Contrast this with "Christ in you the hope and glory" on our Christian graves.

BOTH RAILWAYS RUSHING GRAIN TO OPEN PORTS

UNUSUALLY HEAVY TRAFFIC OVER THE G. T. R AND C. P. R. THROUGH PETEREORO FROM MIDLAND AND PORT M'NICHOL

Seldom has the grain traffic through Peterboro over both the C.P.R. and the Midland division of the G.T.R. flowed in so heavy and continuous a volume as during the last month. The movement actually began much earlier, but recently did the crest of the flood become generally apparent. Extremely long freights are rushing over the r ute to the eastern ports on Sundays as well as on the other six days of the week. Some of the heaviest C.P.R. trains are hauled by double-header "moguls" of four and three drive wheel each, and from Havelock east five-drive wheel engines are used according to the reports from the divisional town. They are not brought further west, it is said, because the rails are lighter than in the east end of the province and also because of the danger of breaking through the trestle at Port McNicholl.

The C.P.R. route is from Port McNicholl through Peterboro to Montreal and even through Atlantic ports. The G.T.R. trains are from Midland by the way to Peterboro to Belleville thence to Montreal. As an example of the rush of business out of Midland 312 cars of grain were started from there in one day this week. Day and night the trains are being pushed along the route, going down full and coming back empty, in the interesting game of emptying the lake elevators as rapidly as possible. Often the passenger trains between here and Belleville overtake the freights a few miles from a siding and step on their heels all the way to the nearest station. Crews were seldom busier and the G.T.R. on the Midland run could use a third more trains and staffs if they could get them, and if the line could accomodate the additional pressure. Crews at Havelock are reported to be supplemented by workmen from Toronto and other divisional centres where business is light. They are not exactly welcome but the McAdoo award made that provision for the movement of men from point to point and the adoption of the senioity principle, according to one informant. While the grain haulage continues the railway employees over these two lines have all the work they can perform at wages that might be regarded as fabulous by many of the city toilers.

LLOYD GEORGE MAY YET JOIN ARMS PARLEY

U.S. ANXIOUS TO HAVE HIM ATTEND AND CONSIDERABLE INFLUENCE IS BEING BROUGHT TO BEAR ON HIM.

IRISH DELEGATES LEAVE FOR LONDON MEET TO-DAY

LONDON, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press). — A hint that Mr. Lloyd George may yet be able to attend the forthcoming conference on the limitation of armaments and Far Eastern questions in Washington was made in a semi-official statement to the press last night. It was pointed out that the present position is that the British Prime Minister has notified the United States Government of his inability to attend, but that this is not necessarily his last word.

It is generally regarded that the United States Government is anxious for him to attend, and it is understood that considerable influence is being brought to bear upon him to induce a reconsideration of his decision.

This pressure was particularly marked during Mr. Lloyd George's stay at Gairloch, and it is understood that he found strong support at yesterday's Cabinet meeting from his Ministerial colleagues. It was stated that it is extremely probable that the Prime Minister will be prevailed upon to go to Washington if developments in other directions make it at all possible.

At the moment, however, his refusal holds good, and in the meantime the British delegates have not been selected. It is understood they will not be appointed until next week at the earliest.

Mr. Lloyd George left last evening for Chequers Court, his country home, and is expected to return to London to-morrow. The only information vouchsafed to the public concerning yesterday's Cabinet meeting was the appointment of the Government's delegates to the conference with Irish leaders next Tuesday, although it was understood the discussion embraced both the Irish and Washington conferences.

The Sinn Fein plenipotentiaries, accompanied by Desmond Fitzgerald and four typists, will leave Dublin this morning, it was announced here last night, and they will be given accommodations at Chelsea while attending the conference. It was reported that final informal conversations were held in the Mansion House at Dublin yesterday between Eamon De Valera, the Irish leader, members of the Dail Cabinet, and the plenipotentiaries. It is understood the Irish delegates will maintain constant communication with the Dublin headquarters during the conference.

OFFICIAL INVESTIGATOR SAYS RUSSIA HOLDS POSSIBILITIES FOR COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT

SOVIET GOVERNMENT ASKING PERMISSION TO SEND TRADE EXPERTS TO STUDY OUR INDUSTRY.

FIRST OPPORTUNITY FOR TRADE GIVEN TO CANADA

LONDON, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press Cable).—Colonel H. J. Mackie, Canadian M.P. for North Renfrew, who at the request of Premier Meighen spent several weeks investigating trade possibilities in Russia, returned to London last night and gave the Canadian Press interesting conclusions both respecting the immediate object of his journey and also the famine situation.

Col. Mackie spoke of the huge purchases of seed grain by the Soviet government for the famine belt. Transportation arrangements for distributing this is especially good in fact could not be excelled in the world. Of these huge purchases says Col. Mackie, given the peasantry for seeding only, not a pound of it has been diverted to personal requirements. Grain has arrived in villages where the inhabitants are absolutely starving but they sowed it all declaring that while they had no expectation themselves of reaping the harvest it would be there for their children who would be fed by foreign foodstuffs.

"In England particularly", said Col. Mackie 'one hears that the public is refusing to subscribe to the relief funds even for saving children because of fear of the food falling into the hands of the Red army. I am firmly convinced that the 'Reds' will honorably convey the food to the famine belts. They have already given genuine proof of their readiness to co-operate with the American relief administration and the provincial authorities are giving every co-operation towards saving the children."

The Soviet government, said Col. Mackie, are highly impressed with Canadian agricultural and lumbering methods and are asking permission of the Canadian government for a small group of experts to go to Canada to study agriculture and the lumber and peat industries.

A purchasing commission is shortly going to Canada for flour and seed grains. The personnel of this commission is yet unsettled but some selections have already been made of experts to study Canadian industry.

Russia's immediate requirements are seed grains and flour and Canada is to have the first opportunity of supplying these. The Soviet government has sufficient gold reserved for such commodities and are holding over orders for other goods especially to pay for these things.

INTERNATIONAL RAILWAY BRIDGE HANGS PERILOUSLY

SAULT STE MARIE, Oct. 8. —(Canadian Press)—As a result of the breaking of one support and the cracking of another support of the concrete counterbalance on the south half of the jacknife bridge across the American ship canal here, traffic across the International Railway bridge is suspended and it will probably be two weeks before the damage is repaired.

The bridge is still held up, but is held now by only one cracked support, which, if it gives under the weight of the 500-ton counterbalance, would let the bridge fall into the canal. Consequently vessels passing through the canal are advised to hug the north side of the canal to avoid danger of being struck should the bridge fall.

Some slight difference of view has developed between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the United States Government, through the refusal of the Government to allow the bridge to be lowered to permit the passage of trains, owing to the fact that vessel traffic would be tied up through the impossibility of raising the bridge.

QUEENS READY FOR THE VARSITY GAME.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 8. — Queens are in better condition than ever for the opening game with Varsity here to-day. Pep Ledley and Dave Harding, two stars of the team, who were on the sick list early in the week, have been out to practice and will be all right for to-day. Secret signal practice was held yesterday afternoon, and all the players are in the pink of condition. The team is confident of taking the game from Varsity. "Liz" Walker, the Hamilton boy, who has had a bad leg for a few weeks, is out again, and Queens will have their strongest team on the field.

SELECT THE BEST

The departure from public life of so many experienced Parliamentarians of all shades of politics is not a matter to be lightly regarded. The problems before Canadians are many and serious, it is disquieting to realize that these tasks will have to be grappled with by men the majority of whom will have had little or no training in such work. All the departing front-benches were of course not statesman but granting that fact the aggregate of their talent makes their passing a matter of regret. And it should do more than that, it should cause in every district in Canada an earnest attempt to secure the candidature of the best possible men. As the Globe puts it, character should come first of all in the qualifications sought. Never in the history of elections in Canada was there more necessity than exists at the present time for endeavouring to secure the presence in Parliament of men capable of investigating understanding and dealing with the tremendous questions that the new House will be called upon to handle. A Parliament of weaklings at this stage of Canada's development could do a tremendous amount of harm.

THE VICIOUS RECALL.

Some of the aspirants for the U. F. O. nominations in various constituencies in Ontario, have been courageous enough to state their opposition to the recall system, and their attitude has cost them a chance for nomination. But the majority of people will applaud them for their stand. The Agrarian party prates of their belief in government by the people but in their adherence to the vicious recall, they are getting altogether away from the true spirit of democracy. Why should an organized minority talk of government by the people when they ask their candidates to resign at the orders of the organizations that elected them, regardless of what the rest of the electors may think of these candidates, or their attitude upon any particular question. The recall signed by the U. F. O. candidates pledges them to resign from the House if a convention composed of one delegate for each ten members of Farmer organizations in the riding by a fifty-five per cent. vote, demands such a resignation. Candidates with such a handicap as that controlling their actions should be left at home; to elect them would do away with the real meaning of representation.

A SOURCE OF DANGER.

It is generally agreed that the law requiring motorists to use non-glare head lights is a move in the right direction. The dazzling lights formerly used—and, in spite of the regulations, still to be seen on many cars—were a source of danger and a nuisance on the highways. But the elimination of such lights, while removing one cause of accidents, has accentuated another peril. The old lights in spite of their faults, enabled a motorist to see a horse-driven vehicle at sufficient distance to enable him to avoid a collision. With the dimmed lights it is impossible to pick up an unlighted vehicle until it is only a few yards away, and as a result there have been many narrow escapes from serious accidents recorded. The solution of the problem seems to be that all vehicles, horse drawn or otherwise, must be compelled to carry a light. For their own safety it might be thought that the farmers and others who are abroad on the road at night, with buggies and wagons, would willingly adopt the simple precaution of carrying a light, but it is seldom that their vehicles are thus protected. The present conditions lend themselves favorably to disaster, and the Ontario Motor League, the Ontario Safety League, and other organizations, should unite in a campaign to secure an amendment in the regulations that will remove one of the worst menaces to public safety that is to be encountered on the highways.

REMEMBERING AND FORGETTING.

The leopard cannot change its spots, as a hackneyed epigram informs us. Neither can the tiger obliterate his markings. Georges Clemenceau, the famous War Premier of France, has lost none of those instincts which won for him the name of the Tiger of France during the sombre day sof his country's danger. Fighting is second nature to him, and he still crouches with sinews taut and claws sharpened, ready to spring on his enemy.

Georges Clemenceau won the admiration of the Allies for his sleepless vigilance in the critical days of the Allied cause, for his singleness of purpose and for his burning patriotism. He still remains the Tiger of France. Surrounded by thousands of the men and women of the Vendee, who claim him as one of their most famous sons, themselves the grandchidren and great-grandchildren of the men whom the Revolution was slow to kindle, who fought against the enforcement of a regime they regarded as unjust and refused to bow the knee even to the Great Napoleon, this old patriot of France once more feels the fighting blood coursing in his veins and he delivers a speech that might have been spoken at the end of one of those historic journeys when as Premier he rushed to the scene of action to stimulate the wavering and to encourage the faint hearted.

Is it to be expected that under the circumstances of its delivery Georges Clemenceau could deliver a pacifist or a conciliatory speech? He is unveiling a monument which depicts him in his little slouch hat, surrounded by poilus, facing the advancing German. Could any other word but "Remember" spring to his lips?

The skill of an orator is displayed in suiting the words of his address to the circumstance and occasion of its delivery. Clemenceau, as a son of the Vendee peopled by the most loyal and home-loving peasants of France, made a stirring appeal to the hearts of his people. Yet he did not choose to remember that the correspondents of all the great newspapers of France were present and that within twenty-four hours his words would be flashed to the four corners of the world.

"The Pacific Ocean is far away from us, the German frontier is very close," declaims the former Premier. Georgraphically, the statement is unassailable, but Clemenceau was speaking politcally in reference to the Washington Conference and it is to peace and war and not to boundaries that he refers. Sarajevo is more than 6,000 miles from the heart of Canada, and yet a shot fired by an assassin in the Balkans in 1914 changed the whole course of Canada's history. A Germany disarmed and applying herself to production and indsutry is, so far as peace and war are concerned, tens of thousands of miles further away from France than a Pacific Ocean bristling with gun turrets and patrolled by the cruisers of countries suspicious of each other. The Allies last week expressed themselves as satisfied with the progress Germany has made in disarmament and France concurred in the report. This is an assurance against attack that France cannot fail to appreciate. Yet if every rifle barrel in Germany is twisted and broken, if every big gun is melted down and every round of ammunition is destroyed, the peace of the world will not be more assured than it was in the years when Germany was arming if the centre of discord is transferred from the Balkans to the Pacific.—Montreal Star.

SAY IT WITH JOBS.

"Saying it with public jobs," is the heading of an impressive editorial in a recent issue of "Engineering and Contracting," in which the launching of a huge problem of public works is recommended as the only sound solution of the unemployment problem. As the editor of "Engineering and Contracting" truly says: "It has not been sufficiently emphasized that the only class of employer capable of 'saying it with jobs,' is the public; for the public, unlike the average individual, or stock company, is able to make an invtstment without securing an immediate return upon it." The following extract from the article is recommended to the attention of the City Council of Peterboro:

Many newspapers have been using the headline, "Say it with Jobs," in urging employers to give work to ex-army men. But the advice can not be followed by many employers without danger of bankruptcy, until there is assurance that there will be a demand for the products of the men they hire. However, there is one class of employer that can and should act upon the "Say it with Jobs" slogan. We refer to cities, counties, states and the Federal Government. The government are employers who need fear no bankruptcy, for it is not necessary that their products be sold. Roads, streets, waterworks, sewers, school buildings, and all that class of construction known as public works, are the products of the employing public. The economic demand for these products is never filled, for the public is never as alert to meet economic demands as are the private corporations. There have been six years of subnormal construction of public works in America, following centuries of inadequate appropriations for public works.

If this last clause is questioned, consider the significance of the fact that scarcely 15 per cent. of the total mileage of country roads have a surface that is graveled, macadamized or paved More than half the streets and alleys of our cities remain unpaved, and of those that are paved, fully half should be repaved in order to reduce the wear and the tear on automobiles and motor trucks. Only a small fraction of our city water supply is filtered. We have next to no sewage disposal plants. Our waterworks pumping plants are largely obsolete and inadequate in capacity. Our schools are crowded to a disgraceful limit. Our city children lack adequate playgrounds, and our city adults have almost no playgrounds at all. These are but a few of the outstanding facts that indicate the woeful inadequacy of our public works.

We mention such inadequacy because there are many local complaints whenever increased taxation for public works is proposed. It is in fact this never ceasing opposition by the taxpayers that has always resulted in less than adequate expenditures for public works. We believe that the time has come to brush aside all such selfish opposition to public improvements, not merely because the improvements are needed, but because there are millions of idle men who need the work that can be given them by the public. It is cheaper in fact to support men by giving them work than to support them by giving them charity. In any event they must be supported.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The announcement of the date of the election fills the last blank in the obituary notices of a good many politicians.

A lot of isues are dragged before the electors in every campaign, but to discuss the chances of a possible war between Canada and France is covering a record amount of territory.

This is Candy Day—but as the Globe put it, there will be no candy day for many a candidate.

Wise and Otherwise

Like a lot more boys around town not being able to afford having our shoes re-soled and New York still being about as far away as it used to be, we're forced to follow the World's Series by wire.

Away back last Summer we decided to see the big event this fall, figuring if we could dodge our creditors on the first of each month we might be able to accumulate enough of the pieces of paper which used to buy a dollar's worth to make the trip. But one night last week some of the boys lured us into a little game, split a new pack, and went out for more. They got it.

So not being able to afford a new set of neolin, we're denied the pleasure of Warren Harding, Irvin Cobb and all we scribes who have risen in the world take, when we attend any public event, in going over to the Press box and telling the news-hounds patronizingly that we also know what printers ink smells like.

Anyway, we don't know the umpires, so we can pick the winner as well from here as from a seat in the stands at the Polo Grounds. If it weren't for the fact that we know he wouldn't do such a thing in a World's Series game, we could imagine Babe Ruth putting his monniker on the pill one of Jawn J's twirlers served over the platter every time we hear the copy-carrier bang, and when E. S. M. addresses his jambed typewriter in scathing terms we compare it to the bleacher's remarks when an easy fly is muffed by one of the Giant's infielders, who we judge from a distance give their pitchers support which is about as airtight as a flour sieve. Still, we suppose the Giant fielding musn't be maligned when the Yanks are so impressed by Babe Ruth being fined for speeding on New York streets, that they're afraid of being pinched if they kicked up any dust between bases.

Toney hasn't had no reason to feel so after the third inning.

Another inconsistency is that many fishermen maintain a reputation for veracity in their everyday life.

More Heat at Less Cost

The direct heating principle of the Findlay Pipeless Furnace eliminates all loss of heat and floods every corner of every room with warm, moist air at a saving of 35% to 50% on fuel.

Findlay Pipeless heat—balmy and healthfully moist—is automatically supplied through one register.

There are no pipes or costly plumbing fixtures. A hole cut in the first floor for the register face, the furnace in place in the cellar, the smoke pipe connected up and your Findlay Pipeless is ready to heat the house from top to bottom. It does not heat the cellar which may, therefore, be used for storage of fruits, vegetables, etc.

The Findlay can be installed quickly and cheaply in any home, old or new. The job is easily done in a day, so you can light the fire a few hours after the furnace is delivered at your door; and from that time on, every corner of your home will be warm, healthy and comfortable, no matter what the outside temperature.

Will you let us send you the full facts about this economical heating system? The attached coupon, filled in as indicated, will bring you all particulars by return mail. Mail it today.

W. M. S. CONVENTION

A strong appeal was made that every Christian woman should get "square" with her non Christian sisters by helping in every way to send them the Gospel.

A Loving Tribute

Mrs. James Kendry (branch treasurer) gave loving tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Shields of George St. Auxiliary who had just passed to the Homeland. Her life and example will be a permanent influence for good will to all who knew and loved her.

Mrs. Kendry also brought to the convention the sad news of the illness at the hospital of Miss Jessie Munro, superannuated missionary of the Woman's Missionary Society. There were many expressions of love and sympathy and a practical token of it sent to Miss Munro.

My Mite Box

The reading "My Mite Box" by Mrs. Robt. Moore and the fine recitation by little Miss Bowen were both greatly enjoyed.

The music of the day was all inspirational especially the two beautifully rendered solos by Rev. Mr. Weir and Mr. Batten.

Election of Officers

In the election of officers, Mrs. J. K. Moore, district superintented and Mrs. E. J. Wagar, district secretary treasurer again received the support of the delegates.

The quiet half-hour was in charge of Rev. Mr. Weir, Mr. Bookout assisting and the high note of spirituality struck in the opening service was sustained to the close of the meeting.

Rev. Mr. Weir pastor rendered valuable assistance throughout and with the generous hospitality of the Warsaw people shown in so many ways, carried the delegates away very pleasant memories of the 1921 convention.

The proceeds of the day were $52.80.

Whenever you use the stewpan use Bovril

The power of a dish to nourish is at least as important as its power to please. By adding a little Bovril to the dish, you will not only make it more tasty and delicious; you will be adding greatly to its nourishing power.

The body building powers of Bovril have been proved by independent scientific investigation to be from 10 to 20 times the amount of other food taken.

MILLBROOK FAIR NOTES

MILLBROOK, October 8. — Blue skies and warm sunshine probably had a good deal to do with making Thursday, 6th October, the opening day of Millbrook Fair, the splendid start-off that it was, but Friday morning's lowering skies and steady downpour were destined to destroy the hopes which the previous day's bright weather had fostered.

Although there were nine race horses in town by Friday morning, speeding in the ring was impossible after hours of continuous rain; nor could the other interesting events take place which had been planned with a view to pleasing the hoped-for crowd of interested spectators, who should have filled the grand stand, and made bright and active the large grounds as they strolled about enjoying a re-union with old friends or meeting new ones. Everything, indeed, that might add to the attractiveness or success of the Fair had been carefully arranged for by the officers and directors with the object in view, namely, that this year's exhibition should be the "biggest and best" of any so far held under the auspices of the Millbrook Agricultural Society.

The exhibit in the large main building was practically complete by 4 p.m. on Thursday, and the judges were busy at their by no means easy task. For though the indoor exhibit was in some lines, perhaps, a little smaller than usual, yet the quality left nothing to be desired.

The Flowers.

The flowers, very artistically arranged on a large stand in the centre of the building, made a decidedly creditable showing, considering the recent heavy rains, frosty nights, and the extreme heat of the early summer months. The fruit, apples especially, presented a most attractive appearance, and the large number of entries rather surprised the judges, since this certainly has not, on the whole, been a good fruit year.

A very fine display of ladies' work occupied the entire three sides of the north end of the main building, and showed some beautiful designs and a wonderful amount of intricate and skilfully-executed work in such exhibits as embroidered centres, luncheon sets, lingerie, and sofa cushions, knitted sweaters, quilts, Afghans, towels, pillow slips, crochet and drawn work, etc.

The table set apart for dairy products, preserves and pickles, bread, buns, cakes, pies, and cookies was filled to overflowing with these toothsome products of domestic art, furnishing practical evidence, in a most tempting form, of the fact that culinary skill is still successfully cultivated by those who entered in this class of exhibit.

Mention should also be made of the art display, the space reserved for it being well filled with pictures in oils and water-colours, also drawings in crayon, and hand-painted china, all combining to make a most attractive showing in this particular line.

The vegetables, big squashes and pumpkins, corn on giant stalks, beets, carrots, onions, yellow and glossy, parsnips, mangels, etc., and the fine exhibit of grains of various kinds, had their own attractiveness, and were sure of a large amount of attention from those interested in their cultivation, especially if they also happened to be exhibitors; some of the latter were quite youthful, having been successful in showing at the recent school fairs, and learning wisdom from the experience gained in that effort, were now ready for a more ambitious attempt.

Some smaller exhibits of various kinds were also housed in the main building, which has certainly more than proved its usefulness on different occasions since its erection a little over a year ago, at a cost of $3,500.00.

Of the outdoors attractions the amount of stock being shown, particularly horses, was the largest, and possibly the finest, for some years. The poultry pens were well filled also, and many entries were received for the speeding in the ring.

The officers who, with the directors, are chiefly responsible for the success of the fair, and who are at all times most courteous and obliging, sparing no pains to add to its success and attractiveness, are: President, R. J. McKnight, 1st Vice-President, L. N. Smith, 2nd Vice-President, H. A. Fallis, Secretary-Treasurer J. N. McGill.

The directors include: N. T. Donaldson, J. L. Fair, A. J. Henderson, L. H. Winslow, Ormie Larmer, L. McNeil, J. A. Vance, W. H. Lough, J. M. Hamilton, G. A. Fair, Harold Tait, J. H. Paul, J. L. McCamus, W. Rutherford, T. A. Kelly, W. S. Given, N. Belch, T. W. McCamus, Ed. Ball, J. W. Larmer and P. Stinson. The honorary directors: D. Sutton, John Tait, William Hannah and George Berry.

Much pleasure and relief was felt that Mr. J. W. Hamilton, who for many years has been one of the most active and useful of the directors, and who has recently undergone a serious operation in the hospital here is now convalescing in a very satisfactory manner.

This year the prize list had been carefully revised and enlarged, thus encouraging exhibitors to a bigger effort, since the amount of prize money has been increased, and there is also a large number of classes in which entries may be made.

The people of Millbrook are proud and justly so, of their fair, believing it to be a well managed institution, comparing favorably with those of a similar nature held in the larger centres, and worthy of loyal support and patronage. It not only reflects credit on the village, but also encourages a spirit of right-minded competition amongst those who enter as exhibitors in the various classes mentioned in the prize list, ($3,000 being given in premiums), and all being open for such friendly rivalry.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church had taken charge of the dining hall and made ample preparations to serve hot meals to the expected hungry crowds of Friday, in their usual efficient and satisfatcory manner, but here, too, the weather man's unkindness in sending showers instead of sunshine caused much anxiety and disappointment. Still, meals were served to a few scores of people and good hopes were entertained that the balance of the supply of food on hand would all be disposed of on Saturday.

The special film, 'Down Home,' which was shown in the town hall on Thursday and Friday evenings, while giving pleasure to those who attended and saw the pictures, naturally did not have the large audience expected.

With commendable courage and determination the directors decided to go on with the show if the weather cleared by noon, but instead the downpour was heavier and more persistent than ever, so it was finally decided to postpone fair until Saturday at 12 a.m., and to advertise the change of dates as widely as was possible in so limited a time.

FORMER LABOR MEN FIGHT PRESENT ONES.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

ENGLEHART, Oct. 7.—The Temiskaming riding will witness in the general election approaching the unique spectacle of the past and present Labor men fighting it out for the favor of the electors.

E. E. Sheppard, North Bay, chosen yesterday to carry the Conservative colors, is a former Laborite, but he left the party when they joined up with the Free Trade party; he says, before that again he was a Conservative.

Mayor McEachren, of Cobalt, Liberal standard-bearer, some years ago was a prominent member of the I. L. P. at Cobalt, but he also left their ranks on a matter of principle. He was a Liberal before the last Provincial election.

Angus McDonald, who represented the riding in the last Parliament, is of course a trades union man and a member of the I. L. P. He is certain to get the nomination.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 8.—Friends will regret to learn that Mr. J. Abernethy is confined to the house through illness.

Mr. Guy Winters of Sutton West, is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Winters.

Quite a number from town attended the annual autumn convention of Nobles of Rameses Temple of Toronto, held in Belleville, on Thursday, when there was an initiation of nearly two hundred and fifty candidates into the mysteries of the shrine.

The concluding session of the Teacher's Institute was held yesterday morning. The opening exercises were conducted by Rev. H. S. Bennett, pastor of the Baptist Church. Miss Riley of Morganston, gave an interesting account of her work at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph stating that while there was lots of work definite periods were given to games, etc. Mr. Perry gave another most interesting and profitable address on "Art". After a lengthy introduction the speaker emphasized three main points, (1) object drawing, (2) Design including Lettering, (3) Picture Study. After the address Mr. T. E. Moffat, B.A., Mr. Bellamy, B. A. and Miss Kathleen Ferris also spoke briefly showing that more time should be devoted to Art, now in the public school as it is only a one-year subject in High School.

Miss D Sparks, who for a number of years taught in London, England, but who has been teaching in Seymour for the past year and one half contrasted the London school system with our own. Class distinction practically unknown in Ontario, is very prevalent in England. The manual arts asserted the speaker are given more attention in England than in Ontario. Miss Sparks is a very forceful speaker and her criticisms and comparisons were those drawn from her own experience. Mr. W. A. Atkinson gave an excellent report of the O.E.A. Convention in Toronto last Easter. The convention decided to hold the next annual convention at Brighton.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $3, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

COSTS 20 2-5c. PER DAY TO FEED EACH PRISONER IN LOCAL JAIL

TEN YEARS AGO THE COST WAS ONLY 8 CENTS—STORY OF ACTIVITIES IN CASTLE NESBITT THE PAST YEAR.

ANNUAL REPORT

Despite Governor Henderson Nesbitt's best efforts, the H. C. of L. still hovers over the local gaol and the daily cost of rations per prisoner per day during the last year was 20 2-5 cents. Ten years ago it cost only 8 cents a day to keep a prisoner's body and soul corporate, but, as the governor points out, meat for the prisoners, which costs 16 cents now was only four cents then, and bread, now six cents a pound, was then only two cents. Those were palmy days so far as upkeep went. The high cost of living is responsible for most of the upward trend for the item of salaries is only $500 above that of 1911. In 1913 each prisoner cost 8 1-2 cents a day, in 1915 nine cents, and since then his cost for maintenance has soared by leaps and bounds.

Last year's official figures are not available, but from October to December it cost 21 cents a day for each person in the bastile. Food, clothing, fuel and all other items of maitenance except salaries were $1,995.23 from October 1, 1920 to Oct. 1, 1921. Salaries were $1,900 and the total cost of maintenance of the county gaol therefore was $3,895.23. In 1919 it cost $3,276.47 and in 1914 $2,763.92.

Annual Report.

Governor Henderson Nesbitt's annual report to W. W. Dunlop, Inspector of Gaols and Prisons, Toronto, is full of interesting information.

During the year ending Sept. 30, 1921, 172 males and 21 females were committed to the gaol and 188 males and 21 females were in custody at the gaol during the 12 months. On October 1, 1920, there were 16 males undergoing sentence.

One of those committed to gaol was under 16; ninety-two males and 14 females went hither for their first offence; 35 males and four females had been there once before; 17 males and two females made their third trip, and 28 males and one female had been confined in the local gaol a greater number of times than three.

Four males and four females of unsound mind were committed to gaol during the year, a number that indicates the need for a suitable detention room; 18 males and three females were acquitted on trial and discharged from custody; 93 males and 9 females were discharged by order of court or judge without trial; and 25 males were discharged on suspended sentence. On September 30, 1921, three were awaiting trial, 49 males and 5 females were the total number sentenced for any period and by all courts.

To the Reformatory.

The reformatory received 16 males. Five females in all went to the Andrew Mercer Reformatory and two men went to Kingston. Thirty served sentences in the gaol, one, an elderly man, dying while serving a short term.

Evidently the five to six months' sentence is a most popular curb on law-breakers. Nine males and two females were in for that long; the next largest combination were in for from nine months to a year—eight males and two females—while eight males were in for from two to three months For a period of one to two years, seven men and one woman were sentenced. Of the two who were sent to Kingston penitentiary one got two years, the other three.

The county judges of the criminal court found nine persons guilty and acquitted on trial three.

Of the 172 males in gaol the municipality had to maintain 142 which the government only defrayed the maintenance of four of the 21 women.

The total number of days government prisoners were in custody was 1,037, while municipal prisoners were in gaol for 3,163.

Nationality of Prisoners.

The prisoners' nationalities are given as follows:

Canadians 153 (134 men, 19 women).

English, 229 (28 men, 1 woman.

Irish 2, Scotch 1 (female), United States 3, other countries 5.

Religion.

Roman Catholic 48, Church of England 31, Presbyterian 24, Methodist 70, other denominations 20.

Illiteracy Passing.

If the story told by the Governor's figures is correct, married women got into more trouble than their unmarried sisters. The case of males is reversed. One hundred and seventeen men who were in gaol were unmarried, 55 were benedicts, while 12 married women were accommodated and 9 in "single blessedness."

Illiteracy is passing. Only two men and two women prisoners could not write. It is also shown that of all the prisoners only 43 men and one woman were reported intemperate.

The report says the prisoners were engaged in cleaning and improving the county buildings and grounds." The gaol has 18 cells, and at one time there was a "full house," while the fewest prisoners at one time recorded was five. Nine men, three of whom are awaiting trial, one under a sentence of two months and under, and five under sentence for greater periods, are in gaol now.

The Offences.

The offences for which persons were committed are as follows: Arson 1 (female); assault, 3; felonous assault, 2; attempted suicide, 1 (female); unlawfuly carrying weapon, 1; destroying or injuring property, 1; drunk or disorderly, 13; forgery, 16; fraud 9; housebreaking 1; larceny 34 (two females); rape, 1; receiving stolen goods, 5 (four females; seduction 3; threatening and seditious language, 31 trespass, 3; vagrancy, 39 (seven females); other offences 36 (two females.)

Prisoners were sentenced on the following offences: Assault, 1; felonous assault, 1; carry weapon unlawfully, 1; drunk and disorderly, 4; fraud, 4 (one female); house-breaking, 1; larcency 9 (two females); rape, 1; receiving stolen goods, 1; trespass, 2; vagrancy, 12 (two females); other offences, 12.

Their Occupations.

Most of the prisoners were laborers. As classified their occupations were: Bakers, 3; blacksmith, 1; boy, 1; butcher, 1; carpenter or joiner, 14; engineer or machinist, 3; farmers, 19; gardeners, 1; laborers, 80; merchants, 1; plumbers or painters, 11; prostitutes, 4; servants or washerwomen, 2; tailors, 1; teamsters, 1; tinsmiths, 3; other occupations, 26; no occupation, 5 males and 6 females.

WHAT CAUSES SO MUCH SICKNESS

Constipation Responsible for 90% of Disease

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Corrects "It

It is generally recognized among the medical profession that Constipation or Insufficient Action of The Bowels, produces more disease than any other one cause. Constipation is responsible for at least 90% of the disease in the world today—because Constipation is responsible for the Indigestion and Dyspepsia—the nervousness, Insomnia and Rheumatism—the Eczema and other skin troubles—the Headaches and Backaches.

Why is this?

As you know, it is the duty of the bowels to carry off the waste matter in the system. If the bowel muscles are weak or the liver inactive, then this waste matter remains in the body and poisons the blood. As a result, every organ in the body is poisoned by this waste.

"Fruit-a-tives" has been wonderfully successful in relieving Stomach Troubles, Nervous Troubles, Liver Troubles, Kidney Troubles, Skin Troubles and Blood Troubles, because "Fruit-a-tives" positively and emphatically relieves Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always relieve Constipation, even though the trouble has been chronic for ten, fifteen and twenty years. Thousands of grateful users proclaim "Fruit-a-tives" the greatest remedy for Constipation that the world has ever known.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

URGES TRAINING AGAINST DISEASE.

Determination to Live is the Greatest Foe of Illness, Says a Physician—Only Dead Have No Health.

"Only a dead man has no health." Taking this as a text, the medical correspondent of The London Times says that all men ought to train against disease, and that men who are sick should realize their strength even as those who are fit realize theirs. Disease, he says, may be left to the doctor; health is the concern of the patient himself.

When men fall ill they tend to argue about their ailments, says the physician. Their attention becomes fixed on symptoms, and they watch these from day to day. If the symptom is more evident they are depressed; if, on the contrary, it has diminished hope returns to them This is especially true of the large class of middle-aged people which suffers from gout, rheumatism and circulatory trouble. This class forms a chief part of the practice of most consulting physic-all manner of drugs and instruments are brought into play to deal with its signs and symptoms.

No sign occasions more interest than that known as blood pressure. Indeed, a kind of superstitious awe and dread surrounds this phenomenon, says the writer. If a man thinks he has a high blood pressure he usually thinks of very little else. He will endure almost any trouble to lower it. At the back of his mind there seems to lurk ever the fear that the high pressure will one day burst one of his blood vessels and so end his life.

Unhappily, a state of matters which seems obvious enough to the patient is, in reality, exceedingly obscure. No man, the physician asserts, has as yet furnished a complete explanation of what blood pressure is. What it signifies is, therefore, still in doubt. The few facts which are known lend small support to the ideas current in the public mind.

Obsessed by Symptoms.

In any case, to be absorbed in symptoms is a very great mistake if one is subject to some chronic malady, the writer declares. For not only is the business of life apt to be neglected, but the malady itself is almost sure to be made worse.

The reason is simple, says the doctor. Every illness and every disease presents two distinct aspects. There is the disease itself, and there is the man afflicted by it. If we assume, as men are so apt to do, that the disease is a kind of parasite living on the body, our interest will centre exclusively on its manifestations. We shall picture mentally its attack on us as a kind of assault, and watch with anxiety for any sign of increased or diminished violence.

If, however, we take the other view—that disease represents the measure of our deficiency—our attention will be focused not on signs and symptoms so much as on our own health, says the writer. We shall not wait for the disease to go away. We shall rather be up and doing to repel it.

This may sound obvious enough. In point of fact hundreds of good lives are wasted or lost because people fail to understand it, the physician maintains. The writer says he knows a man aged 70 who at 25 was told he was dying of consumption. He had had several severe hemorrhages, and his condition was deplorable. He gave up his work and made up his mind to resign himself. He watched with strained gaze the daily manifestations of his enemy, and even counted the moments of its approach.

And then one day the idea occurred to him that, after all, he had a measure of health left. He was not yet dead. Suppose that instead of watching his disease and waiting for it he watched himself and tried to add just a little more to his store of strength! The moment he came to this view his whole policy of life changed. He began to go into training against his malady, adopting the immemorial methods of health culture—exercise, diet and determination.

The result was a restoration to health which astonished every one who had knowledge of his case. And even if we admit, says the physician, that this was an exceptional instance, we cannot deny the value of the method. The truth is that a man may repel disease most effectively by realizing to the fullest degree his own strength, the writer maintains. In other words, the fitter we are the less will disease be able to threaten us. So long as our minds are obsessed by symptoms we cannot realize our strength. If, however, we devote ourselves to our own side of the question and leave the disease side alone, the whole position is altered.

Train Against Disease.

How can a man realize his strength? asks the physician. The answer again is very simple: By the same means as a fit man realizes his. One can in fact go into training against disease. In spite of the fact that there are killing diseases, such as cancer, against which human effort has so far been unavailing in the writer's opinion, and disabling diseases such as a broken-down heart, which limit the scope of effort, the truth still holds that health can be improved by the observance of a certain course of life. We may have very little health left, he says, yet that little is worth improving. Only a dead man has no health.

Let the unfit man therefore put his unfitness away from him, the physician urges. Let him "count his blessings" in the shape of health remaining. Let him not bury this one talent in any napkin of brooding or worry. Let him do what he can, either at work or play; in very many cases he will find that he can do more than he supposed. And he may find his capacity increase instead of diminish.

This is not to say that he must disregard his doctor's advice. On the contrary, the disease may be safely left to the doctor. Health is the patient's concern. The writer says he knows a man of sixty who hunts regularly, yet at thirty he was condemned to death on account of his circulation. Being a lover of horses, he made up his mind "to die in the saddle." And that saved his life. For, in truth, the effect of the mind on the body is incalculable. The new power which comes with a renewed determination to live is the greatest of all the enemies of disease, concludes the physician.

AN EXPERT WILL GIVE AN ADDRESS

ON YOUNG PEOPLES' WORK SUNDAY EVENING IN ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

In all walks of life, business, professional, industrial, and in church life as well, specialists are being developed for particular work. This has been found the most effective way of handling situations, and developing ideas. One of these specialists, Mr. C. A. Meyres, will address the young people in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening. Mr. Meyres is an expert on Young Peoples' Work, and will talk on this subject, with which he is the most conversant. It would indeed be unfortunate if all those who can make it convenient to be present did not take advantage of this opportunity to hear probably the best authority on young peoples' work in the province.

The choir of St. Andrew's will contribute under the direction of Mr. Crane, the musical director, and Mrs. Maurice Park, soloist, music appropriate for the occasion.

"Somebody's Mother" Abroad On Chilly Day In A Dim and Shadowy Old World

"They All Felt Like Helping Her" Old Lady Was Nearly Blind and Her Hands Were Cold.

She was a middle-aged lady, not very well dressed, and with bare hands, although it was a chilly day. She waited patiently at the closed end of a one-man car for a while, and then proceeded slowly to the other side. The motorman, busy with the trolley line, looked at her a little impatiently. Finally she came slowly around to the open door and stumbled into the car. The motorman took her transfer. The lady in the seat just ahead rose with a little exclamation, and helped her to a seat. She was nearly blind. Her hands were very cold. When the car stopped, she alighted, and someone helped her carefully into the other waiting street car. The motorman, realising that he had taken her transfer, left his car and ran after her, to give it to the other conductor. Perhaps she was "somebody's mother." They didn't know, but they all felt like helping her in some way, if possible. She probably realised that, for she looked back and smiled gravely—a little grey-haired, stumbling lady, with bare hands, abroad on a chilly day in a dim and shadowy world.

CHICAGO WOMEN UP IN ARMS

Chicago women would like to see any old man take their smokes away from them!

They are up in arms over the proposed national legislation prohibiting smoking by female persons." Not that they care so much about their violet-scented cigarets, not at all. It's the principle of the thing.

"Men make laws that infringe up on our liberty as a sex? Indeed not It is ridiculous for them to think it it!" Thus protests Mrs. Chicago One woman says:

"It is absurd for men to try to regulate the habit of women. They ought to be ashamed of themselves for not being har dat work on some thing more serious and more important. Smoking is a matter of personal taste, and it is not important enough to make legislation about."

"It would be a shamful thing for men to make a law of that kind," says another Chicago woman "I am glad Miss Alide Robertson, the woman member of Congress, indicated she was not friendly to the measure Women will not stand for that sort of high-handed legislation in a matter that concerns them.

Liver Pains

Pains under the shoulder blades tell of liver derangements.

Other indications are sallow complexion, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and bilious headaches.

The quickest way to arouse the liver to healthful action is by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Continued use will insure lasting relief, correct the whole digestive system and purify the blood.

Mrs. Wm. Barten, Hanover, Ont., writes:

"For some time I suffered from liver trouble. There was a hard, bearing-down feeling in my back which I could not get rid of. Some one advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and found them excellent. The dragging feeling in my back disappeared and I felt much benefitted generally. I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and always keep them on hand for general use."

THE FOOTPATH OF PEACE.

To be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars, to be satisfied with your possessions, but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them, to despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing except cowardice, to be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgusts, to covet nothing that is your neighbour's, except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners, to think seldom of your enemies, often of your friends, and every day of Christ, and to spend as much time as you can, with body and with spirit, in God's out-of-doors — these are little guide-posts on the footpath to peace.

—Henry Van Dyke.

Canadian Girls

In connection with the courses in Canadian Girls in Training work which were inaugurated in the city last season, quite an ambitious undertaking is being sponsored by them in the form of a banquet which is to take place on Friday, 21st October, in the basement of Murray Street Baptist Church.

This banquet to be held at 6.30, is under the auspices of the Girls' Work Board, and is intended to include the following groups: 'All organised classes of 'teen age girls; those who are contemplating organisation; and two representatives from each of the classes that are not organised.

It is expected that Miss Constance Jackson, of Toronto, will address the gathering, and there will be reports from the young ladies of the city who attended the summer conference in connection with this work at Muskoka this summer.

A musical programme will be provided, and the girls will be expected to contribute class songs and yells to the general jollification. It is anticipated that the number attending will be nearly 300.

"Hello Girls"

Doubtless there are a great many trials in the life of the average telephone operator which the average telephone user doesn't stop to consider. There are people who chew their words—and numbers; ladylike women who murmur into the 'phone a series of unintelligible numerals; people who ask for the street number following the name instead of the number preceding it; and those who, having asked for a certain number and receive it, decide they want an entirely different one. These are only some of the items which make life pleasant for the operator; but, as most things are comparative, she should realise the advantages of working in this country as compared with many others. Imagine the plight of a telephone operator in Russia, say, where one would have to translate a series of polyglot syllables delivered through the thicket of whiskers which most Russian gentlemen are pictured as wearing on their countenances.

And a telephone operator in China can't have a very good time. In that criss-cross land, everything in elocution depends upon the accent. If you hail from one district, you say your words with a perpetual interrogation point at the end of each sentence, and if you belong to another portion of the country, your enunciation runs along smoothly and evenly with no perceptible inflections. A man who had lived in China for many years told of having once ordered his servant to bring him his hat. The man looked at him strangely, went out of the house, and returned an hour later with a small, squalling kitten. The word for "hat" and "cat" happened to be composed of exactly the same syllables, "mow," the only difference being that if you desired a feline pet, you said it just like they do when they are hungry, with a plaintive cadence.

And for a telephone operator to obtain a position in Cairo, she must know not only her native tongue, but at least four other languages. These are English, French, Italian, and Greek. And she must be able to speak each language with such perfect enunciation that there can be no possibility of mistaking what she says, even over the "poorest wire" the Egyptian telephone service can present.

You will find, as you look back upon your life, that the moments that stand out above everything else are the moments when you have done things in a spirit of love.

—Henry Drummond.

So live, that when the summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan that moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

From Thanatopsis.

Don't be a growler. Some people contrive to get hold of the prickly side of everything; to turn against sharp corners and disagreeable things. Half the strength spent in growling would often set things right. You may as well make up your mind to begin with, that no one ever found the world quite as he would like it; but you are to take your part of the trouble and bear it bravely. You will be sure to have burdens laid upon you that belong to other people unless you are a shirker yourself, but don't grumble. If the work needs doing you can do it, never mind about that other who ought to have done it and didn't. Those workers who fill up the gaps and smooth away the rough spots, and finish up the jobs that others leave undone, they are the true peace makers and are worth a whole regiment of growlers.

Picking a vocation is one of the most serious things in life yet so often it is done in a haphazard manner. Few people realize its importance. Not until it is too late do they learn the truth. The chief joy we get from life is in being where one belongs and in doing the things one is best fitted for. Most discontented people are so because they are trying to be something they are not or do something they cannot do.

It is indeed strange that in our gardens we will find just the right soil for our corn, our potatoes, our strawberries or whatever, and when we try to find the correct soil for our sons and daughters we try to grow a lawyer where a carpenter would thrive, or a musician where we should have a school teacher.

"What does it value a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" is another way for saying—Of what use are wealth and power if you have not happiness and contentment.

Isn't it remarkable when good books and papers are so cheap that men and women read so little and neglect the minds God has given them to improve? If we would make our homes and our home life pure, happy and elevating we must seek knowledge on the various topics that are daily discussed. Too many boys and girls growing up now by the time they have entered their teens have cultivated such a taste for trashy, impure literature which is scattered broadcast over our land, that anything solid or that would improve their minds or character is considered dull and uninteresting.

Courage is the thing that most of us need when it comes to facing the hard places in life. Sooner or later we all have them to face and if we could only learn to march bravely up to them we would find that they lose half their terror. Being afraid of trouble is not going to make it go away. You will have to face it just the same.

The most pathetic obituary ever written can be found in one line in the Book of Chronicles. It tells of an evil ruler—Jehoram, King of Judah, and in speaking of his death says, "And (he) departed without being desired."

There is nothing more satisfactory to the human heart than to be needed and to know we are needed.

Why is it that most of us go through life seeing only one side of it—the side related to our own particular sphere? W We all miss so much of the beauty and the spiritual side of life because we are so wrapped up in material things. Many farmers can travel through a beautiful stretch of country and never see the loving power of God manifested there at all—only the silos and the corn cribs. A preacher might manage to make up a worn out test or two for his Sunday sermon but that would be all. If we cannot see the beauties of this earth, are the golden streets of heaven going to satisfy us?

FOR RAISIN BREAD FANS.

Raisin bread is back, real raisin bread with raisins in it, the kind you used to get before the war!

How does this happen? Why, raisins are now 30 per cent. lower priced, and the bakers can afford to use the two ounces the Government requires in every 16-ounce loaf.

The war-time price made this impossible without either cutting down the loaf or raising the price.

Now you again can get the old-fashioned big loaf with lots of raisins at a reasonable price. Your grocer and baker will be selling it. Look in windows and show cases.

You can enjoy it toasted for breakfast and lunch. Somehow raisin bread toast seems just made to go with coffee.

Don't forget that raisin bread is a splendid food. Raisins are rich in food iron—good and good for you.

Automobile interests in this country it is announced, are now registering the most sale from the urban centers of the South, Pacific Coast and Middle West States.

AMERICAN WEDS PRINCESS XENIA

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(United Press).—The first of three wedding ceremonies uniting William B. Leeds, junior and Princess Xenia of Russia, was performed here to-day.

It was the civil ceremony. Two church weddings will take place tomorrow, the first in the American Church at 2.30 p.m. and the second in the Russian Church at 3. p.m.

To-day's ceremony, which was performed in the registry office, was very informal. There were no invited guests. Prince Christopher of Grey, stepfather of the bridegroom, was the witness in behalf of young Leeds, and Grand Duke Pavlovitch of Russia was the bride's witness at the religious ceremonies. The Princess was attired in the picturesque Russian bridal costume.

Leed's mother, widow of the late William B. Leeds, of Richmond, Ind., the "Tin Plate King" married Christopher of Grey a prince of a reigning house. Her son, who was only eighteen became engaged to Xenia, who was 17, while he was visiting his mother in Athens.

FURS VALUED AT $10,000 STOLEN

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner).—Fur robbers entered Isaac Cohen's, 170 McCaul street, between 11:45 p.m. last night and 7 a.m. today and stole $10,000 worth of furs.

Some articles taken were: two ladies Persian Lamb coats, two Hudson Seal coats one French Seal coat, one Sable coat, seven French Seal cuffs one Sable cape, three Raccoons eight fox chokers, ten pairs of kangaroo.

The burglars removed the plate glass in the front door to enter the place. The glass was left in the lane along side the building.

About Fashions

The time and place in which the dress is to be worn should determine the general colour scheme. Observe this interesting natural law. Seated on the lawn, the white gown and face of a woman will assume colour values of reflected green. Harmonies of one colour are the safest for those who do not understand thoroughly the technic of colour, as, for example, two or three shades of brown, green, or violet. Then again, variety in one colour may be attained by the use of different materials. In using harmonies of contrasting colour, there should always be one dominant colour in the dress, the secondary colours being in much smaller quantities, appearing, in effect, only as accents. When two colours not in perfect harmony are put together they destroy each other. Each may be beautiful in itself alone, but they act and react upon each other, and often, when they do not actually swear at each other, they scold. The supreme effect in costume is to be achieved only by a skillful intermingling of colours that blend naturally. Therefore, fashions which dictate discordant combinations should not be followed.

The Frenchwomen often dress with reference to the eyes to bring out the beauty of their colour. But every individual has her own most becoming colour and should study her own requirements and make her colour predominate in her wardrobe. As a rule the human figure is too small—especially outdoors—to permit of many colours, and for this reason costumes of one colour, or two or three shades of one colour, are most effective for street dress. Good colour can be had in inexpensive materials as well as in the most costly textiles, so that the choice resolves itself into a question of taste rather than of money. — Ladies' Home Journal.

LITTLE CHANGE IN THE PRODUCE MARKET.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—The domestic market for cash grain was without feature yesterday. There were no further developments in the flour situation. Prices are about steady in millfeed at the recent decline, and the rolled oats market was easier. There is nothing new to report in baled hay. Prices for eggs were up one to two cents. Prices also ruled higher for potatoes, with a fair trade passing. The local demand for butter was good, but the cheese market is quiet, with an easy undertone.

PETITION TO ENTER MAYFLOWER IN RACE.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press). — The United States Fishermen's Race Committee yesterday took under advisement a new petition that the Boston schooner Mayflower be permitted to enter the elimination trials off this port next Wednesday, in which a defender for the International Fishermen's Cup is to be picked.

J. Henry Hunt, chairman of the Mayflower Associates, headed a delegation, which left copies of a resolution adopted by the organization, insisting that the Mayflower be allowed to enter the trials and that in case of victory, she be backed by the United States committee as its cup defender. The Mayflower recently was barried from the international race by the Halifax trustees of the cup, under the "letter and spirit" of its deed of gift, and the United States Committee thereupon announced that she could not compete in the trials.

BRITISH UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION IS DISCUSSED.

LONDON, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press).—The vital question of unemployment was considered yesterday by a joint conference of the Joint General Council of the Trades Union Congress, Labor party executives and Labor members of Parliament, during a two-hour session. In answer to a request from Mr. Lloyd George, the Laborites replied that they would anpoint a committee to meet the Prime Minister early next week to confer regarding practical measures for dealing with what is considered as the "present national emergency."

The Cabinet also discussed the question at its afternoon session in an endeavor to put forward a plan which is now in its early stages.

New Drug Will Make Millions of People Well

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY —NUMBERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our Livers. When the Liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your Stomach, Kidneys Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicine act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep, waking in the morning feeling 100 p.c. better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed and ready for a good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in Peterborough by F. C. Weber, Charlotte street.

The "Y" Membership Campaign

Last night the Peterborough branch of the Y.M.C.A. went over the top in a membership campaign. Members representing the various departments of the Association met at the "Y" and following a supper provided by Ladies' Auxiliary and a sing song led by Mr. Asa Huycke, heard several speakers discuss ways and means of reaching the campaign objective. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, president of the Association, presided and in a short address, urged the campaign teams to put forth their best efforts in the coming campaign. "Association members," said Mr. Gillespie, should be proud of their affiliation with such an institution as the Young's Men's Christian Association."

Origin of the "Y."

The origin of the Y.M.C.A. was touched on by Mr. P. J. Lee of the National Council, Toronto, in a fifteen minute address. The Association had its inception many years ago when a small group of young men banded themselves together for the extension of Christian endeavor. The organization expanded rapidly until it had extended to all parts of the world. The Association aims at the physical as well as the moral development of the young men. The physical element of Y.M.C.A. work should not be considered in the light of a bait by which men and young boys may be induced to join the organization with the ultimate object of diverting his footsteps into religious channels. The religious development of the young man is the first and most important object of the Y. M.C.A. Its work is character forming and in this connection, the physical aspect has an important bearing. Mr. Lee related the case of a young man who on two occasions failed to finished in a race which was conducted under Y.M.C.A. auspices. On the third occasion the young man was urged to finish no matter how far behind he was. "Do it for the sake of your character" was the advice of the physical instructor. The young man finished second in the race and when he returned to the dressing room he was scarcely able to walk for the blisters on his feet. He later developed into one of the best runners of his day and was scheduled to take part in the Olympic meet in Berlin in 1916. The young mon in question never got to Berlin as an Olympic runner, but he went as far as he could in another capacity. To-day he occupies a place among the illustrious dead, for he never returned.

On Salesmanship.

Mr. D. R. Wren, sales manager of the De Laval Company, gave the boys a short talk on salesmanship. Mr. Wren said the first qualification for a good salesman was to know what he was selling. Campaign members should first bear in mind that they are selling themselves as an Association. Mr. Wren took ten members as an objective and said each campaign worker should have no difficulty in securing this number. The speaker followed with a brief reference to Y.M.C.A. work and its importance in the community.

Campaign Details.

Details of the membership campaign were briefly discussed by Mr. G. H. Roper, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Roper explained that the original objective for each campaign worker was two members, but the optimism expressed at the meeting led him to believe this objective would be increased.

A Religious Duty.

"The physical development of our bodies is a religious duty," said Rev. R. Pogue. "It is a sin to be sick when we can be well," he added. Mr. Pogue paid a stirring tribute to the work of the Y.M.C.A. and commented upon the religious work of the institution. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem. The membership campaign opened yesterday and will continue for one week.

GOOD HEALTH AND GOOD SPIRITS DEPEND UPON THE CONDITION OF THE BLOOD—KEEP IT RICH, RED AND PURE.

When a doctor tells you that you are anaemic, he simply means, in plain English, that your blood is weak and watery. But this condition is one that may easily pass into a hopeless decline if prompt steps are not taken to enrich the blood. Poor blood, weak, watery blood is the cause of headaches and backaches, loss of appetite, poor digestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous irritability and many other troubles. To poor blood is due the pimples and blotches the muddy complexion that disfigures so many faces. To have good health, a good complexion and a cheerful manner. The blood must be kept rich, red and pure. This is easily done through the use of a blood enriching tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The whole mission of this medicine is to help enrich the blood which reaches every nerve and every organ in the body, bringing with it health, strength and new activity. That is why people who occasionally use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills always feel bright, active and strong.

Mrs. E. E. Cook, Simcoe, Ont., gives strong testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pills when the blood is in an anaemic condition. She says: "I have been a sufferer for some years from a run down condition of the system. I suffered from pains in the back, twitching of the nerves and muscles, my appetite was poor, I had indigestion and would get drowsy after eating. My hands and feet were almost always cold, and though I was constantly doctoring, the medicine I took did not help me. I had practically given up hope of good health, until a friend from Hamilton came to visit me, and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It took some persuasion, but finally I consented to try them. I have reason to be grateful that I did for after using seven boxes I felt like a new person. I have gained in weight, have a better color and my work is now a pleasure. For this condition my thanks are due Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I cannot praise them too highly.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DR. A. E. BEST HOME FROM MISSION FIELD

HAS BEEN STATIONED IN CHINA FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Dr. A. E. Best, with Mrs. Best and their three children, arrived in the city yesterday to pay an extended visit to Mrs. Best's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Taylor, 580 Bolivar Street. Dr. Best is a medical missionary of the Methodist Church, stationed at Fowchow, China, and is home on an extended furlough after an absence of over seven years.

Dr. Best is a native of Madoc, received his preparatory schooling at Grenfell High School, graduated in Arts and Medicine from the University of Toronto, and, before going to China, spent a year in charge of the Methodist Hospital at Bella Bella, B.C. His wife was formerly Miss Gertrude Taylor, of this city, and has been of much assistance to her husband on account of her training as a teacher and graduate nurse, with two years in medicine. Dr. Best, who went to China in 1914, spent some time in taking a language study period at Tzeluitsing, and then went to Fowchow, Szechman, in Western China, where he was put in charge of the Methodist Hospital. He is supported by the Epworth League and Sunday School of the Centennial Church, Toronto.

Dr. Best, with his wife and their three small sons, left their home in Fowchow on May 30th, spent three weeks in Shanghai, and then took the steamer for Canada, arriving at Armstrong, B.C., on July 12th. They have been visiting relatives in British Columbia and Alberta, and arrived in the city last evening. Their three little boys, all born in China, Stanley, aged five, Douglas, aged four, and the baby, Teddy, of eighteen months, are bright-eyed, sturdy youngsters, with yellow curls and blue eyes. They can chatter in Chinese or English with startling fluency, but otherwise differ in no perceptible fashion from the average Canadian-born child.

THE VALUE OF PAIN

There is nothing given to this world that is worth while unless it is born of pain, a thing is worth only what it cost and if we water the precious seed we sow with tears we shall afterward reap a glorious harvest.

BABY BYRNE.

Has Never Caused One Disturbed Night.

27, York Street,
Sacriston, Durham.

Dear Sir,

I am sending a photograph of my baby Alice, aged 12 months, who has had Virol since birth. Though very tiny at birth, and artificially fed since two weeks old, she has never required medical advice, nor given me one disturbed night. Her weight is now 22½ lbs., and she has nine teeth, which she has cut without trouble. She is a most lovable and happy baby, and I am very grateful for the great benefit she has derived from Virol.

Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.) (Mrs.) M. BYRNE.

Virol is used in large quantities in more than 2,500 Hospitals and Infant Clinics. It is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother herself, whilst for children it supplies those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilising of milk; it is also a bone and tissue-building food of immense value. Virol babies have firm flesh, strong bones and good colour.

WHY MEETING WAS CANCELLED BY FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION

Editor Evening Examiner.
Sir:

I wish to correct a wrong impression created by a notice pubisned in Wednesday's and Thursday's Examiner which reads: "The Dinner of the Fish and Game Protection Association Thursday evening at the Empress Hotel has been cancelled as the speakers from Toronto are unable to be present."

This sir is not true as the enclosed letter from the minister will show: After I had made two trips to Toronto within the last six weeks, besides several letters impressing upon the minister that he was needed in Peterboro in the matter of our Game and Fish supply its proper control etc. Also to show him Peterboro's suitable location for a Fish Hatchery. I persuaded him to come and also to bring the Deputy Minister, Mr. McDonald, then to my surprise when [illegible] rooms for these gentlemen in order that they may stay overnight, I was informed that the Association had called off the banquet and meeting as sufficient members could not be got together: Such public men as cabinet ministers and their deputies are very busy men, to meet the Peterboro engagement other places had to be neglected and it is not likely that Government officials can be fooled twice, or that in future onything from Peterboro especially with regards to Fish and Game can be taken seriously by them, and the prestige of this district must be affected. That visit would have meant much to Peterboro Sport and Tourist resorts: and should never have been allowed to fall through where there is such a profession of interest in our game ond fish, also in the location of the Hatchery. The minister, also his deputy, had made all arrangements to be here, but were informed by the Fish and Game Protection Association, President of which is Mr. Soden, that the affair had been called off much to the disappointment of the minister and the local member. I publish this in justice to the Cabinet Minister also his deputy who were concerned. Enclosed is letter I received from the minister.

Dear Mr. Tooms:—

Acknowledging your favour of the 28th September. I have to say we have arranged to leave Toronto on the 1.30 p.m. train, G. T. R., due to arrive in Peterborough at 5.50 p.m. As we cannot return the same evening we will leave on the 8.10 G. T. R. train the following morning.

Do not go to any particular trouble in our behalf, other than, if you will, make the necessary arrangements for two rooms for the night.

Thanking you for your attention to this, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

The advertisement cancelling the meeting follows:

"The Dinner of the Fish and Game Protective Association, Thursday evening at the Empress Hotel, has been cancelled as the Speakers from Toronto are unable to be present."

Editor Evening Examiner.
Sir:

I am glad the Examiner agrees with my remarks that we need men who will save us from class antagonism and utter selfishness.

With regard to the question in your editorial of Wednesday: Does Mr. Tooms imagine here is any hope of securing such men, say in the ranks of the United Farmers? I may say: I certainly do. I have met them, and am proud of their friendship, they are to be found in the ranks of Labour also, such men are scarce perhaps, but they can be found in all ranks of life.

Party politics do not seriously bother me. What I would like to see is less prejudice, and a higher moral tone in our public life, than is at present throughout, caused chiefly through the mad craze for wealth at the expense of others.

The record of the Ontario Legislature under Premier Drury "of which I sincerely hope everyone is familiar," has proved to me and others, that it is the nearest approach we have yet had in power to "Equal Rights" and "Equal Opportunities," which will assist materially to break down class antagonism. Therefore I am an unfaltering supporter of Premier Drury. As to the question "Has class antagonism decreased since the advent of the Farmer-Labor Government?" I do not know whether it has decreased, but it certainly has been brought to the light of the public eye: a feeling that was bubbling under the surface for a long time; which can now be more adequately dealt with and cleaned up. I, personally, do not see why the Farmers' criticism of the Conservative and Liberal parties should cause any more antagonistic feeling than the Liberals criticizing the Conservative party and vice versa. I again repeat it is upright God-fearing men, whose object is service for the common weal, that is of more importance than party or the tariff.

WILLIAMS & HEALY IN THE PIT BOYS

An unusual amount of interest is attached to the personnel of this act, owing to the fact that both of these boys are veterans of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Kid Williams, who was gassed at the Somme, will be remembered by the boys who saw him win the 145 lbs. boxing championship of the Canadian Army, at Barnes on Dominion Day, 1918. He was originally with the C. M. R.'s from Hamilton, and afterwards transferred to the 4th Railroad Troops. He was also a member of the Dumbells and Ramblers concert parties in France. His partner, Tim Healey, enlisted with the 33rd Battalion at Windsor, Ont., was transferred to the 1st Battalion in Aug., 1915, and was wounded in November of the same year. However they have forgotten all about the war now and strive only to amuse the public in their typical Welsh mining act as "The Pit Boys." These boys will be the featured vaudeville act at the Capitol on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

MOTION PICTURES AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETINGS RESUMED TUESDAY EVENING NEXT.

With the conclusion of the holiday season a series of regular monthly meetings of the Chamber of Commerce will commence on Tuesday evening next, October 11th, at 7.45 p.m.

"What has the Chamber of Commerce done during the past six months," will be the subject of a brief address by the President, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, following which the general business of the meeting will be considered.

As a special feature of the evening two motion picture films have been secured from the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Mines, U.S.A. and will be shown. Mr. P. P. Westbye has kindly consented to give a short addres on each of these films, namely, 'The Man Who Learned' and 'War on the Mosquito.'

The Provincial Board of Heath has stated that the former film is at present the best film in existence, and deals in story form with the effect of impure milk on the health of the community, also the opposite effect caused by the use of pure milk. The film 'War on the Mosquito' is particularly instructive, as it deals with the development of the mosquito from the eggs, through the larvae and pupa stages to the mosquito, and the treatment as employed by the U. S. government in its extermination, during the construction work at the Panama Canal.

Following the showing of these films and the brief address by Mr. Westbye, Dr. A. W. McPherson has kindly consented to make a short address on the urgent needs for sanitation.

As these films are particularly instructive, and the only opportunity in which they will possibly be shown for a considerable time, the meeting will be open to all, including ladies. It is expected that a large atendance will be present.

GIRLS! GROW THICK LONG, HEAVY HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Buy a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine." One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair — fine and downy at first —yes, but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy, and luxuriant.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor,—Permit me once more to commend to the citizens generally, the idea of a combination High and Technical School. This is the plan I advocated in a letter in your issue of Sept. 10th, as being practical, desirable and in the interests of economy.

This mater has been the subject of study with me for more than a year, I was able to visit a number of cities in Western Ontario in June, and to get first hand information as to the various ways of meet-in gthe needs of Technical Education. Dr. Merchant, Dr. Miller and Mr. Gavin of the Department of Technical Education, have also given me a good deal of their valuable time personally and by correspondence.

My personal decision in favour of a combination building as voiced in my letter of Sept. 10th is therefore based upon a fairly thorough understanding of the mater.

With this alone in purpose, he stalked with the patience of an Indian from point to point and cover to cover down toward the bridge; crouching, halting and peering; slipping from the shoulder of a rock to the shelter of a bowlder; flattening on his stomach to worm his way under a projecting ledge and sliding noiselessly on his back down the face of a water-worn glacis—but drawing closer all the time to the bridge.

He knew every inch of the ground. He knew how well his quarry had concealed himself to render surprise impossible. But Stone's very safety in this respect made his retreat more difficult. A man lying in wait under the Double-draw, staked practically everything on one chance: that the man he sought to kill should cross the bridge. But if the intended victim, suspicious, should get unseen into the creek bed, the skulker could hardly avoid a fight.

Three hundred yards above the bridge, the creek walls open in an ellipse, narrowing abruptly where the bridge spans them. This open space has been scoured by floods until the bedrock lies like a polished floor and it was now dry except where the piers of the bridge stood in stagnant pools. Once within this amphitheater whose vertical walls rise twenty to thirty feet, no fighting cover is available.

Behind a rocky point that guarded the upper entrance of the opening stood Laramie. He was watching the shadow cast by a shrub that sprang, shallow-rooted, from a crevice in the bedrock. For an interminable time he waited, only noting the slow swing of the narrow shadow as the morning sun, flooding the rock-basin, rose in majestic course. Gradually the deflection of the slender indicator, moving like a finger on the rock dial, marked the turn of the sun well past the shoulder of the point at which Laramie must emerge. When that moment came he looked sharply out, sprang from behind the point and ran sidewise into the narrow shadow thrown from the curving wall.

Stone, uneasy and alert, stood under the bridge, his rifle across his arm. The two men saw each other almost at the same instant. For Stone, it was the climax of a hatred long nursed because of a supremacy long challenged. And for him it was an open field with weapons in which his skill was as matchless as Laramie's was held to be, at close quarters, with a Colt's revolver.

Nor had Laramie underestimated the chances of an encounter under such circumstances. He counted only on the slight advantage of a surprise—knowing from disagreeable experiences how a surprise jars the poise; and there persisted in his mind, what he had never until then hinted to another, that Stone, shooting as an assassin from cover and Stone himself facing death, might shoot differently. On these slender hopes he covered Stone, as the ex-rustler jumped his rifle to his cheek, and cried to him to pitch up.

Stone's answer was a bullet. His shot echoed Laramie's, and as Laramie whipped the hat from his enemy's head, his bullet tore through the right side of Laramie's belt. Bare-headed, and thirsty to close on his antagonist, Stone, jumping from Laramie's second bullet, ran forward, hugging the creek wall, dropped on one knee, fired, and ran in again. Laramie refused to be tempted from the shadow in which he stood, until Stone, rounding the wall again as he came on, firing, threatened to find partial cover should Laramie stand still. It was a contest of deadly fencing, of steady heads and cool wit, a struggle in instant strategy. And if Stone meant to force Laramie into the sunshine, he now succeeded—but at a fearful cost. Laramie jumped not only into the sunshine, but into the blinding sun itself, and when Stone ran in again, Laramie tore open his hip with a bullet. It knocked the foreman over as if it had been a mallet. But he was swiftly up and firing, persistently almost outlined with bullets Laramie's figure against the rock wall. He splintered the grip of Laramie's revolver in its holster, he cut the sleeve from his wrist, and tore hair from the right side of his head; but he could not stop him. Enraged, and realziing too late how every possibility in the fight had been figured out by the man that he had intended to slay, Stone, crippled, yet forced to circle, dropped once more on his knee to smash in a final shot.

He was covered the instant he knelt. A bullet from Laramie's rifle shook him like a leaf. His head, jerking, sunk to his breast. With a superhuman effort he rallied. He looked at Laramie—narrowly watching—shook the hair from his eyes and fumbling at the firing lever tried to elevate his rifle to pump. But he swayed on his bent knee; the rifle slipped from his grasp. He sank to the rock floor, clutching with his big hands at the gravel, while Laramie running to him turned him over, snatched his revolver from its holster and throwing it out of reach, lifted his enemy's head.

When Kate, in an agony of suspense, made her way to the creek bed she found Laramie scooping water up in his hands for Stone. She could not go near the wounded man. Only by word from where she stood, piteously, and by dumb sign, she drew Laramie to her to learn whether he was hurt. When he declared he was not, she would not believe him till she had felt his arm where one bullet had cut his sleeve, and where the deadliest had raised a sullen red welt along his temple.

Ben Simeral was first to come along on his way to town in his wagon. John Frying Pann as with him. With their help, Laramie got Stone up to the bridge and into the wagon to take to town. He had shut his eyes and refused to talk. Kate made Laramie tell her every detail of the fight and breathed anew the terrors of each moment.

"I stole toward the bridge the minute I heard the firing," she confessed, unsteadily. "O, yes, I know! I might have been killed. But if you were, I wanted to be. How could you tell, when you stopped me so, Jim, there was a man under the bridge?"

"A bunch of bank swallows nest under that bridge, right where Stone was hiding," he said, reflecting. "Those swallows always fly out when I ride up to it. If they don't fly out, I don't cross. Today they didn't fly out."

By nightfall Kate had the hope that her father might live. Doctor Carpy, indeed, promised as much, though he confessed to Laramie that he was partly bluffing. It was, he explained, a question of constitution and nerve and he thought Barb had both. For better care he had him brought to town, and within the same hospital walls that sheltered Doubleday, lay Stone, in even more serious condition. The sole promise Carpy would make concerning him was that he would fit him either for trial, or for his museum—or, as Lefever suggested, for both.

The excitement of the town lay in the pursuit of Van Horn. Laramie during the first uncertain days of her father's condition stayed within Kate's call.

"While Van Horn's loose, Jim," Tenison said one day, "you're the man that's in danger; don't forget that."

"I'd like to forget it," he returned. "But I guess it wouldn't be just exactly safe to. Barb warned me yesterday to look out for a surprise—Van Horn's good at them. Then again he may have left the country—there's no word of him from anybody yet.

"Things up at Barb's ranch have got to have some attention," he continued. "Barb will be laid up for a long time; and if I don't see after things the banks will. I'm going to take McAlpin up there tomorrow."

The two men were sitting before a large window in the hotel office. As McAlpin's name was mentioned they saw the man himself stepping sailor-fashion at a lively pace up Main street. He made for the hotel, burst through the office door and headed straight for Laramie:

"Kitchen's just rode into the barn, Jim, with word from Lefever and Sawdy—they've got track of Van Horn. He came to Pettigrew's ranch yesterday for food and a fresh horse. One of John Frying Pan's boys seen him. Lefever says they've got him located near the head waters of the Crazy Woman. You know that rough country east of Pettigrew's? Lefever says if you'll get right up there and watch the creek, he can't get away. The boys at Pettigrew's say he's got lots of ammunition; Lefever and Sawdy stayed at Pettigrew's last night."

At the barn, Kitchen, who had ridden in from the Doubleday ranch, had few details to add. But the Indian runner that brought the word from Lefever and Sawdy had made it clear to Kitchen the two were depending on Laramie to help them bottle Van Horn.

Laramie laid the news before Kate at the hospital. He called her from her father's room and they talked at the end of the corridor.

She looked at him wistfully: "I don't want you to go, Jim," she whispered.

Her hands lay on his free arm. "I don't want to go, Kate," he said. "But the boys have sent to me for help—what can I do? He's a hundred times more my enemy than theirs. The only interest they've got in rounding him up is friendship for me and you. Suppose they close with him and get killed?"

Kate could only look up into his eyes: "Suppose you get killed, Jim?"

He hesitated. Then he looked down into her own eyes: "You'd know I did what I ought to do, Kate."

She withdrew herself from his embrace and looked at him: "I know you're going, Jim; only, don't ask me to say 'go.' I couldn't bear to think I sent you."

McAlpin had armed himself and was determined, despite Laramie's protests, to ride with him. The plucky boss was saddling the ponies and stood momentarily expecting Laramie at the barn when the telephone rang.

Too occupied with his watch for Laramie to give it any heed, McAlpin let it ring. And the barn men let it ring. It rang, seemingly, more and more sharply until McAlpin, with an impatient exclamation, ordered a hostler to answer. "It's you, McAlpin," bawled the hostler from the office, "and they want you quick."

McAlpin hurried to the instrument and glued his ear to the receiver. Tenison was on the wire. He spoke low and fast: "Is Laramie there?"

"No."

"Where is he?"

"Couldn't tell you, Harry, I'm lookin' for him every minute."

"Drop everything. Find him quick or you'll be too late. Van Horn's in town."

McAlpin gasped and swallowed: "What d' y' mean, Harry?"

"Damnation!" thundered Tenison. "You heard me, didn't you?"

"I did."

"Do as you're told."

The canny Scot knew well what the message meant. With little ostentation and much celerity he hurried up street. Belle, at her door with Kate, drawn-faced, could only say that Laramie had promised to come there before starting. "Warn him," was McAlpin's excited word. "You know Van Horn, Belle."

Red-faced and heated, McAlpin ambled rapidly in and out of every place where he could imagine Laramie might be. Deathly afraid of running into Van Horn—who bore him, he well knew, no love—but doggedly bent on his errand, McAlpin asked fast questions and spread the rapid-fire news as he traveled. More than once he had word of Laramie, yet nowhere could he, in his exasperation, set eyes on him. How nearly he succeeded in his mission he never knew till he had failed.

Laramie had completed his dispositions and was free, after a brief round of errands, to start north, when Carpy encountered him in the harness shop next to the drug store. Laramie was in haste. But Carpy insisted he must speak with him and, against protest, took him by way of the back door of the shop over to the back door of the drug store and into the little room behind the prescription case.

The doctor sat down and motioned Laramie, despite his impatience, to a chair: "It won't take long to tell you what I've got to tell you," said Carpy, firmly, "but you'll be a long time forgetting it. And the time you ought to know it is now."

"Jim!" Carpy, facing him four feet away, looked squarely into Laramie's eyes. "I know you pretty well, don't I? All right! I'm going to talk pretty plain. You're going to marry Kate Doubleday. Whatever her father's faults—and they've been a-plenty—they'd best be let lie now. That's what Kate Would want, I'm thinkin'—that's what her husband would want—anyway, her children would want it. Barb, after he deserted Kate's mother, went out into the Black Hills. He got into trouble there—a partnership scrape. I don't know how much or how little he was to blame; but his partner got the best of him and Barb shot him.

"The partner's friends had the pull. Barb was sentenced for manslaughter. He broke away the night he was sentenced. He came out into this country, took his own name again, got into railroad building, made money, lost it, and went into cattle.

"Two men here know this story. I'm one; the other is Harry Van Horn. He lived in the Hills when this happened. He wouldn't tell because he wanted Kate.

"Jim, if Van Horn comes in alive, he'll be tried for this job on Barb. He'll plead self-defense and spring the Black Hills story. Van Horn has done his best to kill you and hired Stone to do it. You and Kate ought to know why. It's unto you whether he comes in alive and blackens her father's name to get even with both of you. Now start along Jim—that's all."

Laramie did not rise.

For himself he cared nothing. But he cared for Kate. And though she had little reason to care for her father, and the tragedy of a record such as his was not a pleasant memory for any daughter; how much more would she suffer if his record were exposed by one whose interest it would be to blacken it?

"I said that was all," continued Carpy; "it ain't quite all, either. Van Horn will swear everything in this Falling Wall raid on old Barb to make feeling against him—it'll be a mess."

Laramie's eyes were fixed on the floor. When he raised them he spoke thoughtfully: "I see what you mean Doctor. I'll ask talk plain, too—as you'd want me to, I know. No one can tell till it's over how a man hunt is going to work out. But, Doc, whatever my feelings are, there's something else I've got to think about. You're leaving it out. No matter what stories have been told about me, my record up to this, is clear. I've never in my life shot down a man except in self-defense. I couldn't begin by doing it now. You know what I've stood from these cattlemen in the last year——"

"Why," demanded Carpy, "did you do it?"

"Why did Kate Doubleday shun me like a man with the smallpox? Because they put it up to her I was a man-killer. When they couldn't make me out a rustler, they made me out a gambler. When they couldn't make me out a thief, they made me out a gunman. I had a fine reputation to live down; and all of it from her own father and his friends—what could you expect a girl to do?

"I won out against the bunch. I couldn't have done it without playing straight. It's too late for me to switch my game now. I'd hate to see more grief heaped on Kate. And Van Horn doesn't deserve any show. But if his hands go up—though I never expect to see Harry Van Horn's hands over his head—I can't do it, Doctor, that's all there is to it—he'll come in alive as far as anything I have to do with it."

Carpy laughed cynically: "Jim," he exclaimed with an affectionate string of abuse, "You're the biggest fool in all creation. It's all right." The doctor opened the door of the little room as Laramie rose. "Go 'long," he said roughly, "but bring back your legs on their own power."

Laramie passed around from behind the prescription case where the clerk was filling an order, and, busily thinking, walked rapidly toward the open front door. A little girl waiting at the rear counter piped up at him: "How d' do, Mr. Laramie!" It was Mamie McAlpin. He stopped to pinch her cheek. "I don't know you any more, Mamie. You're getting such a big girl." Passing her, he stepped into the open doorway.

The threshold of the door was elevated, country store fashion, six or seven inches above the sidewalk. Laramie glanced up street and down—as he habitually did—and started to step down to the walk. It was only when he looked directly across to the opposite side of the street, lying in the afternoon shadow, that he saw, standing in a narrow open space between two one-storey wooden store buildings, a man covering him with a revolver.

At the very instant that Laramie saw him, the man fired. Laramie was stepping down when the bullet struck him. Whirled by the blow, he staggered against the drugstore window. Instinctively he reached for his revolver. It hung at his left hip. But struggling to right himself he found that his left arm refused to obey. When he tried to get his hand to the grip of his revolver he could not, and the man, seeing him helpless, darted from his hiding place out on the sidewalk and throwing his gun into balance fired again.

It was Van Horn. Before the second shot echoed along the street a dozen men were out. Not one of them could see at that amoment a chance for Laramie's life; they only knew he was a man to die hard, and dying—dangerous. In catching him at the moment he was stepping down, Van Horn's bullet, meant for his heart, had smashed the collar bone above it and Laramie's gun arm hung useless.

Realizing his desperate plight, he flung his smashed shoulder toward his enemy. As the second bullet ripped through the loose collar of his shirt, he swung his right arm with incredible dexterity behind him, snatched his revolver from its holster, and started straight across the street at Van Horn.

It looked like certain death. Main street, irregular, is at that point barely sixty feet wide. Perfectly collected, Van Horn trying to fell his reckless antagonist, fired again. But Laramie with deadly purpose ran straight at him. By the time Van Horn could swing again, Laramie had reached the middle of the street and stood within the coveted shadow that protected Van Horn. In that instant, halting, he whipped his revolver suddenly up in his right hand, covered his enemy and fired a single shot.

Van Horn's head jerked back convulsively. He almost sprang into the air. His arms shot out. His revolver flew from his hand. He reeled, and falling heavily across the board walk, turned shuddering, on his face. The bullet striking him between the eyes had killed him instantly.

Twenty men were running up. They left a careful lane between the man now standing motionless in the middle of the street and his prone antagonist. But Laramie knew too well the marks of an agony such as that—the clenching, the loosing of the hands, the last turn, the relaxing quiver. He had seen too many stricken animals die.

Limp and bleeding, overcome with the horror of what he had not been able to avert, he walked back to his starting point and sat down on the edge of the sidewalk. His revolver had been tucked mechanically into the waistband of his trousers. Men swarming into the street crowded about. Carpy, agitated, tore open his bloody shirt.

Laramie put up his right hand: "I'm not damaged much, doctor," he said slowly and looking across the street. "See if you can do anything for him."

While he spoke, the tremor of a woman's voice rang in his half-dazed ears—a woman trying to reach him. "O! where is he?"

Men at the back of the crowd cried to make way. The half circle before Laramie parted. He sprang to his feet, held out his right arm, and Kate with an inarticulate cry, threw herself sobbing on his breast.

"I'm telling you, Sawdy," expostulated McAlpin, in the manner of an ultimatum, "I'm a patient man. But you've got to get out of that room."

Sawdy stood a statue of dignity and defiance: "And I'm telling you, Hop Scotch, I'll get out of that room when I get good and ready."

"A big piece of ceiling came down last night," thundered McAlpin.

Belle was listening; these sparks were flying at her gate: "Whatever you do," she interjected contemptuously, "don't get a quarrel going over that room."

McAlpin, inextinguishable, turned to Belle: "Look at this: Henry Sawdy gets into that bath tub. He turns on the water. He goes to sleep. Every few weeks the ceiling falls on my new pool tables. First and last, I've had a ton of mortar on 'em. If there was any pressure, I'd be ruined."

"If there was any pressure," interposed Sawdy, "I wouldn't go to sleep. Do you know how long it takes to fill your blamed tub?"

McAlpin in violent protest, scratched the gravel with his hobnailed shoes: "I'll ask you: Am I responsible for the pressure, or the water company?" Sawdy undisturbed, continued to strike his heavy mustache. "The water it takes to cover you, Henry," sputtered McAlpin, "would run a locomotive from here to Medicine Bend."

"I have to wait till everybody in town goes to bed before I can get a dew started on the faucet," averred Sawdy. "Sometimes I have to set up all night to take a bath. Look at the unreasonableness of it, Belle," he went on indignantly. "I'm paying this Shylock a dollar and a half a week for my room—and most of the time, no water."

McAlpin ground his teeth: "No water!" was all he could echo, doggedly.

"Do you know what this row is about, Belle?" demanded Sawdy. "He's trying to screw me up to a dollar seventy-five for the room. And everybody on the second floor using my bath tub," continued Sawdy calmly.

"Your bathtub," gasped McAlpin. "Well, if you could get title to it by sleeping in it, it surely would be your tub, Sawdy."

"I don't want your blamed room any longer, anyway," concluded Sawdy. "I'm going to get married."

McAlpin started: "Henry, don't make a blamed fool o' yourself."

"I said it," retorted Sawdy, waving him away. "Move on."

"I've had no notice," announced McAlpin, raising his hand. "You'll pay me my rent to the first of the year. You rented for the full year, Henry, remember that!" With this indignant warning, McAlpin started for the barn.

Sawdy followed Belle into the house. He threw his hat on the living-room table. "Sit down, Belle," he said recklessly. "I want to talk."

Belle was suspicious. "What about?" she demanded. "You can't room here, I'll tell you that."

"Now hold your horses a minute—just a minute. Sit down. I know when a thing needs sugar, don't I? You know when it needs salt, don't you? Why pay rent in two places? That's what I want to know. Let's hitch up."

"Stop your foolishness."

"My foolishness has got me stopped."

"If you expect to eat supper here tonight, stop your noise."

"Honor bright!" persisted Sawdy, "what do you say?"

Belle took it up with Kate: "With me what can I do?" she demanded, greatly vexed. "I've got to marry a fat man anyway I fix it."

When Lefever learned Belle's choice had fallen on his running mate he was naturally incensed: "I've been jobbed all 'round," he declared at Tenison's. "First, Jim sends me up to the Reservation on a wildgoose chase after his two birds and bags 'em both within gunshot of town. Then my own partner beats me home by a day and cops off Belle. Blast a widower, anyway. He'll beat out an honest man every time. Anyway, boys, this town is dead. Everything's getting settled up around here. I'm sending my resignation in to Farrell Kennedy today and I'm going to strike out for new country."

"Not till I get married, John," said Laramie, when John repeated the dire threat. "And Kate wants a new foreman up at the ranch. You know her father's turned over everything to her."

"What'll she pay?"

"More than you're worth, John. Don't worry about that!"

Some diplomacy was needed to restore general good feeling, but all was managed. From the men, John got no sympathy. The women were more considerate; and when Kate and Belle declared there would be no double wedding unless John stood up with the party, he bade them go ahead with the "fixings."

The breakfast at the Mountain House, Harry Tenison's personal compliment to the wedding party, restored John Lefever quite to his bubbling humor. It was a brave company that sat down, And a democratic one, for despite feminine protests it numbered at the different tables pretty much every friend of Laramie's in the high country including John Frying pan—only the blanket men from the Reservation were expected. Lefever acted as toastmaster.

"Jim," he demanded, addressing Laramie in genial tones, when everything was moving well, "just what in your eventful career do you most pride yourself on?"

Laramie answered in like humor. "Keeping out of jail," he retorted laconically.

"Been some job, I imagine," suggested Lefever cheerily.

"At times,a man's job."

"But you're not dead yet," persisted Lefever.

"I'm married—that's just as good."

"Why, Jim!" protested his bride with spirit.

"I mean," explained Laramie, looking unabashed at Kate, "I'm looking to you now to keep me out."

The boisterous features of similar Sleepy Cat celebrations were omitted in deference to Kate's feelings and the too recent tragedies: her father still lay in the hospital.

But her guests were agreed that she looked very happy over her new husband. The tell-tale glow not wholly to be suppressed in her frank eyes; the unmanageable pink that rose even to her temples and played defiantly under her brown hair curling over them; the self-conscious restraint of her voice—her bubbling laughter—these were all "sign," plain as print to married men, like McAlpin and Carpy, and grounds for suspicion even to confirmed bachelors like John Lefever and the old priest that came down from the Reservation to perform the ceremony; and in every one of them the observing read the trails that led to Kate's heart.

Laramie, on the other hand, disgusted those that expected a stern and heroic showing. Towards the close of the breakfast he was laughing deliriously at every remark, and looking dazed when an intelligent question was put at him; Harry Tenison pronounced it disedifying.

But when the young couple swung into their saddles for the wedding trip—their destination, naturally, a secret—criticism ceased. Laramie again looked his part; and those that had heard him pledge his life to cherish and protect Kate, felt perfectly satisfied as the two melted away into the glow of the sunset.

UNION OF YOUTHFUL COMMUNISTS

It was after the Communists had been in the saddle for about a year that their fears that this generation would not see communism established led them to turn their minds to the conversion of the children. As is well known, it has always been a Bolshevist principle to fight the institution of the family. Mme. Kolantai's writings can leave no doubt on that score even in the minds of the skeptical. The idea is to remove children at an early age from parental care and bring them up in colonies where they will be free from the evil influence of all non-Bolshevist currents of thought.

Hopes for the future are founded on an institution known as the Union of Youthful Communists, which all school children join. The juvenile members are denied access to any but Bolshevist literature, are exempt from all moral training, allowed unbridled license, and so encouraged in a spirit of rebellion against parental authority and the influence of former preceptors that they are becoming completely demoralized. Moral training was ever one of the weakest sides of Russian life, and the elimination of whatever moral instruction there was is bound to have disastrous effects. This pernicious system is combated by the Church and by parents as far as they can, but open protest is impossible.

The Bolsheviki realize as keenly as do their manifold but disrupted opponents that the secret of the future of Russia lies in education. It is said that not long before the revolution a foreign visitor indignantly told the Czar that a system of universal compulsory education ought to be established in Russia, to which he replied: "That is what I have been telling my Ministers for twenty years, but they won't listen to me." Small wonder that one of the first concerns of the Provisional Government was to introduce compulsory free education, and small wonder also that the Bolsheviki exerted themselves to the utmost to exploit to their own advantage the wave of thirst for knowledge that spread over Russia at the outbreak of the great war, receiving an additional impetus from the revolution.

Teaching Standards Abolished.

To communize the teaching profession the Soviet Government resorted to abolition of all standards of education for teachers. The first qualification for appointment, especially to posts in elementary schools, became, not an adequate education nor any moral qualifications, but the possession of a ticket of membership in the Communist Party. The teachers, of course, protested, but were denounced as "counter-revolutionary." Pronounced opposition also was shown by them to the abolition of examinations and rewards for diligence, a measure which enabled the idlest to leave school on the same footing as the most assiduous.

The evils resulting from the system of compulsory mixed living in boarding schools, suddenly introduced in a land of weak morals, brought education in some cases completely to a standstill. The desirability or undesirability of the suppression of religion in Russian schools may be open to discussion, but there is nothing now to replace it, for the teachers are deliberately hampered in any attempt to exert moral influence over their pupils, lest their admonitions should have a "counter-revolutionary" tendency. The figure of Lunacharsky, People's Commissar for Education and Art, is one of the least unsympathetic—perhaps one should say one of the most pathetic—of the revolution, but such measures as the above have completely nullified whatever good intentions he ever had.

The primary object, therefore, of the Bolshevist educational system, while conferring the benefits of elementary literacy, is so to benumb the juvenile mind as to render it impervious in its later stages of development to every influence that leads to spontaneous initiative, independence of thought, or (above all) moral uplift. The attitude of the Communist Party toward the Russian Church is that of a snarling dog. As a Moscow workman whom I met in White Russia last November observed to me: "There is only one man in all Russia whom Bolsheviki fear from the bottom of their hearts, and that is the Patriarch, Tihon."

Every variety of persecution having failed, the Communists have retreated to their present attitude of malicious tolerance, contenting themselves with employing the monopolized press to defame, abuse and vilify Christianity on every conceivable occasion, but seeking especially to protect children from what they call "demoralizing religious influence."

Food and Clothing as Bribes.

This is what the Bolsheviki are trying so hard to do for Russian children, and this is the method of procedure. But there is a preliminary—an essential preliminary. Astute propagandists as they are, they realize clearly that effective propaganda begins not in the head, but in the stomach. You cannot convince even ignorant and credulous Russian children of the benefits of a system that keeps their stomachs empty or makes them go barefoot and in rags in Winter time. So the children of those bourgeois parents who can be persuaded to part with their little ones, and such proletarian children as promise to make good communists are gathered together in homes and colonies where they are fed on preferential rations at the expense of the general populace and are clothed, mainly with clothing, seized from children whose parents refuse to part with them.

ST. GEORGE'S CONCERT AN ENJOYABLE EVENT

SPLENDID PROGRAMME AND APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE

The concert held last evening under the managemennt of St. George's Sunday school teaching staff, was most enjoyable. The weather was very unpleasant, nevertheless a very good audience assembled in the parish hall and paid careful attention to the splendid programme offered by those in charge of the entertainment. Solos were rendered by the Misses R. Quartermaine, M. Scott and P. Cooper and by Messrs. Albert Lee, Cooper, Hurle, Moore, Jackson, Gatfield and J. Kearns. The selection on the bagpipes by Mr. Neil Hurry was very fine and strongly appealed to the juvenile male portion of the audience. Piano solos by Miss D. Palin, a piano duet by Miss Joyce and Master Alcock, and a solo by Master G. Steele were very well executed indeed by such youthful performers. Mr. Dikenson was very much in demand as an accompanist and certain young ladies rendered efficient service in the same way.

The rector, Rev. W. R. Conrage, in his opening remarks, spoke of re-opening the St. George's Club, inaugurated last winter and closed for the summer months. It is hoped to make the club more interesting to the members of the parish and a meeting in this connection will take place next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, to which all interested in this matter, young people, parents and others, are invited.

ADHERED TO A FIXED POLICY OF PRICE VALUE

"SEMI-READY WEEK" AT THORNTON'S STORE MORE THAN DEMONSTRATION OF FASHIONS —VALUES AND TYPES.

Every Semi-ready suit or overcoat to be genuine must have the price label in the pocket — that is the proof of the Semi-ready Store, and it is the only way to protect oneself against the unworthy imitator.

Were men able to tell on sight and by feel the worth of a garment, inside and out, a sign of quality would not be necessary. But where quality can be stolen, substracted or simulated, as in clothing, it is desirable to have some seal.

All through the period of soaring price the Semi-ready Company stood by their policy of a fixed label price based on the cost of the cloth in each garment.

No amount of protest from outside sources could affect or change this policy and it was a factor in keeping prices normal and preventing profiteering.

"Semi-ready Week" beginning on Monday, will be more than just a display of men's fashions.

It will demonstrate how and why the Semi-ready physique type system of tailoring has prevailed. It will show why the number of customers has steadily grown with the wider knowledge of what constitutes quality and good values in clothes.

"Semi-ready Week" at Thornton Brothers store on George street will be a real Exposition of Modern Tailoring for Men.

FARMERS' MARKET WELL ATTENDED

NOT MUCH CHANGE IN PRICES —VEGETABLES PLENTIFUL

Farmers braved the miserable combination of bad roads and chill weather to attend to-day's market, and although not nearly as large as last week, was a fair market.

Apples and potatoes and winter vegetables were again offered in large quantities, and lamb and young hogs emphasized the coming of colder weather.

Sellers of apples were doing good business. Cookers of several varieties sold down to 30 and 40c but good quality eating apples were high. Snows were bringing 40 and 50c a peck or by the bag were $2.40. Peewalkies sold also at 40c. Pears were not very plentiful. One grower had quite a lot and sold them at 90c a peck.

Potatoes Scarce.

Not many potatoes were sold by the peck. The farmers had wagonsfull in bags and did not creak to break them. Generally $2 was asked for a single bag or single pecks for 40. Tomatoes, according to one vegetable grower made their final appearance for by next Saturday it is only reasonable to expect the frosts to have annihilated the tomato crop. Growers did not differentiate between green and ripe ones in price. Baskets were 30 and 35c and bushel lots 75c. Fancy yellow plum tomatoes were only 50c a big basket.

Winter onions sold fairly well at 65 and 75c. Fine cabbage were 10 and 15c; curled heads, large and firm bringing 25c. Good cauliflowers are grown around Peterboro and the Examiner saw some fine heads at 15c and 20c.

Celery Plentiful.

There were remarkable quantities of celery. Even at 10c there was no stinting of stalks. Lettuce is done, but radishes and parsley hang on at 5c. At several places sage in 5c bunches was on display and a few bunches were observed going into the housewives' deep baskets.

One vegetable grower, who grows spinach in the late summer and autumn had a big hamper on today and was selling the "greens" at 25c a peck.

Prodigious quantities of pumpkins, squash and citrons were for sale. All these representatives of the gourd family were going at from 10 to 20c.

Eggs Higher in Price.

Eggs maintained their high position in the price world on the market to-day. There seemed to be about the same quantities as last week. Some asked 50 and some did not hesitate to ask 55c. It looked as if the price would steady down to 50c before 11 a.m. Large quantities of butter were on sale, the price ranging from 40c to 43c. Chickens of every vintage could be had. Most buyers tought shy of some old hens the basketeers were trying to induce the public to buy at 25c, but pullets sold regularly at 28c and 30c. Well fed ducks were offered at 38c a pound. Some only asked 35c, however.

White clover honey was selling at 20c a lb., and buckwheat at 15c on the open section.

Flowers for Sale.

The flower vendors are putting up a brave fight against the inexorable frosts but it is a losing battle, and next week there will not be many bouquets for sale. There were some fine bunches on and as they have not yet lost their glowing hues, were like a ray of sunshine on the cheerless square this morning.

Next the "flower car" several boys who seemed to have a cooperative interest in a pup of mongrel extraction, were trying to sell it. Dog critics gathered around and the poor pup was showered with criticisms about its pedigree. One man after another grabbed the pup by the ears and lifted it off the ground and when it squealed they chuckled triumphantly, for no throughbred doggie ever squeals, they said. The kids did not know if it was a collie or not, but they asked $2 for it, although part of its anatomy was missing—its tail having felt the keen edge of a hatchet.

Lamb sold fairly well. Several of the butchers had front and hind quarters and were selling them at 18c for the former and 23c for the latter. Young hogs were down to $10.00 a pair.

RETURN OF BICYCLE EXPECTED NEXT YEAR

DEALERS ARE FILLED WITH OPTIMISM FOR THE FUTURE

A revival of bicycling next year is expected by local bicycle dealers, according to Frank White, Hunter Street, who represented Peterborough at the fourth annual convention of the Ontario Bicycle Dealers' Association in Chatham recently. The fifty dealers who attended were all filled with optimism for the future of the bicycle trade, and the general opinion was that 1922 would see the bicycle's "return." It is expected that with conditions returning to normal and the orgy of wild spending over the bicycle as the cheapest mode of transportation will be in favor.

History of the Wheel.

George A. Wenige, secretary of the Canadian Bicycle Dealers' Association, says the evolution of the bicycle goes back to the stone age, when they became popular in aiding our progenitors to escape from dinosaurs. Whether this is strictly fact or not, the bicycle did not come into being till 1840, when a Scotchman, by the name of McMillan, produced an affair which was promptly christened, as the custom was, and is, "dandy horse." It was capable of "doing" 4 miles an hour.

Lalliment, a French manufacturer and racing man, developed the Scotchman's idea into a practical pedal machine in 1862, and velocipedes, those unwieldy wooden contraptions, were soon in common use, with Col. Albert Pope, who bought out the Frenchman's American patent, energetically advertising them in all parts of the country. Intrepid persons traversed the highways and by-ways on these craft, viewing the country from quite an elevation when they had an opportunity (which wasn't very often).

Barnum's Circus soon had the father of the present bicycle as one of its chief attractions. It was not till about 1890 the present bicycle was evolved. Most of those living to-day recall the popularity with which the bicycle was seized. Young and old, healthy or infirm, all rode wheels — the well for exercise and thrill, and the unwell to get well. While dealers do not expect a bicycle boom like 25 years ago, a reactionary movement in favor of bicycling is looked for.

With the evolution of pneumatic tires, bicycle racing took popular fancy, and it was in 1809 that an Irishman, Murphy by name, on the New York police force, did a mile in 57 2-5 seconds on a special track constructed to offset tire suction. A Frenchman, Barbour, in 1856, established a phenomenal record when he rode a bicycle 815 miles in 24 hours.

"There is no other commodity that saves or serves like the bicycle," Secretary Wenige stated. In the United States $100,000,000 is invested in the bicycle business, he declared.

"To make the bicycle more popular" is the slogan adopted by Peterborough dealers.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

MAKING WILD GRASS GROW INTO CORN

AFTER patiently experimenting for the past 18 years Luther Burbank, the California plant wizard, has succeeded in making wild grass actually grow into corn. This agricultural achievement is regarded by the world's leading scientists as one of the most marvelous of Mr. Burbank's successes.

In beginning his experiments to change wild grass into corn, which are described in The Illustrated World by Robert H. Moulton, Mr. Burbank first took into consideration the fact that the only plant which botanists have ever considered as an ancestor of the present cultivated varieties of maize is the wild grass teosinte. They have long believed that the presence of Indian corn or maize in America represented an evolution brought about by the crude, plant-breeding methods of the Indians extending through untold centuries. Mr. Burbank, in order to prove the truth of this theory, carried the plant through its evolutions and produced perfect ears of corn in the miraculously short period of 18 years.

It was the savage Indian, says Mr. Burbank, who produced here in America, the most important crop. It was the Indian who found the wild grass, teosinte, covering the plains and developed it into corn. Or, to turn it the other way around, it was the desire of the Indian for a food plant like this that led teosinte grass, by gradual adaptation, to produce maize. On Mr. Burbank's farm there grows, today, this same teosinte which the Indians found. It bears tiny ears with two rows of corn-like kernels, on a cob the thickness of a lead pencil, and from two to four inches long—slightly less in length than an average head of wheat.

From its earlier stage of "pod" corn, in which each kernel was encased in a separate sheath or husk like wheat, teosinte represented, no doubt, a hard-fought survival and adaptation like that of the flowering violet. And when the Indians came into its environment it responded to care and cultivation in its new dooryard home.

Where teosinte had formerly relied upon the frosts to loosen up the ground for the seed, it found in the Indian a friend who crudely but effectively scratched the soil and doubled the chance for its baby plant to grow. Where it had been choked by plant enemies and starved for air and sunlight by weeds, it found in the Indian a friend who cut down and kept off its competitors. Where it had been destroyed by the animals before its maturity, it found the selfish protection of the savages as grateful as though it had been inspired by altruism.

Planted in patches, instead of struggling here and there as best it could before, the teosinte grass found its multiplication problem made easier through the multitude of pollen grains now floating through the air. And so, by slow degrees, it responded in its new environment by bearing more and larger seed. As the seed kernels increased in numbers and in size, the cob that bore them grew in length. From two, the rows of kernels increased to four, to six, to eight, to fourteen.

Here again the selfish motives of the savages served to help the plant in its adaptation—for only the largest ears and those with the best kernels were saved for seed. So, under cultivation, the wild grass almost disappeared, and in its place there came, through adaptation, the transformed Indian corn.

This, in brief, summarizes Mr. Burbank's theory of the original evolution of teosinte into corn. How many centuries were required to bring about the evolution scientists can only conjecture, for when the white settlers came to North America they found not the tiny wild teosinte, but Indian corn or maize, bearing eight-inch ears with 14 rows of improved kernels to the ear—Nature's response to the simple, plant-breeding methods of the savage.

It is not even known how long the Indians had been cultivating this improved corn. That it was long before the appearance of Europeans, however, is evident not only from its early and widespread cultivation by tribes of North American Indians, but from the fact that indications of its cultivation are found in mounds and in the ancient pueblo ruins and cliff dwellings.

It must be remembered, too, that between the original wild grass and the corn which the white men found the Indians cultivating here, there was undoubtedly a very long period of the so-called "pod" corn, in which each kernel was enclosed in a sheath. When it is considered that the elimination of this sheath in itself unquestionably required many centuries, some idea may be gained of the probable total length of time necessary to develop teosinte into the perfected ear of corn.

It was Nature's scheme of producing variations—her apparently unalterable will to create no duplicates—that opened up to Mr. Burbank his opportunity to carry forward the evolution of teosinte into corn in a comparatively few seasons. In his experiments with the plant he produced more than 10,000 specimens on his grounds. Among these thousands he found some which were an improvement over the parent plants. It was then simply a matter of continued and intensive application of scientific methods of selection, from season to season, until the final result was achieved.

Teosinte has no rachis or cob like other grains, but one kernel is piled on the next below, and the kernels, when ripe, fall apart. By a gradual evolution a rachis and eventually a flat and later a round cob were developed, and this cob was finally covered with large, fat kernels. Teosinte seeds always have a flint-like, chitinous covering. But at the end of a few years Mr. Burbank found an occasional kernel that had emerged from its covering, and by breeding only these kernels, the chitinous covering in time became only a remnant at the base of the kernels and finally disappeared altogether. The ears of corn which he produced at the end of 18 years were equal in every respect to those which the Indians, with their unskilled efforts, had produced after many centuries of patient toil, and which they were cultivating at the time the white man first came to this country. To the white man are due the superior varieties of corn which are grown today.

During his experiments with teosinte Mr. Burbank not only changed the plant into corn, but incidentally produced one of the most productive fodder plants on earth, and extended the latitude in which it can be profitably grown nearly or quite a thousand miles farther north or south.

CARNATION a FLOWER of the FLESH

WHEN you pin a carnation in your buttonhole did you ever stop to think how closely related the name of this flower is to the words "carrion," "carnal," "carnivorous" and "carnival." The Romans called it "carnatio" because the only type of this flower they knew was flesh-colored and they got "carnatio" from "carnis," which meant flesh. History shows that the ancients knew this fragrant flesh-colored blossom long before Romulus and Remus were suckled by a she-wolf, which was long before temples topped the seven hills and walls encircled Rome.

It is believed that it first came into blossom in southern Europe. Theophrastus, who lived about 300 years before the Christian era and wrote a history of plants, described this flower as the Dianthus, which name was made from Dies, divine, and Anthus, flower, meaning of course a divine flower or the flower of the gods. Its fragrance was said to be especially pleasing to gods and goddesses. And this flower today belongs to the genus which botanists call Dianthus.

The Greeks later seem to have given a specific name to the flower, and called it Caryophyllus, and there is something interesting in that name. Caryon is the Greek word for nut and phyllon for leaf. The Greeks called the clove tree caryophyllus and then they called this flower caryophyllus because in its perfume there was a suggestion of cloves.

Early in the middle ages the gardeners of Holland, France and Italy broke up the original color of the carnation into its component parts, which were red and white, and produced red carnations and white carnations. They must have produced quite a number of varieties because Gerard, a literary authority on such matters, wrote in 1597: "To describe each new variety of carnation were to roll Sisyphus's stone or number the sands of the sea." As you probably know it was Sisyphus who was condemned by Pluto to roll a stone to the top of a hill, and the stone always fell back when the summit was reached. In the last half of the 19th century and the first two decades of the 20th, American florists have done more than all others in developing new varieties of this wonderful flower and there are more than 500 varieties of American creation.

The carnation was known in grandmother's garden as a pink. It was not so-called because of its color. In olden times women often scalloped the edge of dress goods and other fabrics for ornamentation. This process was called "pinking" and goods so treated were said to have been "pinked." "Pink" in that sense was related to the word "pinch." If you will look at the edge of a petal of a carnation you will see that it is "pinked," and for that reason some very old-time folk called the flower pink.

Just WHY Some LOVERS JILT

THE psychologist, or mind doctor, sees love as a disease or affection of the mind. Not a disease in the physically-destroying sense, but an obsession or overcrowding of ideas and emotions in one particular direction.

Most persons think that the "jilt" is a heartless flirt. As a fact, among many lovers who suddenly put a full stop to their love affairs, there are few of the callous type.

As a rule, psycho-analysts say, the "jilt" is often at a loss to know why he or she has ended without a word of warning the sweet association with another which should have reached its perfection in marriage.

All the lover knows is that love has unaccountably died, and that it is impossible to "carry on" in the old way any longer.

The abruptness and brutality of the break is caused by the fact that in his overwhelming distress and shame the jilt seeks refuge in utter silence. After all, what can he say? The only thing to be said to the jilted one is, "I can't marry you!" And by his silence this is all too painfully understood.

All the psycho-analyst can do is to explain to these lovers why they acted as they did, and remove from their harassed minds the idea that they are fit only for lunatic asylums.

When a person falls in love certain ideas and emotions form in the brain. Those emotions all centre round the object of attraction. As the love intensifies these ideas become "massed" as it were; they grow in strength, very often subduing whole parts of the lover's personality and obliterating even deeply-rooted principles. At certain stages of his passion he is certainly not himself.

The sudden reversion which completely wipes out the state of love and causes him to jilt his sweetheart may come from a variety of causes. What sometimes happens is similar to that which occurs when a seasoned toper suddenly takes to religion, or a man of fixed principles unaccountably changes his politics.

Some seemingly trivial incident sends its message to the deepest recesses of the mind and stirs into violent activity his store of hidden but sleepless memories. To put it in another way, the mental "haze" of love is dispelled and the mind is deluged with sanity.

The love that grows upon the rock of quiet friendship and mutual appreciation has nothing to fear.

How a Sculpture, 1900 Years Old, Was Identified by Its Thumb

WHAT archaeologists regard as one of the finest examples of ancient Roman sepulchral sculpture has just been presented to the British Museum by Mr. Ernest Dixon, a well-known landscape gardener of Putney, England.

Busts of a Roman Miller, His Wife and Daughter, Who Lived Between 25 B. C. and 25 A. D., Identified After Lying in a London Yard for Fifty Years.

He bought it from a contractor in St. John's Wood, in whose yard it had lain unrecognized for at least 50 years. Struck by its beauty, Mr. Dixon consulted the British Museum experts, and they identified it as a long-lost work first reported by Bianchini of Verona, who was copying Roman inscriptions between 1706 and 1715. This sculpture was probably excavated near the Porta Capena at Rome about the year 1700. Its existence was recorded by several copyists during the 18th century, the last to note it being George Zoega, who lived at Rome from 1784 to 1809. After that it disappeared, and was doubtless acquired and brought to England by some traveler. It is now among the Roman antiquities in the British Museum.

The curious adventures of this remarkably interesting work are told briefly by a writer in The Illustrated London News. The sculpture is over five feet long and nearly two feet wide, with three busts set in a deep panel. As the inscription shows, it was a monument to one Lucius Ampudius Philomusus, and the portraits represent him (in the centre) with his wife and daughter. Ampudius appears as a shrewd-looking old man with thin, compressed lips. A notable feature is his right thumb, which has a marked backward bend like that of a miller, due to the constant habit of using it to spread samples of meal over his palm. The theory that Ampudius was a miller or corn merchant is also supported by the fact that at each end of the monument is a carving of a Roman corn measure.

Prof. A. H. Smith, keeper of Greek and Roman antiquities at the British Museum, states that the relief is not part of a sarcophagus, but a slab, originally built into the wall of a tomb. The fact that the back has been worn by long use suggests that, in the Middle Ages, it was placed face downward in the earth to form a paving stone. Where the marble is thinnest, it has been broken through, and the existence of the sculpture may have been thus discovered.

Why Baby Says "Ma"

IT is commonly believed that a baby, when growing up and learning to talk, speaks the words "ma" and "da" through constantly hearing these uttered by others. This idea, however, is upset by certain students of languages, who advance a totally different theory.

In most languages, "ma" is generally the first syllable spoken by a child, according to linguists. It is the root of the word "mother." As a baby opens its mouth and then exhales breath it is quite possible that it makes this exclamation unconsciously.

Some persons believe that there is no such thing as a "natural" tongue to the world; for, they say, if all babies over 1 year old were caused to become deaf and dumb, they would be obliged to go through the identical slow process of inventing and evolving a tongue as man was compelled to do in days gone by.

An ancient King of Egypt, Psammeticus, placed two children among a herd of goats on one occasion. They were never allowed to hear a human voice, yet, after two years, the children were able to say the word "bekos," which meant bread. The king's conclusion, naturally, was that his people were the first in the world and their tongue the only true one.

How HIGH COST of BLINDNESS Can Be Reduced

IT is estimated that the total annual expense of the blind to Uncle Sam approximates $31,000,000, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association. There are 70,000 blind persons in the United States. Of this number 41,000 are absolutely dependent on others for support. Apart from the economic loss caused by the removal of productive workers from the wage-earning class, there is added a financial burden in direct interest of the blind.

A large item is the maintenance of special schools for blind children. It takes far more to educate the blind than the normal child. Including the expense of institutions, library facilities, and teaching, the amount soon approaches millions. Considering every phase of the question of blindness it is estimated that the total annual expense of the blind to the country approximates $31,000,000.

Fifteen million dollars can be saved annually by the united efforts of education to avoid the needless accidental cases of blindness in the industries, the prevention of lost vision caused by babies' sore eyes, measles, ulcers of the eyes, scarlet fever, trachoma, occupational diseases, wood alcohol poisoning, excessive use of alcohol and tobacco and uncorrected visual defects.

Coffee Sorted by Light

COFFEE BEANS are sorted both according to size and color, but the latter is the more important of the processes. This machine's operation is based on a well-known property of selenium, namely, that this element's electric conductivity is increased in the presence of light.

With the new device the beans are carried by a conveyor under a selenium cell. As the light-hued beans reflect more light against the cell than the others, additional current is transmitted through it, which actuates a deflecting needle. This in turn operates a device that diverts the light-colored beans into a separate channel.

If the speed of the machine and its first cost make it more economical than hand sorting, the same principle may be used in sorting grains, tobacco and other products.

Electric LIGHTS to "WINK" the Correct TIME

A DIMMING of electric lights each night at 8 o'clock as a national time signal is being urged as a measure that will distribute the correct time regularly to all who are within sight of an electric light.

In the same way that the time ball is dropped down the staff at noon and clocks are regulated by telegraphic or radio signals from the naval observatory in Washington, it is suggested that power plants regularly flash the correct time daily over their electric systems.

This idea is actually working in Uruguay, according to James H. Collins, who explains the idea, in a jewellers' circular issued recently. In that country, the lights are dimmed for about one second at 8 P. M.

"Electrical engineers say that the idea might be applied immediately in many small communities where the amount of electric current will not call for great lowering of voltage to communicate the flash," says Mr. Collins. "In the larger cities, where immense power loads are also carried on circuits that furnish lighting current, the technical difficulties may be great."

It is pointed out that a national electrical time signal would call attention to the inaccuracies of the clocks and watches in the average community, which vary five minutes at the least.

FOOD from Old BONES

BONES are not wasted. The chief product is glue, and among other materials which are obtained from them are soap, glycerine and fertilizers. After being carefully separated by workmen they are soaked in a weak solution of sulphuric acid. From the soaking tanks the bones emerge white and perfectly clean.

They are then placed in steam tanks, where, after being subjected to a pressure of steam for several hours, a trap-door is opened at the bottom of the digester, as it is called, and the liquid glue that has been extracted is drawn off. The liquid glue is partly evaporated and a portion is allowed to harden for commercial use as glue, and a part is refined and sold for gelatine for table use.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE AS MODERN EVE IN "MAMMA'S AFFAIR."

Pleasurable anticipation greets the announcement that "Mamma's Affair," presented by Joseph M. Schenck, and released by Associated First National, will be seen at the Allen Theatre last time to-day.

The always engaging Constance Talmadge carries off the stellar honors. It is the screen version of Rachel Barton Butler's Harvard University prize play, which enjoyed a Broadway success last season.

The director, Victor Fleming, has succeeded, it is said, in making it even more pleasing than when presented as a stage play.

The sparkling lines which gave the play such vogue are preserved in the titles while the screen version, perhaps because the camera gives even wider scope to the scenes of merriment, is even more replete with laughs than the play. It is a fittingly chosen starring vehicle for the dainty commedienne.

Miss Talmadge is said no only to repeat her former triumphs, but to ascend to new heights in her interpretation of the role of Eve.

The cast is carefully chosen and deserves mention. Kenneth Harlan, who is Miss Talmadge's leading man, plays the part of Doctor Harmon, Effie Shannon essays the role of Mrs. Orrin, the mother of Eve, Katherine Kaelred interprets the character of Mrs. Marchant, the sycophantic friend of Mrs. Orrin, George Le Guère appears as Henry Marchant, her son, and affianced husband of Eve, while Gertrude Le Brandt is "Bundy," Mrs. Orrin's confidential maid.

THE MAUDE ADAMS OF THE FILMS.

Mae Marsh, who plays the leading role of the Girl in the modern story of "Intolerance," D. W. Griffith's latest spectacle which will appear at the Allen Theatre, commencing Monday, is known all over the country as the Maude Adams of the films. She has also been called the girl with a thousand faces. She has played tomboys and heroines, consumptive girls and athletic girls. She has been the slavey and she has been the princess. The first picture in which she appeared was "The Sands O'Dee"; the initial role to bring her prominently into the limelight was that of Apple Mary in Griffith's "Home, Sweet Home."

At twenty there is not much to one's biography. Mae Marsh was born in Madrid, New Mexico. Her father was an auditor of the Santa Fe Railroad, and she has lived in many places. She was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent in San Francisco, and she was a schoolgirl there during the great fire. After that her family moved to Los Angeles. Year by year she has grown, under the direction of Mr. Griffith, from a player of childish parts to the leading emotional actress of the screen. With the many millions who saw her play the role of Flora Cameron in "The Birth of a Nation," her popularity seemed unbounded, but in her latest role she has won still greater triumphs.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The feature picture presentation for Monday will be "The Woman God Changed" a super special seven reel production also two big double acts of vaudeville: Healy and Williams presenting "The Pit Boys" Ackland and Mae Comedy singing, talking and dancing.

HARD WORK IS PRICE OF SUCCESS SAYS SEENA OWEN

Leading Women of "The Woman God Changed" Tells How She Made First Hit.

A wide-eyed, winsome blond girl faced D. W. Griffith not so long ago, and asked for a try-out on the screen.

"Oh, you'll never do for the screen," that director said, "you are too calm and have no emotions apparently."

Well, Mr. Griffith," answered Seena Owen, bravely, "if you think I'm calm you just ought to see the way my heart's fluttering for I am scared to death you won't take me."

And that was the winning card, for it was ample evidence of emacting quality. This same quality has been developed consistently in each of that pretty young woman's screen appearances, until it has reached its zenith in her latest undertaking, the leading role of Cosmopolitan's new production, "The Woman God Changed", which will be shown at the Capitol Thetatre next Monday.

"Of course, there are many ways to get on the screen," Miss Owen averred one morning on the studio floor, still breathless from the exertion of one of her big scenes, "but there is only one way to stay. I mean hard work mental and physical. Work while you're on the set, whether in a small part or an extra role. Watch your director. Study his every purpose. When you're not in the scene don't go and take a nap or a bit to eat, but sit as close up as possible and keep your eyes and ears open and your brain operating There is always more, and yet more, to be learned about the film game for everyone in it."

E. K Lincoln, a well-known player is leading man in 'The Woman God Changed." The support is excellent.

AT THE REGENT.

STRONG HEART APPEAL IN COMING MYERS FILM

Carmel Myers has a role to which she is admirably suited in "Cheated Love," the Universal photodrama which comes to the Regent Theatre on Monday.

The star appears as a little immigrant from Russia. She arrives at Ellis Island, the human clearing house in New York harbor, and joins her father in the ghetto, where she works, lives and loves.

In no other one of her many successful screen plays has Miss Myers had such a congenial role. The star is of Jewish birth and has a deep understanding of the self-sacrificing qualities which animate those of her race through life.

King Baggot, star, director and writer, directed "Cheated Love" at Universal City from the original story and scenario by Lucien Hubbard and Doris Schroeder.

An excellent cast was assembled for the production, including George B. Williams, Allan Forrest, John Davidson, Ed. Brady, Snitz Edwards, "Smoke" Turner, V. A. Harris, Inez Gomez, Clara Greenwood, Myer Ouhayoun, Laura Pollard, Theresa Gray, Fred G. Beker and Mme. Rose Dione, the noted Parision dramatic star.

The wrecking of an east side theatre by a terrific explosion, a tangled love-interest, an interesting analysis of human character, humorous touches in unexpected places and tense, powerful situations make "Cheated Love" one of the big screen dramas of the year.

PRE-WAR PRICES FOR "CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The popular dollar production which had almost disappeared from the ranks of the reliable shows, is beginning to make its appearance again this season, and well in the vanguard is "Charley's Aunt," that sure fire comedy which will appear at the Grand to-night. William C. Grew, the producer, has spared nothing to embellish the play with proper environments. A new and effective scenic production is carried, and an excellent cast of players, headed by James W. Swift, who ranks among the coming comedians of note, has been secured.

"SOME GIRL,"

First Musical Comedy this Season—Original Production Promised Here

With a fairy fable flavor, romantic enough and enchanting enough to fit in the tales of "Grimm's," with musical jingles to accompany it, of deliciously lingering themes, and with its endless succession of fresh, clean, crackling, comedy situations, to ward against any possible threatening moment of serious contemplation, "Some Girl" comes as near of being a genuine messenger of happiness as any musical comedy yet sent forth.

The presentation here, at the Grand Opera House, next Saturday, matinee and evening, Oct. 15th, of this much heralded entertainment, is promised to be the same as that of its New York premier last season—this being a further innovation of its producers, the Messrs. LeComte and Flesher, who believe the folks a little way from Broadway are just as impressible by good acting, and just as willing to pay for it, as are those of the famed "white way." That oringinal production, embracing five spectacularly elaborate scene settings, is carried in special baggage cars, and the entire personnel of its excellent cast and "sun-goddess" chorus beauties will revel and romp and sing and dance amidst the same lavish surroundings on the local stage that they have since the opening night.

UNDER THE SPOTLIGHT.

Were it the purpose of this column to review the Shows of the past week it would give me much pleasure to descant upon the individual merits of the "Rex Players." The popularitty of the Company seems to increase constantly and the audiences are representative of the Cosmopolitan character of our progressive city. Among the large crowds thronging the lobby of the Grand are representatives of many nationalities—they may read the advertisements of the current and next attractions in several languages and so human is the fun-making of Rex and his charming wife, that every member of the audience goes away satisfied whether he understood English perfectly or not. Our Oriental patrons are so pleased with the poster in Chinese that I regret very much that a slight delay prevented the display of similar bills in their language.

One of the most interesting chippings that I have read about Mr. Snelgrove tells of an incident that happened at Sault Ste. Marie last summer. A billposter was engaged in the pursuit which looks so easy to children and which might result disastrously to the novice if attempted without previous experience, when a limousine drew softly up to the curb. A smartly dressed young man, with an alert carriage jumped out, walked up to the man and said, "Look here, my man, you're not getting those bills up right—let me show you how to do this job." A disgruntled, disgusted look came over the fact of the workman, but unheeding the stranger donned a pair of working overalls, grabbed the paste bucket and brush proceeding at once to post the bills with great expedition. Naturally a large crowd gathered, many favourable remarks were passed as to the professional manner in which the "toff" worked and when he slipped out of his overalls he had great difficulty in escaping from the throng of admirers who gathered about the street. Starting his car the crowd caught a last glimpse of the smiling debonair young gentleman through the windows of the limousine apparently unconscious of the attention he had attracted. Would it surprise you very much to hear that the smiling young man was Rex Snelgrove, and the chance meeting was in reality the filming of a moving picture for advertising purposes. It was a clever scheme and proved that it certainly "pays to advertise."

Rex has another sensational escapade in his young life. At least he carries modesty almost to the point of self elimination and unless one picked up every scrap of information and begged some more from his charming wife, he would be the despair of interviewers. It is a good fault however so that the bits that do filter through, are genuine and all the more interesting.

The afore mentioned escapade is not precisely what that word means, I made an unfortunate choice of language. I should have said that he figured in a drowning rescue and played the hero role as capably in real life as he portrays it upon the stage. Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove have a summer home at Shawano Lake in Michigan. A woman in swimming was suddenly seen to disappear beneath the surface of the water—then cries and shrieks were heard and Rex, who was enjoying an afternoon nap, was instantly on the alert. Dressed and all he dashed nto the lake, drew the still struggling woman ashore and called his wife to render first aid.

"The Lion and the Mouse" is the bill announced for next Monday Tuesday and Wednesday. It is one of the best plays ever written and produced on the American stage. Taking its title and theme from the old fable of the same name, the idea of the mouse gnawing at a thick rope, finally wearing it through when the teeth of a powerful lion failed to do so, is applied to the methods used by a young inexperienced girl to save her father from the ruthless, heartless business methods of her employer.

The role of the Lion (Mr. John Burkett Ryder) was made famous by Edmund Bdeese whom the author had in mind when writing the play. The other day, I heard a man who had seen Rex in the part, say that he considered his interpretation a wonderful bit of acting. The two men have totally different conceptions of the character and we are promised a great treat. Miss Vaughn plays the Secretary, Shirley Rosmore. She handles the difficult work in a fashion which suits the most critical audiences. Her reserve force and gradual working up to a climax in the denunciation turns the tables upon the millionaire bully, provide a thrill which runs through the entire house.

Miss Surtees in French Leave is most anxious to play in Peterborough. Although an all-English cast, many have had American and Canadian experience—they particularly like Peterborough with its up-to-date modern business houses and good hotels. Miss Surtees is looking forward to her first visit here because she knows that comfortable billets await her. Travelling in America for a leading woman of a first class show is very different from accommodations in England. Miss Surtees is charmed with Canada and Canadians but she finds one night stands a little trying. And the jumps are so long! Very often there is a whole day's journey between cities and in order to rest, it is sometimes necessary to sleep en route, even in daytime.

During the course of our conversation, I learned much concerning the real live interest an actress has in her work and the pride she feels in living up to her reputation and to her own standard of efficiency. It seemed to me that she quite underestimated her ability. I told her how popular she was with the public, how her voice with the soft English modulation we love so much, appealed to a cultured, representative audience, and she said, "Oh, you must thank the playwright for my success. I love the part but the secret is in the lines themselves! They are so clever that Juliette has only to exercise the ordinary privileges of her sex and everyone falls in love with her. Do you blame me for being in love with the role?" It is nice to come away from a play feeling better for the performance, to hear words of praise and commendation on all sides, so anyone who goes to "French Leave," may be prepared to enjoy a first class performance—a Comedy of the cleverest variety.—

A BOOST FOR THE PETERBOROUGH AMATEUR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The new sporting organization in the city, the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, has received the following letter from Mr. W. Duncan, secretary Spalding Leagues, relative to the visit of the Toronto juvenile team here last Saturday. The Association is to be congratulated on so soon after its organization handling the affairs in hands in such a manner as to be the recipient of such a letter as this:

Just a few lines to thank you and your associates, also the banker's juvenile team and the public in general in Peterborough for all the kindnesses shown my boys when we visited your town Saturday. I am sure that we could never have wished for anything nicer with regards to arrangements and we are only too sorry that we could not reciprocate in some way or other.

However, every athletic team, or association in this city are well aware of the fact that they are always given a cordial reception in Peterborough, and I am sure that this is a whole lot to your association's credit.

I have written both "The Star Weekly" and the "Sunday World" a little boost for the town of Peterborough, and I believe that it will be printed for this Sunday's edition, and if so I will send you a copy of same to your home address.

Again thanking your association and yourself and all those that tried to make our visit comfortable, I am,

Yours truly,
W. DUNCAN,
Sec. Spalding Leagues.

SPORT COMMENT

St. Mary's Alerts deserve all the honors that go with the Intermediate championship of the O.A.L.A. The stone-town club played a team of home-brews who went through the season without a black mark against them. In the final with Sudbury three penalties were imposed, but Alerts drew a blank. The Oshawans lost their chance of winning first honors by spending too much time off the field. One of their star performers was handed a penalty of fifteen minutes.

Only once before in the hectic history of professional baseball has a world's series been confined exclusively to one city. That was fifteen years ago. In 1906 the Chicago Cubs won the National League pennant and the Chicago White Sox took the honors in the American League. That fall they engaged in one of the bitterest struggles on record.

Alex. Kay called one at Picton that surprised many of the willow-wielders. It was a case of the batter bunting the third strike, and sending forth a short fly. The players figured the decision should have been out against the batter, first and second bases being then occupied. But the "infield fly" rules does not apply when the batter bunts the third strike and sends up an infield fly.

Doug. Loomis and Charlie Thorpe will have a nice bunch of runners to answer the starters in the foot races this fall. The youngsters are turning out well, and in the preliminary jaunts, some good material is being uncovered.

Lakefield promises to produce Joe Sabatino, of last season's local juniors, on their Intermediate O. H. A. team this winter.

"Well, you won't have to move very fast to improve over last winter's performance in the O.H.A." is the greeting the P.A.A.A. membership campaigners are getting these days. It will be much better.

And in the big drive now in progress, the workers are very much alive to the fact that the women have the vote—also the cash, and all kinds of enthusiasm. One of the campaign managers, operating at the Quaker Oats plant, has secured several members for the association, from the ranks of the typewriter squad.

CORNER OF KING AND GEORGE STREETS

PLEASANT EVENING AT KING EDWARD SCHOOL

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION ENTERTAIN---ACCEPTABLE MUSICAL PROGRAMME.

The King Edward Home and School Association held a very enjoyable social evening last night, when certificates were presented to the Entrance pupils of the school. Mr. G. A. Mattice, the principal who acted as chairman, and presented the certificates, made a very apt little speech, congratulating the pupils on their excellent work and pointing out that, of the number who were successful in passing their Entrance examinations, eight were taken directly from the senior third classes, one of these, Alex. Denoon, being hardly 12 years of age. Mr. Mattice also made a few remarks on the question of an industrial school in Peterboro, which he regarded as being a real necessity in a city of the industrial class like Peterboro.

A pleasing musical programme was provided by a vocal solo by Miss Young, a piano solo by Miss Mary Wood, a reading by Miss Herridge, and a violin solo by Miss Kathie Taylor. Miss Letitia Elliott acted as accompanist for the evening.

After the presentation of certificates, a pleasant social hour was spent and refreshmnets were served by the members of the Home and School Association.

CERTIFICATES FOR SUCCESSFUL PUPILS

Home and School Association Present Entrance Certificates

The Home and School Association of the King George School held their meeting for the fall term last evening, when certificates were presented to successful Entrance pupils of the school. The Association of this school always make a point of providing excellent entertainments at their meetings, but last night's programme surpassed their usual fine standard in the exceptional nature of the talent offered. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Maurice Park, and a splendid duet by Mr. and Mrs. Park. Mr. John Ball, formerly of New York, gave a fine solo which was enthusiastically encored. Miss Myrtle Succee sang in excellent voice and Miss Moore contributed two well-received piano selections.

Addresses were given by Mr. A. Mowat, by Judge Huycke, who congratulated the ladies warmly on the exceptional programme, and by Capt. Maurive Park who made the presentation of certificates. Rev. Mr. Bousfield, pastor of St. Luke's Church, at the conclusion of the programme, moved a vote of thanks to the artistes and to the Home and School Association for their excellent work in Ashburnham which was seconded by Mr. T. Glover, and refreshments were served by the committee of ladies in charge.

Successful pupils of the school at the Entrance Examinations were as follows: Norman Woods, Edna Woods, Madeline Wheeled, Helen Throop, Edith Steele Marion Running Cleveland Robb, Max Pomeroy, Lahring Farsons Howard Pammett Alex. Morrison, Milton Mesley Mabel Hawkes, Joseph Grierson Mary Grierson, Arthur Ebbs Beatrice Castle, Leslie Calladine William Bathgate, Grace Agnew and Percy Adamson

TRIP UP THE TRENT CANAL

W. H. Snider, D.D.S. writes a story of a trip up the Trent Canal in this month's Rod and Gun in Canada that is of local interest. From 1890 to 1900 the writer camped at the Lake Ontario end of the canal and for the last 15 years has been camping on Georgian Bay. During these year he had always dreamed he says of making a complete trip through the canal but his dream did not materialize till this summer.

"Accompanied by my son in our boat "B.E.E." and Mr. John Holmes and Mr. John B. Durham in their boat the "Idlewild" we left Buffalo on July 26th, following the Niagara and Chippewa rivers to the Welland Canal" he writes. "Here we were held up for nearly two days because of a broken lock. Having finally passed through the Welland Canal we followed the shore of Lake Ontario to Olcott, a distance of thirty miles. At Olcott we were delayed for thirty-six hours due to a storm so had plenty of time to enjoy the entertainment which this up-to-date summer resort supplied. The storm having subsided we sailed north across Lake Ontario under convoy of my friend Mr. E. Hedley who operates a 45-foot cruiser the Alberta, of Olcott, arriving near Oshawa. From here we followed the north shore rounding Presquil Point through the Murray Canal and the Bay of Quinte to Trenton."

"In former days while camping along this section I used to wonder how much of a fall the Trent river had from Frankfort to Trenton, a distance of seven and one-half miles. This is now accurately determined. There are six locks with a lift of one hundred and nineteen feet, 20 years have wrought many changes in Frankfort, not so noticeable to those who have remained there but very apparent to one who has been away and has returned."

"On the morning of August 2nd we were ready to continue to the end of the long-wished-for trip through the Trent Canal. During the first ten miles we were still in familiar ground. After that the territory through which we passed was known to us only geographically. The trip proved most interesting.

Words fail me to describe the picturesqueness and beauty of this interesting waterway as each turn of the wheel brought a fresh panorama into view. The route consists of the Trent, the Otonabee, the Talbot and the Severn rivers and a chain of lakes including the group known as the Kawartha Lakes, Kawartha is an Indian word signifying "Bright waters and happy lands" which proves to one who has seen these lakes that the Indian vocabulary is very expressive.

The summit lake of this group-Balsam Lake is 830 feet above sea level and 600 feet above Lake Ontario. It would probably be interesting to describe the rest of this enchanting group, Cameron, Sturgeon Pigeon, Buckhorn, Lovesick, Stony Clear, Katchewanooka and Rice would space permit. In passing I will simply mention that Stoney Lake with its many islands 880 in number, I am told—surpasses in attractiveness the Thousand Islands.

"Passing through the canal from Balsam Lake," writes Dr. Snider, "a distance of 19 miles, you reach Lake Simcoe. Having crossed the divide you are now entering a gradual decline of 300 feet to Georgian Bay. Crossing the eastern end of Lake Simcoe a distance of 22 miles you pass through the "Gap" into Lake Couchiching from there through Washago into the beautiful Severn river, were the natural conditions are still of a somewhat primeval character. After passing through Sparrow Lake with its fine summer resorts and cottages, you again enter the Severn river and after passing over two marine railways you enter Gloucester Pool then Severn Lake and through a lock into Georgian Bay."

"There are 44 locks and two marine railways on the route. These include two lift locks—one at Peterborough with a lift of 65 feet—the other at Kirkfield, with a lift of 50 feet.

"The entire trip can be made in the utmost comfort progressive towns being continually passed and there being hardly a spot along the entire route that does not afford good solid ground for camping as long as fancy may please. I am wondering as I write this, if the Canadian people are alive to the possibilities of the finest motor boat trips on the American continent".

In closing his article Dr. Snider pays tribute to the courtesy of officials alog the route and the kindness of Chief of Police Newhall of this city, in showing him places of interest in Peterboro.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OF RADICALISM MOOTED BY REDS

MONTREAL LABOR COLLEGE PORPOSES INSTILLING RED TEACHINGS IN YOUNG.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—A radical Sunday school, where children may be instructed in the principles of the Communist movement is the latest proposal of the management of the Montreal Labor College. Steps are now being taken to establish under the auspices of this institution which has, so far, confined itself to work among adults, a story hour for Montreal youngsters where they may learn the economic lessons of history as interpreted by local radicals and may have instilled into them, at a most impressionable age, the social teachings of the new movement.

At the present time there are said to be no revolutionary classes for juniors in Montreal to correspond with the proletarian schools in New York and Glasgow. The only class established here along this line about three years ago, proved short-lived and heretofore no effort has been made by local Reds to revive it. Of late it has been whispered, however, that in several private homes of the city curious modern Sunday schools were being held and that the small groups of little ones gathered together weekly to learn by heart the high sounding platitudes of the revolutionary catechism and recite with fervor the revolutionary creed.

The catechism, which has been compiled and printed in New York is an adoption of the Marxian doctrine for little beginners and deals with the relation of Capital and Labour instead of that of God and man. A substitute for the adoption of the Orthodox school is also included. The mother of the child takes a seat in the centre of the room and a number of little boys and girls lay flowers on the baby while the present given the name and bids the child welcome. This is followed by Bruce Glazier's hymn, "Here we gather in a ring."

A FAIR GUESSING CONTEST.

Pleasant Surprise For Those Who Won Suits and Overcoats Given By the Regent Tailors.

One of the most honorably conducted guessing contests that has come under our observation was that held by the Regent Tailors at their booth at the Toronto Exhibition, during which they offered a suit or an overcoat to the person in each of the districts where they have a branch store who estimated the nearest to the correct number of paid admissions to the big Fair. The lucky winner in each case was greatly surprised and pleased when the names appeared in the Regent Tailors' advertisement last week. It was at once apparent that the contest had been conducted in an absolutely fair way that was beyond criticism.

In England, an attractive automobile is sold, built on racing lines with long and impressive hood, which houses merely the passenger's feet, the motive power coming from a motorcycle engine at the rear.

WEDDING BELLS

HALL—MORRISON.

A quiet wedding, at which only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present, took place at 1.30 to-day, at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Morrison, 452 Hunter street, when Madelene Alberta, their eldest daughter, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Wilfrid Hall, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall, 13 Water street.

The ceremony, performed by Rev. F. E. Malott, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, took place in the living room, beautifully banked and decorated for the occasion with palms, ferns and floral decorations of snapdragon, gladioli, scabiosa and galliardia. The young couple were unattended.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a smart suit of mohawk velours, trimmed with kolinsky, and black panne velvet hat. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids and lilies of the valley, and she wore the groom's gift, a diamond bar pin.

Mr. George H. King played the wedding march and Miss Florence Scott rendered a sweet vocal solo, "All Mine Alone."

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served in the dining-room, where marigolds and chrysanthemums formed the bright decorations—Mrs. M. A. Morrison in a handsome costume of champagne georgette and blue figured ninon, and Mrs. Richard Hall in black kittens' ear crepe, trimmed with chantilly lace and wearing a black velvet hat, acting as hostesses. The library table was attractively arranged with autumn leaves and glowing salvia blossoms.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall departed later by motor for a short honeymoon. They will reside in Peterborough.

The bride, who has a large circle of friends and acquaintances, was the recipient of numerous, costly and beautiful gifts.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hall, all of Toronto

"Y" CAMPERS HELD RE-UNION

Te Y.W.C.A. Campers held their first re-union for the season in the gymnasium of the Y.W.C.A. last evening. There was a good attendance, considering the bad weather, and the girls created much merriment by their impersonations in costume of small boys and girls. They brought teddy bears, dolls, and go-carts with them, played children's games, blew soap bubbles danced and sang, and had a thoroughly enjoyable time, at the conclusion of which refreshments were served.

A short business meeting closed the evening, at which the nominating committee was appointed to report at the next meeting as to the officers elected for the Campers' League for the coming season. The committee is composed of Miss Agnes Horsefield, convenor, and the Misses Margaret Eastwood, Mabel Young, Grace Evans and Josephine McGill.

EPWORTH LEAGUE OFFICERS ELECTED

MORNING SESSION OF CONVENTION MAINLY OCCUPIED WITH SHORT ADDRESSES.

This morning's session of the Epworth League Convention, presided over by Mr. E. H. Brown, of Port Hope, was occupied mainly with short addresses by different speakers on the work of the Citizenship Department, which includes the consideration of such subjects as disarmament, Canadianisation of immigrants, stimulation of patriotism, etc.

Mr. C. H. Conquergood, of Toronto, spoke at some length on this subject, making suggestions for a closer co-operation in the work, prophesying for the Epworth League in the near future one of the biggest advances in its history. He made rather an interesting announcement in the form of a projected opening of a winter school in Toronto, to take the place of a summer school, which many young people who are engaged in agricultural work are unable to attend, and the delegation decided to co-operate with the Toronto Conference in this work.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

TORONTO.

TORONTO, October 8 (Canadian Press). — The closing session of the week on the local stock exchange was quiet, but with a firm undertone. Trading in 1923 Victory Loans was heavy, over $100,000 coming out at prices ranging from unchanged to 35 cents over yesterday's quotations.

WALL STREET.

NEW YRK, October 8 (Canadian Press). — Few changes of note occurred at the irregular opening of to-day's stock market. Mexican Petroleum was the only prominent stock to reflect further pressure, losing one point. Royal Dutch, Houston Oil, Kelly-Springfield Tire, White Motor, and several of the cheaper rails were higher by fractions to one point. Virginia Iron, Coal, and Coke led the specialties at a two-point rise. Liberty second, third, and fourth 4 1-4's made new high records for the year on early gains of 20 to 50 points.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, October 8 (Canadian Press). — The local stock exchange experienced an unusually dull session during the early trading this morning, and only one of the leaders appeared, this being Brompton, which weakened an eighth of a point for 20 3-8.

A Permanent Scowl is certainly much more disfiguring than any kind of glasses.
Yet some people who are suffering from eye-strain put off attending to their eyes, for fear they will have to wear glasses. Meantime the scowl grows deeper.

Chiropractic and Epilepsy

Epilepsy is primarily a disturbance of the Nervous System—the typical Epileptic seizure being the result of a series of Nerve Irritations, which may be either peripheral or central. Broadly speaking, it is divided into two classes: Grand Mal, in which there is a loss of consciousness, with tonic and clonic convulsions, frothing at the mouth, etc. Petite Mal, in which there is only momentary loss of consciousness, with vertigo or mental confusion, but no convulsions. It is a condition which gets progressively worse without proper treatment. Medication has admittedly no relief to offer, the giving of Bromides having merely a sedative effect on the Nerves, and in no way reaching the cause.

Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments relieves nerve trunks of irritations from pressure, equalises nerve and blood supply, and produces proper elimination of waste products, thus preventing the accumulation of the irritating causes which produces the seizure.

Permanent relief is the result in many cases, after a thorough course of Chiropractic Adjustment.

Chiropractic Brightens the Road through the Gateway of Health, on to the City of Happiness and Efficiency. The person who is Healthy is capable of withstanding the strain of duty, and can carry on life's work with that degree of "pep" and enthusiasm which invariably leads to success.

"Will Chiropractic Adjustments Help ME?"

Scarcely a day goes by but what we are asked this question. It is easy for the conscientious practitioner to realize something of the pathos expressed in these few words by those who have been in ill-health for years, and who have sought relief without avail until hope is abandoned and dark despair enshrouds the remaining years of life. To each and all such inquiries, we honestly say:

"Chiropractic is not magic. It is not infallible. It makes no pretence of restoring life when the divine spark has vanished, and what applies to the body as a whole is equally applicable to any of its several parts. If a cell is dead, no power known to man can resurrect it any more than it is possible to substitute a wooden leg with a new one of flesh and blood, but with that reservation, Chiropractic Adjustments can restore Vitality and Health to many persons whose afflictions were thought to be beyond help.

YANKS DEFEAT GIANTS BY SCORE OF 3 TO 1; HUGGINS' MEN COME FROM BEHIND IN FOURTH

HOYT AND NEHF AGAIN ENGAGE IN DUEL ON MOUND, NEHF GOING TO PIECES IN THE THIRD, BUT RALLYING AGAIN—GIANTS DRAW FIRST BLOOD AND YANKS COME FROM BEHIND IN FOURTH—RUTH FAINTS ON BENCH BUT RETURNS TO GAME.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 10.—The Yanks broke the two-two tie in the World's Series with the Giants here this afternoon, winning by 3 to 1. Waite Hoyt, the youngster who whitewashed the National Leaguers Thursday, again faced Nehf on the mound, and although he was hit fairly freely in the first three innings, he tightened up in the fourth and held the McGraw stick-handlers to 4 hits after the fourth. He was touched for 10 hits, however, while the Yanks secured only six from Nehf.

Babe Ruth fanned three times and hit one single. He fainted on the bench in the fourth, but returned to the game. The abscess on his left arm is troubling him.

The Giants drew first blood in the first innings, but the Yanks evened the score in the third and added two runs in the fourth.

THE LINE-UP.

Giants—Burns safe at first on a fumble by McNally. Bancroft kicked about the ball and Rigler went out and looked at it, but he overruled the objection. Bancroft forced Burns. Peck to Ward. Frisch singled off Hoyt's glove on the first ball, Bancroft stopping at second. Young asked to see the ball, and Rigler threw it out. Young walked, filling the bases. (Quinn warming up in the bull pen). Kelly singled to centre, scoring Bancroft, Frisch stopping at third. E. Meusel fanned with his bat on his shoulder. Rawlings forced Kelly, Peck to Ward. One run, two hits, one error.

Second Innings.

Yanks—Meusel singled in front of young. Pipp sacrificed, Frisch to Kelly, R. Meusel stopping at second. Ward fanned, and R. Meusel was out at the plate, Frisch to Snyder. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Smith lined to Miller on the first ball pitched. Nehf flied to Ruth, who hardly moved for the catch. Burns singled on an infield bunt. Bancroft singled sharply to right, Burns reaching third. Hoyt out, Bancroft to Kelly. Miller flied to E. Meusel, McNally scoring on the play, and Schang reaching third. Peck out, Kelly unassisted. One run, one hit, no errors.

Nehf went all to pieces in this innings, and was batted unmercifully. Burns' leaping catch of McNally's fly cut down a possible triple.

Giants—Frisch safe at first on an infield single off Ward's glove. Young forced Frisch, McNally to Ward. Kelly fanned, looking at the third. Meusel doubled to left, Young putting up at third. Rawlings fouled to McNally. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Yanks—Ruth singled on a bunt, the first ball pitched. R. Meusel smashed to left for a double, scoring Ruth. E. Meusel handled the ball very poorly off the left field wall. Pipp out, Rawlings to Kelly, Meusel reaching third. Ward flied to Burns, R. Meusel scoring after the catch. Burns made a perfect throw to the plate, but R. Meusel was too fast. McNally flied to Burns, who made a most marvellous catch, leaping high for the ball. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Giants—Ruth fainted on the Yankee bench, and was revived by an application of water, the game being delayed for several minutes. Smith walked. Nehf wanted a look at the ball, and Rigler threw it out and put a new one in play. Nehf fanned on three straight, swinging. Burns fanned, swinging, Smith being doubled at second, Schang to Ward. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pious George Burns raised an awful argument about the third strike decision on him. The Giants all yelled loudly, but Rigler made a movement toward his watch and they dispersed.

Fifth Innings.

Yanks—Schang fouled to Frisch. Hoyt out, Frisch to Kelly, who tagged him on the baseline. Miller smashed to left centre for a double. Peck popped to E. Meusel. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Yanks—Ward flied to Bancroft, who went far back into left for the catch. McNally popped to Bancroft on the first ball. Schang flied to E. Meusel. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Nehf flied to Ruth. Burns out, Hoyt to Pipp, on a close play. Bancroft out on a bunt into Pipp's hands. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Yanks—Hoyt fanned, swinging. Miller out, Frisch to Kelly. Rigler threw out a ball on Nehf. Peck reached first on a single to Frisch. Ruth fanned, swinging. It was his third strike out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Frisch out, Pipp unassisted. Young reached first on a single to McNally. Kelly singled but was out at second trying to stretch. Young reached third on the play. E. Meusel fouled to Pipp. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Yanks—R. Meusel out, Frisch to Kelly, after Frisch had fumbled the ball. Pipp out, Kelly to Nehf, who covered first for a fast play. Ward out, Rawlings to Kelly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

PETERBORO MAN IN FIRE-SWEPT HOTEL

Mr. Jack Brady, a Guest When Historic Hostelry Caught Fire

Mr. Jack Brady of Peterborough was one of the guests who escaped injury in a recent disastrous fire in Washington, U.S.A., when two lost their lives and four others were injured in the flames-swept National Hotel. Mr. Brady is a member of the Thurston theatrical troup, staying in the hotel at the time of the disaster some male member of which risked their lives repeatedly in rescue work.

MOVIE STUDIOS AGAIN PRODUCE DEATH SCANDAL

United Press.

NEW YORK, October 10. Spectacular raids by Federal Prohibition agents, in an effort to halt the encroachments of organized boot legger bands, were being planned by dry officials here to-day, following the visit of Commissioner Roy A. Haynes. The raids it was understood, will be directed against the booze stores, where liquor is being gathered for sale in Washington during the disarmament conferences and caches from which whiskey is being withdrawn now for disposal to the World Series fans.

(United Press).

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10. — While chemists were expected to be called in to-day to help determine the cause of the death of Al. Stein, motion picture director, Mildred Bellwin and Jean Munroe, studio extra girls, were held by the police to await the outcome of the investigation.

Stein was found dead in his apartments. The Coroner expressed a belief that alcoholism caused death. He ordered a post-mortem to clear up mysterious angles of the case, which seemed to indicate a "triangle" with points reaching into the studio life which has been under investigation since the death of Virginia Rappe. Stein had been assistant to Fred. Fishback, the director who figured in the Arbuckle case.

TAG DAY

The tag day for the Children's Aid Society, held on Saturday last, was very successful, considering the weather, which was not of the best. The ladies worked faithfully all day long, and the majority of citizens sported a little blue tag, and most of the motors said "Help the Kiddies" as they flashed by. The amount received up to date has been $1,448.32, but Lakefield has not yet been heard from, and it is hoped that that the sum total may reach $1,800, which is not very far off the objective aimed at, viz., $2,000.

The Peterborough Cereal Company contributed a bag of Delight flour, and the following gave cheques, which are included in the total:

R. Hall & Son $10.00, Grafton & Co. $10.00, P. P. Westby $5.00, M. Carton $10.00, R. W. Grubbe $1.00, Can. Packing Co. $25.00, Protestant Home $5.10, Dr. Harvey $5.00, J. A. Aylmer $5.00, F. D. Kerr $5.00, W. G. Morrow $25.00, Co-workers' Bible Class $15.00, J. D. Collins $10.00, J. J. Howden $5.00, W. J. Thompson $5.00, Father Phelan $5.00, Peterborough Milk Products Ltd. $25.00, Edgar Worth $10.00.

UNEMPLOYMENT MAKES PEOPLE TIGHTEN BELTS

BIG REDUCTION IN CONSUMPTION OF FOOD FOLLOWS, SAY MONTREAL AND TORONTO BAKERS

CAUSES PRICE DROP IN WHOLESALE FLOUR

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Oct. 10.— Toronto, like Montreal, has been tightening its belt this year, in comparison with last. Men are not eating as much this fall, the bakers say, and they attribute it to unemployment. This has also had the result of causing a heavy drop in the prices of flour which, however, is not likely to affect the retail prices to the consumer.

The fall in consumption is quite noticable. A prominent baker said: "I don't think there is any other way to explain it than to say that when the people are working they eat more. When men are out of work they generally sleep in the morning and make two meals take the place of three. People whose men are out of work save more too. They do not throw out the crusts and dry bread. We notice the decrease especially in our cake sales. I can't see any other way to explain this except that many people are out of work."

Since the end of August Montreal depatches say the price of flour has dropped seven times. This also is confirmed by Toronto bakers. Last week there was a big drop.

WILLIAM B. LEEDS WED TO PRINCESS

THREE CEREMONIES REQUIRED TO UNITE THEM

PARIS, October 10 (United Press) —Married at last, despite legal difficulties, dowry disputes, and parental objections, young William B. Leeds, Jr., of Indiana, and his bride, Princess Xenia of Russia, were on their way in their yacht to a honeymoon in England to-day.

Three marriage ceremonies were necessary to make them man and wife, but with pomp and pageantry, and in the presence of the crowned heads of several countries, it was accomplished.

Prince Christopher of Greece, husband of the bridegroom's mother, who was formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds, of Richmond, Indiana, was best man. He became so excited during the ceremony that his monocle popped from his eye, but was retrieved by the officiating pastor.

It is reported that a Canadian Soo boy named McPherson was in the boat but no one of that name is reported missing from this city.

HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN

TWO ABLE LEADERS, SAYS NEW YORK TIMES.

NEW YORK, October 10 Canadian Press). — Under the heading, "Canada's Two Leaders," The Times to-day prints an editorial discussing the qualities of the two chief figures in the Dominion campaign, declaring that "no matter which party wins, the Dominion is assured of a Premier of ability and genuine worth."

It remarks that from the view of a reporter and cartoonist, Mr. King and Mr. Meighen lack the genius for publicity.

"Premier Meighen, as a son of the farm," says the editorial, "represents a new element so unmistakably coming to the fore in Canadian affairs, while Mr. King claims direct descent from the founder of Canadian Liberalism."

HEARST BOOMS OUR SALES TAX

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press)—William Randolph Hearst has offered to take every member of the United States Congress on a trip through Canada at his expense. He is advocating a sales tax in the United States, and in to-day's New York American declares that the tax has been a boon to Canada.

DEFINE STATUS OF TRAVELLERS RE INCOME TAX

WILL BE ALLOWED DEDUCTION OF ALL EXPENSES ACTUALLY INCURRED IN CONDUCT OF BUSINESS.

RESULT OF COMPLAINTS BY TRAVELLERS' SOCIETIES

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—A definite ruling upon the status of commercial travellers under the Income Tax Law has been just issued by the Department of Finance at Ottawa, as a result of complaints told by the various commercial travellers' associations throughout the Dominion as to the manner in which the taxation branch was treating their travelling expenses in dealing with the income tax returns.

Under a previous ruling, travellers were not exempt for expenses incurred under the heads of room, rent, meals and entertainment. This meant to the average traveller something like $25 a year in income tax, or about a million dollars from the 4,000 odd travellers throughout the Dominion, of whom the largest number belong to the Toronto association, with Montreal next.

Under the new ruling commercial travellers must show all monies received by them from their employers. There will be allowed as a deduction from the monies so received, all expenses actually and necessarily incurred in the conduct of their business from such expenses there will be deducted the sum of $1 for each day's travelling, this amount representing personal and living expenses which, although usually included in a traveller's expenses, are not directly attributable to his business.

In making the income tax return, commercial travellers should classify themselves in one of two groups, namely, those who travel with grips only, and those who travel with trunks containing samples up to 1,000 pounds in weight. Travellers should also show the number of weeks they were out on business during the year, and should state the number of weeks they were away from home seven days, and the number they were away five days.

PREPARING FOR CONFERENCE ON IRISH PROBLEM

SINN FEIN DELEGATES HOLD PRELIMINARY SESSIONS TO-DAY—HAVE BROUGHT LARGE RETINUE OF EXPERTS.

COLLINS, IRISH CHIEF, ARRIVES UNOBTRUSIVELY

LONDON, October 10. — Canadian Press. — Conferences are being held to-day by Sinn Fein delegates, preparatory to the beginning of the formal negotiations to-morrow between the Irish representatives and the members of the British cabinet. Sinn Fein leaders have brought to London a large retinue of secretaries, legal experts, historians and economists. There was some apprehension lest many scattering acts of violence in various places in Ireland might result in temporary break in the conference. The fear of disorders is the reason given why Sinn Fein prisoners have not been released, but it is likely they will get their freedom when the conference is in progress.

By Ed. L. Keen.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, October 10. — Michael Collins, the commander-in-chief of the Irish Republican Army, who for nearly two years has waged guerilla warfare against the British forces in Ireland until the armistice brought a cessation of hostilities, arrived here to-day to take part in the formal conference between the Sinn Fein delegates and the British Cabinet at 10 Downing street to-morrow.

Collins is the Irish leader most favored and hated in Engalnd, and his failure to arrive on Saturday, with the other Sinn Fein plenipotentiaries led to anticipation of something melodramatic in connection with his first visit to England since a prisoner after the 1916 rebellion. His arrival was unobtrusive, however.

LONDON, October 10. Canadian Press. — Arthur Griffith stated this morning that he was delighted with his success in securing the services of John Chartres, who besides being keenly versed in legal matters, was chief of the Intelligence Section of the War Office armaments output during the war, and for many years director of the Intelligence Department of the London Times.

Eamon J. Duggan, chief liason officer of the Sinn Fein, states that he

CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL FIELDS

THIS MAY BE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO PARTICIPATE IN THIS GREAT OIL DEVELOPMENT WITHIN 35 MILES OF PETERBOROUGH

We believe the turning point in your life has come. It is up to you to decide whether you continue groping around in the dark, and then drop downward in the scale of life, or make a determined fight for your personal achievement by grasping the best opportunity that has ever been presented to you, and by its aid, lift yourself up beyond the uncertainties to the high road that leads to success.

You alone must make up your mind, no one can do that for you—you can make it a permanent one if you will, or you can push aside the chance that is now offered to you and continue to be a drifter, but remember, you can not stand still, you must either go downward or upward. As a man thinketh, so is he, if you think failure, you will be a failure, but if you think success, you will surely be successful, provided you confirm your actions with your thoughts.

We would ask that your thoughts dwell on the opportunities, that the Central Ontario Oil Fields, Ltd., are offering you. We are convinced, without doubt, of the great possibilities of there being one of the most successful oil fields ever sprung up in this vicinity, or, to go a little further, in Ontario. The Central Ontario Oil Fields, Ltd., is desirous of having your co-operation in the development of these vast oil fields, and only by the co-operation of the people of Peterborough and County, can we attain our objective, namely, a successful financial company for the benefit of the community.

Hoping all who wish to succeed in life will take advantage of the special offer of their stock at the best price, $1.00 per share and 4 bonus shares. After this 15th day of October, same will be raised to $1.00 per share. This can be had by applying to any member of the company in Peterborough.

Think of this, one American oil company has paid in its dividends for one year $3,300, for a 500 share holding, the Central Ontario Oil Fields, Ltd., is offering you 500 shares at the present time the same number of shares for $100. After the 15th of this month all shares in this company will be $1 each until the company calls off all sales of their shares.

The Reward of the Pioneer—The Trapshooter Well at Eldorado, Kansas, paid $40,000 for every $100 invested.

The Same in Every New Field — The first well as Hogg Creek, Desdemona, paid $10,000 for every $100 invested.

Call and see us or 'phone 792, and we will call at your address. Don't miss this last chance.

Yours truly,
Central Ontario Oil Fields, Ltd.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

ABOUT FIFTEEN HUNDRED TOOK IN MILLBROOK FAIR

FAIR DIRECTORS PLAN FOR A BIGGER AND BETTER FAIR NEXT YEAR — AMONG THOSE PRESENT.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 10.—Although a postponed Fair is not usually a marked success, the one held at Millbrook on Saturday, October 8th, rather proved the exception to the rule, for about fifteen hundred people, the majority of them in cars, some in other conveyances, and on foot, found their way to the agricultural grounds, the sale of tickets beginning about 1 p.m.

The rain of Friday had somewhat spoiled the track, which, previous to that, had been in excellent condition, but thirteen race horses were on hand, and all the events listed under "speeding in the ring" were successfully carried out. The judges for the races were Mr. Beggs and Mr. John Carew, of Lindsay, and Mr. Joseph Hickson, of Janetville, while the local committee included Messrs. F. A. Kelly, H. A. Fallis, A. J. Henderson, W. T. Donaldson, and P. Stinson.

The showing of cattle was not as large this year as usual, but on all sides was heard praise of those which were exhibited, while the entries in the different classes of horses mentioned in the prize-list were numerous, and possibly the finest ever shown at a Fair here. The spectators' chief interest centered round the rings where the driving competitions were taking place, and where the various classes of horses were being judged.

Bethany Band added to the pleasure and attractiveness of the afternoon, playing a generous number of selections, not only between the heats of the races, but also at other intervals as well.

Midway Absent.

The midway was conspicuous by its absence, though many attractions for it arrived on Friday, but left again in disgust because of the inclement weather. However, there were two or three booths where soft drinks, cones, hot dogs, etc., were much in demand, and of course no Fair would now be complete without a showing of Kewpie dolls, and as usual the proprietors of these did a big trade, practically exhausting their stocks before the afternoon was over.

The gate receipts amounted to $600, a figure considerably below that usually taken through the sale of entrance tickets. However, it takes more than two successive years of unfavorable weather to daunt the cheerfulness and fortitude of the officers and directors, and with characteristic optimism they are already planning a bigger and better Fair for 1922.

A few of those from outside points who were noticed on the grounds were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brock, Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barnard, Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas and daughter, Miss Nellie, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cathcart and family, and Miss Cathcart, all former, Millbrook people now residing in Peterborough; Col. Sutton, of Cobourg; Messrs. Patterson and Snowdon and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wickett, of Port Hope; Miss Collins and Miss Helen Dunford, of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilkinson, and Mr. Twigg, of Bethany; Mrs. John Mulligan, of Orono; Messrs. Hilliard and Walter Caldwell, of Perrytown; Miss Ida Pugle, of Bailieboro; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Henry, Mrs. Henry, Sr., and Mr. J. Duffus, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. William Goheen, of Pontypool; Mr. and Mrs. Syer, Mrs. John Staples, and Messrs. James Keegan and John Douglas, of Cavan; Mr. and Mrs. E. Wood and Mr. George Wood, Sr., of Bensfort.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

RALLY DAY SERVICES IN THE CHURCHES — PERSONAL MENTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 10. — Miss Helen Bonnycastle of the Peterborough Public school staff, was in town over the week end for the wedding of her aunt, Miss Eva Bonnycastle.

Mrs. Irwin of St. Catharines, is visiting at the home of her sons, Mr. Jos. Irwin and Mr. J. A. Irwin.

Miss Mae Chaplin, who is attending Toronto Normal school, spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Chaplin.

The W.C.T.U. will hold a social afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. W. Turner on Tuesday and a pleasant time is assured all who attend. The proceeds will be devoted to the Travellers' Aid fund.

Obituary.

The news reached town on Saturday morning that Mrs. James Saunders, Centre street, had passed away in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough. An operation had been performed, which was thought to have been successful, but Mrs. Saunders gradually grew weaker and she died early Saturday morning. The deceased was a daughter of Richard and and the late Mrs. Grills. She is survived by her husband and five children all at home, also by two brothers, Albert and Fred Grills of English Line and two sisters, Mrs. Albert Rowe of Stanwood and Mrs. George Hay of Menie. The late Mrs. Saunders was a faithful and devout member of the Methodist church.

The funeral service will be held this afternoon at two o'clock at the house, conducted by the Rev. H. B. Kenney and the remains will be laid to rest in the English Line cemetery. Much sympathy is extended to the sorrowing family in their sudden bereavement.

Clark and Bonnycastle.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday at high noon in Christ church, when Miss Eva Bonnycastle, daughter of the late Frank and Mrs. Bonnycastle of Seymour, was united in marriage by the rector, Rev. C. E. Clarke, M.A., to Mr. Fred Clarke, of Colborne. The bride who was charmingly attired, was attended by her niece, Miss Helen Bonnycastle, and the groom was attended by the bride's nephew, Mr. Allan Bonnycastle. The church was very daintily decorated for the ceremony, which was witnessed by the immediate relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom. After the honeymoon the bride and groom will reside at Colborne. The bride has a host of friends here who extend their congratulations.

The rally day Sunday school services held yesterday in the Methodist church, were a grand success, the teachers and pupils uniting with the capable superintendent in making the service a success. A most interesting feature of the programme was the story of the life of Dr. Paton, told in a most interesting manner by Mrs. G. A. Kingston, who never fails to captivate the boys and girls with her talks.

Building buildings that will burn is like winding at an old maid — it not only looks foolish, but there's no telling how serious the outcome will be.

BELL OR MASSEY WILL REPRESENT NEW ZEALAND

LONDON, Oct. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—A despatch to the London Times from Wellington, New Zealand, says the return home of Premier Massey has increased interest in the approaching Washington conference and the prevalent feeling appears to favor the Dominion being personally represented.

"Premier Massey", the despatch adds, "is regarded as the best selection, but, failing him, the press and legislative opinion seems to support Sir Francis Bell, who acted as premier during Mr. Massey's absence in London, whose ability and tactful handling of difficult situations was then demonstrated. Sir Francis is a close student of Empire politics and an authority on constitutional law.

MANY DEMONSTRATIONS BY BRITISH UNEMPLOYED

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Unemployment demonstrations were held in various parts of the country yesterday. The Bishop of Winchester, in a letter read at a demonstration at Farnham, gave his commendation to the demonstrators, teling them that the Government had been slow in taking up the matter and that the unemployed were right in pressing for action.

The Bishop said Cornwall was showing a grave situation as regards unemployment, and added: "We can only demand that work should be made, in order that men, women and children shall have at least a minimum livelihood until the trouble lessens."

The bishop suggested that the nation ration itself.

16 MISSING AND TWO KNOWN DEAD FOLLOWING DOUBLE COLLISION OFF SOUTHWEST COAST OF SCOTLAND.

FOUR VESSELS STOOD BY AND RESCUED 77 PEOPLE

BELFAST, October 10. — Canadian Press. — Damaged by one vessel in a dense fog of the southwest coast of Scotland, and then sunk by another coming to its aid, was the fate early yesterday morning of the Laird Line steamer Rowan, plying between Glasgow and Dublin.

Thirteen of the Rowan's crew and three pasengers are missing. Two passengers died after being rescued by vessels which responded to the wireless S.O.S. call.

An official statement says that the Rowan carried 93 persons including the crew, 77 of whom are accounted for by the four vessels which went to the Rowan's assistance.

Aboard the Rowan was the "American Southern Syncopated Orchestra," composed largely of colored players, who had been touring this side of the water since 1919. One of the men who died after being taken out of the sea was Pete Robinson, the drummer of the orchestra.

The accident was due to a double collision in the North Channel off Corsewall Point. The Rowan first collided with the United States steamer West Camak, both of them being damaged. The West Camak stood by with the forepeak full of water, meanwhile sending out wireless calls for aid. The Clan liner, Clan Malcolm, responded, but in the confusion due to the heavy fog ran into the badly disabled Rowan, which sank immediately.

The West Camak helped in the rescue work, afterwards putting into Glasgow with 25 survivors.

Captain Donald Brown of Glasgow is reported to have gone down with the Rowan. Three other vessels also answered the call and completed the work of rescue as far as it was possible. The Clan Malcolm, which rammed the Rowan amidships, was damaged only slightly.

The Syncopated Orchestra, which went to London in June, 1919, gave performances there and vicinity until two months ago when they made a tour of Scotland. There were originally 38 members, about 15 of them British players.

THE WEATHER

We had our first experience this fall of below the freezing point on Saturday night or Sunday morning. The thermometer was down to 29 degrees some time during the night, and many of the tender vines now show the effect. The rainfall yesterday was .16 of an inch. While the weather probabilities are usually correct in 95 per cent. of the forecasts, yesterday was one occasion when they failed—and failed badly. However, to err is human.—W.P.

INDIAN NATIONALS ADVOCATE STRIKES AS PRINCE COMES

BOMBAY, India, October 10. — Canadian Press. — The working committee of the National Congress and the Caliphate of Workers, yesterday adopted a resolution advocating a sympathetic strike throughout India on the day the Prince of Wales arrives in Bombay.

The resolution urges Provincial Committees to arrange a boycot in the various cities which the Prince visits. The committee expressed the opinion that the National Congress should inform neighboring and other states that the Government of India, whose "policy traditionally is guided by considerations looking more to holding India under subjection than to protecting her borders" in no way represented India opinion, and that India, as a self-governing state, did not intend to establish "undesirable" trade relations.

It was further stated by the committee that Indians regarded most of the treaties between neighboring States and the Indian Government as mainly designed by the latter with a view to perpetuating the exploitation of India. Other states were urged therefore to refrain from entering into such treaties.

JUNIOR WORLD SERIES GAME ENDS IN RIOT

LOUISVILLE FANS MOB UMPIRES AND POLICE, CAUSING GAME TO BE FORFEITED TO BALTIMORE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press.)—A riotous demonstration broke up the fourth game of the Louisville-Baltimore junior world's series here Sunday, when 3,500 spectators, angered at a close decision, swarmed on the field, pelted the police and umpires with cushions and caused the game to be forfeited to Baltimore, 9 to 0. No one was seriously hurt and no arrests were made, although the police used their clubs freely.

Before the wild ending of the game in the first half of the ninth inning, the fans swarmed on the diamond in the seventh inning to protest a decision by Umpire McGowan of the International League, and delayed the game 15 minutes before the police could clear the field.

When Umpire Frank Connolly, of the American Association, called Jack Bentley, the Orioles' first baseman, safe at first in the ninth on a play which appeared to be an easy out, the spectators swarmed on to the field for the second time and the police were powerless to disperse them. The fans made no move to harm either Connolly or McGowan until the police and players made a move to escort them off the field. Police formed a guard about them and started for the gate. Cushions were thrown on the field by the hundreds and a stampede of fans in the direction of the umpires began. A volley of cushions were hurled at the fleeing umpires and their police escort as they broke into a run in the direction of the exits. Other than the throwing of cushions and a few pop bottles, no violence was attempted.

NATIONAL LEAGUERS HAMMER MAYS FOR THREE RUNS IN EIGHTH INNINGS OF FOURTH GAME OF SERIES SUNDAY.

DESPITE BANDAGED ARM THE BAMBINO COMES BACK

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The Giants evened the World's Series here Sunday afternoon by hammering Mays hard in the eighth innings and defeating the Yankees by a score of 4 to 2.

Babe Ruth, playing with a bandaged elbow, touched off his first home run of the series, a screaming liner that carried far out into the stands.

The series now stands:

	Won	Lost	R.	H.	E.
Giants	2	2	17	35	4
Yankees	2	2	13	24	1

The game, a snappy, quickly-played contest, was witnessed by more than 36,000 persons, a few hundred less than the record crowd of last Friday. For seven innings it looked like a repetition of last Wednesday's pitchers' battle between Carl Mays and Phil. Douglas, these two twirlers again being pitted against one another. Then, in the eighth, the Giants broke through Mays' guard and scored three runs — enough to win—by a pretty exhibition of consecutive batting.

The Giants added another, but, as it turned out, an unnecessary run, in the ninth. The Yankees were able to hit Douglas consecutively only in the fifth, when they scored once, their other tally being accounted for by Ruth with his ninth-inning blow into the bleachers. That the "Babe" appeared in the game at all was a big surprise to the fans. It had been feared that his injured arm would keep him out of the play for the remainder of the series, and even Manager Miller Huggins, of the Yankees, did not expect up to an hour before game time, that Ruth would be in the line-up yesterday, announcing that "Chick" Fewster would take his place in left field. It developed, however, that Ruth, determined to play, had had his arm well plastered up, and shortly after 1.30 o'clock he came on the field in uniform, and, to all appearances, as fit as ever.

The sight of the "Bambino's" bulky figure drew forth a big shout of welcome from the crowd, which was repeated many-fold when he made his circuit hit in the ninth. He handled his two fielding chances cleanly. There was nothing in his work at the bat to indicate that his injured arm was handicapping him in the least. He did not, however, try to steal any more bases.

"I have realized one of my great ambitions—to make a home run in the World's Series," Ruth said after the game, "but I'm sorry it didn't come with men on the bases. It might have meant the winning of the game."

The real honors of the day — despite the spectacular feat of Ruth in making his first World's Series home run—which, by the way, was the first homer of the 1921 tilt—went to the lanky man who occupied the

A FOOLISH POLICY.

The trouble that has arisen in Poplar and other districts in London illustrates the folly of providing relief in the form of cash for the unemployment and furnishes an object lesson for Canadian municipalities who might be unwise enough to supply money doles instead of endeavouring to find employment for the idle. Families cannot, of course, be allowed to starve, but if work cannot be supplied, the emergency relief should take the form of food, not of money. Doles in cash, as the Wall Street Journal expresses it, amounts to pouring oil upon the flames.

In Poplar, in the east end of London, a Socialist majority on the Board of Guardians, has so lavishly extended relief to the unemployed that a condition of bankruptcy has been brought about. And the guardians have refused to levy any more taxes upon the people of their district, maintaining that it is the business of the rich to pay full wages for idleness and that the wealthier citizens should be taxed in order that the unemployed should continue to receive the same remuneration as if they were working. Other districts in London have been affected by this same Bolshevistic doctrine and the situation is such as to cause considerable anxiety.

WHAT THE RADIAL MEANS.

No individual, much less no newspaper, would be foolish enough to say that there are not many able and honest and well meaning men among the candidates brought forward by the Agrarian party. In criticizing the recall system which Farmer and Labour organizations seem to think should be loaded upon the shoulders of their standard bearers, the Examiner has no quarrel with the candidates, but rather with what we believe to be the mistaken policy of pledging them to obey, under the penalty of losing their position in Parliament, whatever orders a bare majority of the members of their organization may see fit to give them. With the development of the group system of politics it naturally follows that the successful candidate is often supported only by a majority of the electors in his riding. A question may arise in the House about which the majority of the people in his constituency have an opinion differing from that held by the minority. And yet if he be a Farmer or Labour candidate he must ignore the views of more than half his constituents and perhaps his own conception of the right course to follow, otherwise the Farmers' clubs can call a convention and demand his resignation on the strength of the pledge that he has given. The system does not seem to be fair, either to the candidate himself or to the country at large, for it diverts the control of public affairs from the Parliament buildings to the Farmers' clubs.

THE BEST SOLUTION.

The proposal to hold a public meeting for the purpose of discussing Peterboro's needs in regard to technical educatron is chiefly open to objection on the grounds that our citizens have never been noted for their eagerness to attend such gatherings, and as a result the so-called "mass" meeting usually consists of a few score people, most of whom need little enlightenment on the subject under discussion. A meeting to discuss technical education would probably not make any better record in point of attendance than other public affairs of the same kind. Granted all this, however, it is right that there should be plenty of opportunity given to discuss this most important question. Peterboro cannot afford to rush into an enterprise of this nature without giving very earnest thought to the various angles it presents. A complete technical school sems out of the question for the present. Such an institution will be needed later on—perhaps, indeed, could be justified now—but for the time being it must be shelved until conditions have adjusted themselves, and until there is no doubt not only as to the need of a nical school seems out of the quesmand for one .In the meantime the Collegiate Institute must be enlarged, and the way is open of making the addition to the building serve two purposes, not only in increasing the general accommodation, but making it possible to provide facilities for a certain amount of technical training. This is the plan suggested by Principal H. R. H. Kenner and it seems to be the best possible solution.

BELIEFS THAT HAVE FAILED.

Byron remarked, in the beautiful passage on the field of Waterloo in "Childe Harold,"

"How that red rain made the harvest grow," and there are the seeds of good in war, unless we are to abandon faith in God altogether, says Barron's Weekly. It is the fiery test of theories not based upon experieice, or held in spite of experience. Nothing in living memory will ever re-establish the theory of socialism. It has been tested out, not merely in its logical extreme, as in Russia, but with all kinds of modifications, shading down to government ownership and government price fixing. Every one of these things has failed when tried, exactly as sound economists said they wold fail; even as history has proved, throughout thousands of year, that they do fail when sick humanity periodically returns to quack medicines.

But something else has failed, which is not exactly socialism. It is the belief that shorter hours increase the individual worker's efficiency. It was held that he could do better work in ten hours than he could in twelve, and where the question of liability to accident through fatigue was involved this was in a measure true. But it was then held that eight hours would be more productive than ten, that rest deductions from the eight hours would not reduce production, and that, as in the case of the miners, six hours would be better than eight. It was the old story of hours dieted down to one straw a day. Its death terminated the scientific demonstration. Carried to absurdity, production was to reach unmanageable volume with no working hours at all.

No theory was more thoroughly and fairly tested. It reduced Great Britain's indispensable export surplus of coal from 74,000,000 to $25,000,000 tons. It fatally reduced the output of coal per capita while increasing the number of hands. Sweden, Finland and Germany all tried it, and the first-named country, the last to report, shows an uter failure. You cannot change human nature. The less a man works,—the less he thinks he has to work,—the poorer his production will be, both in quantity and qaulity. It is true that in the Adamson law, fixing the hours of railroad labor, a panic-stricken Congress was really enacting. There is a hopeful side to the overtime. But it was also putting a premium upon idleness and shirking. here is a hopeful side to the whole thing because those who come after us will, for a generation, at least remember the lesson if they will forget we paid for it.

"GANG" INFLUENCE.

The story told by Meharg, on trial for his life in connection with the shooting of Dr. Whitworth at Binbrook, is a sordid confession of crime, culminating in the tragedy of Dec. 23. It is helpful, though depressing, to have such revelations from the inside as to how these hold-ups are planned and carried out. The long series of robberies and assaults, not infrequently accompanied with loss of life from which this province has suffered, make it a mater of urgent public importance to discover and, if possible, counteract the influences responsible for the production of this prevalent type of criminal. All manner of things have been blamed for the trouble—the withdrawal of parental influence on account of the war, the growing spirit of lawlessness among the young, moving pictures, drugs, and many other explanations have been given to account for the phenomenon. But there seems no doubt whatever that the "gang" influence is still the most potent manufactory of crime. From the lips of Meharg we have heard of the association of this group of young men, meeting together in poolrooms and such places to plan their criminal escapades, which, apparently, never netted them very much for their pains. It was the depraved craving for excitement and adventure which was the principal factor in the downfall of these boys.

What can be done to combat these tendencies? In the first place, such cases as this are a startling warning to all parents carefully to supervise the habits of their sons. All boys have the instincts for companionship more or less strongly developed. Unless properly directed, this instinct is liable to lead them astray, for their innate love of adventure will naturally incline them towards the bold and the daring. In almost all cases of wrong-doing there is an instigator, a so-called "pal." A case in point is that of the Toronto bank teller, who yesterday pleaded guilty to the theft of $9,000 from his employers, his action having been abetted, he says, by a man "with whom he spent his evenings." There is a responsibility on parents, therefore, to investigate the conduct of their children, if they would be saved from humilation and disgrace.

Movements such as the Boy Scouts and the Y.M.C.A. are the best channels for the outlet of young animal spirits. The "gang" spirit is present, but it is a "gang" leagued together for honorable purposes—not without its adventures, its recreations and amusements, indeed, through all of an innocent kind. Early home influences, the church and such secular institutions as those referred to are the greatest agents in protecting society and combatting crime. But a strict watch should be kept also on the poolrooms and other rendezvous for the incorrigible. Unauthorized gangs, wherever they congregate, should be dispersed, and their favorite meeting-places done away with.—Hamilton Spectator.

By Mme. Frances

The Famous Creator of Fashions

As the exodus to the city increases and social functions again occupy the hours of the fashionable woman, she must select new clothes for her various activities. Should she have plighted her troth during summer days, the choice of apparel may become a far more vital affair than it has ever before been. If she is a prospective bride, then all clothes will take on a new significance for her.

She will, of course, need attire for all the hours of the day, which will permit her a delightful revel in the realm of fabrics. This season there are many fascinating materials, and when she comes to the selection of gowns and wraps for evening she will find a wonderful wealth of colors awaiting her choice. If her means are unlimited and her new position in society necessitates her attendance at innumerable day and evening affairs, then she will need a galaxy of gowns. If, however, she is to take up her abode where the round of social activities is rather limited, or if her circle is somewhat restricted, then it will not be necessary to indulge in an elaborate and extensive trousseau.

Every bride desires a wedding gown, and a going-away suit is equally essential. Therefore, on this page I show a very lovely dress for a bride, as well as some other creations that she will doubtless demand.

In all these models there is great simplicity of line, as I favor this strongly. When beauty of line is combined with exquisite fabrics the result is one that is pleasing not only to the possessor of the gown or wrap, but to everyone who sees them.

Floral and Bowknot Decorations Passe

For the gown I have chosen a wonderful piece of silver cloth, as this lovely material looks particularly good on the young woman who approaches the altar. I have enriched it with exquisite embroidery wrought in seed pearls. If you will study the illustration carefully you will immediately realize that I have forsaken the floral and bowknot decorations that for so long have held sway on the gowns of brides.

Instead of these somewhat hackneyed themes, I have gone to the vestments of the priest for inspiration in the decorations of this dress. On it you will find the trefoil developed in true ecclesiastical style. This adds great richness to the upper part of the gown, as well as to the skirt, where the embroidery accentuates the uneven length of the hem.

The sleeves show embroidery in similar style, while the waistline is accented by the introduction of two belts. The loose panel at the back is lined with white chiffon. Of course, some brides who believe in the old saying of "Something old and something new, Something borrowed and something blue,"

may wish to introduce the dash of blue in place of the white chiffon. This would look most charming, although for my own part I think there is nothing more beautiful than the all-white gown. It has a dignity that is well in keeping with the solemn occasion on which the wedding gown is donned.

Another most important accessory to the wedding dress is the veil. This is made of the sheerest white tulle, and it is arranged in rather novel style to hide the demurely dropped eyes of the bride. A spray of orange blossoms holds these delicate pleatings in place and marks the points where the floating tulle falls gracefully about the figure like two airy trains.

If you are contemplating choosing a bride's gown you might of course have it modeled along the lines of this creation. If you wished it you might have it fashioned from a heavy white satin instead of the silver cloth, but if you do this I would advise you to copy the same style of embroidery, as such trimming developed along ecclesiastical lines is exceedingly fashionable at this time.

Now for the going-away suit! The color, of course, should be selected to accentuate the beauty of its wearer's eyes or to offset the lovely color of her hair or complexion. Many women cling to navy blue, which, when becomingly trimmed in fur, is exceptionally attractive. I like that shade myself, but I think sometimes it is advisable to depart a little from the beaten tracks of fashion as well as any other paths of life.

That is one reason why I have illustrated a charming gray suit. The material that lends itself so well to its creation is a piece of fine gray gabardine. It has several features that are well worth studying. The skirt is fashioned with a loose panel in the back. This hangs a few inches lower than the rest of the skirt and it is lined with green flannel, which makes a delightful splash of color as the wearer sways about.

The coat, unusually simple in line, falls straight about the figure. It, too, is lined with green flannel, and this is pleasingly revealed where the fronts are folded back and the green brightens the coat.

A Turban for the Honeymoon

Quite distinctive also are the sleeves, which leave the armholes giving no unusual promise of the great width they will develop as they approach the wrist. However, this fulness is much restrained by the addition of a black fox cuff, which seems to make the sleeve quite tight-fitting. This, however, is more or less of a delusion, for the part that is not attached to the fur cuff hangs open so that the green lining is perceived.

After I added the handsome fur collar on the coat I considered the matter of a hat, for that, of course, is a wonderfully important addition to any costume. After due thought I decided that the silhouette would look much better if I used a small hat rather than one of great width. Hence the charming turban, which is fashioned from an imported fabric in which stripes of green alternate with stripes of gray.

Having disposed of these two essential creations in the wardrobe of the fall bride, let us consider the matter of an evening gown. Sumptuousness is a vital characteristic of all gowns designed for evening wear at this time. The most gorgeous materials are demanded for their creation. However, I feel that the bride should not be clad so sumptuously that the charm of her personality is the least bit overshadowed. Therefore, the gown pictured on this page is evolved from plain gold cloth.

There is a flesh satin underwaist which may be glimpsed at the sides. The gold cloth is softly draped from the shoulders to the girdle in a manner that leaves a deep "V" opening on the front and back of the gown. The skirt shows an interesting draping where the folds of the fabric are drawn up toward the side.

The only decoration on this gown is found in the girdle. This is made of amber beads of different sizes. In two rows they are placed about the figure, and at one side they swing downwards among the draperies.

I have also illustrated a teagown, as it reveals the use of some of the lovely colorful fabrics now affected. It is cut from a beautiful velvet, whose gray blue tones are duplicated in some of the larkspurs that bloom in old-fashioned gardens. The beauty of this creation lies in the graceful manner in which it is draped about the figure, and its lining of mauve chiffon. Touches of the latter color are visible at certain points where the graceful folds of the velvet are lifted slightly from the ground.

Where the folds of the velvet are drawn toward the low waistline an ornament of the velvet proves an elaborate finish. The sleeves are slashed at the wrist, but just above this point a band of chinchilla encircles the arm. The lovely mauve lining appears in the cuff, which drops away from the hand.

Green sandals are worn with this creation, which is one of my loveliest inspirations for the Fall bride.

Black will continue as the popular shade for daytime and mauve for evening wear.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water — you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

TO KEEP THE HANDS SOFT

Keep a bottle of olive oil on your washstand, and before washing the hands rub a little of the oil well in. Then soap and wash as usual The oil loosens the dirt and also keeps the skin soft.

If to your misfortune your hands get very hot and clammy try washing them in rather hot water with any cold toilet soap. Dry thoroughly and then rub in a very little alcohol, Eau de-Cologne or any other good scent answers the purpose equaly well. If your hands are inclined to be very hot never sit with your arms hanging straight down, his naturally makes the blood rush to them, and makec the trouble worse.

With the cream left in!

For table use—pure, rich, and creamy.

The High school annual field day is eagerly looked forward to by pupils and teachers and this one was no exception to the rule. While the weather was rather threatening a large number of pupils and spectators were on the ground and all report a most pleasant afternoon. The success of the day is in no small measure due to the interest displayed by the teachers in arranging and conducting the races.

GIANTS EVEN WORLD'S SERIES

mound for the National Leaguers. "Shufflin'" Phil. Douglas' exhibition of baseball art was a pretty thing to watch. He held the heavy-hitting Yankees, with the exception of Ruth and Schang, in almost complete subjection when hits meant runs, and grew better as the game drew towards its close, only Ruth being able to reach him to any effect in the last three innings.

The Yankees' first run, in the fifth, was scored when Wally Schang cut loose with a fence-breaker to left for three bases, scoring McNally, who had reached first on a fielders' choice. Schang was left when Mays grounded to Rawlings for the third out.

The break of the game came in the eighth. The lively Yankee infield had broken up an incipient Giant rally in the previous innings by a fast double play, but in their next turn at the bat, Manager McGraw's men went at it again with a determination that wouldn't be broken down.

"Irish" Meusel started it by hitting the first ball pitched to far left-centre for three bases. This set the Giant rooters cheering, and they went wild when Rawlings speedily singled to centre, scoring Meusel with the tieing tally. Mays was in rather a bad way here, for a run was in, and a man was on first with none out. Matters speedily became worse for him when a missed Snyder's bunt in a headlong dive for it, with the result that Snyder landed safely on first an Rawlings on second. They both moved up on Douglas' sacrifice, which Mays threw to Ward, barely getting the batter.

Then up stepped George Burns, who previously had found the range with a single off Mays in the sixth. Burns' aim was even better this time, for he drove a slashing double to left, scoring Snyder and Rawlings and putting the Giants two runs to the good.

There was still only one man out, but Mays put on more steam at this point, causing Bancroft to fly to Ruth and Frisch to foul to Schang.

The Giants' final run in the ninth came when George Kelly broke the ice for his first hit of the series, a smart double to left, and scored on Emil Meusel's single.

Yankees	000010001	2	7	1

WEEK-END SPORT IN BRIEF FORM

Giants evened the World's Series, defeating the Yankees by 4 to 2 in the fourth game on Sunday. Giants' success was largely due to Phil Dougias' pitching. Ruth hit home run in the ninth inning.

The semi-final game in the Ontario baseball championship between Hillcrests, of Toronto, and Guelph at the latter place was postponed because of the wet ground.

Miss Marion Hollins, of New York, won the woman's golf championship final, defeating Miss Alexia Stirling, of Atlanta, the champion, by 5 and 4.

Exterminator ran third to The Porter and My Dear in the feature race at Laurel.

Varsity succumbed to Queen's at Kingston, 9 to 5. It was the first victory for the tri-colour in an important match in many years.

At Montreal the Argonauts scored at will upon the M. A. A. A. team—winning 40 to 5.

Hamilton Tigers ran into a surprise at Ottawa, the Rough Riders, by virtue of a lucky touchdown in the first period, getting the verdict—8 to 5.

Parkdale Paddlers met with unexpectedly tough opposition from the Torontos, who had as much of the play as their opponents, but were beaten, 22 to 6.

Baltimore won the third game of the Junior World's Series at Louisville, through default

Riversides won the O. A. L. A. senior championship from Toronto-St. Simon's.

ARGOS EASILY BEAT M.A.A.A.

FIELDING ONE OF THE FASTEST TEAMS EVER SEEN IN MONTREAL, TORONTO WINS BY 40 TO 5.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Brilliant playing by the Argonauts' back division resulted in an easy victory for the double blue in the Rugby fixture against the M. A. A. A. squad in the second game of the Inter-Provincial series played here this season, on Saturday, the visitors winning by 40 to 5. Conacher, Batstone, McCormack and a procession of substitute backs, who played at various stages of the game for the Toronto team, proved too speedy for the Winged Wheel defence, the visiting rearguard toying with the M.A.A.A. wings throughout the greater part of the game and scoring almost at will.

Argos fielded one of the fastest, best trained and most evenly balanced squads ever seen on a local gridiron. Their performance was greatly admired by the spectators present, their movements in the open play being carried out with machine-like precision, which dazzled the local twelve. The display in the second half, when they only succeeded in scoring one touch for one scored by the Winged Wheel, was a result of the substitution of seven spare players and the letting up of the work of the regular who were still on the field. Once the regular team took the field in the last few minutes of play, it did not take many seconds to go through for a score.

Many changes were evidenced in the M.A.A.A. line-up when the two teams faced each other at the start of the game, and the shifts appeared to be of advantage, for the local twelve played a much superior brand of Rugby to that displayed against Ottawa the previous Saturday. During the first half of the match Argos went around the local players at will and, starting three minutes after the commencement of play, piled up a total of 34 to 0 before the whistle sounded for the half-time rest. In the second half the home twelve showed a complete reversal of form to that of the opening quarters and to the former display against Ottawa. Playing a dogged defensive game on their own ten-yard line for the greater part of the last half, the local twelve broke up play after play which was hurled against their line and on their own side managed to send Jack Klein over for a touch-down, after Hamilton had ripped through for a big gain.

M.A.A.A.—F. wing Hamilton, half Gardner, half O'Brien, half Thomson, quarter Raycroft, centre Mills, inside Corrigan, inside Rosenberg, middle Findlay, middle Klein, outside Rowlands, outside Carter.

Argos—F. wing Stirrett, half Conacher, half McCormack, half Britnell, quarter Batstone, centre Douglas, inside Pugh, inside Heustis, middle Wallace, middle Young, outside Burkart, outside Bradfield.

Not Beauty Only

These whiter teeth mean safer teeth as well

No doubt the great reason why millions use Pepsodent is to get prettier teeth. It removes the dingy film.

But science has more important objects. Pepsodent brings five effects, and all of them mean better tooth protection.

The ruinous film

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old methods of brushing do not effectivsly combat it. So it often lingers long.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy. Countless teeth are thus made dingy.

Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles. Most of the tooth and gum attacks are now traced to that film.

Must combat it daily

After diligent research science has found two ways to combat that film. Many careful tests have proved them. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

Both are embodied in a modern tooth paste—Pepsodent. Every use attacks the film in two effective ways. It also brings three other results which have proved essential.

Fights starch and acid

Pepsodent does what fruit acids do. It multiplies the salivary flow. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent multiplies their powers.

Effects are apparent

Millions now know the delightful effects. Anyone who will can quickly see and feel them.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Then read the reasons in the book we send.

A week may bring a life-long change in your teeth cleaning methods. Cut out the coupon now.

NEW MARRIAGE ACT DEFINES WHO AUTHORIZED TO TIE NUPTIAL KNOTS

LICENSE MUST NOW BE OBTAINED AT CITY CLERK'S OFFICE—FEE IS $5, OF WHICH $4 GOES TO DRURY GOVERNMENT.

Since 1888 W. G. Green, city tax collector, has been issuing marriage licenses, and in that time his documents have provided 2000 young Lotharios with passports into the land of matrimony. But now, by enactment of the Drury Government, effective on October first, Mr. Green, with five local business men, can no longer issue marriage licenses, which must henceforth be secured from the City Clerk. In municipalities where there is no Clerk, then these licenses are to be issued by the Police Magiserate.

Last Saturday in accordance with this decree, City Clerk Armstrong assumed his new duties and Mr. Green and the jewellers who have been displaced are wondering if they can manage to dispose of their present stock of licenses in the two weeks of grace allowed, to Oct. 15—or if they will have to turn them in to the department as provided for.

Fluctuations in Market

Mr. Green says the issuance of marriage licenses has been a precarious business, subject to as many fluctuations as in the stock market, and the chances are that some license forms will have to be returned to the government, although the agents have been warned not to "stock up."

Fee Increased

The fee for a license was for many years $2, but in 1916 the Provincial Treasurer had the Marriage Act amended by increasing the fee to $5, notwithstanding that the war was on at that time, and the marriages were not very numerous, and he saw no sufficient reason to penalize a basic social industry. The fee has not since been changed as the present Government are in no way inclined to reduce any source of revenue. Of this sum $4 went to the Government, and the balance of $1 being the rather meagre perquisite allowed the issuer for making out the necessary affidavits as to the age and other prerequisites of the parties to contract a valid marriage.

Provided wih the license the services of a clergyman were secured, who tied the knot, which in Canada no matter what the provocation may be, only an Act of Parliament can dissolve. The marriage need not take plac in a church or chapel, but may be solemnized in a house or other convenient place, but not before six a.m., or after ten p.m., except under special circumstances.

Meaning of Banns

The license is not required where the intention of the parties is proclaimed once openly, and in an audible voice, either in a church, chapel or meeting-house in which one of the persons has been in the habit of attending worship, or in some church, meeting-house or place of public worship of the congregation or religious body with which the minister or clergyman who performs the ceremony is connected, in the local municipality, parish, circuit or pastoral charge, where one o the persons has, for the space of fifteen days immediately preceding, had his or her usual place of abode; and where both the persons do not reside in the same local municipality, parish, circuit or pastoral charge. This is called publishing the banns, a method of publicity which has much to commend it and which is frequently used.

Flaws in System

The Marriage Act was discovered to be not so flawless as was supposed. Ministers whose authority was open to question sometimes performed the ceremony, and those who had authority sometimes did not exercise very much wisdom and united in marriage the feeble-minded and on some occasions those under the influence of intoxicating liquor, notwithstanding that one guilty of such conduct is liable to a penalty of $500, also imprisonment of any term not exceeding twelve months. Issuers were, occasionally, not sufficiently particular in issuing licenses. People received licenses who were not entitled—the feeble-minded, the obviously under age, and those who had no right to enter into a contact fraught with so serious consequences to themselves and the State—and the whole system was considered by the present Ontario Govrnment to be susceptible of improvement.

Who May Officiate

The ministers and clergymen of every church and religious denomination, duly ordained or appointed according to the rites and ceremonies of the churches or denominations to which they respectively belong.

"Any elder, evangelist or missionary of the church or congregations of the religious people known congregationally as "Congregations of God' or 'of Christ' or individually as 'Disciples of Christ' who may be chosen by any such congregation for the solemnization of marriage.

"Any duly-appointed commissioner or staff officer of the Salvation Army, chosen, etc."

"Every marriage duly solemnized according to the rites and usages of the Society of Friends or Quakers."

Eligibles Registered

This year, the Legislature has made an attempt to classify and register the names of all persons authorized to solemnize marriages, and the time that such person was so authorized, and in case said authorization shall have been cancelled the date of the cancellation of the authority to solemnize marriages.

Fees the Same.

Under the new act, the license fee still remains at $5. Of this sum $4 goes to the government as heretofore, $1 being retained by the issuer or his deputy for his own use unless the council of the municipality shall commute the said allowance for a fixed sum payable annually by the municipality to the issuer or deputy-issuer, when thereafter the aforesaid allowance on the issue of each license or certificate shall belong to the municipality.

Who Gets the Dollar

In Toronto the profit of $1 on each license issued will go into the City treasury and forms no part of the City Clerk's perquisites as allowed in smaller municipalities. But so far Peterborough's City Council have taken no definite action as to the exact disposal of this dollar profit.

THE CLOSING SESSIONS OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION

INTERESTING ADDRESSES BY VISITING SPEAKERS — IMPORTANCE OF CO-OPERATION STRESSED.

The Saturday afternoon session of the convention of Epworth Leagues for the Bay of Quinte Conference was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. G. E. Ross, pastor of Mark street Methodist Church. Rev. C. S. Applegath of Port Hope, gave an interesting talk, which dealt mainly with the literary side of Epworth League endeavor, emphasizing the influence of good reading on the choice of a vocation in life and asking the young people to help along the work covered the Christian Guardian publication.

Rev. A. H. Foster of Belleville, who acted as chairman, gave a short speech, recounting the efforts of the Methodist Church in Canada in the cause of education, in temperance and moral reforms, and the wonderful inspiration afforded by it in the forward movement.

At the close of the afternoon session, the delegates repaired to the Reid street hall for a banquet served at 5:30 by the ladies of the four Epworth Leagues in the city. Rev. Mr. Clark, Mr. Frost and Mr. Applegath gave short talks here on the summer schools at Belleville and at Muskoka and on the coming boys' work conferences to be held at Lindsay and Cobourg.

Evening Session.

The Saturday evening session was an enthusiastic union rally of the Presbyterian Young People and the Methodist Young People of the city, presided over by Rev. A. H. Foster of Belleville. Rev. J. A. McKenzie led the devotional services. A fine address was delivered by Rev. Manson Doyle B.A. Assistant Secretary of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies of the Methodist Church, dealing mainly with the desire of the soul for religion. "You can't buy the things of life that will satisfy you. You will never be satisfied but with God and in God." He warned his hearers against the danger of looking only for religion under the guise of a Methodist or a Presbyterian mantle, as they had been prone to do in the past, and asked them to look for "the throb of religion that is expressing itself in things that we are failing to see today." He asked them to fling aside the draperies to which they had been accustomed, and said, 'It is not the form, it is not the dress, it is not the tones you hear; it is the dynamic that is behind it that matters" He cited the case of the French Canadian settler whose religion, that of a Roman Catholic, may seem strange to many of us," who was instrumental many years ago in acting as intermediary between the Canadian and American governments on the one side, and a band of warlike Sioux Indians on the other, simply because the latter believed in the word of this man.

Rev. C. A. Meyers, B. A. of Toranto, Associate Secretary of Sunday Schools and Young Peoples' Societies of the Presbyterian Church, followed with an address stressing mainly the importance of co-operation between Methodists and Presbyterians and other bodies of the church, and recommending the inauguration of a National Young People's Work Board, which would work along similar lines to the National Work Boards now in existence in connection with Young Mens' and Young Womens' work.

The Sunday Services were carried out by an address in the morning from Dr. F. C. Stephenson of Toronto, giving an outline of his impressions of the Orient in a recent trip, and in the afternoon, a session entitled "Our thin Red Line" dealt with brief five-minute talks by various speakers on the life stories of the eight foreign missionaries supported by the Conference.

In the evening, to a crowded church Rev. Mr. Doyle delivered an eloquent and impressive sermon on "Power", stressing the importance of the young people of Canada devoting their spiritual powers to the causes of religion. This was followed by a half-hour of consecration attended by about 500 people. The services were led by the Rev. Mr. Young, who gave a brief talk also.

MRS. DOYLE LIVED ON MILK AND BREAD

TANLAC RESTORES HAMILTON WOMAN TO PERFECT HEALTH —NOW EATS ANYTHING.

"I think it is enough to make anyone happy to enjoy the splendid health I do now," said Mrs. John Doyle, of 123 John street, North, Hamilton, Ont.

"Last winter I had the 'flu,' and as I had already been in badly rundown condition for several years, it just seemed to wreck my whole system. All through the winter I was down in bed half the time, instead of geting better I seemed to get worse. My stomach was so badly upset that I had to live entirely on bread and milk. If I ventured to eat anything at all I would simply suffer agony.

"I would have terrible pains in my stomach and would bloat up so bad that I often felt as if I was suffocating. My nerves were worn to a frazzle and I had frequent headaches. I went to bed tired, got up feeling tired and all through the day hardly had the strength to do a thing.

"But I'm so glad I tried Tanlac, because my suffering is all over now. I just feel splendid, eat whatever I wish and never have a tuoch of indigestion. My nerves are steady and I am free from headaches. I sleep perfectly sound and just feel so much stronger that the housework seems easier than ever. My daughter has taken Tanlac since it restored my health and it has helped her just like it did me. Tanlac has certainly been a blessing in our home."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of the Examiner, —The Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. wih to thank very heartily The Examiner for its kindly editorial and press notices of last week's issues in connection with the bazaar held last Friday and Saturday, and to those citzens who supported them.

The weather on the opening day was far from desirable for bazaar trade, but Saturday proved on excellent day and much good business done which is very gratifying to the society, and will thus enable its members to continue the good work among returned soldiers and their dependents. Yours respectfully,

Sarah E. Devey,
Treas.

ALEX. MERVIN PASSED ENTRANCE.

In the account of the meeting of the King Edward Home and School Association, published in Saturday evening's paper, a mistake occurred in the publishing of the name of Alex. Denoon. This name should have been Alex. Mervin. Alexander, who is a son of Mr. John Mervin, is in his eleventh year, and was one of the pupils who passed the entrance examinations directly from the senior third class of the King Edward School.

JUGMENT AGAINST HYDRO-ELECTRIC COM.

APPEALED AGAINST PROPERTY ASSESSMENT IN FENELON FALLS.

FENELON FALLS, Oct. 10.—Before Judge Swayze, in this village, the municipality's claim to the right to assess the property of the Hydro-Electric Commission at $18,760 was sustained. This amount was fixed by the local Court of Revision, and Hydro-Electric appealed to the County Judge on two grounds, first, that the property was Government property, and was not liable to assessment; secondly, that the assessment was excessive and amounted to a great deal more than the fair average value of the other land in the locality.

Mr. Geo. H. Lindsay, assessor for Lindsay; W. J. Henry, assessor for Peterborough, and Newton Smale all gave evidence for the village of Fenelon Falls, and after argument judgment was given fixing the assessment at $18,760. T. H. Stinson represented the village of Fenelon Falls, and the Hon. I. B. Lucas, K.C., and H. Menzies, of Toronto, acted for the Hydro Commission.

"TROPIC RANGES"

The Ideal Kitchen Range of to-day Made in Peterboro

Will Your Old Range Last The Winter Out?

That is the question you should ask yourself now, before it is too late, and the cold, wintry weather has come and your old Stove begins to eat up fuel faster than you can put it in, and gives off no Heat. We would suggest that you come in To-morrow and see our stock of Kitchen Ranges, both Coal and Gas combined and Coal or Wood.

THE TROPIC RANGE—That is the Coal or Wood Range, is the most economical Kitchen Range on the market to-day. It is so constructed that every piece of Wood and every nugget of Coal put in its fire box gives its full value in Heat, both to the Oven and to the Room. There are no complicated attachments to the regulating part of this Range—it is as easy and as simple as could be. Another great feature of this Stove is the removable fire bricks, which are made of cast-iron, and are in Eight Separate Pieces. No danger of the Fire Box burning out in the TROPIC RANGE.

This Range is manufactured in Peterborough, and should any part need renewing, no matter what it may be, can be had at a moment's notice.

The Empire Combined Coal and Gas Range

Is a masterpiece in the art of Combination Range building. The Gas Section is situated at the back or right hand side of the Range, and has Four Gas Holes, which may be covered with a lid or left open, and the Oven may be Heated either by Coal or Gas. Before the weather becomes too cold, and Winter sets in, it would certainly pay you to see these Two Models in our Economy Basement.

We also have a good stock of extra Pipes and Elbows to fit. These sell at ..... 28c and 30c link

LOCAL BOARD OF HEALTH SEEK THE APPOINTMENT OF A CLERK

NEED OFFICIAL TO ASSUME COMPLETE CHARGE OF BOOKS AND FURNISH STATISTICS ON INFECTIOUS DISEASES.

HEATING IMPROVEMENTS

The Board of Health at their October meeting recommended to the City Council that a clerk be appointed to have complete charge of the books and the records of the Board, to relieve the other officers, and to furnish statistics on infectious diseases that are being required by the Provincial Board of Health.

One applicant for this position said that he believed if he gave four hours a day to the clerical work the books would be satisfactorily looked after, a monthly report for the council could be prepared, reports for the provincial Board of Health, and exact statements of the Board of Health's activities for the enlightenment of the public would be available at all times.

Dr. Young and C. S. Stapleton, the Sanitary Inspector, advised the appointment of a clerk, pointing out that they did not have time to look after the clerical duties, except at the expense of their other work. Dr. Young felt the board had power to appoint such an officer without going to the council but Mr. Lynch and Mayor McIntyre said it looked like usurping council's powers.

Dr. A. Y. McNair, of the Provincial Board of Health, who will have charge of the Peterboro Laboratory, when it is opened, spoke of the importance of accurate reports. He pointed out how the Provincial Board is collecting statistics in contagious diseases from all parts of the province and he said he did not think it would be long before cities would be required to furnish accurate reports on conditions in each centre. "The clerical work must be carefully done or the figures are not worth anything," he said.

"I don't think we are usurping the power of the council in this appointment," said Dr. Young.

"I wouldn't advise anything before it had come before the council," maintained the mayor.

"How would it be to point out the recommendation of the doctor and let it go to the council with this letter," said Mr. Mason.

"I think it is necessary they have these statistics. Such work is more than Mr. Stapleton or I can look after," Dr. Young said. "We would like to get a proper system going by the first of the year."

Mayor McIntyre moved and Mr. Mason seconded the resolution that the council be asked to appoint a clerk to keep the records of the board, to supply statistics to the Provincial Board of Health relieving the other officers of this work.

A Sewerage Question.

C. Masterson, 26 Park street north, asked the board not to force him to make sewer connection as he was not in a position to carry out the notification sent him."

"He told me that he would be glad to do that providing he had work this winter," said Chairman Duncan. "He means to do what is right," he added, "but he has been cut of work." The board left the matter over till their next meeting.

Improvements Needed.

The plumbing firm of Archibald and Richmond made the following report on vents in the Queen Mary Hospital:

The air vents on the radiators are of an inferior quality and are very much worn thereby causing an escape of steam at each vent.

We propose to rectify this noise and escape of steam by replacing all the radiators and air vents on main with Heffernan Automatic air vents, which are first class in quality, and are non-adjustable, insuring service all the time, as no one can tamper with the mechanism of the same. We beg to quote the price for supplying and installing 36 vents at $135. Two vents are on demonstration at the hospital now.

"The Chairman, Mr. Mason and myself went up and inspected the vents. Before they were put on you could hardly hear yourself speak. The noise was continuous and louder than rifle hots. This disturbance had ceased and they seemed to be working satisfactorily", said Dr. Young.

"Will we leave that over?" asked Mr. Mason.

"If it's required there's no use in leaving it over", replied Mr. Lynch.

"Those are necessary things" said the chairman.

Dr. Young, proposed that they be installed.

"The only question is the price" remarked Mr. Mason.

The chairman and Mr. Mason believed the prices of different vents should be looked into. The M.O.H. and chairman were authorized to have new vents installed in the heating system of Queen Mary Hospital and it was understood other vents will be investigated, and the best selected.

Miss Kincaids Resignation

The resignation of Miss Kathleen Kincaid from the staff of Queen Mary Hospital was received by the Board and accepted on motion of Mr. Lynch.

Several members testified warmly to Miss Kincaid's service, and a letter of regret at her leaving will be sent from the Board.

"The Board regrets very much Miss Kincaid's resignation for she has been a very faithful nurse for a long time," was Ex-Mayor Duncan's tribute to her. Miss Kincaid's resignation takes effect on November 1.

Telephone Extensions.

While discussing improvements to the heating system, it was decided to put in the two telephone extensions upstairs that have been needed, it was stated, for a long time.

On motion of Mr. Mason, the chairman was authorized to have these extensions installed.

DELEGATES MIDLAND PRESS IN PORT HOPE

MET IN SEMI-ANNUAL SESSION —ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON BY TOWN COUNCIL.

The twenty delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the Midland Press Association held in Port Hope recently, were guests of the Town Council at luncheon in the Queen's Hotel.

Mayor Curtis, on behalf of the town, welcomed the visitors, and in the course of a eulogistic address, said no one can question the influence of the press for good or otherwise upon the community of its readers; and he claimed for the press of Canada a very high place in ideal journalism.

"The press is but the servant of the human intellect," His Worship concluded, "and its ministry is for good or evil, according to the character of those who direct it. The press is a mill that grinds all that is put into its hopper. Fill the hopper with poisoned grain, and it will grind it to meal but there is death in the bread."

Brief addresses were also made by Mr. Sales, President of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, and Mr. A. H. C. Long, President of the Board of Trade, after which the delegates were taken for a motor trip around the town.

SAYS EPIDEMIC OF DISEASE IS NOW DECLINING

HEALTH OFFICER GIVEN AUTORITY BY BOARD TO SEND CARRIERS TO ISOLATION HOSPITAL

SCHOOL PUPILS LET DRINK RAW WATER

Reporting to the Board of Health on the epidemic of scarlet fever and diphtheria, which has prevailed in Peterborough for some weeks, Dr. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, said he thought the worst stage was now past. "The disease is on the decrease," Dr. Young said. "There are only three cases out of the hospital. I am sorry to report Miss G. Casey, one of the nurses, has contracted diphtheria. She was worn out looking after six patients a night, and was in such a condition as to get it easily.

Dr. Young recommended that carriers be sent to the hospital, and after some discussion the Board gave Dr. Young authority to send such cases as he deemed necessary to the hospital. "The carriers haven't any disease, but they are a great menace. I feel that they should not be charged for in other respects they are quite well and the people naturally consider it a hardship when they have to pay for their children who seem quite well."

Dr. Young said the carriers were practically immune and could be treated carefully by skilled nurses and the germs in the throat eradicated. Dr. Young said he would only send as many as could be cared for.

The Board of Health decided to send some message of regret to Miss Casey, who contracted the disease in serving others.

One Typhoid Case.

In discussing the school children being allowed to drink raw water, Dr. Young said he felt the water would be better from now on, and Mr. E. F. Mason said it was getting too late to do anything in the way of requiring the Board of Education to boil the water for the children. Dr. Young reported one case of typhoid in the city, not a very serious case, he told The Examiner after the meeting. He remarked that it was a wonder there had not been more with the water in such a serious condition during the summer.

Before the Board adjourned Dr. Young praised the action of the Separate School Board in deciding to appoint a school doctor and nurse. Bishop M. J. O'Brien had informed him he said, of the decision, and he heartily commended it. Other members spoke commendably of the action of the Separate School Board.

Report Isolation Hospital.

Miss A. M. Price's report for Queen Mary Hospital for September showed there were 25 patients in hospital on Sept. 1. Of these scarlet fever were 17 and diphtheria 6. During the month 32 cases were admitted, scarlet fever 13 and diphtheria 19. Of these 55 cases, 50 were city patients and five out-of-town cases.

Twenty-four cases were discharged during the month. There were three deaths. On Oct. 1 there were 30 cases in hospital, scarlet fever 16, diphtheria 14.

Monthly Statement.

The monthly statement of the hospital showed an expenditure of $1,037.44 during September. Of this amount $416.66 was for salaries. Total expenditure from Jan. 1 to Sep. 30, was shown to be $10,082.39. The amount was swelled because of the addition of a special nurse at $135 a month to take care of the rush of infectious cases.

Accounts Passed.

The following accounts were passed: A Lapp, $40; R. J. Soden, $15.05; Peterborough Utilities Commission, $20.00; J. W. Edwards, $29.42; Wm. Brown, $66.50; T. Gilgoud and Son, $24.68; Pet. Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who had suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this latter.

Mrs. Tena A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicines I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I felt that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

WOMAN'S ART ASSOCIATION

The Peterborough Branch of the Women's Art Association held their annual business meeting on Friday evening last, 7th October, when the following report on the year's work was given:

"The members of the Peterborough Branch of the Women's Art Association have every reaon to be gratified with the success that has attended their efforts during the past year.

"The outstanding event of the year might be said to have been Miss Katherine E. Wallis' exhibition, which was in every way one of the most successful exhibitions in the history of the Association. After the exhibit, the W. A. A. decided to purchase the bronze panel of Miss Wallis', entitled "The Goodlie Fellowship of Solitude," which is now hanging on the studio walls, the possession of the Association.

"Five very well attended musicales were held during the year. Special mention might be made of the one of which Mrs. W. R. Widdess was in charge, at which guests from Lindsay made the programme very attractive.

"The four interesting and instructive lectures delivered during the year were:

"Photography—by Mr. F. L. Roy.

"Famous Paintings—by Miss J. C. McRae.

"Mozart—by Miss Edwina Palmer, and Mrs. McLaughlin, a former member, also gave us a very delightful talk on her stay in England and her study there of English architecture and interior decoration.

"There have been nine regular executive meetings during the year, with attendance varying from six to twenty.

"The Association has raised $75.00, besides its regular expenses, during the year, and the treasurer's report shows a balance on hand of $52.00. The money with which the Association purchased Miss Wallis' panel was raised by a subscription from the members and by a very successful musicale given last June under the direction of Miss E. Palmer.

"During the year, the Association has lost two valued members—Miss Lenore Sanderson and Miss Amy K. Bennett, both of whom were always actively interested in all the work of the Association."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing season:

President—Mrs. F. C. Neal.

1st Vice-president—Mrs. A. E. Sherwood.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION REPORT TO THE SYNOD

HAMILTON, Oct. 10.— (Canadian Press).—Presentation and consideration of the report of the General Board of Religious Education was the most important feature at the meeting of the Anglican Synod this morning.

A recommendation commending union of the Font Roll and Babies Branch of the Ladies Auxiliary was strongly opposed by Archdeacon Cody, Toronto, who declared that just as soon as a boy becomes conscious of himself he objects to becoming part of a woman's organization.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Sir,—On behalf of the Children's Aid Board, I wish to thank the following: All those who worked so faithfully on Saturday in weather, which for the greater part of the time was most unfavourable my efficient office help, the Union Bank and its staff, the Radial Railway Company for free service, and those who so kindly loaned their cars. Especial thanks are due Bishop O'Brien and the ministers of the city for their kind co-operation in this splendid work, the sisters and teachers in the schools, The Evening Examiner, and all those who in any way assisted in making our Tag Day a most successful event.

Mrs. Joseph Knox, Convenor.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The Gibraltar of Free-trade has been captured. The Globe of Saturday has these memorable words in its editorial: "Liberals, not only in Quebec, but all over Canada, declare that they are not for Free-trade, but for reform and revision." So are all and always. Nothing is perfect. And thus the Liberal policy of so many long, weary years vanishes. And now we see why the Farmers' Party arose. It stands for the Free-trade which the Liberals abandoned, and for no tax upon agricultural implements, lumbermen's machinery and mining machinery. No tax at all, mind you. As for the other things which the Western farmer does not use, but which other people do—well! As they are not Western farmers, just let them be taxed. What a fair-minded, sensible policy that is, to be sure. Tax the East and let the Prairies go free. Wipe out the farmer with his home market in the East, but build up the price of farm lands in the West. Sure! We have always done it—why not continue?

J. H. Burnham.

CHAMPIONSHIPS ARE POSTPONED

The City Athletic Championships which were to have been held on Saturday of this week, have been postponed until the following Saturday. An extra week will give the competitors more time to train and they should be in the best of shape as a result of the postponement.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Kiever.

Vancouver, B.C.—"I am pleased to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me a lot of good. I can now walk about without the aid of a support and feel real strong again. A nurse advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and it is certainly helping me. It seems like Heaven to be relieved after months of pain."—Mrs. H. W. Baker, 3874 10th Ave. West, Vancouver, B.C.

Albert Co., N. B.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines and they have done me a lot of good. Since then I have been able to do my housework and I have a lot of work to do as we live on a farm. Seeing your advertisement in the papers was what made me think of writing to you. I hope this may help some one else."—Mrs. Wm. B. Keiver, Upper New Horton, Albert Co., N. B.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

SHUNTING ENGINE STRUCK MOTOR CAR

THREE OSHAWA MEN ARE SERIOUSLY INJURED—BRAKEMAN IN CRITICAL CONDITION.

OSHAWA, October 8. — When a shunting engine crashed into an automobile on the Oshawa railway track, at the corner of King Street and Ritson Road, Brakeman C. R. Wewin, who was riding on the front of the engine, sustained injuries, as the result of which he lies in the Oshawa Hospital in a critical condition. Both legs were broken, the right foot and lower part of one leg badly crushed, and amputation was necessary, while the other leg sustained a compound fracture, but hope is maintained of saving the member. Kewin was thrown under the motor of the shunter when the collision occurred.

William Gamble, a local electrician, who was driving the auto, which was badly wrecked, had his collarbone broken, besides receiving head injuries, while W. McMaster, another brakeman, was injured, but his condition is not considered serious. Both these men are also in the hospital here.

BOWERS NOMINATED

OTTAWA, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).— Henry Bowers, of Bell's Corners, was on Saturday selected at the Convention of the Carleton County United Farmers held at Richmond as the National Progressive Party candidate in the forthcoming Federal elections.

JUNIOR WORLD SERIES

pire McGowan led up to the demonstration. Throughout the game close decisions were rendered and the Louisville rooters thought they were in favour of the Baltimore team. The clubs took the field with Louisville leading two to one in the series and the fans were in no humor to accept decisions that appeared to be wrong.

In the ninth inning, with two men on bases, two men out and two strikes and three balls on Jacobson, Umpire McGowan called the next pitched ball a ball although the fans thought the batter swung at it. A single scored two runs and put another Oriole on third. Bentley hit a grounder to Kirke and the play at first was close. Umpire Connolly called Bentley safe. The crowd apparently did not stop to consider that it was not McGowan who made the decision and the spectators charged the field.

Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Louisville Club, rushed to McGowan's side and with the aid of half a dozen police escorted him to the visitors' dugout where the cushion fight started. The police succeeded in getting the umpires into the office of President Knebelkamp, of the Louisville Club, where they remained under guard until the streets were cleared. The score:

TIGERS BEATEN BY OTTAWA 8-5

ROUGH RIDERS WIN LOOSELY PLAYED GAME ON VERITABLE SEA OF MUD.

OTTAWA, October 10 (Canadian Press). — The Hamilton Tigers went down to defeat before the onslaught of the Rough Riders of Ottawa in an inter-Provincial Rugby Football League game at Lansdowne Park on Saturday afternoon by a score of 8 to 5. Bitter cold weather greeted the teams for the struggle, and the gridiron, following the continuous rains of Friday, was a veritable sea of mud and water. The only wind was a slight, gusty northerner, which blew directly across the field and proved litte or no advantage to either team. Nearly 5,000 people witnessed the struggle.

The game, which marked the opening of the "Big Four" in the Capital this season, was, on the whole, a disappointment to the fans. The weather, and the condition of the playing field, undoubtedly militated against good football, and the first two periods particularly brought forth a succession of fumbling and loose playing seldom witnessed in a football contest in the Senior Series.

Ottawa assumed the lead in the first quarter when Joe Tubman kicked McKelvey, who was downed behind the line for a point. A few minutes later Roger Smith galloped over the line for a try, which Joe Smith failed to convert. From then on the locals maintained a slight margin of superiority over the Tigers until the closing minutes of the game.

The Tigers then, in the fact of almost certain defeat, and in possession of the ball well within their own territory, staged a terrific comeback. Playing against a determined resistance, and with only a few minutes left to play, they crashed through the line in an irresistable manner, and fought their way to the Ottawa five-yard line.

The crowd, en route for home, practically assured of a local victory, stopped to watch the bitter struggle being waged in the shadow of the local's goalposts.

Twice the Bengal warriors were hurled against the wavering line of the Rough Riders, and the third down found them only a yard from the Ottawa line and victory. Poised and ready to spring, the valiant efforts of these doughty rugbyists from the Ambitious City were brought to naught by the shrill blast of the whistle ending the game.

HOUSEHOLD SALTS

That salt possesses tonic qualities is well known, but it as remained for a woman suffering from nervous prostration to use a dry sea salt rub with benefical results. She soaks a coarse wash cloth in a strong solution of the sea salt, then dries it. After her cold bath of a morning she wipes off the moisture with a towel, then rubs with the salty wash cloth till her skin is in a glow. She says she has found this to be far more invigorating than the more usual bath in salt water.

Fifty Dollars a Month

(Guaranteed to you by the Canada Life)

How Fifty Dollars a Month looks to the Average Man

Age 20—Happy on Fifty Dollars a month.

Age 21—Fifty Dollars a month is not enough.

Age 35—Thinks he can easily afford to "spend" Fifty Dollars a month

Age 50—Things are not going as well as they were.

Age 55—Strange how these assets have depreciated! Fifty Dollars a month is good interest on $10,000, and not to be despised.

Age 60—He finds Fifty Dollars a month pension, added to what income is left, brings happiness.

You know of men well up in years who are still "drudging along". They cannot stop if they would, but must go on to the end of their days working for a living. You can avoid that.

Why Not Pension Yourself?

Why not "take stock" of your present financial position—to size up your personal affairs and decide on a plan for the future?

Our New Pension Plan

guarantees that upon reaching a certain age in life, you will receive a monthly cheque for $50.00, $100, $200, $250—as you may now decide—and this monthly payment cannot cease as long as you live.

An Income for Life

Think what it may mean to you to be certain of an income right up to the end of life, when you consider that 97% of people in their later years are partially or wholly dependent upon others for support.

When they were younger they did not have the chance now offered you. It was not then possible to secure such a convenient and certain provision as this Monthly Pension Plan.

And This is Not All

Suppose some day before you reach age sixty you meet with a mishap and become totally and permanently disabled through accident, illness or any cause. (Such a thing has happened soon after men have secured this new policy of the Canada Life.) Immediately, the payment of further premiums would be cancelled. The Canada Life would become responsible for sending you $50.00, $100, $200, $250, a month, as arranged, for the rest of your life.

There are many other benefits.

An average deposit of only a few dollars a month will return you $50.00 a month later on.

ROTARIANS MEET TO-DAY

(BY F. H. DOBBIN)

To-day's meeting of the Rotary Club brought out a fine attendance, not only of members, but so many as seven visitors. Of these, three were members of other Rotaries, and the balance plain citizens who came as guests to view the proceedings and get innoculated. Following this, as a matter of course, they become members, if the classification so permits. For Rotary takes in only one of each kind. Just now the membership is approaching the celebrated 57 varieties.

Rotarian John Crane, reported for Rotarian Rogers, as to the Boys' camp site. Rotarians Rogers and McElderry had gone up to Clear Lake to pick out a spot on the eastern shore. As there is about three miles of shore line to pick from the two spies were practically in the role of envoys. They got Mr. Sam. Bryson, the owner, and he showed all the favorable sites. The site needed a good waterfront, level ground for baseball, a shallow place for small bathers, and deeper shore line for swimmers. Nice place to build a dock and something of shelter for boats. And not too much clearing to do.

The idea of leasing the ground had evaporated, as it was deemed hazarduous to erect buildings on a leasehold, even for a long period, so a proposition was put up to Mr. Bryson to sell a couple of acres frontage and running back so far, quite far enough and not so far that boys might stray off the territory and get lost. After some financial skirmishing Rotarian Rogers named a sum for the lot, just as a tentative offer. A feeler, a suggestion. Mr. Bryson was doubtful. Not that the price as suggested was too little, but that it was too much." Now it can be easily understood that this suggestion startled the couple of Rotarians. Nothing like it had ever happened outside of Rotary, the influence of which leads men to do extraordinary things. And it will be observed that Mr. Bryson was not even a member, though that may be remedied further on. After chewing the cud of the proposition for a few minutes, Mr. Bryson calmly proposed to accept just half of the sum named by Rotarian Rogers and in which Rotarian McElderry had concurred. The two at once sat down on the cold, cold ground to get their respective breaths, and arose to shake hands and make acknowledgments. How, may we ask, is that for Rotary. There is no doubt that Mr. Bryson appreciated what the land was for, and that he had a soft spot for young boys, having once been a boy himself, and in a most decent way facilitated the enterprise. Now if the man who has lumber, and nails, and scantlings, and roofing materials will not hang back but do something like the above, the camp can be built bigger and more generous than has been thought of. There is nothing like example to be effective.

Mr. R. Dunbar, who is in the city in the interests of the campaign for funds for the tuberculosis hospital at Gravenhurst, Muskoka, addressed the gathering. It was one of the very best appeals ever given in the city in aid of the movement. Drawing his anolagy from the casualties of the late war, as affecting Canada, and Ontario, he contrasted the incessant depletion of the population by consumption. More deadly and incessant. The casualties in the field during the war had been exceeded by those at home from the dread disease. He told of the efforts of men in the past, having a vision, to fight the great white plague, and of the success that made the death-rate from this disease the lowest per capita of population in the world, considering the territory involved. He closed with a feeling appeal to Rotarians to get behind the movement as citizens and see that the amount expected from Peterborough, only an average of fifty cents per head of population, was met, if not exceeded. Ten years of good hearty work would almost wipe out the plague.

The usual Rotarian songs were delivered and greetings to the visitors and guests expressed.

Rotarian McPherson brought up the proposition of a smoker, to which the baseball experts and participants, now in camp at Rice Lake, would be invited and whom many would like to meet. The Boys' Camp Committee and a few added were told to go on and organize the smoker and tell everybody about it and where and when.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Rails were the only important exceptions to the firmer tone of the Stock Market at the opening of to-day's session. Union Pacific fell 1 3-8, and other Trans-Continentals as well as Cotton Carriers were fractionally lower. The constructive side of the market again was chiefly represented by Oils, notably the low-grade shares. The list became somewhat unsettled within the first half-hour as a result of selling pressure directed mainly against Mexican Petroleum and Studebaker.

The early reaction was most pronounced among Motors and Subsidiaries, also Burns Brothers, Consolidated Cigar, Famous Players and Remington Typewriter preferred, which declined one to four points. Recoveries before noon were led by less prominent oils such as California Petroleum preferred, Standard Oil of California, Price Oil preferred and Shell Transport at gains of one to three points. Mexican Petroleum and Houston Oil also strengthened and American Sugar preferred and Sears Roebuck were higher. Leaders of the Industrial and Railway groups were sluggish and irregular at best. Liberty Bonds, with one exception, were slightly lower, probably on profit taking.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.— (Canadian Press.) — Opening wheat prices, which varied from unchanged figures to two cents higher with December 1.10 1-4 to 1.11 and May 1.14 3-4 to 1.15 1-4, were followed by a material setback, but then by renewed gains. After opening 1-4 to 5- cents higher, including December at 48 to 48 1-4, the market sagged to below Saturday's finish.

Oats were easier with Corn, starting 1-8 to 1-2 up. December 33 3-4 to 33 7-8 and later showing slight losses.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The week opened exceedingly dull on the Toronto Stock Exchange, with very few stocks dealt in this forenoon. One block of 100,000 (par value) 1934 Victory Bonds boosted the total sales in this department. The block went at 94.70, which was five cents higher than Saturday's top, and was the highest paid for this issue this morning. The only other Victory to show any activity was the 1923's, which held about steady or a trifle lower than Saturday.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts 5,055; trade good. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $6.25 to $7.25; butcher steers, choice, $6 to $6.50; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4; calves, $11 to $13; lambs, $8.25 to $8.50; hogs, selects, $10.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The local Stock Exchange opened for the week this morning in a quiet manner, and during the early trading nothing of interest occurred. Brazilian was steady and unchanged at 23 3-4, as was also National Brewery at 52½. Dominion Steel was quoted at 25½.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Capitol entertainment offers its patrons to-night another big seven-reel super special production, "The Woman God Changed," and two big double acts of vaudeville, Healy and Williams presenting "The Pit Boys," Ackland and Mae, comedy singing, talking and dancing. hese two acts are both big headliners, and Paramount Theatres, Inc., are trying to give its patrons the best entertainment they can possibly secure, and only through special arrangements they were able to secure these two big headliners.

"The Woman God Changed"

The Celtic romance of Donn Byrne's literary temperament finds abundant room for gratification in his story, "The Woman God Changed" published in Hearst's Magazine, and picturized for Paramount by Cosmopolitan productions.

Byrne's genius for creating this type of story makes him peculiarly adapted to the screen. Born in New York he early found his way to Ireland the land of his fathers. He lived in its fairy stories, read its folk-lore, attended its schools, until at last he emerged a D. A. from University College, Dublin. Mr. Byrne is an athlete and lover of golf and yachting. He is a member of the International Sporting Club, New York; Woodway (Conn.) Golf Club; Riverside (Conn.) Yacht Club; is a contributor to sports magazines, and is considered an authority on boxing and wrestling.

AT THE ALLEN.

THE MAUDE ADAMS OF THE FILMS.

Mae Marsh, who plays the leading role of the Girl in the modern story of "Intolerance," D. W. Griffith's latest spectacle which will appear at the Allen Theatre, commencing to-day, is known all over the country as the Maude Adams of the films. She has also been called the girl with a thousand faces. She has played tomboys and heroines, consumptive girls and athletic girls. She has been the slavey and she has been the princess. The first picture in which she appeared was "The Sands O'Dee"; the initial role to bring her prominently into the limelight was that of Apple Mary in Griffith's "Home, Sweet Home."

At twenty there is not much to one's biography. Mae Marsh was born in Madrid, New Mexico. Her father was an auditor of the Santa Fe Railroad, and she has lived in many places. She was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent in San Francisco, and she was a schoolgirl there during the great fire. After that her family moved to Los Angeles. Year by year she has grown, under the direction of Mr. Griffith, from a player of childish parts to the leading emotional actress of the screen. With the many millions who saw her play the role of Flora Cameron in "The Birth of a Nation," her popularity seemed unbounded, but in her latest role she has won still greater triumphs.

That there were Worths and Paquins in Ancient Babylon, and that they didn't believe in concealing the physical charms of the woman beautiful, any more than the Worths and Paquins of to-day, is evidenced in the Babylonian episode of D. W. Griffith's new spectacle, "Intolerance."

AT THE REGENT.

MOST REALISTIC PANIC EVER ACTED FOR SCREEN

An explosion wrecked the Yiddish Theatre in the East side of New York.

Thousands stampeded toward the doors in panic.

Suddenly on the stage appeared a little girl who sang an old and popular song. The audience became quiet and filed through the doors to safety.

That is one of the big dramatic heart-punches that has aroused such favorable comment in "Cheated Love," Carmel Myers' sensational Universal photodrama which is being shown at the Regent Theatre to-day.

The story concerns a little Russian immigrant girl. Her love problems, her self-sacrifice for the man she loves and her triump hover seemingly unsurmountable obstancles have been woven into a romantic story by Lucien Hubbard and Dotis Schroeder, the authors. King Baggot directed it.

The supporting cast includes such favorites as George B. Williams in an interesting character role, Allan Forrest, John Davidson, Ed. Brady, Snitz Edwards "Smoke" Turner, Fred G. Becker M'me Rose Dione, the emotional French star, and many others equally prominent.

Playgoers who attend the Regent Theatre to-day will comment up on humorous touches, spontaneously introduced into the theme, which balance the tense drama and increase the entertainment value of the production.

AT THE GRAND.

CHARLEY'S AUNT.

It is a long time since "Charley's Aunt" was first presented in Peterborough, but the famous old comedy never seems to lose any of its laugh-producing power. Wm. A. Crew offered the atraction at the Grand on Saturday and it proved the usual sure-fire success, a big audience giving every indication of enjoyment. James W. Swift, who was seen in the title role, has wandered somewhat far afield from Etienne Giradots conception of the part and has not hesitated to take liberties with the text, sometimes at the expense of the verities, but he was irresistibly amusing in his work, and provided the audience with almost constant opportunities for laughter. He was well supported by a very capable company. Frank Harvey did splendid work as Sir Frances Chesney and John Todd was entertaining in the part of Stephen Pettigue. Patricia Rand, Blanche Wallace and Edytha Ketchum were prominent members of the cast, and altogether the performance was thoroughly up to standard and enjoyable.

To-night the Rex Stock Company offer "The Lion and the Mouse," with the popular Rex as the "lion."

"SOME GIRL" AT THE GRAND SATURDAY MATINEE AND EVENING

The old wheeze 'when the worm turns' seems to be about the best, brief description of the big idea in the excruciatingly funny story told in LeComte and Flesher's musical comedy highspot, "Some Girl", the writer can suggest. The 'worm' in this case is a deliciously demure, dainty little fishermaiden whose feminine instincts, disclosing her lover's plot to test of her love for him, enables her to outwit the conspirators and counter-plot with exceeding embarrassments, to all concerned but herself. Of course, in the end the lovers are happy, but, the little lady had heaps and heaps of fun before she relented and agreed to an armistice.

This is said to be one of the most novel themes yet employed in this type of play and lends a delightfully refreshing spirit to the usual hackneyed musical-comedyical plots of the last decade.

A strong company of musical comedy experts supported by a host of exceptionally beautiful girls (specially selected for their resemblance to 'sungoddesses'—whom they are supposed to represent—) will be seen here and the real treat of the season's musical offerings seems likely to result. Among the principals, such well known names as Gudrun Walberg, Marguerite Williams, Allan Carter, Lottie Proctor and Tom Crowley may be mentioned.

"FRENCH LEAVE"

Reginald Berkeley, author of "French Leave" which Trans-Canada Theatres Ltd., are producing in Canada is one of the new British dramatists, who has come to public attention recently. "French Leave" his first produced play, has excited considerable attention in London, where it has been playing since last year.

St. John Ervine, the well-known playwright, novelist and dramatic critic, author of "Jane Clegg' and "John Ferguson", has spoken of 'French Leave" with considerable enthusiasm.

Mr. Berkeley, an Englishman who has spent a good part of his life in Australia, is a lawyer by profession His first play was written in New Zealand, and his first published work was 'The Oilskin Jacket' which he says he may turn into a play some day. Amateur acting and stage directing in his boyhood gave him, he declares, his first active desire to become a playwright.

Major Berkeley has become the sensation of the London season. He spins his threads of the theatre swiftly and when they sag as nearly all threads of the theatre will, quickly pulls them taut again. His playwright's hand is light, his playwright's fancy numble, he has his medium of playwright's skill. For the most part he keeps to the general ways of comedy; now and then, almost in spite of him a comic contretemps will rocket into farce. A real character more rounded than the rest, is General Sir Archibald Root, C. B D. S. O., and what not. No doubt Major Berkeley knows his like as he surely knows also the likes of Corporal Sykes (of the "old" and superior way) and Rifleman Jenks (of the "new army and therefore to be put upon"). The youngster is cockney and impish, the old fellow grumpsh and keen and kind, crammed as well with mess room wisdom. The French folk are similar quick sketches from memory.

"French Leave" wil be the attraction at the Grand theatre on Friday October, the 14th.

Fifteen thousand lives and $500,000,000 could be saved in this country annually through firesafe construction.

HARRIERS TO RUN INDOORS TO-NIGHT

ENTIRE SQUAD REMINDED OF WORKOUT AT Y.M.C.A.

The squad of road runners preparing for the Thanksgiving Day race are reminded of to-night's workout. Charlie Thorpe will likely take them around the indoor track at the Y.M.C.A. because of the muddy condition of the roads. Everybody is asked to report promptly at 8 o'clock. The invitation that has been extended through these columns to any men, young or younger, who wish to get into the harrier game, is still open and new candidates will be welcomed. The average attendance is over twenty, but that is not enough for a city the size of Peterborough. Some of the footballers should be attracted to this sport, which will have its culmination in the Thanksgiving Day race, and there are other clubs in the city that are not represented yet. Four weeks remain for training, affording plenty of time for those who turn out now. Charlie Thorpe is giving his time and the benefit of his experience for nothing to the class. Mr. Doug. Loomis of the Y.M.C.A. is offering every encouragement. The response has been quite satisfactory, but there is room for a lot of other young chaps who could devote half an hour or so several evenings a week to good advantage with the harriers.

Previous disturbances originated in an attack on Nationalists and Sinn Feiners engaged in tramway Construction and the workmen were replaced by unionists. To-day the latter reached the Sinn Fein locality in track laying work and reprisals were taken.

CANADIAN WOOLLENS LOST TO VETERANS ON SATURDAY

SMALL CROWD WITNESSED THE FIXTURE—THE LEAGUE STANDING.

MEETING TO-NIGHT

In a soccer fixture that was brimful of interest, the G.W.V.A. defeated the Canadian Woollens 3-1 at the Oval Saturday afternoon before only about one-tenth of the crowd of spectators there should have been. The weather was not conducive to a big crowd, but it was without doubt a nice match to watch. During the first period it had all the earmarks of a Woollens victory, the Vets seeming to have lost their usual dash and brilliancy, but in the last 35 minutes the War Veterans played more evenly. The Vets won by Dwyer using every opportunity to score. During the first period the Woollens had chances to pile up half-a-dozen goals, but misplaced shots will not register. They seemed to have hard luck, too. Never have they played with more "pep." It is only fair to say that while Vets were winners, playing honours would have to be divided about evenly.

The lineups:

Canadian Woollens	G.W.V.A.
Hillman	Payne
Cridland	Gamble
Chambers	Perry
Hensby	Burrows
Frost	Haycock
Roberts	Hurle
Lomax	Hotston
Cascall	J. Willshaw
Jones	Dwyer
Shaw	Willis
Downes	R. Willshaw

There were only ten men on each side when J. L. Howarth got the teams away. After about 15 minutes play, Roberts came on for the Woollens and Haycock took his position at half-back for the Vets. It was cold playing, but there was very little wind. The strength of the Woollens was at once observable. Harold Jones secured the ball and Perry could not stop him, but Goalie Harry Payne returned Jones' low ball to the centre of the field. The Vets were busy trying to keep the Wollens beyond striking distance, but the forwards got through in a mass and swooped down on the Vets' citadel. Payne saved, but it looked like a goal for a second.

Dwyer and "Jim" Shaw are a strong combination and when they carried the ball toward Hillman, the Woollens saw the danger signal. Chambers cleverly broke up their attack and received a fine ovation from the Woollens supporters.

Harold Jones, centre man for the Garnets and Orange was first to score, and although it was hardly believable at the time, it was destined to be their only goal. Gascall on the wing pased to Jones and he dropped the ball over and beyond Payne's head in an admirable shot. The Vets were now on their ettle and began to force the battle. "Bob" Willshaw got near Hillman just before the period ended, crossed to Dwyer, and the centre's fast shot sailed past one of the Woollens backs with only a foot to spare, and was inside the posts by only as much. Hillman was not quick enough to get it. The first period ended 1-1.

Last Half.

A distinct improvement in the Vets was noticebale as soon as play resumed. The backs were more steady and better combination was in progress in the first line. For the first few minutes the Woollens led as in the first period and forced two consecutive corners. They made no avail of either, on the second Roberts' drive for goal going wild. Play swung around Hillman's headquarters and he had his hands full for a while. Dwyer got his second counter on a similar shot to his former, but lower. Willis had an open goal right after, but he kicked high. The next ten minutes was full of individual play, unproductive of any sensations. Neither team were playing together and it looked like a kicking practice. When they settled down again the Vets were steadier, the Woollens just a trifle demoralized. Players are not infallible, and Dwyer did not score in the most sensational dash on the Woollens' gaol of the game. He was travelling stranght for the nets with Cridland and Chambers in the rear. Hillman was crouched to save but the ball went wild.

With the game drawing to a close Dwyer secured the Vets' third and final tally on a pass from Hurle. Hillman rushed out to save and all Dwyer had to do was shoot to one side. Hotston, who is rounding into shape nicely on the wing position, tried hard a minute after, laying a lovely shot which unfortunately for the Vets, Hillman caught cleanly. The game was finished with the Vets playing with the speed that the Woollen started out with.

PETES WON BENEFIT GAME ON SATURDAY

COLD WEATHER KEPT ATTENDANCE AT CHERRETT TESTIMONIAL DOWN — GAME WAS A FAIR EXHIBITION

The local baseball season was brought to a close on Saturday when the Peterborough Central League team and the Canadian General outfit met at Riverside Park in a benefit game for Roy Cherrett, the Petes' short-stop, the Solomon gang winning by 11 to 4, despite the fact that Lefty McElroy pitched for the Electricians against his team mates. The cold weather kept the attendance down, but Cherrett was given a big hand when he came to the plate in the first innings. It was his first appearance since July 13th.

Despite the chill in the air and a diamond slippery from Friday's rain, the game itself was not a bad exhibition of ball. The Petes won easily enough on end, scoring eight runs in the last three innings, but up to the seventh it was a nip and tuck battle, the Electricians leading by 4 to 3 at the close of the sixth. Lefty McElroy had held the Petes to two hits up to that stage, and while Lornie Rose, who pitched for the Central Leaguers, had not been hit hard, two misjudged flies in the outfield had given the C.G.E. a couple of runs, and they got another when Jackson fell as he was about to make a catch. The Petes staged a rally in the seventh, Lornie Rose's double with the bases full being a feature of this innings, and before the side was retired four runs had crossed the plate.

There was no scoring until the third. Holyman opened for the Central Leaguers in that session by singling to left. Scates fanned, Holyman stealing second. Murray died on a roller, which McElroy deflected to Barrie, Holyman going to third on the play. A passed ball scored him. Ray Rose walked, but Cherrett was called out on strikes.

In the General's half Primeau got a life on Murray's bad throw and went round to third while Holyman was tossing out McElroy and Barrie. Jackson fell as he was about to grab Dugan's fly to left, and the blow went for a single, Primeau scoring. Corrin got a single off Murray's glove, and then Dugan stole third. Helson fanned.

The Petes got two in the fourth. Ross was hit to start with, and Swanston bunted safely. A wild pitch moved the runners up. L. Rose was tossed out by McElroy. Jackson cracked one to Foley, who threw low to first, and Ross and Swanston scored, Jackson going to second. Jackson stole third. Holyman fanned. Helson dropped the third one and had to throw the batter out at first, and Corrin doubled Jackson at the plate when he tried to score on the play.

C.G.E. got one back in their half. Legon was safe on Murray's wide throw, and stole second. Foley fanned. Batten sacrificed Legon to third, and when Scates misjudged Primeau's fly to right, Legon scored. Primeau was out trying to go to second on Swanston's low throw to first.

The Solomon crew did not score in the fifth, and C.G.E. tied it up. McElroy doubled to right to start things ago. It was another misjudged fly. Barrie popped to Murray. Dugan rolled to Holyman; McElroy going to third. Corrin sent the run over with a single to right, but was out trying to stretch the hit into a double, Scates to Cherrett.

The sixth was another blank for the ultimate winners, but the C.G.E. got another counter, taking the lead. Helson started it with a single, but was out stealing, Swanston to Holyman. Legon singled to centre. He was caught off first, but reached second when Holyman dropped Ray Rose's throw. Foley rolled to Lornie Rose, but Batten singled to score Legon. Primeau flied to Murray.

The Central Leaguers broke the game wide open in the seventh. With one gone, Scates doubled to left. Murray lined to Primeau, who dropped the ball, Scates scoring. Ray Rose singled to left, Murray scoring from second, while Rose went to the half-way station on the throw to the plate. Cherrett was hit, Ross forced Rose at third, Swanston bunted safely, filling the bases. Lornie Rose doubled to left centre, scoring Cherrett and Ross. Swanston also crossed the rubber on the swat, but was called out for not touching third.

In the eighth the Petes hung up two more. With one out, Holyman was walked, and stole second. Scates beat out a slow one in front of the plate, and went to second on McElroy's low throw, Holyman scoring. Murray rolled to Foley. Ray Rose slashed a single to left, sending Scates home. Cherrett singled past second, and was forced at second on Ross's bounder to Barrie.

In the ninth, after Swanston had been tossed out by Barrie, L. Rose walked. Jackson hit to Dugan, who headed Rose off at second, but Corrin spoiled a double play by dropping Barrie's throw. Holyman singled to right, and Scates was hit, filling the bases. Murray singled to left centre, scoring Jackson and Holyman, but Scates was out at third, Batten to Foley.

C.G.E. did not score in the last three innings. They had a great chance in the eighth when Corrin led off with a double and Helson followed with a single. Legon hit to Murray, who threw Batten out at the plate, and then Ross picked Helson off third. Foley rolled to Murray for the third out.

In the ninth Batten opened with a double, but Lornie Rose tossed out Primeau and McElroy, and Holyman made the last put-out of the 1921 season when he grabbed Barrie's fly to short right.

SMOKE SECOND IN SPORTSMEN'S MARATHON RACE

LOCAL LONG DISTANCE RUNNER WAS BEATEN IN THE FINAL SPRINT BY JIMMY MOOREHOUSE.

Albert Smoke, the Curve Lake Indian, running under the colors of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, finished second in the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association's marathon race in Toronto on Saturday afternoon after leading the field almost to the last half mile. James Moorecroft of the Gladstone Athletic Club, Toronto, finished first, covering the sixteen miles in 1 hr. 38 min. and 4-5 seconds.

Arthur Johnston of the Windsor Hotel, who has assisted Smoke in his training, was highly pleased with the result and believed that under more favorable conditions, including a surer knowledge of the entire route, Smoke would have won. He was ahead at fifteen of the sixteen miles from the Exhibition Park to Lambton and back over heart-breaking hills. Moorehouse caught up to him as they neared the Park for the last mile, twice around the track, and broke into a sprint that sent him across the tape two hundred yards in front of Smoke, whose earlier sprint had left him weakened for the final clash. At that Smoke picked up two hundred yards of the four hundred yards in the final half mile.

He returned to Peterborough in good condition, and some fifteen prizes or thereabout are following. Smoke will enter the Hamilton Herald race on Thanksgiving Day, and on his present form should just about win it. Mr. Johnston would like to have him stay in Peterborough for the intervening month. Mr. Johnston would like to get a job for Smoke, and any assistance of that kind will be appreciated.

Of the 29 runners in Saturday's race, 27 finished.

DINNER DEFERRED TILL AFTER HUNT

FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION DESIRE REAL WELCOME FOR HON. MR. MILLS.

The postponement of the dinner to the Hon. Mr. Mills and the Deputy-Minister, Mr. McDonald, of the Fish and Game Department, was due to the expected absence from Peterboro of many of those who wished to attend. The sale of tickets was brisk enough but the committee discovered that many of the purchasers were going on their autumn fishing trip. Wishing to gather as many of the citizens as possible at their banquet the committee called up Mr. McDonald, and explained the situation to him, pointing out that later in the seasaon a date could be chosen which would be more satisfactory. The suggestion fell in with the plans of the minister, who was prepared to keep his engagemtnt in Peteboro but who seemingly welcomed the postponement because of the pressure of work in his department. It was therefore decided to defer the dinner until after the deer hunting season, when all the members of the Peterboro Fish and Game Protective Association should be home. The committe in charge of the arangements for the dinner was W. C. Ackerman, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, C. Coones and C. G. Graham.

REEVE STRICKLAND MAY BE CANDIDATE EAST PETERBORO'

PROMINENT CONSERVATIVES BOOMING HIM FOR NOMINATION AT CONVENTION NEXT MONDAY.

The figure of Reeve J. C. Strickland of Lakefield, is beginning to loom above the political horizon of East Peterboro, as the probable candidate of the Conservative party. Rumours three weeks ago supported by the statements of promnent members of the party intimated that John A. Sexsmith would be opposed in the convention, and the opinion seemed to demand a change of candidate if the Conservatives were to make a serious effort to win the riding. Some of those who bluntly declared that they would not stand by Sexsmith again not only questioned his services as the representative but also stated that they were not certain whether he retained his connection as a 'Unionist" or whether he was coming out as an old time unhyphenated Conservative.

It is believed that any tie with the so-called Union Government would be a heavy handicap to a candidate to a candidate in East Peterboro in the coming campaign, but a straight Conservative, it is believed, could make a strong appeal with a big chance of success.

Mr. Sexsmith has had his ear to the ground for three weeks and has canvassed the sentiment of the riding fairly extensively According to some reports he has been told plainly that he will be opposed and that among those who will likely be nominated is Reeve Strickland. Reeve Strickland is described as a farmer first and stalwart Conservative who as candidate would be preceded by the good work he has done in the Lakefield Council and the County Council. He is well known in the riding and would have the further claim that the west or Lakefield end of the constituency is due for recognition. The convention has been called for Monday, October 17th, at Norwood.

BAND CONCERT WAS A SUCCESS

The band concert in the Grand Opera House last evening was attended by a large crowd. These concerts seem to be as popular as ever with the music-lovers of Peterboro, and the programmes rendered by the G.W.V.A. Citizens' Band are enjoyed by one and all.

CITY ALDERMAN AT GREEK CHRISTENING

FIRST GREEK BAPTISM IN PETERBOROUGH—UNIQUE IN CHARACTER.

Last night at the residence of Mr. Louis Yeotes, Burnham street, about forty guests were present at the Christening of his youngest child. In the Greek church, this is an event of very much importance, and the ceremony is one of much interest. Reverend Father Skapis, a priest of the Greek church at Toronto, was present and performed the rites which are said to have originated over a thousand years ago.

After the ceremony was over and each guest had been presented with a piece of money which was said to be synonymous with the future success of the young child, the guests were invited to dinner and a very pleasant evening was spent by all. The young child was the recipient of many gifts from those present, who came from Belleville, Cobourg and Toronto, and including all the persons of Greek origin in Peterborough.

Speeches were delivered by Reverend Father Skapis, Alderman F. Whitehouse, Mr. A. A. Perrin and G. N. Gordon, M.P. The guests spoke of the generous hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Yeotes and of the successful business ventures of the Greeks who had settled in Peterborough, and of their having become naturalized citizens as soon as the opportunity was offered to them.

Thise is the first time there has been a Greek baptism in Peterborough, and it was not only unique in its character, but something of outstanding interest to those who had never had the opportunity of being a guest at such an event.

QUESTION OF ALLEGIANCE TO CROWN MAY BE DEFERRED BY IRISH PEACE CONFERENCE UNTIL LAST.

TO ESTABLISH FIRST A PEACE ATMOSPHERE

By ED. L. KEEN.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The adjournment of the Irish conference until Thursday was taken here today to be an indication that the preliminaries ended satisfactorily and that they have established a basis for the next session at which the real work will begin.

There was a growing likelihood, according to those close to Council Chamber key-holes, that the question of allegiance to the Crown on the part of Sinn Fein would be deferred, the delegates first concentrating on minor points, such as finance, and leading up to the more important questions, such as Ulster's allegiance, after a peace conference atmosphere had been firmly established.

The delegates on both sides, when seen today, declined to discuss the opening sessions yesterday, but gave every indication of satisfaction at the way the conference had opened.

One feature of the communique was the absence of titles in naming delegates on both sides. This was supposed to have been done to enable British officials to avoid having to honor the Sinn Fein plenipotentiaries with their official titles.

HEBREW STORES CLOSED TO-DAY

DAY OF ATONEMENT THROUGHOUT THE JEWISH WORLD

This is the Day of Atonement throughout the world for the Jewish nation. Wherever orthodox Hebrews dwell today they are making a "black fast." From sundown last evening until sundown tonight not a speck of food or drop of liquid passes their lips; they do not even brush their teeth. They close their stores today and gather in their hall here on Water Street, where Rabbi Nathanson of Toronto conducts penitential ceremonies. Commencing with the two days at the first of the month, which marked the beginning of their New Year, this period of time culminating in the fast of today assists in wiping out the punishment due the accumulated sins of the year.

THE WEATHER

There should be no complaints from the farming community this fall regarding dry wells or the ground being too dry to plough. It has rained every day, with two exceptions, this month up to the present time and some heavy showers also fell the last week in September. Last night's total was almost an inch, or .92, and brings the total for the month already up to a good average.—W. P.

Total Disarmament Impossible; Parley Seeks Only Limitation

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, October 12. — Universal disarmament is impossible, and even its desirability now is in question, President Harding said to-day.

The President's view, which makes it clear that the American delegation at the arms parley will seek only a limitation of armament, was stated in emphatic terms in a leter made public by the White House to stem the growing propaganda—mostly well intentioned—for complete abolition of armament.

KU KLUX CHIEF IS THREATENED

FOLLOWING ATTEMPTED SHOOTING OF WOMAN OFFICER ANONYMOUS THREAT IS MADE AGAINST SIMMONS.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct 12.—(United Press).—Police and county authorities with blood hounds to-day were endeaouring to pick up the trail of persons who fired five shots at Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, head of the propagation department of the Ku Klux Klan, through her bedroom window last night. None of the shots took effect.

Blood hounds found the trail of the would-be assassins under Mrs. Tyler's window. They followed it to the Howell Mill Road, a distance of about a hundred yards from the window, and there lost it. All further efforts to pick up a trail were in vain.

Shortly after the shooting some one is said to have called a morning newspaper on the telephone; "I just wanted to say that we got Mrs. Tyler to-night and we will get Simmnos tomorrow", the mysterious voice is quoted as saying. The man would not give his name.

BRITISH CABINET COMPLETES PLANS TO HELP JOBLESS

LONDON, Oct. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Plans for meeting the unemployment situation were considered by the Cabinet's unemployment committee and Government officials to-day, and it was understood that a comprehensive programme had been worked out by the committee for submission to the officials who would be in charge of the work contemplated.

Labor leaders last night urged Lloyd George to finance public works and to adopt a comprehensive housing policy. It is now believed that the Premier will meet the Laborites to discuss their plans further.

WELLAND IMPATIENT AT DELAY OF GOVT.

TWO MONTHS SINCE CHARGES AGAINST POLICE WERE MADE

(Special to the Examiner.)

WELLAND, October 12 — The civic authorities here are impatient at the length of time taken by the Attorney-General's Department in investigating the charges against Magistrate Goodwin and certain members of the police force.

A letter has been sent to Toronto in which it is pointed out that two months have elapsed since the charges were made, and in the meantime two of the policemen affected have resigned and joined the Provincial police force.

Some three weeks ago announcement was made at Toronto that Judge Campbell of St. Catharines, would conduct the investigation. The city of Welland has not had any notification of his appointment.

TEACHERS WILL VISIT PETERBORO'

Between 100 and 125 school teachers from the South Ontario district are expected to visit Peterboro on Thursday and Friday of this week. This visit will replace the annual convention held by these teachers in Whitby. Every County or organized association must hold a convention of two days during the year, but the act permits them to spend these two days in visiting some other centre of school activity. They are therefore coming to Peterboro for these two days and will spend the time in visiting the public schools here. Arriving in the city at noon on Thursday they will spend most of that afternoon at the Normal School and the balance of the session of Friday with the public schools of the city.

Oshawa, Port Perry Whitby and the surrounding country districts will be represented.

ELECTION NEWS

BANCROFT NOMINATED.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—L. P. Bancroft, Gunton, Man., was yesterday nominaed tas the Progressive candidate in the Federal constituency of Selkirk. An unsuccessful atempt was made to have the candidature of J. E. Adamson, recently nominated as an Independent Progressive, endorsed. Adamson was described by some as a "Camouflaged Liberal," who had "stolen the Progressive platform and thunder."

CONSERVATIVE REFUSES TO OPPOSE FIELDING

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.— (Canadian ress.)— Writing to the Montreal Gazette on the topic of the forthcoming Federal elections, C. H. Cahan, K.C., well known in the Maritime provinces, says:

"The other day it was sugegsted to me that I should contest a Nova Scotia constituency against Mr. Fielding. Yet, except for his instinctive inclination towards reciprocity of trade with our neighbors, I can see no reasonable grounds for opposing Mr. Fielding in this election on any issue which is now before the public."

Mr. Cahan accordingly suggests that Mr. Fielding should be elected by acclamation.

WOOD SEES VICTORY FOR PROGRESSIVE

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—In an interview here to-day, H. W. Wood, President of the United Farmers of Alberta contended that the Progressive Party would win at least seven of the twelve Federal seats in Alberta.

"It is a little early to try and size up the situation in Edmonton and Calgary,' said Mr. Wood, "but it seems to me that Victoria, Lethbridge, MacLeod, Medicine Hat, Battle River, Red Deer and Bow River can be classed as certainties.

"Both Calgary and Edmonton have strong urban votes and it will take same little time before one could attempt to forecast the outcome with any degree of accuracy," Mr. Wood concluded.

TROUBLE IN BRANTFORD

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

BRANTFORD, October 12. — Since the nomination of W. G. Raymond by the Liberal convention on Saturday, politics in Brantford have been in a seething foment. The women of Brantford are lining up very strongly behind Mr. Raymond. It is learned that many of the supporters of A. W. Burt, the Labor-U.F.O. nominee, are urging him to retire and to leave the field clear for a straight fight between the two great political gladiators, Mr. Raymond and Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M. P.

The battle between the two branches of labor in Brantford continues with unabated ferocity Mr. McBride, M.P.P., gave the following statement to the reporter last night.

"If the Central I.L.P. executive could only realize that they have torn labor asunder there would be some hope. Eveybody is disgusted with the way that Mr. Burt, the camouflaged Simpson-Burkley labor candidate, has been peddled around, first to the Brantford I.L.P., where he was repudiated, then to the U.F.O., and finally an attempt was made to foist him upon the Liberal convention last Saturday. None of the organizations want him. Where this clique will go next with their candidate it is impossible to say. They have prostituted labor. It now looks like a straight fight between the two old parties. Labor will perhaps recover itself after the Dominion election."

Stenographers should make the best wives; they are used to being dictated to.

RAILWAY RATES MUST LEAD THE WAY TO NORMAL

ACCORDING TO FIGURES COMPILED BY U. S. EMPLOYMENT CONFERENCE ON ECONOMIC CONDITIONS.

WAGES, RETAIL PRICES NEXT IN DOWN TREND

By H. W. WALKER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Railroad rates, still more than 100 per cent. above the average pre-war level, must take the longest drop in entire readjustment, figures compiled by the National Unemployment Conference showed today.

Wages and retail prices must follow next in the downward trend, the figures reveal, while the producer of raw materials is bearing the brunt of "hard times."

The figures, drawn from official sources, gave the conference a graphic picture of the economic chaos existing throughout the country through the complete distortion of pre-war price levels.

PERSHING IS TO DECORATE GRAVE OF UNKNOWN DEAD

U.S. COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF VISITS LONDON MONDAY

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(United Press).—General Pershing will come to London and decorate with the Congressional Medal of Honor the grave of the British unknown warrior on Monday, October 17, it was announced today.

British explanation of the incident which nearly resulted in abandonment of the American Commander in Chief's visit, was that the American Embassy in London failed to make clear the connection between Pershing's trip to Europe and the conferring of the Medal of Honor by Congress. It was also said the brevity of General Pershing's stay in Europe had not been realized, and that the British Government had delayed while considering a similar honor for America's unknown soldier.

The Press today expressed the greatest gratification at this outcome which made Pershing's visit here possible.

"Bureaucratic blundering might have resulted in great harm." The Times said.

WARLOW GIVEN FIFTEEN YEARS

FOR SHOOTING HIS WIFE TO DEATH

SANDWICH, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press). — Found guilty of manslaughter just about midnight, John Warlow was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment by Justice Logie early this morning.

Warlow was charged with murdering his wife by shooting her to death at Walkerville on March 19, following a quarrel. The Judge pointed out to the jury that if the accused had been provoked in the act the charge should be reduced to manslaughter. The defence sought to establish that the woman had driven her husband to the deed by familiarity with another man.

OPPOSE VALUATION OF IMPORTS BY U. S.

LONDON, Oct. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Opposition to clauses of the Fordney Tariff Bill, providing for United States valuation of imports was announced by the United States Chamber of Commerce here to-day. The Chamber declares the clauses must handicap and prevent free exchange of goods and suggests that a flat increase duty would be preferable.

Order Irish to Observe Truce; Sinn Fein Plans to Conscript Hibernian Members, Say British

BY ED. L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, October 12. — Orders to commanders of the Irish Republican Army and the Crown forces in Ireland to enforce immediate rigid observance of the truce were sent to-day by Sinn Fein's peace delegation and the British Cabinet.

This step was the first result of the Downing Street conference.

At the same time, Sinn Fein plans to conscript thousands of troops in Ireland in the event of a renewal of hostilities, it was disclosed by the Briitsh Government.

Members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, according to British intelligence reports, would be conscripted in a body.

Sinn Fein officials minimised the importance of this discovery, pointing out that most of the members of the Hibernians already had joined the Sinn Fein.

Both delegations were to-day preparing papers for the real discussions which begin to-morrow.

There was no session to-day.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE URGES "BLUE SKY" LEGISLATION AND ASKS STOCK-PROMOTION PROBE

OPENING WAR ON QUESTIONABLE STOCK-SELLING SCHEMES —CHAMBER ADVOCATES AMENDING OF COMPANIES' ACT AND INVESTIGATION OF WHOLE SUBJECT, AND SEEKS SUPPORT OF ASSOCIATED BOARDS OF TRADE IN MATTER —ENDORSES OLD HOME WEEK HERE—FAVORABLE REPORT ON YEAR'S WORK.

Last night the Chamber of Commerce officially opened its autumn and winter schedule and the officers and members generally are filled with optimism for the future of the organiztion as a result of the first meeting of the season. It was an interesting meeting and there was a large atendance.

President Joseph J. Duffus, who occupied the chair, regarded the possibilities of service of the Chamber unlimited and its progress, he said, was bounded only by the interest shown by every member. Mr. Duffus gave an excellent report of the summer's work. He said:

In making my report on the activities of your Chamber during the holiday season, I could take up a considerable amount of your time in going into full detail, but owing to the special feature of the evening in the use of the educational films, I will make it as brief and concise as possible.

As has been the previous policy of the Chamber, the work during the holiday season has been confined wholly to committee work, and to say that your Executive Council has held nine meetings since your last general meeting on the 19th of May will denote that a considerable number of subjects of importance have been dealt with. Particular amongst these has been the financing, which you will realize has been difficult owing to the general trade depression which has been felt throughout the country, and also the increase of dues, which was found necessary to conduct the affairs of your Chamber.

Five Firms Interested.

Your Executive Council has received representations from five firms who were proposing to locate branch factories in Peterborough, each of whom were desirous of raising sufficient capital to conduct their local business. In each case the propositions have been seriously considered and practical assistance given within the scope of the policy adopted by your Chamber in not, as a body, endorsing any promotion proposition.

In co-operation with the City Council the presentation of testimonials from the Royal Humane Society was made to Miss Iris Payne and Mr. Arthur Sayer for their act of bravery in the saving of Leslie Hoyland from drowning in the Otonabee river at Inverlea Park.

During the last session of the House of Parliament a resolution was forwarded by your Council to the Honorable Minister of Department of Railways and Canals, urging upon him the importance of passing the item referred to in the budget of $712,000 for repairs and improvements on the Trent Canal system. We are pleased to note subsequently that this item was passed.

Communications have also been made by your Executive Council with the Deputy Minister of the Provincial Department of Game and Fisheries in connection with the establishment of a fish hatchery in Peterborough district. We believe that the Minister was thoroughly impressed with the advantageous position which the city holds in connection with the establishment of this hatchery and there is no doubt that in the near future, with the co-operation of the various interested organizations, that we will receive assurance from the Minisetr that the hatchery will be established in this district next spring.

City Planning.

Your City Planning committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. W. Worth, has been working on plans for the beautification of the city, and at present the committee's attention is devoted to the details in connection with the development of the bathing beach and boulevard on Crescent street, the bathing place at Jackson Park and the development of Riverside Park as a civic playground, with the object of making specific recommendations to your Chamber, and eventually to the City Council.

Social Welfare.

Your Social Welfare committee, under the chairmanship of Rev. F. E. Malott, has been doing research work on Social Welfare in the city in making comparisons with that of other centres, and has had consultation with the various theatre managements in the city with the object of securing for our citizens the best film productions possible.

Transportation.

Your Transportation committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. H. E. Hodgens, has voted particular attention to the securing of detailed information regarding radials, with the object of making specific recommendations on the establishment of radial service between Port Hope and Lakefield. The passenger service on both railroads has also received attention and assurance has been received from the G.T.R. that no changes will be made in the near future, and if changes are proposed at a later date, notification will be given previously to your committee.

Civic Education.

Your Civic Education committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. A. Mowat, instituted the clean-up campaign week in April, which we are pleased to state received additional support from the citizens as compared with that of the previous year. Your commitee at the present time is considering the desirablity of co-operating with the Canadian Authors' Association in instituting the Canadain Book Week between November the 21st and 26th.

Subsidiary Organizations.

Through taking over the secretarial work of other organizations in the city, the overlapping of activities has been reduced to a minimum, and subjects which previously received the direct attention of your Chamber, have now been delegated to the separate organizations and action taken. It is quite obvious therefore, that in the event of these subsidiary organizations not paying fully for secretarial services rendered, that the Chamber is directly interested in their activities and a portion of the dues paid by you assists in no small way the work of these organizations.

One particular example will more readily explain relationship to the other organizations, with the exception of the Manufacturers' Association and the Retail Merchants' Association, which pay fully for all secretarial services rendered. Previous to the organization of the Trent Wa-

REV. R. POGUE GAVE ADDRESS

The program of Trinity Epworth League meeting Monday night was very interesting. Rev. Robert Pogue's story of his recent visit in Ireland and his discussion of the situation there was an enthralling one and his observation of conditions in that interesting little island would be well worth repeating to a very much larger gathering. Musical numbers included a flute solo by Kenneth Greene and a vocal solo by Miss Ina Allen. Both numbers were very enjoyable and the meeting was generally declared to be one of the best the league has ever held.

MUCH-USED SPOTLIGHT BANNED BY POLICE.

Law That Has Been in Force for Months Will Be Enforced.

"Spotlights are illegal,, and every motorist found with one connected will be charged," Chief of Police Newhall said to-day.

Spotlights may have legitimate uses, and undoubtedly are not always used by lawbreakers, but Chief Newhall finds them an aid to crime that makes him resolved to carry out this section of the Motor Vehicle Act to the letter.

'It shall be unlawful to carry on any motor vehicle on a highway any lamp which revolves upon a pivot or other device, so that the rays of such light may be projected in different directions by an occupant of the vehicle, but this shall not prevent a motor vehicle of a municipal fire department from carrying such a lamp for use only at actual scene of fire."

The spotlight is an adjunct to bootleggers and whisky-runners, the Chief said. It has been used to blind police officers in the patrol car in the pursuit of suspicious automobiles and blinding the driver of a fast-moving car in this way, he pointed out, was as criminally dangerous as shooting at him.

While many honest citizens have their cars equipped with spotlights, the Chief said no favouritism could be shown in the face of serious crime occurring in all parts of the country. The spotlight must be removed or disconnected.

ARIDITY ON VERMONT BORDER UNPRECEDENTED

WESTFIELD, Vt., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press)—Weather condition unprecedented within the memory of the oldest inhabitant have prevailed in this border country for several weeks. Lack of rain has caused brooks to dry and in the towns of North Troy, Newport, Barton and Coventry, and Stanstead, across the Canadian line use of electric power has been abandoned because of the water shortage. September passed wtihout frost.

The drought has affected the trees and the vari-colored autumn leaves have withered on the branches. Squirrels lacking their usual supply of maple seeds, hang about the houses and whenever a door is opened scamper inside for food.

In several towns the water supply has become so low that it has been condemned for drinking purposes and firemen are obliged to depend upon the lakes or ponds when called upon to fight fires.

GIRLS ATTEND CLASSES WITH HAIR IN CURL PAPERS.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—Young women in the freshmen classes at the College of Liberal Arts and the College of Secretarial Science of Boston University, appeared in classrooms for three days at the opening of the school year with their hair in curl papers. The sophomores laid down the rules; the freshmen obeyed them.

Other requirements were that the freshmen wear aprons and have cards tied about their necks with green ribbons announcing that they were freshmen, and that no powder rouge or mirrors should be used in school during the initiation days.

WHAT TO DO WITH WINE GLASSES PUZZLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Thin, glistening wine glasses, hundreds of dozens of them worth thousands of dollars are stored away in the big hotels of New York and the stewards don't know what to do about it.

Some few have been sold and others given to friends of the hotels who, it was assumed, were able to employ that gay glassware as it was intended it should be used. But prohibition made the glassware useless for the hotels, most stewards feeling it dishonorable to past memories to serve ginger ale and impotent grape juice in the fine old wine glasses.

A Fifth Avenue hotel announced it had written off $100,000 on glassware at its after-prohibiton inventory and others estimated their idle drinking accessories at sums almost as high.

M. E. MAYBEE NOMINATED NORTHUMBERLAND RIDING

CANDIDATE IS A FARMER WHO RIDICULES J. J. MORRISON'S LAMENTATIONS OVER ALLEGED CONDITIONS ON FARMS—SAM NESBITT MIGHT HAVE HAD NOMINATION.

WARKWORTH, Oct. 11. — Matching the U.F.O. convention with one as large and as enthusiastic, if not more so, the National Liberal and Conservative Party of Northumberland County this afternoon unanimously chose as their candidate in the Federal elections Milton E. Maybee, farmer and former Reeve of Murray Township and ex-Warden of the united counties of Durham and Northumberland.

Twelve other men were proposed, but they separately declined the honor, including Charles A. Munson, the retiring member, from whose wife a letter was read requesting that his name be not submitted to the convention on account of the illness which prevented him from being present. The complete roster of nominees was as follows:—Frank M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg; Alex Hume, Seymour Township; George Greer, Cobourg; Mayor A. J. Meyers, Campbellford; Sam. Nesbitt, Brighton; Ira A. Humphries, Campbellford; Rev. (Major) J. F. Belford, Brighton; Milton E. Maybee, Murray Township; George Drury, Brighton; J. A. Anderson, Campbellford; J. W. Crews, Murray Township; Harry B. Phillips, Reeve of Brighton, and C. A. Munson, M.P., Cobourg.

Reeve Phillips, President of the association, was Chairman, with Mr. I. A. Humphries Secretary.

Following the nominations each of the men proposed was called upon to declare himself, and each in turn withdrew from the field until only Mr. Maybee was left. He said that he had not sought the nomination, but he had decided after the representations made to him by many electors from all sections of the county to allow his name go before the covenntion and, if chosen, to put up the best fight he was capable of.

Women Join in Cheers.

Mr. Phillips accordingly announced Mr. Maybee as the Conservative standard-bearer, nominated unanimously and without recourse to the ballot. The scene that followed was reminiscent of old political battles, with the prolonged cheering for Mr. Maybee and the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," an effort that was marred by the high-pitched tenor who started it, leading the crowd several keys above a medium baritone. The many women in the audience smiled in mingled surprise and approval at the noisy demonstration, and quickly caught the sentiment by replacing the routed basses with a soprano section that saved the flattering tenors. All through the session they received a lesson in the old-time fighting spirit that warms the hearts of such veteran warriors as Sam. Nesbitt.

Nesbitt Turned it Down.

Incidentally it may be ventured that Mr. Nesbitt could have had the nomination for the taking, judging by the hearty and prolonged applause that greeted every mention of his name and that rose up to him when he was called upon for his speech. He declined to permit his name to remain on the list, stating that for business reasons it was absolutely impossible for him to be a candidate.

'You can bet your life that there would be no doubt about the result if I was a candidate," he said, remarking further that if the riding did not return a Conservative majority of at least 500 the candidate, whoever he might be, was not the man for the position. Mr. Nesbitt said he was confident that the constituency could be kept in the Government ranks providing the candidate and his supporters threw all the time and energy into the fight that were necessary to win it.

"A Dyed in the Wool" Tory.

"I am not a Conservative at all," he declared, "but a 'dyed in the wool,' out and out Tory. Some of the younger men may be broader than I am in that respect, but I am what I always have been — a 'dyed in the wool,' out and out Tory."

The applause elicited by this profession of political faith, repeated shortly afterward upon a similar statement by Mr. Humphries, indicated that while the label "National Liberal and Conservative Party" might have found favor in some quarters, the Conservatives of Northumberland were not only content with, but proud of the old designation.

Proud of Premier.

Mr. Nesbitt called attention to what he said was a curious experience he had met with in comparatively recent travels throughout Canada. Everywhere he had gone, in the east and in the west, he had found the name of Hon. Arthur Meighen mentioned with respect. Men who disagreed with his policies hadn't a word to say against Mr. Meighen himself.

"No greater statesman, nor saner, more level-headed man, including Sir John A. McDonald and Sir Robert Borden, has appeared in the history of Canada," said Mr. Nesbitt. "We can be proud of our leader, and I feel certain that he will be the next Premier."

Maybee is Modest.

Milton E. Maybee is a prominent and prosperous farmer of Murray Township, who has an enviable record in the municipal affairs of his county. He is unassuming, and his evident sincerity and modesty make a good impression. While displaying no special platform qualities, he acquitted himself creditably in his several speeches to the capacity audience which filled Warkworth's Town Hall to the porches.

A Jibe at Morrison.

In accepting the nomination, he said: 'I assure you that I enter this contest with the confidence that the Conservative Party in this riding is behind me. I have always believed that the farmers should be better represented in Parliament, but I don't believe in this three-cornered way of getting it. I believe in the old British way. It makes me tired to hear J. J. Morrison and the rest of them deploring about the conditions of farmers. It is a wonder that more men don't leave the farms after hearing the gospel Mr. Morrison is preaching. I have been told on good authority that the greatest revenue the banks are making today is from the deposits of farmers being loaned to manufacturers."

Previous Address.

In his pre-nomination address Mr. Maybee said that the policy of the Congressional Spotlight Is Turned on the Ku Klux Klan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(United Press).—A Congressional spot light today was directed on the "invisible Empire' of the Ku Klux Klan.

The House Rules Committee began a preliminary inquiry into the mystic order to determine whether a special House Committee should be appointed to investgate its workings.

Just before the Rules Committee met, Chairman Campbell, Kansas, stated that if any evidence were presented in the hearings to-day, indicating the Klan was operating in violation of Federal laws, a complete investigation of the order would be approved by his committee.

Campbell worked late into the night with Attorney General Daugherty, agents of the Department of Justice and inspectors of the Post Office Department, going over evidence collected within the last few weeks in a secret investigation of the Klan. He declined to make any statement regarding the evidence.

"Somwhere in Washington" is William Joseph Simmons, Imperial Wizard of the Klan. Local headquarters of the Klan declined to reveal his presence, but admitted he was here for the inquiry. Campbell has received definite assurance he will attend the hearing.

The main purpose of the preliminary inquiry, according to members of the rules committee, is to determine whether there is evidence to indcate that the Klan is responsible for several outrages against citizens, particularly in Southern States. 2.—The Local Klans are in effort conspicious in violation of Federal and State law. 3.— The Klan is using the mails to defraud. The committee may also inquire into whether officials of the Klan have made a true accounting to Federal tax authorities of funds they have collected.

HON. DR. EDWARDS TOLD NORTHUMBERLAND CONSERVATIVES HONOR OF CANADA WAS OF MORE IMPORTANCE THAN GEN. NEWBURN'S PROMISE OF EXEMPTION.

NO APOLOGY FOR BREACH OF PROMISE TO FARMERS

WARKWORTH, Oct. 12.—Addressing an audience largely composed of farmers at the Conservative convention here yesterday, Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P. for Frontenac and Minister of Immigration and Health in Premier Meighen's reconstructed Cabinet, defended the Government's action in conscripting the sons of farmers in 1918.

"It is true," he said, "that the promise was made to farmers' sons. It is unfortunate that it was made, but it was made by General Newburn. I am glad that it wasn't kept, and it couldn't have been kept if the honor of Canada was to be kept clean. It was more important that the honor of Canada was kept clean than that the promise wasn't kept.

"I don't believe there is a farmer in Northumberland County today who will blame the Government for putting through conscription. I believe there is a large sprinkling of farmers in this audience, and I believe the farmers in this audience will play the game fair, will judge things on their merits if they know the facts."

Dr. Edwards quoted the voluntary enlistments in the years from 1914 to 1917. In 1917 after the strongest appeals had been made up and down the country the total enlistment for that year was only 56,000. But the need was as great then, if not greater than in the first years of the war. Germany was preparing to launch her big drive for the channel ports, and in that year the men in the hospitals in France and England, many if them with four and five wound stripes on their sleeves, were urged to get back to the lines as soon as they could to fill up the gaps.

Would Have Aided Germans.

"But it may be said, 'Why were we not told the facts in 1918 ' Because to have made public the true situation might have given to Germany that little encouragement that would have spurred her on to victory. The Government had, therefore, to bear the criticism in silence. We have had men in Canada seeking their own advancement, taking advantage of the unrest to build up a separate party.

"What have we done for the soldiers? I don't say that the Government has done all it might have done, but I do say that the members of Parliament have shown the disposition at all times to be more than fair in dealing with the soldiers and soldier problems."

Dr. Edwards recounted the Government's expenditure of $102,000,000 on soldier re-establishment, $164,000,000 on gratuities, $90,000,000 on pensions and $8,000,000 on the establishment of soldiers on the land. Moreover, 48,000 men had been vocationally trained and 175,000 disabled soldiers had been placed in jobs.

The Tariff Issue.

During the last session Mr. King and Mr. Crerar indicated their desire to have the tariff matter settled. Now when the election is on and Mr. Meighen says the tariff is the issue, both Mr. King and Mr. Crerar are side-steppnig, said the Minister. Recalling the situation that existed at the close of the American Civil War, which he quoted as analogous to present conditions in Canada, Dr. Ed-

SINN FEIN COURT SITTING IN DUBLIN

DUBLIN, October 12 (Canadian Press). — The "Republican District Court" yesterday for the first time held public sessionh in Dublin. Five young men presided, and solicitors in the High Court of Justice of Ireland, who also plead in the Ordinary Courts, atended the sessions.

Many cases were heard, including several brought by the public health authorities for milk adulteration. The defendants were fined and warned not to repeat their offences. One of the defendants was advised not to appear in Court again. The judge warned him that the district in which he sold milk contained hundreds of children, and that it was the duty of the Republic to protect its future citizens.

CARVELL UNDER FIRE AT PHONE RATES HEARING

REED CHARGES THAT AS DIRECTOR OF NEW BRUNSWICK COMPANY HE VOTES DIVIDENDS TO SELF AND BELL COMPANY.

NORTHERN ELECTRIC CO. IS AGAIN IN QUESTION

OTTAWA, Oct. 12. —(Canadian Press.) —Heated verbal exchanges featured yesterday's hearing of the Bell Telephone Co.'s application for increased rates before the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada. The case was adjourned until Tuesday, December 12, in order that further detailed information might be availabe with regard to the company's investments, revenues and expenses.

R. A. Reed, Toronto, representing the Attorney-General of Ontario and the Ontario Government, made an attack upon Hon. F. B. Carvell, Chairman of the Board. He charged that the Chairman had no right to sit on the case as he was a shareholder of the New Brunswick Telephone Company and sat on that company's board with a director of the Bell Telephone and Northern Electric Companies, and in that capacity voted dividends to himself and the Bell Telephone Company.

Mr. Carvell denied any connection with the Bell Telephone Company and said it was an attack upon his personal honor, being the most regrettable experience of his life. Mr. Reed declared the next Government would deal severely with the Board.

Mr. Reed demanded a production of the Northern Electric Company's division of profits, a list of their shareholders, minutes of proceedings of directors' meetings, and a complete list of all the issued stock and those who hold it.

Mr. Reed submitted that it had been shown "beyond the shadow of a doubt" that the Bell Telephone Company purchased its apparatus from the Northern Electric Company. He wished it to be shown what the costs of such material were. Before the Board could arrive at a correct conclusion on the present application it was necessary to ascertain what profits the Northern Electric Company was making out of the Bell Telephone Company, of which the former company, he said, was only a subsidiary.

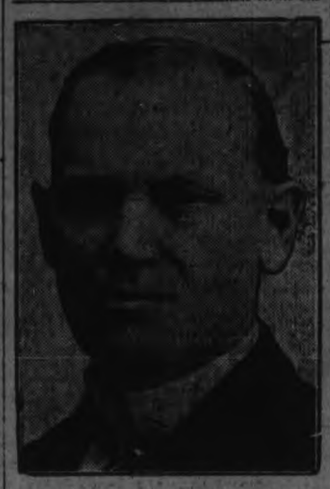
BREACHES OF TRUCE QUESTION FIRST TO BE SETTLED BY THE CONFERENCE FOR IRISH PEACE



HON. F. B. CARVELL,

Chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, whose impartiality with regard to the Bell Telephone Company's application for increased rates has been questioned again because of his connection with the New Brunswick Telephone Company.

UNDERSTOOD THAT THIS WAS TAKEN UP AT YESTERDAY'S SESSIONS AND THAT NO UNTOWARD INCIDENTS OCCURRED

BELIEVED BOTH PARTIES CAN REACH AN AGREEMENT

LONDON, Oct. 12. — (Canadian Press.)—British and Irish delegates to the conference which aims at settling the future of Ireland held two two-hour sessions at Number 10 Downing street yesterday, adjourning after the afternoon session until Thursday, in order to enable Mr. Llyod George to grapple with the unemployment situation.

Both sessions were business-like, even the greetings of Mr. Lloyd-George to the visitors from across the Channel being hearty but formal. The official communiques issued at the conclusion of the proceedings, do not disclose the subject discussed, but it was understood that the matter of procedure, upon which the Sinn Fein delegates placed much importance, occupied the greater part of the time.

No notes of speeches and discussion of either meeting were taken. In fact, no stenographers were present, and both the British and Sinn Fein delegates maintained silence as to what happened. It was gathered however, that the conference proceeded along anticipated lines and that nothing thus far has occurred to jeopardize its success. It is probable that the question of alleged breaches of the truce by both sides was taken up, as the British and Sinn Fein officials have been much more concerned about this subject, both being desirous of having the conference conducted in an atmosphere of peace. The Irish delegates were aware before they came to London of dissatisfaction on the part of the British Government regarding the alleged breaches, and they had no intention of unduly stressing that question, but were anxious for a mutual understanding on the matter.

The British authorities also are irritated over the resumed activities of the Sinn Fein police and law courts in Ireland, which are carrying on the work of punishing breaches of ordinary law and adjusting litigation. Recruiting for the "Irish Republican Army," which in County

GET ON THE LISTS.

There is confusion over the voters' lists to be used in the coming general elections. The Provincial lists for the most part are too old to be used as a basis, and some emergency system will have to be devised to meet the situation. But whatever method is eventually devised the individual elector should take more than usual care to see that his name is placed on the lists. That should be regarded as a patriotic duty by every Canadian, and he should look after the matter himself, not place his trust in any political organization. In other elections more than one elector has found himself unable to exercise the franchise because he relied upon somebody else to see that his name was on—and somebody else failed to discharge the responsibility placed upon him. There should be no mistakes of that nature in the present election. Every elector must make sure of his vote—that is the first step towards making the general election of 1921 stand for something.

APATHETIC CANADIANS.

New Brunswick on Monday voted against the importation of liquor. The result was a surprise to nobody, and the chief point of interest in regard to the referendum lies in the fact that only one-third of the people on the voters' lists exercised the franchise. Here was a question that might be expected to either directly or indirectly affect the lives of the majority of the electors, and in the settling of which there should have been general interest. And yet only one out of every three concerned themselves with the verdict. The indifference of Canadians in public matters is becoming evermore pronounced. It is exemplified in municipal affairs as well as in national issues. It allows time-serving politicians to get hold of the reins of government; it permits inefficiency and lack of business principles in the civic machine; it makes for slackness and apathy on the part of those elected to office. Good men are reluctant to allow themselves to stand when they realize that over half of the electorate are not sufficiently interested to go to the polls on election day. New Brunswick's showing on Monday has been duplicated in all parts of Canada, and it is surely time the country shook itself from its lethargy.

THE WHITE PLAGUE.

With the campaign in Peterborough for funds to assist in the battle against tuberculosis .The Examiner is in thorough sympathy and will co-operate in the effort to the fullest extent possible. But that such a drive should be necessary is a striking commentary upon our system of government. The duty of carrying on warfare against disease should not be left to private individuals or dependent upon the generosity of the public, but should be assumed by the state. Large sums are voted every year to protect our cattle and swine from disease, but the best asset we have—the children and the men and women—of our land is left to fight their battles unaided, their only assistance that provided by public-spirited citizens. The appearance of the corn borer as a menace to the crops throws consternation into the ranks of those in authority, but the deadly germs of tuberculosis and other dreaded diseases are allowed to prey upon our people, while the Governments—Federal and Provincial—stand idly by. The whole system is wrong, but it is there nevertheless, and so for the present there is no other course than to carry on the fight as we have been doing. Peterborough's response to the appeal should be worthy of her reputation for giving and a recognition of the merit of the cause for which assistance is being sought.

TEACHING THRIFT.

At the next meeting of the Board of Education it is understood that the board will be called upon to deal with a proposal to establish the penny bank system in Peterborough's schools. For some reason or other Peterborough has stood aloof from this method of teaching thrift, although its adoption has been frequently and strongly urged by the Department of Education. Dr. Pyne, Dr. Cody and the Hon. Mr. Grant have in turn instructed the teachers of the Province to encourage thrift among their pupils, and the Inspectors have been exhorted to familiarize themselves with the operations of the penny bank system. School after school has swung into line and established school banks with most successful results; but Peterborough has remained outside of the movement, despite the fact that recent reports show that the amounts deposited in school banks throughout the country have steadily increased. During the months of September and October, 1918, pupils deposited $55,316.35 in the school banks, while for the same two months of 1919 the amount was increased to $89,200.98. Last year during September and October $96,188.28 were deposited, and the same period this year is expected to show deposits of over $100,000.00.

That is a showing that is worthy of attention, and the members of the local Board of Education anticipating the proposal that is to come before them at the November meeting should investigate the penny bank system and be prepared to deal with it on its merits.

There can be no argument as to the desirability of inculcating into the minds of the school children an appreciation of the desirability of practising thrift. If there is any quality that Canadians need to develop more than another it is thriftiness, for as a nation and as individuals we are unnecessarily extravagant.

The chief point then would be seem to be the practicability or otherwise of the penny bank system. The experience of other centres is the only sure guide, and that seems to point to the method as an established success.

LECTURING THE WOMAN VOTER.

A vast amount of advice is being lavished on the women voters—chiefly by male writers—now that they are in a position to move with more or less "reluctant feet" towards the polling booths. They are being urged to "get out and vote"—since man has generously conferred the franchise on them—"to study political issues so they can vote intelligently," to "prove that their influence on politics is purifying," and generally to do the things which their sage male councillors have conspicuously left undone for generations.

Now this is all very flattering if looked at in one way, but somewhat annoying and unfair if looked at in another. It is in accord with the old chivalrous habit of putting woman on a pedestal and expecting infinitely more of her than we do of the common run of the mill on the male side of the house. But when the "pedestal" was most to the fore as a stage property, the spheres in which woman was expected to be worthy of it were few in number and strictly limited. There was no notion even then that she was the marked superior of man in activities which were purely masculine. In fact, the average male view was more honestly expressed by Stephen Leacock when he remarked not long ago that "now women were permitted to do practically all the things that men could—the only trouble was that they could not do them."

There are certain features of the exercise of the franchise in which the old rule will apply, and in connection with which we will expect "better things" of the new woman voter. She will be expected, for example, to take a less lenient view of personal unworthiness on the part of political candidates. "The yellow dog" nominee should be practically eliminated by the fact that he must pass the stricter moral censorship of the mother-wife-and-sister vote. If the moral tone of Parliament is not raised by woman franchise, the greatest single benefit expected from it will not have been won.

But isn't it a little unfair to demand that the woman voter will be better than the man in defying weather, conquering indifference, ignoring other engagements and "getting out to the polls?" Only the lure of novelty will be in her favor. In every other way, the male voter will have the advantage. He will have a lifelong interest in the party game. He will probably have had some connection with a party organization. He will usually have a lively recollection of what an exciting sporting event election day is. He will not be deterred by shyness or inexperience or a dread of the possible unpleasantnesses of the polling booth. Yet we hear calculations of the proportion of the women vote likely to come out based upon the theory that they will be far less inclined to neglect the opportunity and the duty of using the suffrage than will the men.

Then they are appealed to for intelligent voting. That is an appeal which should go to every voter; but it will be a miracle if the women learn more in an intensive study for a few weeks of the affairs of the country than the men have absorbed by a more or less casual interest in politics running back to their boyhood. There are plenty of men voters who are ill-informed enough in all conscience. One of the stock arguments for woman suffrage was to contrast the case of the densely ignorant butler or house servant who had the vote with that of his highly intelligent mistress who was denied it. But if the butler had a wife, she was probably even worse off for political knowledge than he was.—Montreal Star.

The following extract from the news supplement of the Royal Bank Magazine on Canadian trade with the West Indies should be of considerable interest:

There are few Canadian firms who have branched out into the export field during the past few years who are not able to tell some story of shipments refused, or transactions which have not been carried to a successful conclusion. In many cases the fault seems to them to lie with the foreign buyer. It is interesting, then, to read such a letter as we received a short time ago from Nassau in the Bahamas, describing a few instances of this nature from the point of view of the man at the other end. Such casese are almost bound to crop up in our foreign trade so long as our exporters are not completely familiar with the market they are selling to, with the tastes and customs of the buyers, and the details of shipping and packing technique.

The letter reads in part as follows:

'The definite establishment of the Canadian Government Marine Service with the West Indies makes the present moment an opportune one for bringing before the Canadian branches a few observations gathered by one of the staff at a West Indian port of call.

'It should first be put on record that the different Colonies appreciate the efforts of the Dominion to develop trade with the British countries of the Caribbean, and appreciate also the difficulties in the way of doing so. The British West Indian Legislatures have shown their feeling in the matter by promptly sanctioning the Preferential Tariff drafted at a conference in Ottawa in June, 1920.

"The Bahamas have not hitherto had a direct service of any kind with Canada, except for the occasional visit of an Elder-Dempster liner in pre-war days, and when the merchants here realised that Nassau was to be a port of call for the new service, they were united in their efforts to assist, and good-sized orders for Canadian merchandise were placed. Now here's the rub: The first steamer brought several consignments of Canadian flour which was absolutely unsuited to this market, and had to be sold by the consignees at a loss. Being comparatively expensive, it will probably be some time before the experiment will be repeated..

"Then there is the local joke on the paint traveller from Canada who solicited orders without a price-list.

"From British Honduras comes the following story: A merchant sent an order for a number of barrels of beef to a Canadian firm, instructing that the shipment was to be forwarded via the Canadian Government Mercantile Marine. The Canadian firm wrote that they could route the shipment via New Orleans and land it fifty cents a barrel cheaper. The buyer replied that he still wished a direct shipment in order to register his support of the new line. The beef arrived via New Orleans, shipped from an American packing house with whom the importer had been doing business for years.

"There is another irritating matter, the responsibility for which rests with either the exporter or his banker, namely, the prompt forwarding of shipping documents. The banker should see that the exporter or forwarding agent gets his drafts through, and bills of lading signed, early enough to enable the bank to forward the documents in the steamer's consignee mail, or, if this is not possible, see that no unnecessary delay occurs in the despatching of documentary bills. This may never-ending source of annoyance to the foreign importer to have his goods dumped on the wharf and left there until the draft and accompanying documents arrive. The steamship agents will not make delivery without the bill of lading, and the invoice is necessary for the duty entries. It is very important, therefore, that shipping documents arrive before the steamer or in the consignee mail. This branch has overcome the difficulty in several cases by issuing a guarantee to the steamship agents, so that delivery may be made and the goods placed in bond. The continuance of this procedure should not, however, be relied upon, as it can only be done for thoroughly responsible customers, and even then, owing to the nature of the guarantee, it is undesirable liability for a bank to take.

"These points are set forth in order that the northern officers may see some of the difficulties which beset the opening up of trade with any new market, and may be in a position to place the other side of the case before their clients, emphasising the necessity of a thorough knowledge of the business not only from the standpoint of manufacturing in Canada, but also from the standpoint of marketing abroad."

THE FABLE OF THE GLAD GIRL

a la George Ade

Once there was a Pollyanna who was afraid to leave her Footprints on the Sands of Time because the Styles changed so frequently that Someone might find the Impressions had been made with a Last Season's Model. A Pollyanna is one who spreads Sunshine and Gladness outside her own home and indulges in a three-hour Tantum when the Old Man or Other Half refuses the Ransom for a new hat. A Pollyanna professes to believe instinctively in the Law of Compensation even though she finds that the Other Guy geheally gets His.

Figuratively speaking, the Boys threw eggs at the Pollyanna Role and in many cases mamma's Eagle Eye was the means of chasing them for Good. At last she got her hooks into a Susceptible Youth at a summer resort and while he was under the influence of Moonshine he asked her to take the Life Risk.

It took the Poor Gazip about three months to discover a Term of Endearment is figured in months at the maximum and that she had her entire Stock of Goods on the Sidewalk. Whenever she saw his face before he had performed the Morning Services she was incapacitated for spreading Nectar and Honey for the rest of the day and was forced to act like a Human Being in associating with others. The Habit grew until she found that some of her Acquaintances were Melting toward her.

While You Use It, It is Yours

THE telephone wire is the throbbing artery of modern business. While you use it, it is yours.

A Toronto business man, talking from his Private Branch Exchange to a Private Branch Exchange in Montreal, has the exclusive use of over $115,000 worth of telephone equipment.

Which is not unlike loaning a luxurious limousine to a man who has been using the street car. He not only gets around in much less time, and accomplishes more, but is everywhere received with consideration.

"85% of my $3,000 sales this week were made by Long Distance. I called on one firm a dozen times without being able to sell them. The first time I called them by Long Distance, I sold a carload. I could hardly believe my ears." —Subscriber's Letter.

Bradstreet's charts show that two-thirds the business failures are due to insufficient sales activity. Thomas A. Edison is quoted as saying:—"I have been through five business depressions. This latest one acts exactly like all the rest. The man who, if business fell off 66 per cent, increased his selling effort 75 per cent, managed to pull through as if there was no depression."

You can increase your selling efforts many times, at low cost, by using Long Distance. A subscriber writes that it costs him only 1-1/3% of his sales. Our manager will gladly co-operate with you, if you will call him.

GLADYS BENNETT, OF MEYERSBURG, WRITES PRIZE-WINNING ESSAY

But Twelve Years of Age, is Author of Creditable Paper on "Value of Milk as a Food Product."

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 12.—The following is an essay entered in competition at the Rural School Fair and won the first prize donated by the Seymour West Woman's Institute. Its author, little Gladys Bennett, is but 12 years of age, and her paper reflects literary promise. She is a pupil in Meyersburg School, near Campbellford.

The Prize Essay.

The material which the body uses all comes from the food. We eat our meals to provide our bodies with the necessary energy. The blood sucks up all the good it can get from our food. In fact, the food first becomes blood and the blood afterwards becomes flesh. Good food makes good blood and good blood makes healthy bodies. Therefore, we should eat plenty of good food. Poor food makes poor blood and poor blood will make small bodies and weak brains.

There arises then the question, what is good food? Good food is a mixture of the five things necessary for good health. Some articles of food are so well proportioned in these five food values that we never grow tired of them. Some of these are bread, potatoes, meat and milk. Milk is a complete human food, especially for growing children. It is Nature's sample mixture of foods in proper proportion. Certified milk is the highest grade of raw milk. It is from cows free from tuberculosis and obtained under sanitary conditions.

Five Ingredients.

Milk contains the five different things necessary for good health, namely, curd, cream, sugar, salt and water. Every article of food should contain a little of these five kinds of foods in about the right proportions to make good health and pure blood. The following are as correctly as possible the exact amounts of the five substances that are present in 100 parts of milk produced from a fairly good cow:

1. Curd	3½ parts
2. Cream or butter fat	3¾ parts
3. Milk sugar	5 parts
4. Salts of different kinds	¾ parts
5. Water	87 parts

A person could live for a long time on curds, salt and water, but could live only a short time on fats and sugar alone. You must have a little of each of these five kinds of foods, just enough of each to make good blood, which is necessary for good health.

A Cheap Food.

Milk is not only a complete food, but is cheap and economical as well. A quart of milk is equal in food value to about one pound of meat or eight eggs. One pound of cheese, a product of milk, is equal to about two pounds of meat and costs only about half as much. Milk is easily digested if taken in the right way, which is to slowly sip it so that the saliva can mix with it before being swallowed. Good butter and cheese, products of milk, are good foods and are very heat producing. Skim milk and butter milk are good for calves, pigs and poultry. They help to digest thin food and add increased weight at small cost. Butter milk helps people to digest their food more profiterly. No part of milk need be wasted. The whey is separated at many factories and butter made. Even the residue which then remains can be profitably fed to pigs.

Besides using it for drinking, milk is used in other ways. People who do not like milk to drink should eat foods in which milk is the chief ingredient, such as corn-starch pudding, ice cream, cream pie, etc.

There could be a great deal more said in regard to milk, but time and space do not permit the telling of it here. However, I have endeavored to prove, in a limited space, the great value of milk as a food product.

EMIGRANTS NEEDED SAYS PREMIER HUGHES

LONDON, Oct. 12. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—According to Reuter's Melbourne correspondent, Premier W. M. Hughes of Australia had a splendid reception when he spoke in Bendigo, State of Victoria. He declared that the only way to save Australia was to increase production and added: "We must bring people to Australia to develop and hold our great and glorious estate."

The Victorian State Treasurer, Hon. W. M. McPherson, said United States' financiers had communicated with the Victorian government with the object of doing business, but his arrangements with British financial houses would certainly be carried out.

EULOGISES SERVICES OF JUDGE MACLENNAN.

OTTAWA, Oceober 12 (Canadian Press). —. In announcing that the Department had received the award of the Board of Conciliation in the matter of the railwaymen's wage dispute, Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labour, yesterday paid a warm tribute to the work of Judge F. S. MacLennan, the chairman of the Board.

The Minister said that intimations had come to the Department from representatives of the railway companies concerned and also from some of the gentlemen representing the employees, indicating that the fact of an agreement being finally reached was due in very large part to the tact and patience of Judge MacLennan, who persisted in his efforts to bring about an adjustment when it was deemed by everyone else that a settlement by conciliation was impossible.

GOVERNMENT TO AID THE JOBLESS IN OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, October 12 (Canadian Press). — "We can promise that something will be done, and that something will be in the exact direction you request," were the words of the Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways and Canals, to the large civic deputation, headed by Mayor Frank Plant, which waited upon the Minister to make representations to him as to the advisability of the Department undertaking this winter the building of a retaining wall along the Rideau Canal from the point known as deep cut, Waverley Street to Bank Street, in order to assist in relieving the local unemployment situation.

TENDENCY TO HOLD GRAIN FOR HIGHER PRICES.

WINNIPEG, October 12 (Canadian Press). — After more than three weeks of total suspension, due to heavy rainfall, threshing is now in full swing throughout the West, according to the Weekly Crop Review of hte Canadian Pacific Railway. A feature of the report is the marked tendency to hold grain until spring, owing to the falling prices.

It is estimated that 75 per cent. of the threshing in Manitoba is completed, and wth fair weather the remainder will be finished within the next ten days. The potato crop has bee nexcellent, and there will be a large surplus for export. About fifty per cent. of the fall ploughing has been completed.

About half the threshing in Saskatchewan has been completed, and a further two weeks will be required to finish operations.

Damages to grain through wet weather is not so bad as anticipated, while in Northern Saskatchewan the yield is greater and of a better quality than for some years. Help is scarce, and such as is available is asking exorbitant wages.

LABOUR PRESENTS ITS EMPLOYMENT PROGRAMME.

LONDON, October 12 (Canadian Press). — Labour's programme for dealing with unemployment was submitted by a deputation at a meeting with Mr. Lloyd-George and the Cabinet's Unemployment Committee last night. The programme, which has been somewhat revised since it originally was formulated, lays stress on the necessity for a comprehensive housing policy and the financing of public works by the Government, instead of by communities.

There's a lot of trouble in the world from puddings that taste good but don't do good.

They "eat" well, but that ends the recommendation.

Sanitariums are full of pudding-eaters who stopped the test at taste and forgot to inquire whether their food gave the body what it needed—until the body rebelled.

Grape-Nuts is a food that tastes good and does good. The proof of Grape-Nuts begins in the eating and goes on through the splendid service which Grape-Nuts renders as a real food. Mme. Frances
The Famous Creator of Fashions

A RADICAL and much mooted change has at last appeared in the world of dress. I refer to the long skirt, which in many cases plays hide and seek with the ankles. There are innumerable ways in which the flowing panels are disposed, but they all have one goal—the lengthening of the skirt.

This is a fashion that permits many graceful effects, as long classic-looking folds take the place of the much abbreviated garments that have been so long in vogue. In anticipation of this change of style, which will be more evident as the season advances and fall merges into winter, I have created many fascinating frocks.

These reflect the influence of Spain as well as the Orient, and are particularly distinguished by their unusual beauty of line. These illustrated on this page will reveal to you some of the ways in which I have introduced the new skirt length.

A particularly attractive gown is that made of black chiffon. It is developed over a slip of black satin, upon which is superimposed black lace. The neckline droops from the shoulders, where the long, loose sleeves are attached. These are slashed from this point to the cuff, which is girdled with monkey fur.

Beneath the chiffon, one may glimpse the fine black lace that is disposed on the satin slip.

There are rounded panels of the chiffon in the front and back of the dress. These are bound with chiffon. The double side panels are cleverly looped through the soft chiffon girdle and finished with monkey fur, which follows the rounding curves of the panels.

To wear with this creation, which aroused much interest at my recent opening, I originated the large hat of black velvet. Its trimming consists of a cluster of black paradise that sweeps over the brim.

Another dress that will, I think, appeal greatly to you, is that made of black Romo crepe. Its lines bespeak the influence of the Orient, and this is accentuated in the shape of the silver hat, which is set off with two long coral tassels.

Featuring Long, Loose Sleeves

Like the dress which I have just described, this model rejoices in long, loose sleeves. A touch of delightful color appears on them, for they are embroidered in coral and silver. The lower part of the bodice and the skirt are beautifully embroidered in coral and silver.

In the front the crepe is drawn to reveal a triangular panel of the frock. It is interesting to note that this is somewhat shorter than the soft folds of the crepe about the sides. The arrangement of the fulness places the emphasis on the sides of the dress.

A narrow girdle of filigree silver marks the waistline, and above this the waist blouses slightly, for many oriental modes stress this touch.

I have also bound all the edges of the frock with binds of the Romo crepe, as this gives a most effective finish to the dress. Were you to copy this model in some other materials and omit the embroidery, you would get a pleasing result if you introduce a binding of a different color, should you care to develop your frock in this manner. If, however, you prefer the self-colored binds, which I think are most appealing, then you might use a brighter color for the underdress. Indeed, as you study this model, you will find that it suggests many delightful possibilities, which will readily be appreciated by the home dressmaker.

Of course, the longer skirt is not restricted to one type of dress nor one type of woman. It dominates the modes for day and evening and is, I think, really at its best in the modes for evening.

The evening model illustrated is one of the gowns which I presented at my recent opening. Its colors are particularly beautiful and the fabrics from which it is fashioned are very lovely. Silver and mauve, I decided, should have a foundation of flesh-colored satin, so the slip is evolved from this material.

Over its soft folds falls the cobwebby mauve chiffon. On the corsage it is arranged in narrow triangular pieces that sweep from the girdle to the shoulder in the front of the gown. Under this a band of the mauve and silver lace is swathed about the figure.

The sides of the gown are made of mauve chiffon, which is hemstitched in silver. These pieces are cut with pointed ends that almost touch the floor. In the front of the skirt one may perceive the flesh-colored slip, or rather a slender panel of the satin, which is hidden again from view where the bands of mauve and silver lace are held together.

The back of this gown is perhaps even more interesting than the front. Caught on each shoulder is a panel of mauve and silver lace. This is quite wide, so that as it descends from the shoulders it falls in many graceful ripples.

It is lightly caught at the waist, for there is no restraining band to hold it, as the silver lace girdle appears only in the front. However, a certain blousiness that almost suggests the presence of a belt is suggested by this arrangement. From the waistline it falls free again, until a stitch stops its flight at its lower edge. This, however, permits of many a graceful ripple, as well as allowing the soft flesh tones of the slip to mingle with those of the mauve chiffon.

A Special Wrap Necessary

A band of Parma violets restrains the tresses and accentuates the lovely color of the gown. After creating this model, I felt a special wrap should be evolved for wear with it. Looking among some of the gorgeous fabrics that I have selected from various corners of the globe, I discovered a piece of exquisite chiffon velvet. The color mauve looked perfect when I laid it beside the gown.

Then I wondered about its lining. What could be more beautiful than to carry out the color scheme of the dress? So I selected some flesh-colored satin and lined it with that. Now in the matter of lines, I have favored the Spanish mantilla.

The most interesting characteristic, however, about this creation is its collar. This is a bank of Parma violets clustered closely together and naturally matching those that are used for the head decoration. Do not fear that this would prove uncomfortable about the neck, for lest any of their petals should be the least bit rough I have veiled them with a filmy fold of tulle that insures softness without detracting from the beauty of the flowers.

The accessories of dress merit some attention at this time. Of particular interest is the new neckwear. Naturally, the long-sleeved guimpe is much in evidence. Such sleeves repeat the style tendencies of the dresses. Many flare widely at the wrist, while others, although wide, are restrained by a narrow cuffband.

GOVERNMENT RAILROAD CONTROL COST BRITAIN NEARLY BILLION

WITH RETURN OF LINES TO OWNERS BRITISH TAXPAYER IS 181,081,149 POUNDS STERLING POORER--WAGES NOT CONCERNED IN RESTORATION.

By LLOYD ALLEN,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Britain's railroads—after seven years of Governmental control—have been returned to private management and the British taxpayer is approximately three-quarters of a billion dollars poorer—181,081,149 pounds sterling, to be exact.

Today it's safe to say the British people generally rejoice at the termination of state interference in the railroad business.

Moreover, the man in the street is undoubtedly convinced that "nationalization" of the roads would prove a very questionable and probably costly innovation, and he would point to war-time curtailed services and costly passenger fares, to prove his contention that any socialization or semi-socialization is doomed to utter failure.

Because the British are essentially modest about proclaiming themselves "efficient," the world at large is virtually ignorant of the speedy express trains that in normal times run at world-record speeds. Also it's not generally known that the British railroad companies and their workers have highly complex, self-adjusting wage scales that automatically and with very little real friction keep the rate of pay at a definite figure, as compared with the cost of living.

Wherefore, the transfer of these gigantic properties from Governmental to private control was accomplished without any special discussion regarding wages, since this problem had been adjusted many months previously.

Also, the whole question of Governmental remuneration to the companies had been taken care of by means of an arrangement whereby the Government guaranteed the railroad managements to keep the net receipts, while under state control, equal to the 1913 earnings.

Regular payments were made from the state, subject to later refunds from the companies should superaudited statistics show any over-payment.

Here it was, that the state treasury suffered. By the time de-control arrived, August 15, 1921, the state had paid out 121,081,149 pounds, while an additional figure of approximately 60,000,000 pounds remains to be paid.

These sums were transferred in three payments, the first of which was made March 31, 1920. Previous to this date receipts had balanced expenditures.

Added to the public cost of state control is still another item of some 4,000,000 pounds for the railroad companies of Ireland.

Britain has accepted these huge losses with very little grumbling, because they represent a small portion of the staggering cost of the great war.

Throughout the terrific struggle the British railroads never broke down, and it is believed here the roads stood the strain better than the railroads of any other belligerent.

Experts explain that Britain's practice of constructing the soldiest kind of roadbeds and bridges and the consistent use of light-weight rolling stock accounts for the war-time efficiency.

Principal causes of huge losses in state operation of the roads is attributed to general inauguration of the eight-hour day, necessitating employment of 76,000 men, costing 15,600,000 pounds yearly, to which must be added war-time wage increases to the regular personnel. Comparative pre-war and war-time wage bills are as follows:

1913 annual wages	£ 47,500,000
1920 annual wages	113,000,000
1921 estimated	173,000,000

Under the present wage arrangement the men get an additional shilling for every increase of five points in an index figure of the cost of living, as compiled by the Ministry of Labor.

Downward trend of the living cost entails wage reductions in the same proportion, until a definitely fixed low level is reached, whereafter the wages remain stationary and cannot be reduced further.

By act of Parliament, the British roads are to group themselves into four great amalgamations which will be completed by January 1, 1923. Each group will have its directorate thereby eliminating scores of board of directors now functioning.

Sir Eric Geddes, who was war-time Minister of Transport, is reported to have estimated an annual saving of approximately 30,000,000 pounds, though less optimistic prophets put the gain at four million.

Simultaneously with railroad de-control, the companies inaugurated cheap excursion rates. Coming at the peak of the vacation season this move highly pleased millions of holidayers. Regular fares remain approximately 75 per cent. over pre-war rates.

Furthermore, people were prone to associate cheaper rates, after months of almost prohibitive fares, with private ownership, although the state some months previously had granted permission for the companies to take such a step, but the great coal strike intervened and rendered reduction of fares under state management almost impossible.

Arguments of this character, together with a vivid remembrance of the palmy pre-war days of cheap fares and extensive train services, make the case for resumption and continuation of private ownership rather strong in the mind of the man in the street.

ESTABLISHING OF VETERAN ON LAND COST 84 MILLION

27,000 EX-SERVICE MEN HAVE BEN EFITTED FROM LAW

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 11.—(Associated Press).—Canada has spent over $84,000,000 in the establishment of returned soldiers on the land. This figure represents over 27,000 individual ex-service men who have benefited from the law which had for its twin aims soldier re-establishment and the development of the agricultural resources of the Dominion. It represents 80 per cent. of Canada's ex-service men who have gone back to the land and 30 per cent. of the men of the Canadian army who were demobilized as physically fit.

Under the law any ex-service man eligible from a military standpoint, having seen service overseas, may apply for loans up to a maximum of $7,500 for the following purposes: For the purchase of land, $4,500; for stock and equipment, $2,000; for permanent improvements, $1,000. If on encumbered land, the ex-soldier is entitled to loans amounting to $5,000; if on free Dominion land, to loans amounting to $3,000. In the case of purchased land the settler must pay 10 per cent. of the cost price of the land as a guarantee of good faith.

These benefits are open to men of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, to ex-service men of Great Britain, the Dominions and the Allied forces who lived in Canada prior to the war and to ex-service men of the Imperial or Dominions forces, if on their arrival in Canada they spend a sufficient time to gain practical agricultural experience on Canadian farms. The Imperials, however, are required to pay 20 per cent. of the expenditures for all purposes cash down.

On July 31, the number of applications was 60,827 and of these 43,-65 had been accepted as qualified to farm. Nearly 1,000 others are in training with the intention of taking up farms when qualified. Of the 26,-701 settled on the land, 20,624 were granted loans. The others were located on free Dominion lands without financial assistance.

The Settlement Board adopted a system of selection, requiring that applicants must pass a rigid examination as to physical ability, moral character and sincerity of purpose, with the result that out of the 26,000 men who have now been on the land upwards of two years strict supervision of their operations has revealed the fact that only about 10 per cent. have failed to show promise of satisfactory results. In some cases, it has been found necessary to allow the settler to withdraw from his obligation and the board has taken over his farm and sold it to another.

In 425 such cases, where the investment of the Government was $1,-662,729, the Government realized on re-sale $1,654,523, showing a loss of only $19.30 on each farm.

The loans for land and permanent improvements run for 25 years, those for stock and equipment for six years with interest at five per cent. No payments were due until the fall of 1920, when 12,231 men were liable. The number who made repayments was 9,330 and 1,439 made prepayments. There were 403 who repaid their entire loans.

In view of the collapse of the markets in the middle of the threshing season and of the occurrence of drouth and other visitations last year in some localities in the West, the Government regards this statement as very satisfactory, and it is believed that a very few years will see most of these soldier farmers well on their way to success. Indeed, there are cases where settlers have taken from the ground crops aggregating in value more than the whole cost of their farms.

Alberta has the largest number of soldier settlers, with 6,058; Saskatchewan second, with 5,136. The other Provinces in the order named: Manitoba, 3,319; British Columbia, 2,975; Ontario, 1,521; New Brunswick, 543; Nova Scotia, 381; Quebec, 363; Prince Edward Island, 329.

In addition to the loan advantages which a soldier settler has, the board secures for him very favorable arrangements with regard to the purchase of his stock and equipment. Farm machinery manufacturers, lumber dealers, harness and wagon makers give special prices to soldier settlers, in some cases amounting to a reduction of 30 per cent. In the purchase of equipment the board has effected a saving of $886,804. It also has saved the settlers large sums in land purchase. No intermediary is permitted to take a rake-off on soldier farms; the land is bought direct from the owner.

The most important advantage, however, is the supervision which the board gives to its settlers. It advises him in all his operations until satisfied that he is doing well and in a position to carry on without assistance. It buys only what he needs, not what he wants—in this way curbing his propensity for rash buying.

A home branch counsels and assists in whatever manner seems to be desirable the dependents of the settlers. This branch has secured the co-operation of the Red Cross and the other societies in the establishment of hospitals in remote areas and it has brought thousands of the women to centres of population for courses in home economics, which have proved very interesting and helpful.

This great re - establishment scheme, which it is claimed is unrivaled in the world, is administered by a board of three—Major John Barnett, Major E. J. Ashton and Samuel Maber. The head office is at Ottawa and district offices are established in every Province.

MRS. ROSE M. BROWN GAINED 20 POUNDS IN FOUR WEEKS TIME

DECLARES ITS SIMPLY ASTONISHING TO SEE THE WONDERFUL BENEFITS SHE HAS DERIVED FROM TANLAC—SAYS TERRIBLE HEADACHES HAVE DISAPPEARED.

MRS. ROSE M. BROWN

"It sounds unreasonable, but I have actually gained 20 pounds in ess than a month's time by taking Tanlac, and the wonderful benefit I have derived from the use of this medicine is simply astonishing," said Mrs. Rose M. Brown, 111 Third Street, Manchester, N.H.

"Why, I am so happy to be relieved of my troubles I can really never praise this medicne enough. Up to the time I began taking Tanlac, I suffered for something over two years with a very bad form of stomach trouble.

"My appetite was so poor I could scarcely eat a thing. My stomach would be so badly bloated with gas sometimes I was almost afraid to go to bed for fear I would actually smother. I felt tired and worn out most of the time and became terribly discouraged over my condition I often had such violent headaches I was unable to be out of bed for two or three days at a stretch.

"Four bottles of Tanlac completely restored my health and anyone can see at a glance the wonderful change that has taken place in my condition. I have a splendid appetite now and the stomach trouble has entirely disappeared. I can eat just anything I want without ever feeling a sign of indigestion. The best of all, I am never bothered any more with headaches and this was the greatest relief of all. I want to tell everybody what this medicine has done for me."

BRITISH INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

Welding Steel With Copper.

The persistently high cost of labor and material has forced manufacturers to give the keenest attention to every promising source of economy in production. For this among other reasons, there has been a revival of interest in a unique welding system developed in Great Britain a few years ago and since put into commercial operation. This system depends upon the fact that if a piece of copper on an iron plate is heated in an atmosphere of hydrogen to the melting-point of copper, the copper will spread over the iron in a thin penetrating film like butter on hot toast. So, if the copper is melted between two pieces of iron it welds them together in an amazingly intimate fashion, the copper film actually working itself in between the crystals of the iron. By this process machine parts which can most conveniently be made in two pieces can be efficiently joined together without the complication of screws. In effect it enables the cheapness of separate manufacture to be combined with the strength and convenience of the solid combination. Steam turbine blades and the cage or body of a high speed centrifugal governor for small steam turbines are among the articles which have been successfully made by this simple and ingenious process.

The Simplest of Steam Traps.

Among the innumerable forms of steam traps none could be neater or more effective than a new form recently brought out by a British firm of engineers. The working part of the trap is a small flat sealed chamber, shaped like the vacuum box of an ordinary aneroid barometer. This chamber is filled with a volatile spirit and its vapor. When steam is passing the spirit is heated, the chamber expands and closes a valve attached to it, thus shutting off the steam. When any water collects the spirit is cooled, the chamber contracts, and the valve opens, allowing the water to escape. The flow of steam through the opening heats the chamber again and so closes the valve. Either side of the valve can be used as the inlet.

Improved Drop Hammers.

A battery of drop hammers recently supplied by a British firm to the engineering workshops of a Chinese railway possesses several interesting features. It includes three hammers, one of 30 cwt., one of 15 cwt., and a third of 7 cwt. All three hammers are lifted by wheels on a single overhead shaft, driven by an electric motor through a closed gear box which reduces the speed. The ropes supporting the hammer blocks are rails ed on grooved drums, to which they are held by special friction blocks; at any desired moment the friction block is raised and the hammer falls. The mechanism of control is so simple that a child could operate the largest hammer with ease. Each hammer can be lifted to any height and allowed to fall, or it can be held stationary at any point. Before being installed the battery was subjected to the severest tests, all three hammers being held suspended while the motor continued to run, but not the slightest tendency to overheating showed itself in the lifters. No other drop hammer, it is confidently stated, was ever subjected to so arduous a test.

Safety in Mines.

One of the drawbacks of using electrical apparatus in fiery mines is that explosions taking place inside switch boxes and other apparatus are liable to produce a flame outside, and ignite the gas in the mine. It is practically impossible to make the casing of the electrical apparatus strong enough to withstand the force of such explosion; and if a safety valve is fitted to prevent the cracking of the casing it is likely to permit the flame to escape with disastrous results. A solution of this difficulty has been devised by an electrical company in Great Britain. The cover of the casing is held down by bolts with a spring cover so arranged that when an explosion occurs the whole cover lifts by not more than one thirty-second of an inch. This lift is sufficient to relieve the internal pressure, but the gases, in escaping through the narrow passage between broad pieces of metal, are cooled sufficiently to prevent the passage of flames. Stringent tests of this ingenious device have proved it to be completely successful.

Improving British Ports.

Everybody will have heard the story of the American who was contemptuously comparing the Clyde with the Mississippi and who was silenced by the observation that while Providence had been responsible for the Mississippi, human engineers had made the Clyde. It is a literal fact that the famous home of shipbuilding and sea commerce is largely an artificial waterway. Still the work of improvement, begun nearly a hundred years ago, is being continued. New docks are about to be constructed which will give six large parallel basins with direct entrance from the river and will add about seven miles of quays to the accommodation of the port. The total cost of the new works will be about £2,000,000. Ambitious developments are also proceeding at the port of London, where a new cargo quay, 1,000 feet long, has just been put into service, and plans for a large passenger stage at Tilbury and for big extensions to dock accommodation are being prepared.

British Trade Ship.

All the preliminary arrangements have now been made in connection with the British Trade Ship, which will form a floating exhibition of British manufactures. A vessel of 20,000 tons will be built specially for the purpose, with a head-room of 10 feet between decks and ample space for the setting out of exhibits of all kinds. The boat itself, with its oil-engine plant, its lighting, heating, ventilation and equipment generally will be an exhibit of immense value. Accommodation is provided for about 800 large exhibits and also for travelling representatives. A cruise of 18 months has been projected, during which the vessel will visit over 30 ports.

World's Most Wonderful Film.

What is the most wonderful film in the world? Many different answers will be given to this question, but undoubtedly the film produced in Great Britain to represent the Battle of Jutland is among the most remarkable. The pictures were composed by photographing numerous specially constructed models of ships arranged on a mimic sea. Between exposures each ship was moved only one sixteenth of an inch, so that untold patience had to be exercised to reproduce a completed manoeuvre. The services of many experts were engaged to ensure accuracy in connection with each phase of the engagement, and the completed film forms a unique record of an historic battle.

An Amphibious "Tank."

It is well known that at the time of the Armistice, Great Britain had produced a new type of tank which was a great advance upon the types that had been formerly in action. Since then further progress has been achieved. The latest curiosity in this line is an amphibious tank, which is capable not only of traversing the roughest country, but of floating across streams and canals.

LOVE'S ADVENT.

Enlarge my heart, O God of Love,
Thy gifts are like Thyself so great,
When waves of blessing o'er me sweep,
I know my little bounds must break—
Must break, and the dry land be sea,
Because great Love has come to me.

Unworthy? Yes, I seem to be,
But Love does not consider this,
It only seeks itself to give,
To one whom it knows wants to live,
And in this depth it seems to me
I'll lose my own identity.

Master Creator of Characters Who Live

HALF A CENTURY has passed since Charles Dickens forever laid aside his pen over the unfinished manuscript of "Edwin Drood." Yet Dickens is enshrined in the hearts of every book lover; his characters live with us in our daily lives; and his works are published, re-published and published again, putting to shame the so-called "best sellers," whose frothy fame is quickly dimmed by the radiance of the Master Creator of Characters Who Live.

More than a quarter of a century ago, L. E. Waterman introduced to lovers of easy, smooth, continuous writing

Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen

To this invention of L. E. Waterman, as to the immortal works of Charles Dickens, the passing years have brought increasing popularity.

In character, convenience and efficiency, Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen stands supreme. Ephemeral improvements and vaunted best-sellers but accentuate the lasting superiority and satisfaction of using the Waterman's Ideal.

There is a Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen to suit every hand and every individual character of hand-writing. Three types—including self-filler—

REVISION OF THE ANGLICAN PRAYER BOOK EXPLAINED

WILL BE STANDARD OF CHURCH OF ENGLAND IN CANADA, SAYS CANON CODY—ORDER OF SERVICESIMPLIFIED.

Rev. Canon Cody of Toronto has explained briefly just what has been done in revising the Church of England prayer book; and his explanation will, no doubt, find interest with Anglicans in Peterborough City and district, who fear that the ancient beauty and impressiveness of their services may have been marred by a touch of too much modernism in the changes effected.

Dr. Cody recalls the fact that the work just completed, and confirmed, had taken ten years, it having been inaugurated at the general synod which sat in London in 1911. A joint commission from the upper and lower houses received instructions to carry out, under definite limitations, the revision of the book, it being made clearly understood that there was to be no variation of the doctrines and principles of the church. Financed by the Cambridge Press, a small central committee began the work. This Press has also been entrusted with the ultimate publication of the book. The first result of the labors of this committee was presented to the general synod which met in Toronto in 1915. Subsequent changes were made and completed and the final revision submitted to the synod of 1918. At this synod, a canon was passed adopting the book as the official prayer book of the Church of England in Canada. By the action of the general synod now in session, the revision has been formally confirmed, as required by law; and it will henceforth be the legal and standard authority of the Church of England in Canada.

"The book, as revised, will be issued forthwith," Canon Cody stated. "The main changes have been, among others, along the lines of a simplifying of the order of services, so that they may be more easily followed. There has been a reasonable modernizing of phraseology, so that the language might be made more easily intelligible to every reader. Services have been adapted, where necessary, to Canadian conditions and for special services, such as Canadian national days."

Dr. Cody also impressed the fact that the revision had looked to the enrichment of the book, beautiful and appropriate prayers having been added—prayers for varied conditions and for the newer element in church activities.

"The revision, as accomplished, affords greater elasticity in the use and combination of services," he said. "The vexed question of the Athanasian Creed has been settled by making optional the use of this creed on any occasion."

In declaring that this ancient literary masterpiece now combined all the noble attributes of the past, with adaptations to the varied needs of the modern church, Dr. Cody took occasion to pay tribute to the splendid service rendered by Ven. Archdeacon Armitage of Halifax, the custodian of the prayer book, who had so much to do with the revision.

SPLENDID WORK BY WELL BABIES' CLINIC

Value of Organization Revealed at Quarterly Meeting.

On Thursday evening of last week, a meeting of the Board of Management of the Well Babies' Clinic was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Kendry, Water stret, with a very good attendance. Matters of importance to the conducting of the clinic were discussed and also the report of the nurse Mrs Geo. McCartney, for the quarter including the months of July, August and September. This report disclosed a very encouraging condition of affairs at the Clinic, which is becoming more and more appreciated by the public, as evidenced by their attendance at the Tuesday afternon meetings.

Interesting Meetings

The number of babies examined at the Clinic was 209. A total of 247 calls were made by the nurse, and a number of interesting cases were noted.

One instance was that of an entire family of newcomers to the town, whose circumstances were not of the best. Medical attention and care was given the children at the clinic and the aid of various charitable societies in the city was successfully enlisted in their behalf. Another family with twin babies and four other children, recent arrivals also to the city, were looked after by the doctors and nurses and the King's Daughters. A baby discovered to have pneumonia was treated here and subsequently recovered.

A number of children, whose diet was improperly propotioned were attended to by the physicians and nurse, and all are doing well. Five operations were performed by the advice of the Clinic doctos. One baby suffering with ear disease was examined and, acting under the advice of the clinic doctor, was taken to a specialist who corected the condition. In a number of cases, the doctors called upon the nurse to assist them in seeing that orders with regard to children were properly carried out, as in the assistance of the child brought in from the country found to be suffering from a nervous disease, whose prompt recovery followed efficient attention

Crowded Homes.

A number of cases were noted, especially in the south-western portion of the city where the homes were crowded and unsanitary. A nurse on full time able to visit these places and dispense good advice could do an immeasurable amount of good. Many of the mothers, although capable are ignorant of the best methods, and would be thankful to receive advice regarding the preparation of food and keeping their homes in better condition. A rather peculiar case that came under obsevation in this house visiting was one where the mother of the family was in the habit of taking from 12 to 15 tablets, containing adoes, belladonna, and strychnine every day. Of course, poisoning resulted, and only the prompt advice of the nurse as to the folly of continuing such a course saved her from serious illness.

Attending Physicians

At the conclusion of the reading of the report, and other routine business, a hearty vote of thanks was unanimously carried to Dr. Lillian Grady, who took charge of the clinic during the absence in the summer of Dr. Birnie.

Attending physicians at the Well Babies' Clinic for the months of July, August and September were, Dr. Jessie Birnie, Dr. Lillian Grady, Dr. A. W.. McPherson, Dr. A. B. Mann, Dr. N. H. Sutton, Dr. J. H. Eastwood, Dr. D. C. King, Dr. Ray Scott and Dr. Harvey. Many of these are specialists in children's diseases.

HUN WAR PLANTS PUT TO NEW USE.

200,000 Employees of Factories Again at Work.

BERLIN, Oct. 12. — (Canadian Press) The principal former military and naval work-shops of the German Government, which were closed in 1919 in accordance with the treaty of Versailles, have been reopened as "peace-time factories" and are producing goods more adapted to usages of peace than war.

Two hundred thousand workmen, thrown out of employment by the closing of shops have been re-employed.

Among the larger factories converted from military to commercial pursuits were the artillery workshops, ammunition, gun, powder and fireworks labatories at Amberg, Dachau, Cassel, Erfurt, Ingolstadt, Munich, Sieburg, Spandau and Wolfgang, near Hanau, as well as the navy yards and naval torpedo shops at Fredrichort, Kiel and Ruestringen.

These factories are operating virtually full time, producing products castings and wrought iron stamped and drawn pieces, all sorts of machnery, railroad supplies, motors, motorcycles, hand and machine tools, pneumatic tools, electrical utensils, ship machinery, motor and sailing boats, agricultural implements, furniture, locomotives, railroad cars, automobiles and auto-trucks.

The work of transforming the war factories to commecial usages, undertaken by the government with the permission of the Council of Ambassadors, was assigned to a stock company, shares of which were taken by the government, the board of control being composed of government officials and representative financiers and industrialists.

German demands are accounting for most of the output of these factories but surplus products are finding a ready outside market, particularly in the Scandinavian countries, where the high price of money as against the German mark adds to the attractiveness of purchases of German wares. German-made automobiles are especally in demand by foreign dealers.

The manufacturers of farm machinery and railroad equipment are looking to Russia as a chief customer as soon as conditions in that country has been stabilized and already hundreds of representatives of German exporting firms have gone into the Soviet republic to study the situation and prepare for a commercial offensive, in which the British are expected to be the most alert competitors.

The motion picture course of instruction on the elements of the automobile, now used in schools, colleges and universities, contains 35 sets in 12 reels each. The film, which took a year to produce, is nearly 400,000 feet in length.

300,000 RUBLES FOR HER SLIPPERS

By JOHN GRAUDENZ,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Oct. 12.— The well-dressed woman in Russia to-day could be oufitted for from 4,000,000 to 8,000,000 rubles, and a man would spend about 1,500,000 rubles.

This, in American money, would mean between $1,000 and $2,000 for a woman's clothing, and $350 for a man's.

Some of the articles a woman would buy, and their prices, would be:

Slippers, 300,000 rubles; shoes, 500,000; dress, 1,000,000; tailored suit, 1,500,000 to 2,000,000; cotton stockings, 25,000, and silk stockings 50,000.

A man would pay at least 1,300,000 rubles for a suit of the poorest cloth; 100,000 for a shirt, and 28,000 to 30,000 for a tie.

It is characteristic of present-day Russia that while essential articles are offered at exorbitant prices, comparative luxuries are really cheap. About a dozen shops reopen for busienss in Moscow daily, displaying every article from a needle to French perfume One shop, the windows of which are elaborately decorated, even boasted an American safety razor, priced at 140,000 rubles.

As regards fod, prices are regulated largely bw supply and demand, as in other countries, and because of the shortage of many articles, prices are unusually high. In fact, many people cannot afford to pay them.

Fruit is about theonly thing that is fairly plentiful. Ham, being very scarce, brings 18,000 rubles a Russian fund—about nine-tenths of an American pound— for the fresh variety, and 28,000 to 30,000 for smoked. Lamb chops are about the cheapest of all meats, selling for 9,000.

A chicken, weighing three fund, or a duck, weighing four fund, brings 35,000 rubles. Butter sells at 26,000 to 28,000; cheese, 25,000; milk, 3,000 a krushka—a little less than a pint; eggs, 12,000 for ten.

Fish is one of the most important of Russian foods. Herring bring from 1,500 to 7,000 rubles apiece, and salmon, 20,000.

A MENTAL TONIC

Very few of us are entirely satisfied with ourselves, says the New York Sun. We have all the traits of character which we dislike and would gladly discard if we could do so easily. We make firm resolves to change our ways and perhaps exert our will power to eliminate the undesirable quality only to find ourselves unconsciously slipping back again into the same old rut. The usual result is that after a while we give up the attempt, very likely with the old excuse that one's character can not be changed; that one must die with the one he is born with.

The truth of that statement is not so generally accepted as it was a few years ago. Character consists of the sum total of one's mental habits is a very practical possibility. All that is needed is an earnest desire coupled with a firm conviction that it can be acomplished.

The best way to kill an undesirable mental habit is to cultivate a habit of thought directly opposite in nature. If you are afflicted with the blues and have the desire and courage to attack them let your mind rest on the happiness which comes with a cheerful metal condition. Be consciously cheerful. Smile! Smile whether you have anything to smile at or not. Don't just smile with your face, but smile mentally at the world and soon, when the engine of the brain gets running along that track it will keep on with very little effort on the part of the engineer excepting, perhaps, some more smiles, once in a while for steam.

The DELTOR

Saves You 50c to $10 on Materials Alone

1 THE first thing that the Deltor does is to give you an individual layout chart (yes, an individual chart—not just a general chart but one for your exact size and for each suitable width of material). You lay out your pattern the expert's way. You use ¼ to 1⅜ yards less material—a saving of 50c to $10 on material for every frock.

2 THE Deltor saves you time. Everything the Parisian originator would do if he were making your very own frock, is clearly shown by simple pictures and words. Should your dress embody the irregular hem, the bizarre new sleeves, the Italian neck line, the Deltor shows you just how to achieve the correct effect.

3 AND finally you have every last little touch that makes for smartness—ideas for finish that could originate in but one place—Paris. You so instinctively follow the simple explanations that your finished frock must be successful, must be Paris.

BREACHES OF TRUCE QUESTION

Clare alone is said to have brought 15,000 men under arms, is another matter which the Government has taken exception to, and so long as any doubt of settlement remains the Government will endeavor to secure the position that each party continue just as when the truce was declared.

It is believed that both parties can arrive at a satisfactory arrangement in this regard. The Irish delegates have no complaints to make of their reception by the British Cabinet members. They entered upon the duties assigned to them by the Dail Eireann with unusually determined looks, Michael Collins being the only one with a smile on his face as he entered and left the conference room. In this he resembled Winston Spencer Churchill, who alone among the British delegates seemed to carry the burden of negotiating lightly.

Arthur Griffith, as head of the Irish delegation, had to reply to the few remarks Mr. Lloyd George made at the opening of the conference, and who must state Ireland's position throughout the sessions, does not have the typical Irish fluency of speech and in both public and private conversation he is a slow speaker. But nobody knows the Sinn Fein case better than he.

The average Londoner took little interest in the sessions, but Irish residents and Sinn Fein sympathizers turned out in force to welcome the Dail deelgates and to wish them success in their negotiations. There was a goodly crowd at the entrance to Downing Street during the morning session, which waved Sinn Fein flags, wore the party's colors, sang hymns and recited the Rosary as their representatives were closeted with the British Cabinet members. Many of these—women being in the majority—followed the delegates to their homes in the West End when the conference adjourned at one o'clock for luncheon and during the meal again sang hymns and knelt in prayer.

Similar scenes were witnessed during the afternoon session when the people, although not so numerous, made up for their lack in numbers by singing hymns more loudly and being more noticeable in repeating prapers.

Foreign Office clerks, who are so accustomed to conferences in Downing Street that they seldom turn their heads to watch arrivals, had the windows thrown up and were all curiosity. Mr. Collins, a most picturesque figure, was the target of a veritable battery of eyes. The window spectators were rewarded for their trouble, because the way in which Mr. Collins avoided photographers was an achievement that few would like to imitate. He jumped from the step of his automobile across the sidewalk into the hall and opened the door to the Prime Minister's residence, and in so doing he upset the pompous butler dressed in brilliant livery. It was an occasion to see the man whom British soldiers and secret service men unsuccessfully tried to catch during the war, although he often quietly walked the streets of Dublin.

Messrs. Duggan, Barton and Duffy looked too much like ordinary business or professional men to attract much atention, so the always grim Griffith and the smilling Collins were picked out for public approval or disapproval according to the color of the politics of the observers.

The British delegates were too well known to create much excitement, but there are some who are always cheered by London crowds, among them being Mr. Lloyd George, who, however, did not make an appearance in the streets, since he was too busy even for his accustomed walk in the park.

Atorney-General Hewart took Austen Chamberlain's place at the morning session, the later being too ill to attend. Only Mr. Lloyd-George, Lord Birkenhead, Winston Spencer Churchill, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans and Sir Hamar Greenwood attended the afternoon session with the same Sinn Fein delegation.

Last evening's communique merely stated, as did the one issued in the morning, that the "second session of the conference on Ireland was held at Number 10 Downing Street at 4 o'clock this afternoon." It merely added the names of the delegates present and stated that "the conference adjourned until 11 o'clock Thursday morning."

A meeting of the Cabinet Council will be held at 11 o'clock to-day, at which Mr. Lloyd George will advise his colleagues regarding yesterday's proceedings.

Only one untoward incident occurred yesterday. A young man pushing through a crowd at the entrance to Downing street, bought a small Sinn Fein flag, which hawkers were selling, and spat on it, threw it to the ground and trampled on it. He was immediately attacked by a number of Irish girls and was handled so roughly that a policeman took him to Scotland Yard for protection. Having demolished their enemy, the girls cheered lustily and returned to await the departure of their delegates.

NO APOLOGY

wards said that the United States abrogated her reciprocity treaty and raised a tariff wall for three reasons. The first was because she wanted to raise a revenue to pay her war debt.

Reasons Have Force Now.

"Haven't we a war debt to pay off?" he observed parenthetically.

"The second was to bring the American dollar back to par.

"Many of you may remember that the American dollar was then worth from 45 to 60 cents in Canada. The imports of the United States had vastly exceeded her exports, while the people were fighting each other. Trade had fallen off and the value of the American dollar depreciated. One dollar today is discounted in the United States at from 10 to 15 per cent. If the United States' reason was good for her then it is surely good for us now.

"The third reason was to encourage American industries and to provide employment for American citizens in their own country. We don't believe in a high tariff. We want it only high enough and no more to keep our industries going and to give employment to Canadian citizens in Canada. Mark that in Canada, and not to Canadians on the other side of the line."

Tariff is Lower.

Dr. Edwards affirmed that Canada needed larger revenue than ever today, at the very time when free trade was being preached. Under Laurier the revenue was $125,000,000 a year; today Canada must have $400,000,000. Yet the duties are lower than ever in the history of Canada. Enumerating a list of implements, mostly of the farm, Dr. Edwards showed that the average duty under Sir Wilfrid Laurier was 20.18 per cent., and today under the present Government 14.64 per cent.

Every Conservative candidate was pledged to support the tariff policy of the Meighen Government, and every U.F.O. candidate was pledged to support the U.F.O. platform, which called for free trade, continued Dr. Edwards. The U.F.O. platform would remove all duties off food products, and it also called for the removal of duties on agricultural implements. How does Mr. Crerar and his party face this issue? If the the money collected by customs duty is gone, how will it be raised? By a direct tax on unimproved land values, on the value of the land without the buildings. According to the census figures of Canada, there are 124,009,000 acres of land, and of that area 60,000,000 acres are improved. Canada raises $1,?0,000,000 from customs. Suppose the direct tax were $1 an acre, that would give only $124,000,000. Suppose the tax was so much on each farm. There are 800,000 farms. At, say $10 an acre, we would get just $8,000,000.

"I tell you that if Crerar and his party are elected and they put into practice their pledged word, it will impose a direct tax of from $50 to $110 on every 100-acre farm in Canada."

What Duty Means a Year.

Referring to his list of implements again, Dr. Edwards mentioned the duty on the entire lot as $146. It was asserted by some, although he said he could prove that the cost of these implements was practically the same in the United States, that the farmers paid that much additional for these goods. Proceeding, he said that farm machinery under "decent treatment" should last fifteen years. Hence the duty on the above mentioned list spread over fifteen years amounted to $ ... a year, or for ten years it was $14.60 a year. Yet, for the sake of wiping out those duties, Mr. Crerar and his party proposed to load on the shoulders of the farmers the direct tax to which they would have to resort to make up the deficiency in revenue.

A Monopolist.

T. A. Crerar was the $15,000 President of the United Grain Growers and Rice Jones its $13,000 manager, said Dr. Edwards. Rice Jones, in his evidence on the cost of living, swore that in one year the profits of the company were more than 44 per cent., and a New York subsidiary capitalized at $100,000 had made $?0,000 in one year, or 550 per cent. And on the machinery they handled they made 21.06 per cent.

"Is it reasonable that such men should raise their voices against a revenue of 12½ per cent. on a mower when they take over 21 per cent. profits out of the farmers for the same machine?"

Dr. Edwards said that the western farmers were "getting wise" to Crerar and his associates. When the enquiry asked for by western members began to show that the Grain Growers had got 357,000 bushels of grain from the farmers in averages which the company sold for $418,000, and there was testimony given of false bottoms in grain bins, the Crerar party said that the enquiry was simply for political purposes.

"T. A. Crerar is the President of the biggest monopolistic combine in the history of Canada," declared Dr. Edwards. "If he were sure of his ground he knows that he could greatly enchance is prestige by saying 'come on with your investigation!'"

M. E. MAYBEE NOMINATED

Conservative Party was protection for the people, for the masses and not the classes. "There are men who argue that this protection is for the great industries. That is not true. The great industries are the least protected, and the smaller industries are the most protected. The free trade policy would be ruinous to the agricultural interests. Do I want to have to pay the freight on my products into the United States I want my market right here in Warkworth, in Trenton or Cobourg. I want to see these towns built up. I was reading in The Farmers' Sun the other day that the Massey-Harris Company is going to Australia. They are opening up there simply because Australia has a protection policy. Why is the Ford Company and the International Harvester Company and other industries here? Because of protection.

"The opposition refers to us as flag-flappers and militarists. Why do they call us that? Because we backed up our boys at the front. Some are trying to agitate the G.W.V.A. What will the soldiers get from those who wouldn't send them help when they were in the trenches? What would we do without militarism? What would have happened to us if we hadn't gone overseas? We'd be vassals of Germany today."

Mr. Maybee said that military training not only gave a man a good deportment, but also other benefits which he couldn't obtain in any other way. In conclusion, he promised, if nominated, to put forth every effort in his power to win the riding.

Hon. Dr. Edwards Present.

Second only in importance to the business of the convention was the address by the Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P. for Frontenac and Minister of Immigration and Health in Premier Meighen's new Cabinet. Representing a truly rural constituency, in which are no incorporated towns or villages, Dr. Edwards discussed the tariff and other Canadian problems from the standpoint of farmers, connecting each point into a strong plea for the re-election of the Government of the Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Mayor Meyers.

Mayor A. J. Meyers of Campbellford in withdrawing his name from the list of nominees, said that throughout Northumberland County were many staunch supporters of the Conservative policy. "But it can't be denied that there are many others, followers of the Conservative Party in other elections, whose minds have been filled with a new and strange and pernicious doctrine, which, if carried to its logical conclusion, would bring calamity to this country about as great as if the Allies had lost the war.

This doctrine is being presented by unscrupulous men who are seeking power, who are trading on the present unrest, knowing as well as you and I that the conditions of unemployment, of stagnant markets, of low prices of farm products are effects of the aftermath of the war. Without honesty or decency they are saying that these conditions are a result of the policy of the present Government. They say that if this policy is changed all will be well. How are we going to expose the falsity of this doctrine? The answer is work. Let every man and woman who has the welfare of this country at heart work day and night to the end that the policy of the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen shall prevail. It is the only policy that will make Canada a nation among nations and bring back prosperity to our Dominion."

The Man Behind Crerar.

Major Belford said that the man behind T. A. Crerar and the National Progressive Party was "Wood from Missouri with a head full of crank ideas." "Has the time come when Canadians have to get a Missourian to learn how to run their country? Every U.F.O. ballot will be for Wood, the man from Missouri with a 'bug in his bonnet.'"

The Premier Coming.

Mr. Humphries sprang a surprise on the convention with the announcement that Premier Meighen would speak in Campbellford on the afternoon of November 2. He was due in Peterborough in the evening. "We'll put on the biggest show you ever saw, and if we don't scare the gizzard out of those other fellows I miss my guess. But we want every Conservative in the riding there. Bring your friends."

Wellington Crews admonished the Conservative workers that they couldn't expect to win unless they got busy from the conclusion of the convention until the last vote was in on election day. The party had lost the Provincial seat, not because it lacked a good candidate in Alex Hume, but because the workers were confident and were defeated by the carelessness bred of that confidence.

The meeting closed with cheers for Maybee, Meighen and the King, and the singing of the National Anthem.

If we all knew as much as we think we do there would be no money in the encyclopedia.

NEW NATION NOW IS IN EXISTENCE

THREE CENTRAL AMERICAN STATES UNITE TO FORM NEW REPUBLIC.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct 12—A new nation having an approximate area of 100,600 miles and a population of 4,000,000 came into existence yesterday when the governments of Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador ceased to function and the Provisional Federal Council of the Central American Federation, composed of those countries, took charge.

The new republic lies between Mexico and Nicaragua, with Tegucigalpa as its capital.

The pact of the union was signed early in January of this year at San Jose, Costa Rica, by the three mentioned states and Costa Rico, whose National Assembly rejected it later by a vote of 19 to 20.

Nicaragua refused to sign the pact on account of differences with its neighbor states about the interpretation of the Bryan-Chamorro treaty, which gave to the United States special right for the construction of a new interoceanic canal through its territory.

Similar considerations apparently prevailed in Costa Rica but in both countries the public opinion is divided and a Unionist party is endeavoring to bring about some time, the union of Nicaragua and Costa Rica to the Federation. If this comes to a fulfillment, the population of the new nation would be increased by 1,000,000 inhabitants and would extend its boundary down to Panama.

The union of these sister republics has been a national aspiration since 80 years ago when political troubles destroyed the Federal Republic of Cetral America which, as a whole, liberated itself from the Spanish power in 1821 and maintained its unity until the forties. They speak the same language, Spanish, have the same religion, Roman Catholic and are of the same race, predominantly Indian except in Costa Rica, where the white race prevails. Since the Spanish conquest they have had identical legislation and the same culture.

The text of the treaty of union provides for a government modelled on the lines of the Constitution of the United States, with three separated branches, the executive, legislative and judicial, although the executive is modelled more on the Swiss system. A constitution embodying these provisions was finally approved by the Constituent Assembly which met in September at Tegucigalpa.

In so far as it does not infringe on the Federal Constitution, each state retains its autonomy and independence in the management and directions of its internal affairs and will carry on the government functions not specificaly delegated to the Federation.

The executive power reposes in a Federal Council composed of popularly elected delegates, each state to elect one councilman and one alternate, for the term of five years. Alternates may enter into the deliberations of the Council but have no vote. From among their number, the councilmen elect one president and one vice-president to hold office for one year. They cannot succeed themselves.

The legislative branch reposes in two houses, one of senators and the other of deputies. The Senate consists of three senators for each state, elected by the state congress for the term of six years and will renew itself by thirds every two years. The House of Deputies is composed of popularly elected representatives in the proportion of one to every 100,000 inhabitants or fraction of more than 50,000. The deputies are elected for four years and must renew by half every two years.

The judicial power is vested in a Supreme Court and other courts established by law. Supreme Court judges will be seven in number and will be elected for life by the Senate from a list of eligibles prepared by the Federal Council.

Liberty of thought and conscience and many democratic principles are provided for.

A PETERBORO TECHNICAL SCHOOL

October 11th, 1921.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Permit me to say how pleased I am to notice the interest you are stimulating on behalf of technical education, also to say, though, that your editorial department is laboring under certain misapprehensions, and also does not appear to be in full possession of the facts. For example, the suggestion of a combined Technical and Collegiate Institute as suggested by Mr. Kenner in his letter to the board and read at its monthly meeting held on the 4th inst., was discussed by the Advisory Industrial Committee at its meeting held on the 27th of September. It was also mentioned by Mrs. Morris in her letter to your paper of the 10th of September. I feel that, as Chairman of the committee that has to deal with this matter, that I should, in all fairness to the members, let the public know that this suggestion was given favorable attention by them. Also, it may perhaps be as well to state, that no one on this committee or on the board itself has, as yet, by word of mouth, shown her or himself in favor of a more elaborate scheme than the absolute minimum permitted by the Provincial Department of Education in Toronto, which can, by the way, be easily accomodated in a combined school, as suggested by so many and with which I heartily agree. The above minimum is favorable to ardent adherents to the cause of technical education, partly because of the financial situation in which Peterborough at present finds herself.

We who desire technical education for Peterborough also recognize that a certain amount of propaganda work must be undertaken to popularize it amongst the pupils of our Public schools, and also their parents; therefore, the combined school is most favorably received and would be most suitable until such time as the enrollment of pupils for technical education justified the building of a separate Technical School. I cannot express how delighted I am personally that the idea of a combined school has also struck Mr. Kenner as being the ideal way to start, and it is more than pleasing to note his ent husiasm on behalf of the project. As by virtue of the position which he at present enjoys, he would be the most logical man to take charge of such a school if the project is ever brought to fruition. The minimum suggested by the department in Toronto is three workshops and two laboratories. It may be possible that we can get them to lower this minimum, though doubtful. I sincerely hope that in future in editorials you will not allow the citizens and ratepayers to lose sight of the fact that the two Governments combined will reimburse to the extent of fifty per cent. the citizens and ratepayers for whatever their outlay is on strictly technical education, or as it is also called, vocational training. For example, if we should decide to build a strictly Collegiate extension, a gymnasium will have to be considered, for which the citizens would have to pay the full amount, or one hundred per cent.; but for a combined school, for which one gymnasium would be sufficient, the two Governments would pay one-half of what was used for technical students, or one-quarter of the whole. Here you will find shown a considerable saving to the citizens. Not only this, they would pay also one-quarter of the instructor's salary in perpetuity. Again, commercial classes could, by the permission of the department, be classed as vocational training; therefore, half of all supplies and salaries for this work would be paid by the Governments. At present, the citizens are paying the full amount for this particular class of education. Why continue doing so?

I could continue for several columns to enumerate the financial advantages of a combined Technical and Collegiate Institute, but when the citizens know that the two Governments pay half of the cost for site, buildings and salaries they can easily think of the rest themselves. While we need an extension to the Collegiate Institute, let us take advantage of the fact and put up an extension that will also take care of the minimum start in technical education.

In connection with this allow me to put forward a suggestion of my own for the careful thought of those interested in this whole project; that is, that the property enclosed within the following boundaries be bought by the board either by mutual agreement with the owners or ex-propriation—in a straight line westerly from the southwesterly corner of the present Collegiate property to Aylmer street, from Aylmer to McDonnell and on McDonnell, east to the present northeasterly corner of the Collegiate property. This would make the present Collegiate property much more impressive and also allow fully for the extensions suggested, also the necessary campus.

I have previously mentioned the fact that many of our young men and women have to leave their homes to take office positions in cities, like Montreal and Toronto—office training being all they have got—while managerial departmental positions in this city are held by technical experts from the United States and Europe at high salaries; this because our own citizens are not getting the advantage of technical education. Shall this condition continue? The ratepayers can give the final answer.

Yours truly,
J. W. WORTH.

IN VINDICATION.

Had a kind Muse in fuller, freer flow
The gift of Poesy chosen to bestow
On me and tuned my harsh discordant lyre
To loftier strains, and with celestial fire
Touched my cold lips, then might I emulate
The glorious song that from Heaven's blessed gate
The mounting lark melodiously outpours
As high o'er earth exultantly he soars.

But, ah, the genius of poetic lore
She grudging gave in scant ungenerous store;
And so the dull monotonous refrain
Red Robin pipes must be my modest strain.
Sooth, meager merit to my Muse belongs
Tuneless, frail, faulty, uninspired my songs.
Yet, from their source, love's fount deep in the soul,
They spring spontaneous, owning not control.

But if unpretentious, mark ye, they disclaim
One note unvirtuous, nay, their constant aim.
His honor and approving smile alone
Who gave what ere of Poesy I own;
The single talent which I dare not choose,
But for the glory of the Giver use.
Nor cowed by haughtly, high-browed critics keep
In sluggish sloth enshrouded buried deep.

That when I stand before His judgment throne,
Where to the universe our works are shown,
None in that mighty multitude may lay
This to my charge, that here below, astray
From virtue's path, one impure word of mine
Or unchaste caused their footsteps to decline,
Nor witness against me that I did indite
A sentiment unfit for Seraph's sight.

Not mine to follow Fancy's flashing flight
And sing triumphant from Fame's dazzling height
A high and heavenly song, all hearts to thrill,
And wake to ecstasy the world at will.
Yet, if my humble Poesy perchance impart
One moment's solace to some aching heart,
Comfort the care-worn, soothe a sufferer's pain
Or cheer the lonely, 'twill not be in vain.

What if the Muse, her spirit a hundred fold,
On others showered to me unbountious doled?
Shall I therefore ungratefully repine,
Refuse to let my tiny talent shine?
When trimmed and bright its feeble, flickering ray
May guide aright some wanderer on his way,
Who by His grace may prove a shining gem
At that great day for Christ's bright diadem.

Avaunt the wretch who seeks to win renown
And rise himself by thrusting others down
Hoping to burnish his own tarnished fame
By vile aspersions on a stainless name—
The bitter ban of many a wounded heart—
Blighting fall swift on Slander's cruel art.
Better by far than all Earth's golden gear
A heart unenvious and a conscience aclear.

Kind Heaven be thanked for e'n the scanty dower
On me bestowed of Poesy's pleasing power.
Full oft the charming nymph has whiled away
What otherwise had proved a dreary day;
Aye, many a night when wakeful I have lain
Wooing elusive Morpheus in vain
The enchanting spell of runic, rhythmic, rhyme
Has soed the laggard pinions of Old Time.

Got No Sleep

But now the neuritis has gone, the pains have ceased, the nervous system is restored and the writer of this letter pays a grateful tribute to the medicine which made him well.

Mr. John Woodward, P.T.O., Lucan, Ont., writes:

"It gives me much pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's medicines, especially the Nerve Food. I was a sufferer from neuritis for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way through not being able to get any rest or sleep at nights for pain, which mostly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. My nerves would twitch till my whole body would seem to jerk right up as I lay in bed. Almost at the point of despair, I decided I would get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I did, and after taking twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again. I also keep a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on hand, and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."

HIGH GERMAN OFFICERS SUFFERING FINANCIALLY

BERLIN, Oct. 12. — (Canadian Press) The financial plight of some former high army officers, who deprived of government pay which was their only income have been reduced to straitened circumstances has caused a movement among the former soldiers to help them by donations of sums ranging from five to ten marks. Only a few of the needy officers, however, have consented Field Marshal Conrad von Hoetzendorf declining a donation of 4,000 marks wrote:

"I not complaining, and feel I have little cause to complain, when I think of the many wounded men who have even less than I. This money should go to help them."

Von Hoetzendorf and his wife are living at Innsbruck, occupying a small room in which their meals are prepared on an electric stove. The former Field Marshals income amounts to less than 1,2000 marks monthly.

Many former high officers have been compelled to leave Germany for Austria and Poland, where their German marks have a greater purchasing power. Others have taken low-salaried positions in the German provinces where the cost of living is low.

Considerable sympathy for these men recently has ben manifest even liberal, socialist, radical and anti-monarchistic quarters and the newspapers have been advertising the seriousness of their situation.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

The Value of Advertising

No matter what particular merit a preparation may possess, if you wish to bring it before the public, it is necessary to advertise it.

For instance, Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills were just as good a year ago as they are to-day; and while they had a steady sale due to one friend telling another of the benefits derived from them the proprietors recognized this was a rather slow way of introducing them, and for the year 1921 they have placed a contract with this paper for 10,000 lines of advertising.

On another page of this paper you will find their large advertisement, and with merit and advertising we feel confident they will meet with success.

terway Development Associaiton, your Chamber paid particular tention in its activities to the utilization of the beautiful stretch of waters that we have in the vicinity. This work is now enitrely controlled by the newly formed association which represents all municipalities from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay, and through the concerted action and pooling of subscriptions from all the interested municipalities, direct action has been taken at a minimum expense, such as the advertising and publicity which has been carried on by the association. As a Chamber of Commerce contribution towards the work of particular importance to Peterborough, your Chamber has supplied secretarial services free of charge to the association, and it is felt, even though the general trade depression has affected to a certain extent the tourist traffic through our district, that satisfactory results have been obtained as has been noted by the increased number of foreign craft utilizing these waters. Also by the increased number of tourists using the summer resorts in the immediate vicinity. During the past season some 118 inquiries have been received from all over the continent as far south as the Panama Canal, requesting information about the waterway, and in each case specific information has been forwarded. At least ten per cent. of the enquirers have actually visited Peterborough as a result of the communications. In each case the visitors have been able to receive assistance from your offices and in every case have stated their entire satisfaction in cruising the waterway. In some cases these visitors have officially represented organizations in the United States for the specfic purpose of informing the members of the various organizations about the trip, which will no doubt have the effect of bringing more tourists through this district next season. In all of this work you, as members, have been directly interested through the secretarial services which have been rendered.

Horticultural Society.

Through your offices the activities of the Horticultural Society have increased considerably during the past years and the membership of 160 has now increased to 340, the second largest membership attained by the Society since its inauguration in 1895, and through this development it has been able to create definite activities in the beautification of the city, such as the two flower beds in Central Park, the corner of Park and Reid streets, and the south-west corner of Inverlea Park.

Automobile Association.

Also through the Automobile Association increased activities have been noted, subsequent to the increase in membership of that organization from 71 of the previous year to 221 this year, in placing road signs, securing the complete revision of the city traffic by-laws, and your offices being the information bureau used by a great number of the visiting motorists, through the erection of the signs at the corner of Monaghan Road and Charlotte street, and the personal introduction by your staff. The effect of this service to your visitors cannot be over-estimated as in each case they have stated that it is exceedingly valuable to them when they know there is a central information bureau in which they can get data, etc., regarding the city and district, besides the condition of roads, etc.

General.

Amongst the activities of your Chamber detailed information has been forwarded to a great number of enquirers as concerning the city and a considerable amount of publicity has been secured through various papers, magazines, trade journals, etc., regarding the advantages to be secured in the city. Since your annual meeting in March, some 982 personal calls have been made on youroffices, averaging 140 per month, telephone calls in, averaging 90 per month, all of whom have required definite information. In your correspondence 934 leters have been forwarded, 1963 circulars and 439 pamphlets, averaging in all 400 communications per month. Your Council Room is also as popular as ever in its utilization for meetings of all kinds, and since your annual meeting, 159 meetings have been held, averaging 22 per month.

You will recognize by the foregoing report that the Chamber has now developed into a central organization for the city, the importance of which cannot be over-estimated, and it is only now a matter of time and effort on the part of the general membership in actively supporting the work of the Chamber and obtaining sufficient financial support to make it an organization of its kind, second to none in relative comparison to any in Ontario. Your total listed membership is now 259, of which we have been pleased to welcome 34 new mmebers, and it is believed by your Executive Council that through a little concerted effort on the part of the general membership that this should be increased to at least 400, which would then enable your organization to carry on increased activities without any anxiety as to the source of income.

Your Executive Council in all its activities has endeavored to sustain a policy which, if not at present, will eventually gain for the Chamber of Commerce the reputation as an organization respected by the whole community, non-partisan, non-sectional and non-sectarian, the objects of which are to advance the commercial, agricultural, industrial and communal interests of the city and county of Peterborough.

Mr. Ryerson Ritchie.

Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, former secretary of the Chamber of Commerce (then Board of Trade) who is in the city, complimented the Chamber on its progress. "I was very much pleased to hear your report to-night and I want to compliment you, Mr. President, for the work you have done and also compliment the secretary and his assistants. I know they have been busy. The development of the association has not been emotional or spectacular, but steady, consistent and conservative."

Mr. Ritchie spoke of the need of unity and cooperation if further progress is to ensue. "No city I know of can get on without a Chamber of Commerce and I think Peterboro is going to reap the benefits of its Chamber of Commerce work."

Referring to a criticism of the Peterboro Chamber for not sponsoring companies selling stock, Mr. Ritchie said he knew of no reputable Chamber of Commerce that did this.

In connection with stock-selling schemes, the Chamber passed a resolution, moved by W. R. Morris, seconded by F. D. Kerr, K. C., who were appointed a committe to make some recommendations to curb alleged public robbery. The resolution is:

"Whereas, the existing Dominion Companies' Act and the Companies' Act of the Province of Ontario do not adequately provide reasonable protection for the public against stock selling propositions of an undesirable character;

"And whereas, because of the inadequacy of the said Acts many millions of dollars are annually lost to the Canadin public through investments;

"And whereas, it is desirable that legislation should be enacted as far as possible to prevent the fraudulent sale of worthless stock to the public;

"And whereas, many states of the American union and the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, have already enacted legislation designed to protect investors against undesirable stock-seling propositions;

"Therefore resolved, that the Peterboro Chamber of Commerce respectfully petitions the Dominion Government to take such action as may be deemed necessary toward the revision of the present Dominion Companies' Act, to meet conditions arising from the inadequacies of the existing Act. With this object in view, it is respectfully suggested that a qualified body be appointed to investigate the whole subject, and thereafter make necessary recommendations to be embodied in legislation at the next session of Parliament.

"Be it further resolved that the Parliaments of all the Provinces of the Dominion be requested to cooperate with the Dominion Parliament in enacting similar legislation, so that the laws of the Dominion and of the provinces will be as far as possible uniform in this matter of great financial importance."

A copy of the resolution will be forwarded to the coming meeting of Associated Boards of Trade, at Brantford, for their consideration.

French Exhibition Train.

The president reminded the members of the arrival of the Franco-Exhibition train in Peterboro on Oct. 26th, for inspection, fom 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. To cooperate with the City Council in suitably receiving the train, Mr. W A. Richardson has been appointed chairman, and V. J. McElderry and Thomas Barrie members of a reception committee, he announced.

Announcement was also made that J. W. Worth, chairman, City Planning Committee, and Dr. E. E. Harvey would represent Peterboro at the second annual conference of the Ontario Town Planning and Housing Association, October 31-November 1. Delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce at Brantford, Nov. 17th and 18th will be appointed at the next general meeting, he said.

Old Home Week.

On motion of T. Barrie, seconded by R. J. Sturgeon, the Chamber took definite action in supporting the Old Home Week here in 1922 by deciding to appoint a committee to work wth the Council and the Exhibition Board in ararnging for the event.

Mr. Duffus asked the members if they were in favour of an old home week, and judging by the unanimous vote they were.

"I believe it would be a good thing. I think you could get the help of all the merchants. I believe that it could be made a big event, and I, for one, will heartily support it," said Mr. Barrie.

CHURCH SERVICES AT MARK STREET CHURCH

Last Sabbath was red-letter day at Mark Street. Rev. Manson Doyle delivered an able sermon in the morning on the subject, "Christ and the Church." In his remarks he placed the emphasis on "Christ," rather than on the "church." It was not the "big church" that drew the attention of his department, but the church which, in the opinion of that department, needed the most help. Sometimes a small church grapples with big problems; she then demands and deserves the most consideration from the source of help and encouragement.

In the evening Mrs. (Dr.) Stevenson, recently returned from China, delighted the people, and she herself was abundantly pleased with the congregation. She led them, in imagination, through many parts of China and Japan, and unfolded a type of mission work little dreamed of by many people at home. Mrs. Stevenson will come again, and will be welcome.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable day, the congregation put $273.00 on the plates as a thank-offering. "What is Mark Street doing?" Helping herself and her needy neighbors: "go thou and do likewise."

CAPITAL SOCIETY GOES INTO BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.— (United Press)—Washington society is all upset.

Right on the eve of the arms parley and the biggest seaso in history certain members of the innermost circle of the residental set, that inscutable group which official society and the diplomatic corps have never been able to penetrate, have surrendered to commercialism.

The story was spilled by a horrified matron who exclaimed to an acquaintance.

"Why they have actually gone in for trade, my dear! Just think of it!"

It all came about when an "all society" store was opened under the corporate name of the "Francoise" Everybody from the manager to the bundle wrapper is well known in Washington society.

At first it appeared to those who saw the names of those indentified with the enterprise that it was a benefit for something or other, but it was not.

The store for store, it is was opened in the house given by a grateful people to Admiral Dewey as a residence. The Admiral deeded it to his wife shortly after he received the gift, and his wife sold it.

Now it is a shop devoted to the sale of infant's children's and schoolgirls' clothing.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter is described as th backer of the enterprise, although the names of Mrs. Ormbsy McCannon and Mrs. Charles O'Donnell Lee apear as proprietors. Mrs. McCannon, nee Estelle Murray, of Phil adelphia is saleswoman. Mrs. Lee is manager, and they are assisted by a bevy of girls all prominent.

A SIGNAL DEVICE FOR MOTORISTS

An auto-signal device, the invention of H Thomas of Montreal, has won the commendation of autoists who have inspected it

It is a device placed on the rear of a car and is operated from the steering column, by a three way lever switch On moving this lever, it throws an arow down, right or left, to indicate to the car behind what the car in front will do. The lever is pressed down in the central position which throws both arrows down in the length of license plate. It is plainly visible by day and illuminated at night by a tail lamp, or an auxiliary tail lamp, which flshes the red light when the signal is used. It is entirely enclosed in a metal box which measures 5 inches high, 3 1-2 inches by 4 inches spread, of arrows 10 inches. As an indication that the signal is working, the switch box contains a pilot light which lghts up when used, arrows are brought back to a negative position by a coil spring so that should anything go wrong with the power the arrow cannot remain down. The spring throws it back to neutral.

Canada's Firm Foundation

A government report predicts for 1921 the best Canadian wheat crop since 1915.

The total acreage sown to wheat throughout the Dominion this year shows an increase of 421,726 acres over last year's figures.

The total this year is 18,654,100 acres against 18,232,374 acres in 1920.

Drought in Europe has seriously affected the crops over there, and the inevitable deficit must be made good by heavy purchases of Canadian wheat.

Agriculture is Canada's basic industry.

The farmer's purse governs trade.

A prosperous year for the farmer means a prosperous year for Canada.

All reports indicate a bounteous harvest that will bring millions of dollars into this country.

This golden stream will find its way into every corner of the land stimulating and vitalizing trade in all directions

Last year Canada's agricultural production was worth $2,225,000,000, or an verage of $3,000 per farm.

This year that two and a quarter billions will probably be increased to three billions.

As a conservative estimate at least two billions of this will be spent by the farmers.

The national dependence is on agriculture. Agriculture is sound.

The main foundation of Canada's prosperity is impregnably firm.

PARIS, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Two mammoth mushrooms enough to "smother all the steaks available in a h[illegible]arter of beef" have just been found in France.

Four feet in diameter and weighing between nine and ten pounds the first one was found on an estate in Saint Germain. The species is edible and is known popularly in the district as the "deaths head" mushroom.

The other known as the "beaded puff-ball" has been picked at Bourgneuf. It weighs closce to nine pounds and has a "flap' diameter of nearly 20 inches.

Gray Flannel Blouse Laced Up with Brown Leather Is Worn with a Skirt and Hat of the Leather.

By Mme. Frances

The Famous Creator of Fashions

THE woman who is interested in sports may welcome some additions to her wardrobe for the varied events which she will attend. Of course such clothes are decidedly different from those worn by the woman who is taking an active part in the different games. These clothes are designed with perhaps more consideration for their beauty than for the practical qualities that a sportswoman finds absolutely essential.

This season there is wide interest in leather and flannel. Sometimes these are combined in most attractive creations or they are used separately with as good results. Leather, too, makes an ideal trimming, and it may be had in all the gay shades as well as those that are more subdued.

It is not confined only to the suit or frock, but is also favored for the smart hat that is worn with such models. Sometimes the dull finish is affected, while equally attractive hats reveal the use of shiny kid.

Illustrated on this page are four of my newest models, and in them I think you may find suggestions that may be of much value to you if you are contemplating some new sports apparel. Of course these are created especially for the spectator, but with some modifications they might be used by the active participant in fall and winter sports.

Decidedly striking is the model of white kid and navy serge. The latter is chosen for the skirt, which is finely pleated. The overblouse is modeled with a square-cut neckline, while the short sleeve is very wide. A delectable touch of color is revealed on the sides, where the blouse is slashed apart and the lining of orange crepe flashes forth.

A large white kid hat gives an inviting finish to this costume for gala sport events. Of course you might prefer to use a different color combination. If you should have a beige-colored skirt you might like to have the smock of brown suede, which is delightfully pliable, or if you wished to use a white skirt then you might have a bright green or red blouse. When making such changes you would naturally select a hat in keeping with the new color scheme you adopt.

Somewhat more unusual in style is the model with the lap-over skirt, which is cut from brown leather. It, too, is worn with a jumper blouse, which is made of gray flannel. The sleeves on this model are long and tight-fitting, although if you should wear such a creation where balmy breezes invite the shortening of sleeves you could very readily achieve this. All you need do is to remove the lower part of the sleeve, which is joined to the upper by a cord of brown leather.

Porcupine Quill Embroidery

The trimmings that I have favored on this model are brown leather lacings. They also have a practical mission, as they are used to fasten the blouse. The one-sided fastening lends a note of individuality to this creation, while the long ends of the lace are decidedly decorative. The lacing on the lower sides of the sleeves is more than merely ornamental. You may adjust the sleeve to the exact size of your arm by regulating this fastening.

The neckline favors that which has won the approval of the woman who dresses well, for it is really most becoming and needs no adorning to accentuate the beauty of its line.

The hat matches the skirt and is developed from brown leather, which lends itself agreeably to flaring pleats.

Flannel is used indiscriminately for skirts or blouses, and is especially good for the former. I have chosen a white flannel skirt to be worn with the orange velvet blouse. The skirt is closely pleated, for this is really the best way of handling such material. Then it allows the freedom that is so desirable, for even those who watch the game may sometimes be tempted to emulate the players.

The orange velvet blouse is cut with a deep V opening, but as if to hold the blouse in position there is a narrow collar band attached to the back of the blouse and fastened at one side of the neck with two gold buttons.

The sleeves reach well over the wrists and show a decoration of gold buttons on the undersides. Buttons also appear on the sides of the blouse and mark the dimensions of the small pocket that so jauntily holds a kerchief. A white felt hat tops this creation, which will give a distinctive spot of color wherever it may be worn.

While the majority of such models owe their success to the brilliancy of their colors as well as the pleasing lines on which they are fashioned, yet occasionally I find pleasure in evolving something more elaborate.

When planning some new models the other day I chanced to see some exquisite Indian work. At the moment I had been discussing the advisability of using certain leathers, so I suddenly decided that I would use some Indian decorations on the model under discussion.

This is pictured on the page and while you cannot of course see the rich colorings of the original, still I think you will appreciate the Indian design that forms the panel on the blouse. For this I used the porcupine quills and favored the bright reds, blues, greens and white that are so skilfully combined in the Indian's handiwork.

Instead of using leather for the foundation, as I had originally contemplated, I decided to substitute white serge, so that the beauty of the design might better be realized. The blouse is very simple in construction. It has the long tight-fitting sleeves that are especially appropriate for fall.

I am quite partial to the roll collar, which has a certain sportsmanlike air about it. This is fastened with small buttons at one side, while a belt of the white serge encircles the waistline and is loosely tied at the side.

The hat is a soft draped affair made from beige leather. There is a leather tassel depending from the drapery which, of course, is the only trimming, as little is needed to adorn such models.

Topcoats for outing wear are developed in many delightful fabrics. The tweeds, in gray tones or in buff, frequently have very bright colors in the overplaid designs that break their surface. Camel's hair and fleece are also favored for the fashioning of those handsome wraps.

Slashed Sleeves in Style

One of the most interesting style features in these creations is the introduction of the square sleeve. This has been inspired by the frocks that are modeled on such lines, but it is excellent for the outing topcoat. Raglan sleeves are also used, for they are too well-liked to be readily discarded.

There is variety, too, in the collars. The tuxedo, which has been so popular of late, still seems to retain its popularity. However, for fall the tuxedo is designed in convertible manner so that it may be buttoned up if desired. The wide collar is often finished with a one-button fastening, while variations of the roll collar show how effective it is when draped about the neck.

In other realms of dress there is much of interest at this time. Perhaps the blouse is especially worthy of mention, as it is a leading factor in present-day attire. While the fabrics from which the new blouses are made do not differ greatly from those that have of late been in vogue, yet undoubtedly the most noticeable feature of the new models is the variety in the sleeves.

It seems as though there are endless ways in which they may be slashed, for of course such sleeves can still be worn with comfort beneath the jacket. Indeed, this tendency is to be preferred to those models that demonstrate great width of material. In the majority of slashed types you will find that at the wrist the fabric is caught together again by a narrow band which not infrequently boasts a ribbon tie or other interesting decoration.

Beads are lavishly used to decorate the new blouses, while one of the smartest colors is known as antelope. As the brown shades anticipate great popularity this season such a charming color will harmonize well with the brown suit.

Necklines, too, are decidedly varied in the new modes for fall. The bateau and round necklines are still in vogue. Long rever collars are also affected and there are turnover styles which may be worn high or low.

THE FASHION FORECAST

Little, low Spanish heels will be the striking feature of the shoes and slippers for fall.

AT A U.F.O. CONVENTION

The public may say what it likes about the Farmers' Party or the Agrarians or the Progressives, as they call themselves. They may have one platform in the west, and one in the east and a sort of sliding policy to fit any set of conditions. There is no doubt about it; if you go to the farmers' convention, and listen to say six candidates enunciate their different policies you will probably hear six sets of widely divergent beliefs. One may advocate free trade out and out, another be a high tariff believer, and the next a happy medium sort. One may call piously on the shade of the late Sir John A. to help him out of a difficulty, and the next swear by the immortal memory of Sir Wilfrid, but nobody can deny that they have a good time at their political meetings. Red tape is absolutely unknown, and there isn't any such thing here as Parliamentary procedure. The 'protem' chairman bustles about and place seats and escorts the bashful feminine delegates to a point of vantage. He makes a remarkable sort of ministerial impression by saying "so endeth the first chapter" after the roll-call is ended. The secretary, a broadly-smiling young man with a red tie, exchanges friendly remarks from the platform with his friends in the audience, particulary the young lady in the second row, and the smiling M.L.A. who later assumes the chair grins ingratiatingly at the gentleman who takes him to task on a point of order, and lets it go at that. He says "here you," when the secretary slides into the anteroom for an unbusinesslike moment, and joins in the choruses with an entire absence of dignity. He is, nevertheless, extremely popular with the entire assemblage, and no one attempts to dispute his long drawn out opinions.

Two gentlemen who occupy prominent places in the delegates' seats on being questioned as to their credentials, admit that they have no accredited club in their district just heard about the convention and thought they would come along and take a hand in the nomination. The chairman, with smiling good humour admonishes them against voting this time, they grin and keep their places and nobody bothers about them any more after that.

Six on Slate

Six delegates are nominated and their names placed upon the blackboard. Everybody wants to look at them, so they come and occupy the rocking-chairs on the platform, teetering back and forth with nervous vigor as the strain becomes prolonged. A great uproar ensues over the length of time that they speak. Some want fifteen, some ten and some five minutes, and the contrary-minded try to bawl them down. A motion is passed almost unanimously that the time shall be five minutes, but the chairman, with fine indifference says the limit is going to be seven and one-half minutes. Then the King's English comes in for a bad three-quarters of an hour each candidate doing his best to outdo his predecessor. The palm goes to the man who admonishes his hearers to "do the best yez can for me" Here is the old-time orator who spends most of his time in "pointing with pride" to his own record nd "viewing with alarm" the consequences of the election of any of his opponents, here is the man who smoothly agrees to help anyone who is elected, and is loudly applauded, and here is he also who remarks on the fineness and intelligence of his audience. This gentleman is the most amiable looking of the bunch until his name is rubbed off the board, when he assumes an expression of black defeat, looking out at the gathering thereafter with the sour scowl of the man who has been betrayed in his trust. The other candidates all sit around and try to look unconcerned the red-headed gentleman shooting his cuffs with great rapidity.

Impromptu Concert.

During the balloting, a long-drawn out endurance test, the audience proffers volunteer soloists. There is the gentleman with an open ingenuous countenance who takes off "Harry Lauder" and sings the "Man Behind the Plow" to a chorded accompanient, and a heavy beat at the end of each verse. Another man gives us "When Father Papered the Parlor" and "On the Old Back Seat of the Henry Ford" with appropriate gestures. He also does 'My Daddy wouldn't buy me a bow-wow-wow-wow" with a long-drawn-out refrain that brings an answering chorus from the entire assembly, so intent that they fail to notice the "scratching" of another candidate. The balance of the nominees rock away harder than ever. The erasing of names is proceeding from the bottom up, without a skip. It looks as if the long lanky dark young man named first, is going to get it. He uncrosses his legs and crosses them over the other way. His eyes have a glassy look. Then someone sings "A Wee Doch and Doris" and the whole gathering swings into "John Brown's Body". The sorrows of "Nellie Gray" resound through the hall. "Eileen Alannah" is a wailing selection without accompaniment by a brave gentleman who makes a fine start and rather weak ending. The Adventures of Pat, who nearly got buried alive at his own funeral by reason of the whisky given him to keep him quiet at his wake, cover the retreat of another gentleman from the platform, and the remaining three begin to fidget a little. The little green ballots go around again, and the polling clerks wait patiently while hats and caps are requisitioned to cover up the writer's choice. The list is still creeping up without a break. Betting odds are even on the last two. "Old Black Joe" and "Silver Bells" ring through the hall, and the first defeated candidate gets up and recites with undiminished cheerfulness, "Jasper Burnit's Barn" and tells all about the endeavors of a gentleman to raise money on a farm. This enterprising amateur started in with a certain brand of "shoats", which shrunk steadily as they were fed then essayed a contract with a butcher to slay the calves he was too soft-hearted to dispatch, finally resorting to a kerosene incubator for chicks, which exploded one night beneath his feather bed. By this time the third name has vanished from the board, and the final stage in the contest has arrived. A good deal of cheering takes place at the erasure of this, apparently unpopular name, which is silenced by the chairman's uplifted hand. He says he doesn't want any more of that, and a quartette of singers who have been essaying effects in close harmony, take umbrage and cease their endeavors. They have to be coaxed back to a renewal of their efforts, but nobody listens to them this time. Everybody is looking at the pair on the platform, who now occupy one sofa. Fate skips a beat here, wipes out the first name, and leaves the second, and the defeated young man ask for an unanimous vote for his successful competitor, proving that there is good stuff behind his melancholy visage.

They may not conduct their meetings with strictest order, and they have a peculair habit of shouting advice at their chairman from the floor which isn't exactly according to Parliamentary Hoyle, but the days of the "hayseeeds" are over. These men know what they are doing, and beneath all the fun, is an undercurrent of set unalterable purpose. They may mix fun with their politics, which after all, keeps the assemblage in good humour throughout a tiresome proceeding but both men and women are clear-eyed to the main issue which they are there to consider.

A paste made of salt, soap, lemon juice and starch, put on mildew and allowed to remain for twenty-four hours, will bleach out all but the worst spots. Repeat the appication if necessary.

NEW PLANTS AND INSECTS DISCOVERED ON AMAZON

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. — New drug plants and species of insects have been discovered in the Amazon river basin by the Mulford biological exploration party, according to word received at the Columbia University School of Pharmacy, from the head of the expedition, Dr. H. H. Rusby. Curious forms of reptiles and birds have also been encountered in addition to botanical specimens of great scientific value.

Dr. Rusby, who is 64 years old, reported that his expedition was proceedinbg by rafts down the Bopi river, after spending three weeks in the vicinity of Canamina and Espia, at the head of navigation on this waterway. Richer vegetation was encountered as the expedition penetrated into the little known regions of the interior of Bolivia.

All members of the party were reported in good health and Dr. Rusby said that most satisfactory results had been obtained, notwithstanding irritating delays and difficulty in obtaining reliable information or dependable assistants.

THE CELEBRATION OF GOLDEN WEDDING

On the occasion of the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary, which took place last week, a number of the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harper, 195 London street, presented them with some tokens of their esteem, and an address commemorating the qualities of mind and heart which have endeared Mr. and Mrs. Harper to all their acquaintance, concluding with the words:

"Your name has always stood for honesty, integrity and great kindness of heart. Besides these qualities, there is another which greatly endears you to your friends, the admirable gift of sympathy. It is indeed a wonderful thing to be able to sympathize with your friends in their sorrows and join with them in their rejoicings."

The address was signed on behalf of relatives, by Josephine Blewett, Susie Best, Elizabeth Harper and J. W. Kelly.

Mr. Harper made a suitable reply.

TEA BEING GROWN IN PENNSYLVANIA

READING, Pa., Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press).— It is not generally known that Pennsylvania has a tea crop indigenous to the Blue Mountain region near here and which largely surplants the use of the Oriental tea in several counties of this section. The crop is now being gathered and tons of the tea are beig picked and dried for winter use.

The soil, where this little-known product of the Keystone state grows is rocky but there is plenty of moisture. The plant closely resembles Chinese tea. The leaves are long and slender and of a deep green color. The beverage prepared from the dried leaves in the same manner that ordinary tea is brewed, is said to be mildly stimulating and rich in medicinal properties.

BUILD VILLAGE FROM OBSOLETE STREET CARS

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Oct. 11. —A village of street cars, fitted with the usual conveniences of modern homes, is being established on the outskirts of this town to relieve the housing shortage. The cars, because obsolete, have been stripped of running gear and placed end to end at one side of the street.

The carpenter's skill has already transformed several into attractive living quarters, with connections for water, gas and electricity. Some of the prospective tenants will have the use of cellars made by raising a number of the car bodies and placing them on concrete foundations.

HOW TO ENJOY THE MOVIES

You think you will drop in to the "movies" for a few minutes, and if it happens to be the case they have those luxurious wicker chairs, you choose a handy one, right near the aisle, and settle back. There is a nasty rain outside, but in here it is nice and warm and comfortable.

Presently a party of young people come in and settle directly behind you. They appear to be a great many of them. They make a loud noise and spend some time selecting seats. After two or three bumps, you sit forward until they are all settled. A cautious look around reveals that there are only four, two of each sex. One of the girls is powdering her nose and the other seems to be looking for something on the floor. She wriggles around, finally locates it, and settles down. Then they begin in earnest. The girls read the titles aloud and make remarks about them in half-whisper. They giggle about every little while and tell all they know about the actors in various pictures. It is a good deal. The vaudeville arrives, and they recognize one of the performers as an old acquaintance who visited the town some years ago. They know a good deal about his private life and tell each other. The young man directly behind you appears to have some difficulty with his knees. Every once in so often he changes their position and you get it in the back. He makes no excuse however. You look aorund. There are no other aisle seats vacant, so you resolve to endure to the bitter end. The young fellow at the farther end is very silent. The girls decide that he has gone to sleep and start to "kid' him. Their voices are louder now, and they giggle at every remark. Suddenly something descends upon your head. You have been contemplating the picture, and it is rather a shock. You are surprised. No excuse is made. Then whispering ensues. Then the young man directly behind proffers some information about the dancer, but is contradicted immediately by the girl next him who says she knows all about that young lady. He subsides into a morose silence, and gives you another vicious jab in the rear with his replaced knee. You shift your chair a little. The girls think they want some place to rest their feet, so turn to two vacant chairs around and in doing so knock your elbow. No excuse is made. They arrange their two pairs of feet on the cushioned chairs, and another era of whispering, giggling, fussing, conversation starts in. The comedy provides seome situations which give them a chance to snicker. They do so. The young man re-adjusts his feet once more, and nearly capsizes your chair. No excuse is made. You move a couple of fet, and quiet down a little bit. Then the girl says she wants to go and sit beside "Jack," who is at the farther end, and the other one won't let her. A slight scuffle ensues. The young men say nothing. You can hear him just behind re-arranging his feet once more, but this time you are out of range, so it doesn't matter. The feature unrolls its romantic story, and the girls whisper and giggle some more. They are talking about another girl now, and enjoying themselves immensely. Finally the hero embraces the heroine, the young man changes his position for the last time, and you all go home.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Edna Wheaton, Beauty of Ransom, is Member of Cast of "Experience."

Edna Wheaton, designated by the Daily News, of New York, as the most beautiful girl in New York City, plays the role of "Beauty" in George Fitzmaurice's production of "Experience," a Paramount picture which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow (Thursday).

Miss Wheaton competed with 6,000 other Gotham beauties for the honor of appearing in "Experience." Her chance to break into the movies came as the result of the kindness of a friend who sent her picture to the newspaper. She is eighteen years old and had come to New York from her home in Ithaca, N. Y., to study music.

Director George Fitzmaurice and the casting department at the Paramount eastern studios decided that some sort of a contest was necessary to get the right girl to play the part of "Beauty" in the picture. All the stage beauties were more or less cold and did not fit with Mr. Fitzmaurice's idea of beauty. Consequently the Daily News was enlisted in the search for the real American beauty and Miss Wheaton was the lucky contestant.

Miss Wheaton was busy for two weeks with her part having close-up shots with Richard Barthelmess, who plays the leading role, "Youth," and other scenes filmed with the remaining principals in the cast.

Besides this splendid picture and a well-selected short reel programme, two big double acts of vaudeville, which complete a first-class show for the last 3 days of this week.—Fan-Fan.

AT THE GRAND.

LeComte & Flesher's successful musical comedy, "Some Girl," will be the attraction at the Grand, on Saturday, matinee and evening, 15th October, with an important cost of principals and a large chorus of unusually beautiful girls.

From its credentials—reviews of the press from other cities where it has been presented—there can be no doubt as to the marked merit of this new American musical production, the local engagement of which will be played by the original company.

In its brilliant score, written by Harry L. Alford, it boasts of twenty-four musical numbers and no less than nine of these are recorded as "hits." These latter, already being heard all over the country, are, "My Sunshine Lady," "I Miss You, Honey, 'Deed I Do," "What's the Use of Lovin'," "Cupid's Sweets," "A Night at the Riviera," "Dixie Land is Calling Me," "Love Needs Opposition," "A Song of Old Brittany," and the entrancing waltz song, "Love, You'll Be Mine."

The lyrics to these musical gems were written by Howard McKent Barnes, who is also author of the book which he has fascinatingly fashioned from an ancient fairy tale. The scenes are laid, first, a picturesque fisher village of old Brittany's coast, the famous Riviera playground of France, a Mexican Aztec village, the green room of the Winter Garden theatre, and the final scene, the stage of that beautiful temple of gaity.

"THE FRENCH LEAVE"

"French Leave' the merriest most hillarious and laughter provoking comedy of the past decade, is light bright and and not altogether impossible. Bepond question many young British wives desired in the course of the late war to visit many British husbands—officers within the lines—and so, if regulations were to be obyed, inaccessible. Many of theese eager ladies would have evaded these "silly old rules" as did Mrs. Harry Glenister, by the pretence that she was a Parisian singer on a holiday visiting her family. Yet once in and about Brigade-headquarters in a "rest camp" might not the same adventures have befallen them? Would not the flirtatious old generals have held their hands under the table? Would not young staff-captains less cautiously meetings? Would not watching husbands, no elss unable, than willing to escape, endure the jealous pangs that torture Glenister. Would not attendant mess corporals and the like have observed pop-eyed and open mouthed, those signs, wonders and ruffings of routine. And this naturalness of incident, combined with the skilfull development of the story, is one of the greatest charms of the unusual comedy by Reginald Berkely, which has convulsed two continents. With a few strokes readily shaded, Major Herkeley, sketches in the personages, Glenister quietly poised, busy, frank, as fond in affections for his wife, as he is foolish in nervous jealously, the more youthful Graham, teetering back and forth between boyish impulsiveness and boyish confusion, the old general, red to bursting and hoarse almost to a croak with whatever mood he happens to be upon him, irritation, curiosity, self-satisfaction, suspicion, sympathy, sense of duty, an officer and a gentleman under all rufflings and rumblings. "French Leave" is now touring Canada under direction of Trans-Canada Theates, Ltd., with an all-English company and an elaborate production and will be presented at the Grand Theatre, Peterboro on October 14th.

"LION AND THE MOUSE."

Another bumper house saw "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Grand last evening. The trials that beset the path of the adventurous young lady who essays to compel the unscrutable financier to do justice to her father are well portrayed by Miss Vaughn as "Shirley Rossmore," who has the stellar role in this popular offering. Miss Vaughn has a fine chance to demonstrate her ability as an emotional actress, and rises to the occasion splendidly. Mr. Snelgrove as "Ready Money" Ryder steps out of his customary part in this piece, but forges straight ahead with his usual quick-fire methods. He has excellent support from Messrs. Seymour and Yule, and succeeds in presenting a clever offering, which evidently appealed to the emotions of his audience, who gave him plenty of enthusiastic applause.

As the season progresses, I find that individual members of the Rex Company are becoming better known to the people of Peterboro and Kingston. After theatre suppers occasional teas at private homes and many other informal little gatheings boast the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove or others in the company. Theatrical people seem to be the easiest people in the world to entertain—in fact it is not necessary to arrange anything formally.

Doctor Cole one of the best known members of the Rex Company has an interesting life, listening to some anecdotes and incidents of his earlier years reminds one of the history of New York in the seventies, when English was the language of the streets and business remained well below the Flatiron Building. Dr. Cole was born in New York City, educated at the best schools there, and early in his life decided to study medicine. He was graduated from a school which was famous in its day, turning out some of the best doctors of the period (they were not all surgeons and specialists then.) After receiving his degree he took a post graduate course at Columbia University the medical department of which was only inaugurated a short time before. For many years thereafter Dr. Cole practised his profession in and about N.Y. gaining experience in life and valuable knowledge. This same knowledge has been an assest to him in his stage career called upon as he is to portray the roles usually of middle aged men nearing the sear and yellow period of life.

The date for "French Leave" is growing nearer daily—that interest is quite keen about this production is evident from the many inquiries at the box office concerning the date the price of tickets and the quality of the cast. Some remark—that th show is a high-priced one—so it is but the quality is the very best. It is utterly impossible to send a company on tour with a capable well balanced cast unless the standard is upheld. "French Leave' has some of the cleverest people playing light comedy in the business today

You may hear that the play is a war-play. Only in the sense that the theme deals with incidents and conditions at the front is this so. There are no tragic effects no heart-rendering episodes—the story merely deals with incidents that are funny in the extreme—they are neither risque nor far fetched. I have seen the olay and with the ensuing weeks it should be even an smoother more pleasing attraction if possible than ever. The mirth evoked by the clever dialogue and intriguing situations is absolutely spontaneous. Mr. Edwn scores heavily as the general and every one falls in love at once with Miss Surtees.

OIL OPERATIONS IN NORTH PROVE UNSATISFACTORY

ACCORDING TO UNOFFICIAL REPORTS REACHING OTTAWA

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

OTTAWA, October 12. — Unofficial reports reaching Ottawa from the oil fields of the Northwest Territories indicate that the summer's operations and developments have been far from satisfactory, and visitors to the district who have returned are not optimistic about the immediate outlook.

No. 1 well of the Imperial Oil Co., at Norman, demonstrated the undoubted fact that oil exists in the territory, but from being a "gusher" at the outset the well has pretty nearly petered out.

The Fort Norman Oil Co. has had no better luck at Windy Point. The borers have struck a granite formation where no oil exists.

PROHIBITION COSTLY

NEW YORK Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Enforcement of prohibiton cost the United States Government $6,250,000 during last fiscal year.

DELICATE QUESTION RAISED BY NOMINATION.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—The decision of W. G. Raymond, postmaster and former Mayor of Brantford, to run in the Liberal interests at the coming general election has raised a somewhat delicate question. It is understood here that Mr. Raymond was among those postmasters over 65 years of age exempted from retirement under the Calder Act, and retained by the Department. Mr. Raymond, it is stated, has now, however, retired voluntarily. Under the conditions of the Calder Act, persons over the age of 65 retired by the Government were entitled to superannuation in the neighborhood of $1,000 a year. Whether Mr. Raymond having now voluntarily retired to engage in politics will be entitled to superannuation is an open question, inasmuch, however, as it is for the Government to decide, and as Mr. Raymond is running against the Government, his chances of securing superannuation are believed here to be very slight indeed.

FOREIGN POSTAGE RATES GO HIGHER

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Oct. 12. — In accordance with the decision reached at the congress of the Universal Postal Union held at Madrid last November, Canada put into effect on October 1 new international postal rates which in most cases are approximately double those in effect formerly.

It was stipulated at the congress that increases, considered necessary because of the financial condition of the countries interested, should become generally effective on January 1, 1922. There was a provision, however, that each country might put the new rates into effect prior to that date, and a great many countries took advantage of this.

In Great Britain, France and many other countries the rates have been effective for several months. From Canada to the United States and Mexico there is no change in the rates owing to the existence of a separate treaty. To Great Britain and all other places within the Empire the rates have been increased from 3 cents to 4 cents per letter of one ounce. To other countries the rate has been increased from 5 to 10 cents per letter of one ounce. Whether the increases will bring increased revenue remains to be seen. The rates have not been in effect long enough for a computation to be made.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, October 12. — Carl Mays and "Shuffling" Phil Douglas faced each other on the mound in the seventh game of the World's Series to-day—the victor of which will be within one game of the championship.

It was the third game in the Series in which Mays and Douglas have pitted their pitching skill against each other. Each has a victory to his credit—Mays having worsted the "Shuffler" a week ago to-day, when the Yanks whitewashed the Giants 3 to 0, and Douglas having come back with a win on Sunday, when the Giants triumphed 4 to 2.

"FAT" TAX SUGGESTED.

BERLIN, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press.) — The government's search for new sources of revenue to meet increasing expenditures has brought a group of humorists to the rescue, one branch of which submitting a statute already prepared, suggests a tax on fat folks whose waist-line circumference exceeds the chest measurement.

Another suggests attention be paid to double chins and "whiskey noses."

The proponents of the fat tax include the following provisions in the statute they have submitted:

Males between the ages or 15 and 30 whose waist exceeds the chest circumference shall pay 1,000 marks yearly for each excess centimeter, between 30 and 40 years, 500 marks.

JIMMIE McKERRON "FALLS DOWN," THEN WINS.

LEXINGTON, Ky., October 12 (Canadian Press). — Jimmie McKerron, bay gelding, by Jack McKerron, demonstrated at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association track yesterday afternoon, that it is possible for a horse to "fall down, and win." The speedy gelding captured the Phoenix Hotel Stake, feature of a good programme, after an accident in the second heat, in which Edna Early went down.

$112,234 WAS PAID TO SEE YESTERDAY'S GAME.

NEW YORK, October 12 (Canadian Press). — With at least two more games to be played, new financial records are certain to be made in the present World's Series struggle between the Yankees and the Giants.

Yesterday 34,283 spectators paid $112,234. This gives a total attendance of 208,063 for six games, and a total gate of $685,807, which is within $36,607 of the record total for the full eight-game series between Cincinnati and Chicago in 1919.

Now that the players have ceased to share in the profits of the Series, the club owners' dividends are mounting rapidly, the aggregate share for six games being $200,413.72. The club owners' share yesterday was $95,398.90, and that of the Advisory Board $16,836.10, making a grand total to date of $102,871.05 for the latter.

HOUSE FLY MOST DANGEROUS WILD ANIMAL IN WORLD

MAY INFECT HUMANITY WITH EVERY KIND OF CONTAGIOUS DISEASE KNOWN—ADDRESS BY P. P. WESTBYE, SUPPLEMENTED FILMS.

When shall we three meet again?
Daily in homes of every station,
Where in sorrow and in pain
Is felt neglect of sanitation.
To 'scape the horrors of a graveyard scene,
Every energy you must bend.
Drink clean milk, screen and kerosene
Or else, dear friend, you will see your end.

The foregoing poetic effusion aptly portrays the danger involved in the existence of flies, mosquitoes, and impure milk.

In an intensely interesting address last evening before the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. P. P. Westbye enumerated some of the dangers associated with the afore-mentioned agencies. The address was supplemented by educational films which Mr. Westbye secured for the occasion.

Mr. Westbye denounced the house fly as the most dangerous wild animal on the North American continent. "Flies are the most dangerous insects known to man. They are the filthiest of all vermin. They are born in filth, live in filth, and carry filth around with them. They are maggots before they are flies. One fly can carry and may deposit on our food 6,000,000 bacteria. Flies may infect you with tuberculosis, typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or other contagious diseases.

These uncomfortable statements were only a few in Mr. Westbye's very complete arraignment of the house fly.

War on Mosquitoes.

It was an enthralling story P. P. Westbye told of the fight against the mosquito by health authorities and the evil diseases that have finally been traced to the little lancer. In 1900, he said, American surgeons and soldiers, at the risk of their lives, proved that the mosquito transmitted yellow fever, the terror of the Tropics, and in 1898 the discovery was made that malaria was transmitted in a similar way.

The advance notices on the educational films secured by Mr. Westbye from the United States Department of the Interior were not too laudatory. Motion pictures show the development of a mosquito from the larvae stage, how they are killed by oil on the surface of the water, etc., and the reel was all too short for most of the gathering. The picture, "The Man Who Learned," is a short picturisation of a great lesson brought home to a farmer on the necessity for a pure milk supply, and proved worthy of the special commendation given it by the Provincial Board of Health.

The three papers on "Flies, Mosquitoes, and Pure Milk," prepared by Mr. Westbye and read at last night's meeting, will be published in The Examiner—one paper appearing each day, commencing to-morrow.

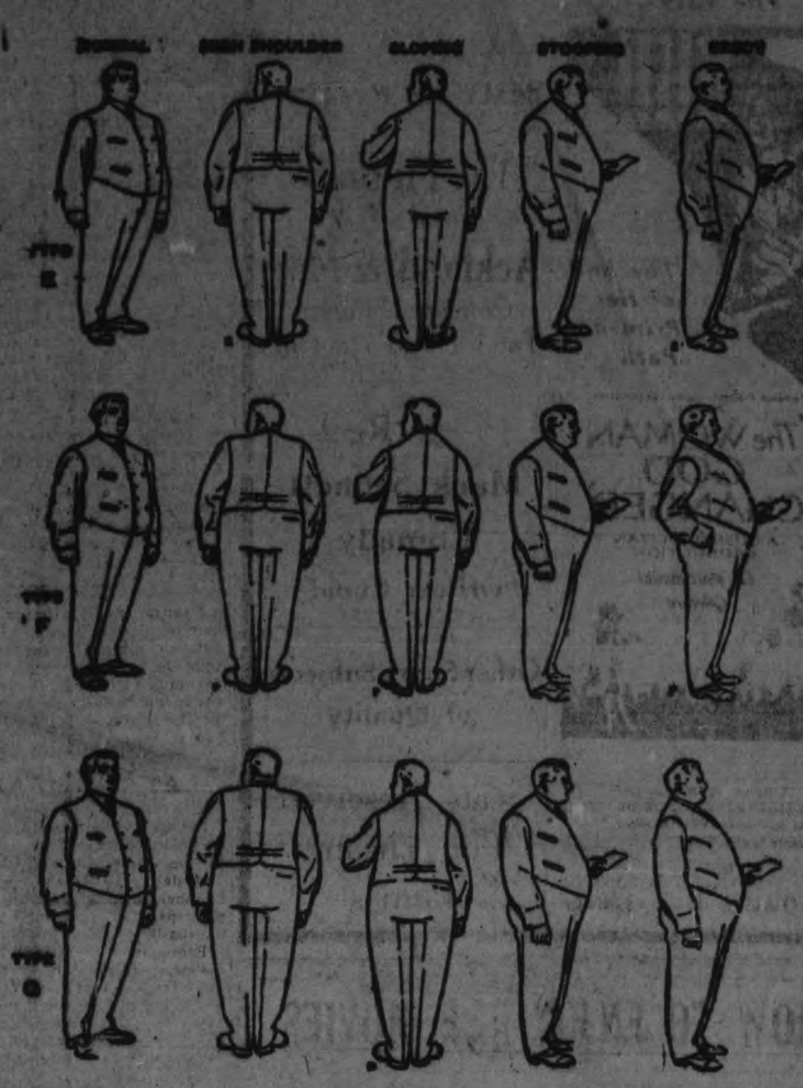
Semi-ready Suits For Men Who Have Grown Stout



Type E Suits
The Short Stout Man.

Height is important in making and grading suit patterns.

A coat made for a stout man of 5 feet 6 would look ridiculous on a man 6 inches taller.

Type E Suits are for men 5 feet 2 inches with a 36 breast and 33½ waist, up to men of 5 feet 9 inches with 50 breast and 52 waist.

The price-in-the-pocket of a Semi-ready suit is a guarantee of its worth to the wearer.

Type F Suits
For Average Stout Men

The average height of the men of Canada runs between 5 feet 5 and 6 feet—and Type F Suits are designed to fit all heights between these figures, with breast measures varying from 36 to 50 inches, and waist measures from 33½ to 52.

The waist measure of a man can be approximated by his height and weight.

"To satisfy"—that is our idea of service, and we want enthusiasm and satisfaction.

Type G Suits
For Tall Stout Men.

It's the Big Man—he who is above the average—who often issues the challenge: "You can't fit me!"

We can put a coat on almost any man — even though he be above or below the average—that can be altered to fit, for our physique type system allows for alterations to fit every variation from the normal figure.

We want the hard-to-fit man to know that the price in the pocket is the same to him — the same everywhere in Canada.

Come and see this extra fine Exposition of Men's Styles---and study for yourself just what the Semi-ready physique type system means to you.

Semi-ready Suits

ALEXANDER GOING BACK TO KINGDOM

(United Press).

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The call of duty as monarch of a poverty-stricken people has overcome the siren song of Paris pleasure, and Prince Alexander of Serbia is going home to be King of Jugo-Slavia. The Jugo-Slav Legation, in an official communique, issued to-day, denies the report that its Prince has decided to abdicate in favor of his brother George and remain in Paris.

Accidents, attacks of appendicitis, nervous breakdowns and sudden relapses have been constant excuses for the presence of Prince Alexander in the French capital since the death of old King Peter made him monarch-elect, and Alexander, according to reports, had partaken of all Paris has to offer. Among other things, he is said to be "madly in love" with a Paris beauty. Prince Alexander had almost decided to remain in Paris to ask his country to deposit money to his credit in Paris banks and to renounce his claims to the Throne. Prime Minister Pachitch pleaded with the pleasure-loving Prince, apparently in vain. Alexander's last experience at Belgrade was on the receiving end of a brief shower of bombs, and he professed little liking for a repetition of the experience, but his failure to answer the earnest appeals of his Government and people has apparently resulted in moral suasion which induced Alexander to change his mind, and the announcement to-day forecasts his prompt renunciation of the joys of Paris night life and a return to the Serbian Throne.

WAS VINDICATED IN POLICE COURT

In the police court this morning, Mr. David R. Prosser, who was unfortunate enough to have in his possession a bicycle that was stolen, was discharged from the police court with his name fully cleared of the charge.

The facts of the matter are that Mr. Prosser bought a wheel in Toronto more than a year ago, and his wheel was taken and unknown to him the stolen bicycle substituted. He was not aware that he had a stolen bicycle in his possession until the matter was brought to his attention by the Police Department in Peterboro, who had traced up the number of the stolen wheel.

As well as the inconvenience and the annoyance of a police court case, which was unavoidable under the circumstances, Mr. Prosser is now out a bicycle that he bought, and which was stolen from him in Toronto, and replaced it by the stolen wheel. However Mr. Prosser has come out of the whole transaction with a clean name, and for which fact all his friends in the city are pleased.

WEEKLY PARADE OF THE RANGERS

The wet weather last night, and the absence of Lieut.-Colonel A. W. McPherson, officer commanding, who was ill with a cold, combined last night to make the weekly parade of the Rangers below standard, but it is planned to have a big parade next Tuesday.

In spite of the rain nine men were signed up, and Adjutant J. Dunkley considers that the regiment once it is fairly going soon be brought up to its old strength.

In the week's activities the smoker to-morrow night takes the prominent place. To ensure a complete success every member of the regiment is urged to be present. All returned soldiers and their friends are cordially invited. A good time is assured.

THE EXECUTIVE MEETS TO-NIGHT

The executive of the local committee of the National Sanitarium Association campaign will meet in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 5 p.m. to-day to further the progress of the establishment of the various committees.

A spirit of optimism is prevailing among the executive, and interesting announcements in conection with the campaigns will be made in a day or two.

The sections of the choir are now more evenly balanced, and last night's session was thoroughly enjoyed.

CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL FIELDS HAS THIS TO SAY

A Londoner offered to passers-by on the street a good golden guinea for a shilling. The offer was unusual and no one believed the guinea was good, so no one would buy. Now we believe we are handing you out a similar offer, except that we tell you more about it. The British Company have satisfied themselves as to the geological foundation. The United States syndicate near our present leasehold, have had a most encouraging report from their geologist. On the Western end three eminent geologists have pronounced in favor of large production. These three are:—H. P. Bosfoph, oil geologist of Detroit, F. F. Newhouse, C. E., of Bowmanville, formerly of Roumana, employed by the Dutch oGvernment and Mr. H. W. Sherrick of Lancaster, Ohio. We do not hesitate a moment in pronouncing in favor of our locatons as our experts have studied the whole field and as they are practical men, as well as geologists and besides this have scientific and practical tests wich prove their conclusions.

WHO INVENTED THE MACHINE GUN STARTS FRENCH CONTROVERSY

PARIS, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press)—A controversy as to who first invented machine-guns is one of the war's aftermaths in France.

Lyons puts forth the claim of a Mr. du Perron who, in 1775, is said to have submitted to the young King Louis XVI a military "orgue" which worked on a crank system and could fire 24 bullets "almost simultaneously and consequently annihilate a whole regiment in a few minutes," according to a contemporary record.

The new weapon appeared to be so murderous that the King and his ministers rejected it and its inventor was held up as an enemy of humanity.

The powers hostile to France tried to secure the invention, but du Perron refused for patriotic motives and he died in poverty.

PRISONER BROKE AWAY BUT WAS SOON RECAPTURED

JOHN DOHERTY OF EAST CITY FIGURED IN LIQUOR CASE.

John Doherty, 30 years of age and John Pethick, 18, were arrested by Prevention Officer Jones of the Attorney-General's Department, Toronto and License Inspector J. Stewart yesterday morning, each on the same charge of obtaining liquor through false or forged prescriptions. Two local doctors Dr. D. N. Carmichael and Dr. J. V. Gallivan, are involved in the case which is being heard in Toronto to-day. Dr. Carmichael is in Toronto in this connection and Dr. Gallivan has sent a sworn affidavit denying any connection with the prescriptions.

It is alleged that both men have illegally secured liquor from the vendors on these forged or false prescriptions. The case comes up in Toronto, for it was there Pethick, who is a minor, was retected with a prescription made out on Dr. Carmichael's forms but denied by the doctor as made out by him. After being held in Toronto, he was released after admitting Doherty was implicated and on Monday Inspector Jones came to Peterboro, to arrest Doherty.

Was Up Late

Pethick was arrested at his home about 9 a.m. yesterday morning before he was up. The youth had only recently come from Toronto and Mr. Stewart and Mr. Jones knew he was home having seen him enter the house late the night before. Pethick told the officers where Doherty lived and the three of them drove to Carlisle avenue, where Doherty lived in the second house from the Oval. They left the car with Pethick in it at the corner and Jones going to the door asked Mrs. Doherty if Mr. Doherty was home. Mrs. Doherty was not suspicious for he said he wanted to see him about some lightning rods, which Doherty has been selling. She said "Jack" would be back about 11.45.

The two inspectors hid in the park and watched Doherty come up Hazlitt street and go into the house about 11.50. He did not see the car at the "Fingerboard." Both officers entered the house and Doherty quietly submitted to arrest. With Doherty walking between them they returned towards the car. According to Inspector Stewart, when Doherty saw the car and Pethick in it, he realized Pethick had informed on him and that the "game" was up.

Made a Getaway.

He threw himself ahead of the officers and ran across the road towards Warsaw and then turned north and into a lot towards Auburn. He was no mean runner, but the inspectors although taken by surprise were close on his heels. Doherty leaped to clear a high board fence but Inspector Jones was too quick and caught him by the foot. The liquor inspectors threw themselves on Doherty. Jones keeping a close grasp on his leg, and under the combined weight of the three the wooden fence collapsed. Doherty was bruised and cut and almost stunned. He was handcuffed and held at the police station till this afternoon when he and Pethick were taken to Toronto by the inspector to face their charges to-day.

HOYT AND NEHF IN GREAT PITCHERS' BATTLE AGAIN—GIANTS DRAW FIRST BLOOD IN INITIAL INNING WHEN 2 PASSES FROM HOYT AND ERROR BY PECK GIVE THEM A RUN—SIDES GO OUT IN ONE, TWO, THREE ORDER.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 13.—John J. McGraw has realized his ambition of fifteen years. After fighting through five World's Series unsuccessfully since 1905 his Giants are champions of the world. They annexed the title of the universe today when they shut out the Yankees 1 to 0 in the eighth game of the World's Series.

Two walks and an error by Peckinpaugh gave the game to the National Leaguers.

Waite Hoyt, who held the Giants to one run in 18 innings in his previous two games of the series, was pitted against Nehf again today. The two engaged in the greatest pitchers' duel of the present series, Hoyt being touched for six hits and Nehf for four. Both were wild occasionally in the first few innings, but toward the last mowed down the opposing batters in almost one-two-three order.

SILESIA PARTITION AFFECTS EXCHANGE

BERLIN, Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press.) — The assumption that the partition of Upper Silesia has been definitely decided caused a swift rise in foreign exchanges in the money market section of the Bourse yesterday, the stock market being closed. A feverish demand for foreign currencies started early; it was occasioned by apprehension of internal trouble in consequence of the rospective loss of valuable productive territory, with an attendant further disastrous slump in the mark.

CROOKS LEAVE BIG CITY FOR SMALLER TOWN

PRECAUTIONS BEING TAKEN BY METROPOLITAN POLICE FORCE YEGGS AND BANDITS TO THE VILLAGES.

WINTER TO SEE CRIME CONCENTRATED THERE

By CARL VICTOR LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. — The crook who figures the world owes him a living has taken a gun and gone to the small town to collect.

Crooks and highwaymen have deserted the big cities and have started their winter offensive against villages of a few thousand population.

Reports reaching Chicago police headquarters, the clearing house for middle-western crime, shows that in the last 24 hours activities of bandits, thugs and yeggs have centered in towns and villages.

This increased record of crime, according to Police Chief Fitzmorris, marks the opening of the winter crime season.

"The small town is to be the victim this winter instead of large cities," Fitzmorris said. "This, I believe, is due to the precautions taken by police in big cities. With police guarding banks and rifle squads in readiness to combat crime, the yeggs have been driven from the larger cities.

"They find villages easy places to work. The small town bank seldom has squads. Usually, only the cashier is on duty.

"The outbreak of crime in the last 24 hours — the most startling for months—is not due to any organized band with a master mind as leader," said Fitzmorris. "The small bands of robbers are playing their own games."

K. OF C. HONOR THEIR PATRON

CELEBRATE 429TH ANNIVERSARY OF DISCOVERY OF AMERICA BY CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS.

JUDGE E. C. S. HUYCKE ADDREESES GATHERING

Last evening about 125 of the friends and members of the local Council of the Knights of Columbus gathered in their rooms to celebrate the 429th anniversary of the discovery of America on Oct. 12th, 1492, by Christopher Columbus, the patron of their Order, His Honour, Judge Huycke, was the speaker of the evening and gave an exceptionally fine address on the life and works of the immortal Italian and the influences which moulded his remarkable career.

With an insight into the historical aspects of his subject which betrayed an intensive study and profound knowledge of conditions at that time, His Honour made his address very interesting to his hearers. Commencing with a description of Columbus, which pictured him as being of "tall, majestic carriage, with hook nose, grey eyes, ruddy complexion, with an air of authority, a man of high thoughts, arresting personality, a religious and lofty genius," he gave a short sketch of his life from his birth at Genoa in 1436, to his death in 1506, at the age of 70 years. He was always an earnest student of mathematics, geography and astronomy, became a sailor in early life and was held captive for a time by Moorish pirates, and was a disciple of the great geographer and astronomer of that age, Toscanelli, a man who encouraged him in his life obsession, the discovering of a water route to India. His Honour emphasized the fact that nothing was known at that time of the continent of America: the prevailing impression being that the earth was round, and that, by sailing due west, one might hope to come to the eastern shore of the great land of India. A map drawn up by Toscanelli for the guidance of Columbus on his venture placed China where California is and made Japan lie in the Gulf of Mexico. This theory of reaching India by the water route had been advanced 200 years before the time of Columbus by Roger Bacon, and also by a contemporary of Columbus, and the writings of Marco Polo had revealed to the eager young student that at the far end of Asia was an actual open sea. It was with the idea of traversing this sea and reaching the land by water, that Columbus embarked on his voyage, and the speaker asserted that in the opinion of many authorities, it was doubtful if Columbus ever realized to the day of his death that he had discovered an absolutely new continent and not the group of islands which he believed were probably merely the outposts to his cherished goals, and the inhabitants of which he called Indians, believing that they were natives of the eastern portion of that land.

His trials in connection with raising funds for his adventure, his final befriending by the Spanish queen, Isabella, his actual finding of the islands, facts which are familiar to all, and the intrigues of the Spanish court after the death of his benefactress, plots which finally led to his being brought back in chains from America, and finally dying in poverty and obscurity, were related by the speaker, who concluded his discourse with a resume of the conditions of the time which led up and produced one of the greatest men who ever lived.

The two great factors which spurred Columbus on in his search were at that time the moving elements in the lives of men; commercial expansion and the desire to oust the Turks from the Holy Land, and from the position held by them at Constantinople and about the eastern shores of the Mediterranean, which effectually blocked overland commerce to the wealthy empires of China and India. England, where new impetus to a national life had been given by the practical extinction of the barons in the Wars of the Roses, Italy, France and Russia were all awakening to a realization of the difficulties of overland commerce, and seeking for some outlet for trade with the East. But, although this was an important factor in the work of Columbus, the chief idea that obsessed him was a religious one. He was a religious fanatic, and longed with fanatical intensity for the extinction of the followers of Mahomet and their expulsion from the Holy Land. The Crusades had failed, and Columbus was animated with the idea of bringing a frontal attack against them by water, and so harrying them by land and by sea as to drive them from their long-held position. It was the dream to replace over the Holy Sepulchre the cross of his Christ that sent him out seeking the water route to his coveted goal.

His Honour was presented with the unanimous and hearty thanks of the meeting by Mr. Jos. A. O'Brien, who presided, and acknowledgment of his splendid discourse was also made by Mr. G. H. Popham and Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl. During the evening, several fine vocal solos were rendered by Mrs Dickenson, accompanied by Mr. Dickenson.

Sinn Finn Reported to Have Commandeered Ulster Estate

BELFAST, Oct. 13. — (United Press.) — Irish Republican Army troops in North Tyrone were to-day reported to have commandeered the large shooting lodge of Lady Dorchester for the administrative offices of a large training camp which has been established in the Ulster mountains.

This drastic move, apparently involving a breach of the peace by Sinn Feiners in Ulster territory, caused fears of reprisals and further endangering of the armistice resolutions.

SERIOUS CRISIS ARISES AND THREATENS PARLEYS OVER THE IRISH PROBLEM

SINN FEIN DEMAND FOR RELEASE OF INTERNED PRISONERS A CONDITION TO CONTINUANCE OF CONFERENCE LEADS TO HURRIED CALLING OF CABINET MEETING AND LENGTHY INTERVIEW OF LLOYD GEORGE WITH KING.

By Ed. L. Keen.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, October 13. — A flat demand from the Sinn Fein for the release of all its interned prisoners, to-day threatened the course of smooth negotiations before the Irish Peace Conference had fairly begun. The optimistic atmosphere of Tuesday's opening sessions had been swept away when the Sinn Fein delegates and the British Cabinet ministers resumed the conference at 10 Downing street at noon to-day.

Two evidences that the situation was extremely serious were:

1—A lengthy and unexpected interview between Lloyd George and King George at Buckingham Palace. The premier was said to have informed the King that the negotiations had taken a turn which necessitated consulting His Majesty, and went to the palace with the story of the difficulties.

2—The session to-day was postponed from 11 o'clock till noon and the British Cabinet Committee met in a special session at the former hour.

Crowds again waited and cheered the delegates as they drove to the Prime Minister's residence at about a quarter to twelve. The fact that none had appeared before eleven o'clock, the time originally set for the conference, gave rise to rumors that a break had occurred. But with all appearances of maintaining the friendly spirit of the first two days' meetings, the plenipotentiaries arrived and were greeted by the Premier.

It became known when the delegates entered the conference chamber that a serious crisis had arisen as a result of the Sinn Fein demand as a condition to the continuance of the conference that all interned prisoners be released.

This demand made at the opening session had been kept from the public.

A British sub-committee had been appointed to consider it and was to make its report to the conference to-day.

It was reported that Britain had agreed to make this drastic concession rather than bring about a breakdown in the negotiations.

Upon the British answer a successful start of the conference, and posibly its ultimate fate, depends.

The present negotiations have been generally considered the last chance for a peaceful solution of the Irish difficulties. The British decision consequently was anxiously awaited.

On the surface everything was smooth as the conference got down to the real work of finding a basis for peace.

The same laughing, cheering crowds of Irish sympathizers and idle curious jammed Downing street's narow entrance and spread through Whitehall to watch the delegates drive up. The Irish Republican flags of green, white and orange fluttered gaily as Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins hurried from their car to the door of Lloyd George's residence.

Announcement of the decision taken regarding the mutual efforts to strengthen the lines of the truce was expected to occupy the early minutes of the opening session. Both sides were expected to inform the other of orders that have been sent to the leaders in Ireland to more closely observe the rules of the armistice.

General Sir Neville Macready had already outlined the Britsh charges of Irish breaches of the peace, and Duggan, the chief Irish liason officer, presented a counter list detailing violations of the truce by the Crown forces.

Each side insisted upon the difficulty of restraining its forces, and sought to lay the responsibility upon the other.

The conference adjourned after a session lasting barely an hour. The delegates were to meet again to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

THE WEATHER

The temperature was down to 26 degrees last night, or 6 degrees below the freezing point. Some good sized icycles were to be seen hanging from the roofs of sheds. We should have at least four weeks more of good fall weather, and possibly a lengthy period of the so-called Indian summer.—W. P.

M. PAPPAS COMES BACK INTO MOVIES

TAKES OVER THE REGENT THEATRE, AND WILL PUT HIS OLD TIME VIM INTO THE BUSINESS.

"Good morning, Mr. Pappas—just heard you are going back into the movies again."

"Yes—guess so—why?—that's all right, Mr. Examiner."

"The news seem to have got out on the street, Mr. Pappas, and we would like to know if the Examiner is at liberty to confirm it."

"All right—go ahead! You can say that I have taken over the Regent motion picture theatre and expect to open the house under my management on Monday next, 17th. Be sure and come early and avoid the rush!"

The announcement that the Regent is to be controlled in future by Mr. Pappas will be of interest to playgoers who admire the clever achievements in cinematography.

Mr .Pappas has been so well and favorably known in Peterborough in this amusement line during the past twelve years that the public pretty nearly know what to expect of him as a motion picture manager. His enterprise and resourcefulness in catering to movie picture admirers while conducting the Royal Theatre won for him a lot of popularity, which he still shares. Since disposing of the Royal to the Allen's about two years ago, Mr. Pappas has been devoting attention to his other interests in Peterborough and elsewhere. Now that the war period has passed and readjustment of prices and other things has been reached, Mr. Pappas comes back to take up his favorite amusement business again.

Part of Mr. Pappas' programme is a return to former pre-war prices —10 and 15 cent admissions—which proved so successful in pulling bumper houses, and which got the motion picture loving public all coming his way.

Notwithstanding the drop in prices, Mr. Pappas declares that he intends to run a high-class picture show, including western plays, serials, dramas and comedies. In the selection of attractive films, he will not be tied down to any one film corporation, but will personally select such features as, in his judgment, will be most popular in this community

For his commenceent programme in this unique cinema house, beginning Monday, October 17th, Mr. Pappas promises to present a splendid bill of attractions, enlivening the screen with stirring pictures in which some of the favorite stars in the movie world will appear in varying roles, full particulars of which will be given later.

There never was a time when moving picture shows were so much in the public eye as to-day. The younger generation seem to derive a lot of amusement out of them; and, with careful management and first run films, Mr. Pappas is out to win back a renewal of the generous patronage which he enjoyed in former years.

DOHERTY WAS FINED $300

TORONTO, Oct. 13. — Hailing from Peterborough, John Doherty forged the names of three Toronto doctors to prescriptions for liquor. The Crown asked for the maximum fine of $300 for "illegally obtaining medical prescriptions."

"I didn't think it was forgery," blurted out the prisoner, to the evident confusion of his counsel W. B. Horkins, who immediately began to ask for a light penalty in view of five years' service in France. The Crown won.

POLITICS IN DURHAM

last brought in a resolution which reads as follows:

"Subject to the reservation that in exceptional cases there may be documents of a confidential character which in the public interest may properly be withheld from publication, the house declares that it is the undoubted right of Parliament to demand and receive copies of all reports, accounts, correspondence and papers in relation to the management of every Department of the Public service including the affairs of the Canadian National Railways whether operating directly under the control of the Department or under corporate form."

The Liberals unanimously supported Mr. King's resolution. The Government opposed it.

5 members of the Farmer Party voted for it, 4 against it and 5 refrained from voting.

It will astonish the friends of Mr. Crerar, the recognized leader of the Farmer Party, that he voted in favor of the Government declining to give to Parliament the detailed information which accounted for this loss of over $70,000,000 to taxpayers of Canada, in the operation of the Canadian National Railways in one single year. Mr. Crerar's ideas of autocratic Government must be due to the fact that he himself was a member of the most autocratic government that ever existed in Canada and his reasons for voting against Mr. King's resolution are the more incomprehensible owing to the fact that the Minister of Railways and Canals acknowledged that Canada would lose this year over $50,000,000 more in the operation of the Canadian National Railways.

Mr. Hall in conclusion pointed out that Mr. Preston advocated a platform that was in the interests of the majority of the Canadian people no matter to which class they belong, and that Canada could meet its great obligations only by all classes of the community working in harmony with each other and by each class doing its part in assisting in the development of our great agricultural, mining, forest and other resources.

NORWOOD FAIR'S EXPECTED RECORD

harmonious aggregation of twelve instruments, began their programme from the bandstand. Sitting down was out of the question, so they remained standing during their first few selections, the snare-drummer cavorting among his fellows after the manner but not the impulse of the saxophone stars in a jazz band, circulating about the floor while playing. The bandsmen were soon routed from their exposed position, and the rest of their programme was given on the march.

Although the rain had kept most of the crowd at home, it failed to dampen the spirit of the new political aspirants and their aide-de-camps. G. A. Brethen, candidate of the U.F.O. in East Peterborough, supported by a corps of workers, came early and stayed late. John A. Sexsmith was seen often and everywhere on the grounds, quite probably pleading his cause for the Conservative convention here next Monday. Reeve J. C. Strickland, of Lakefield, was also among those present, accompanied by ex-Reeve Harry Fitzgerald; and from all accounts he has already arrayed a numerous and influential group to support him for the Conservative nomination. Fred Slade, U.F.O. candidate in Northumberland, was evidently playing his candidacy among the electors of his riding, and on the Liberal side were W. A. Anderson, of Otonabee, John Dewart, of Dummer, and a number of others who are being mentioned in connection with the Liberal convention. Soch was the political liveliness among the leaders, not to mention the rank and file, under as discouraging conditions as could be imagined.

After hesitating until nearly two o'clock, doubting whether anyone was coming to give them a start, the midway workers shot up their canvas when the turnstiles began to click busily, disclosing a variety of booths, shows, and amusements that came from far and near, indicating the fame of Norwood's Fair.

The programme proceeded as smoothly as possible under the difficulties, and under the trying conditions the directors carried on to the admiration of those who realised that such a day was a real test of the spirit of the Board.

The Horse Races.

The horse races resulted as follows —with Ira Nattrass, of Millbrook, in charge of the stand:

Open Trot.

Sunny Jim, Dr. Johnston 2 1 1 1
Harry H., R. Elmhurst 1 2 2 3
Lloyd-George, E. W. Jones .. 3 3 3 2

Green Race.

Reta Hall, H. Elmhurst 1 1 1 1

Speaking Contest.

The competition in oratory for children was held in the Armouries, used as the main exhibition building, with Rev. Mr. Huffman, of Bridgenorth, presiding. R. J. Lawlor and F. C. McRae, of Norwood, were the judges.

Their decision was:

1st—Donald Huffman, Bridgenorth. Subject, "Lloyd-George."

2nd—Evelyn McMurray, Warsaw. Subject, "Why Country Life is Better Than City Life."

3rd—Florence Burgess, Norwood, R. R. No. 2. Subject, "Peterborough County History."

4th—Lillian Mills, Smith Township. Subject, "The Duties of Citizenship."

5th—Kenneth Montgomery, Norwood. Subject, "The Success of the Automobile."

The first three prize-winners are products of the rural public schools and, in their developing platform abilities, of the rural school fairs, at which children are given prizes for the best speeches.

Pipers Made a Hit.

The Caledonian Pipe Band added not only a flash of colour, but a cheerful note to the afternoon, relieving the drabness by their enlivened music. They gravitated from one of the exhibition tents to the midway and back. In the hall they gave several separate programmes, including a rather lengthy one of Highland dances, reels, flings, and scottisches, and band selections. Piper John Smith sang "Annie Laurie" and other songs, these unexpected offerings being much appreciated. Their marches on the grounds never failed to attract the crowd, and on the day's entertainment the Caledonians made a very favourable impression.

Scouts Inspected.

The Norwood Scouts, with R. J. Logan, scoutmaster, were inspected by Captain Neilson, of Westwood, who thoughtfully cut this part of the programme as short as possible for the comfort of the youngsters.

Miscellaneous Events.

Fastest walking team in harness and waggon—1, F. M. Rutherford, Bonarlaw; 2, H. Hutchison, Norham; 3, J. Locke, Campbellford.

Best lady driver, single harness horse—1, Miss Carrie Lajoie, driving for G. C. Blewett; 2, Mrs. H. J. Miller, Keene; 3, Vera Varcoe, Roseneath.

The J. J. Turner & Sons special horse blanket for the best gentlemen's turnout, single horse in harness, was won by G. C. Blewett.

The number of exhibits in the cattle classes was larger than ever, and in all departments there were increases. Some of the exhibitors were kept at home by the rain and muddy roads.

The Iron Food for Vitality

True vigor and vitality depend on the iron in the blood

Real Raisin Pie

—you don't know it, unless you've tasted this one. Try the recipe and see

Raisin Pie

Men are quickly refreshed at night by a dessert like this

2 cups Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins
2 cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 tablespoon sugar

Wash the raisins, put in saucepan with 1 cup cold water and bring slowly to a boil. Add sugar, salt and corn starch which has been mixed with 1 cup cold water. Boil 5 minutes; add lemon juice. Pour in pie tin which has been lined with crust, while hot cover; brush top with cold milk and bake in moderate oven until brown.

All measurements for this recipe are level.

WHEN made correctly—it is easy—Raisin Pie rules in its own right as the Pie Supreme — man's favorite food-dessert.

Do you use a recipe like this one—have you ever tasted raisin pie made exactly in this way?

If not, you're unfamiliar with real raisin pie — the flavory, energy-producing dessert that furnishes the blood with food-iron and helps to keep vitality up to par.

You need but a small bit of iron daily, yet that need is vital.

A million workers probably are refreshed daily by the digestible, quick-acting nourishment and vitalizing iron of raisin pie.

Whether you work indoors or out, you need this vitality.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use Sun-Maid Raisins, made from California's finest table grapes—American raisins, processed and packed immaculately in a great modern California plant.

Seeded (seeds removed); Seedless (grown without seeds); Clusters (on the stem). Also a fine, ever-ready dessert.

Raisins are cheaper by thirty per cent than formerly. See that you get plenty in your foods.

RICHARD HALL & SON LTD

A Group of Good Gruels

Often we search in vain on sudden need for gruels appropriate for an invalid that do not in their very nature and name savor too much of a sick room. In many lines, gruels are the mainstay of the diet. As all are made from cereal products, care should be taken that the starch is thoroughly cooked, sometimes even dextrinized, by long slow baking, annd the cellulose or woody fiber well softened. Ordinarily, this fiber should be strained out to avoid irritation of the digestive organs. Among ordinary gruels thus made from cornmeal and oatmeal are the most nutritious. The latter is laxative while the reverse is true of milk and barley gruels. Rice is very poor in nitrogen and is usually taken with a little butter, meat, juice or fruit to improve the flavor and avoid pastiness. Oftentimes it s used in cases convalescing from typhoid fever.

Gruels should always be served hot and not too thick. If sweetened at all it should be only to a slight degree, as patients tire of them much more readily in that way. In some instances of course all sugar is to be avoided. Milk or cream should be added only just before serving as cooking for any length of time renders them less digestible. Variety should be most carefully studied in the use of gruels for any prolonged period. Often this can be produced by the addition or omission of eggs or fruit, besides variety in the choice of cereal used or patent foods of which there are many good ones on the market.

Caudle.

Beat up an egg to a froth, add a glass of sherry and half a pint of gruel. Flavor with lemon peel, nutmeg and sugar.

Thickened Milk.

One tablespoonful flour, one cupful milk, few grains of salt. Scald the milk, reserving two tablespoonfuls. Add cold milk gradually to the flour while stirring constantly to make a smooth paste. Pour into scalded milk and then stir until the mixture thickens, then cover, and cook over hot water for 20 minutes. Season with salt. An inch piece of stick cinnamon may be cooked with the milk if liked.

Oatmeal Gruel.

One fourth cupful oatmeal, one and one half cupfuls boiling water, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, milk or cream. Add the oatmeal, mixed with salt, to boiling water, let boil two minutes, then cook over hot water one hour. Strain, bring to a boiling point and add milk or cream to meet the needs of the case.

Cornmeal Gruel.

One tablespoonful of cornmeal, one-half tablespoonful of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, two table spoonfuls of cold water, one and a half cupfuls of boiling water, milk or cream. Blend the meal, flour and salt with the cold water to make a smooth paste and stir into the boiling water. Boil on the back of the stove for one hour and a half. Dilute with milk or cream. Strain. —From Benziger's.

The Kidneys

The office man and the outdoor worker suffer alike from derangements of the kidneys.

Backaches and headaches are among the symptoms. In some cases Bright's disease soon develops, others suffer from high blood pressure until hardening of the arteries sets in.

In order to forestall painful and fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Mr. A. D. MacKinnon, Kirkwood, Inverness county, N.S., writes:

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. I may also say that for three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and no treatment seemed to do more than afford temporary relief. I was finally told of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using a few boxes was completely relieved. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with the best results, and never fail to recommend these wonderful remedies."

A LAST LEGACY

"Grass forms the most beautiful and appropriate covering of the grave. As it was the earth's first blessing, so it is her last legacy to man. The body that it fed when living, it reverently covers when dead with a garment richer than the robe of a king.

"When all other kindness in food and clothing and emblematical teaching is over, it takes up its Ripah watch beside the tomb, and forsakes not what all else has forsaken. Gently does it wrap up the ashes of the dead, wreathing like a laurel crown the cold damp brow with its interlacing roots, drawing down to the darkness and solitude of the grave the warm and bright sunshine and blessed dews of heaven."

Lakefield and Havelock Organize Branches Children's Aid Society

EXTENSION SHOULD BE PRODUCTIVE OF GOOD RESULTS—HAVELOCK OFFICERS ASSOCIATED WITH AUXILIARY.

At the meeting of the Children's Aid society held on Tuesday afternoon of this week, a rather interesting announcement was made of the intention of Lakefield and Havelock to organize branch auxiliaries of the Children's Aid Society in these places.

This is an extension which has been urged by some of the lady members of the Board for some time past, and should be productive of good results and a furthering of interest in the work of the Society, which does same excellent service in child welfare work. Mrs. Joseph Knox, convenor of the tag day held last Saturday in aid of the shelter, went to Havelock and later, accompanied by Mrs. J. S. Fanning, of Lakefield, to ask that a tag day might be held in these two places to work in conjunction with the Peterboro event. They met with an enthusiatic reception and hearty co-operation from the citizens of both places, men women, and young ladies turning out to assist in any possible way in gathering funds. Lakefield secured the very handsome sum of $125.85 and Havelock in the neighborhood of $95 the Children's Aid contribution in the latter place having been the fourth contribution to worthy causes made in that place during the last month.

Lakefield, where a committee composed of Mrs. A. W. McKenzie, convenor, with Medames W. Sherin, S. Spence, C. W. Finnemore, Jr. B. Marling, F. J. Burgess, Geo. Charlton, S. Hunter and Miss Stabler had charge of the day has signified its intention of forming an auxiliary in the near future, and Havelock has already appointed the following officers to act on the auxiliary to the parent society here. The rest of the executive will be appointed at the first regular meeting of the society President, Mrs. Chas. Roberts, secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) Thompson, treasurer, Mrs. Jos. O'Brien. Mrs. Wm. Vance acted as convenor for the tag day. This society has offered to do sewing and knitting for the children and help in every way possible. Results achieved in most centres were most gratifying to the ladies who essayed the venture.

Life in the Chinese Mission Fields

Mrs. F. C. Stephenson of Toronto, who, with her husband, Dr. Stephenson, spent eight years in the foreign missionary fields of China, spoke at the Convention of Epworth Leagues held here last week in George street Methodist Church. She related many interesting happenings in her sojourn amongst the yellow race, and told of a visit for afternoon tea to an old lady who was an enthusiastic convert of the mission at Chungking. Her abode was picturesquely described as one where "children, dogs, washing and dirt" mingled promiscuously, and the living-room of her residence papered with pages torn from religious publications, depicting scenes in the Old and New Testament.

Mrs. Stephenson said that in a certain part of the Chinese Empire, it was a common practice for the ladies of the household to go walking attended by a pig attached to a long string, a practice which she regarded as not dissimiliar to what she had seen taking place amongst the women of her own native land.

How the Name Otonabee Originated

The late Mrs. Traill, in her interesting book, 'Pearls and Pebbles,' gives the derivation of the Indian name, Otonabee, as being "water running swiftly flashing brightly"; Katchewanook was "lake of three islands"; Ontario, "sheet of placid water"; Pem-a-dash-da-kota, "lake of the burning plains," the original name of Rice Lake. She says, "How many years ago it was that these plains were burned over they do not know, but that they were the scene of a great conflagration, the Indian name, as well as the half-charred blackened roots below the surface of the soil, prove. Napanee, the Indian word for flour, indicates that on the site of that now flourishing town, the first flour mills in the district were erected." Bowschink means "spilt water."

The connection of the name commonly bestowed on the Canada Jay, that of "Whisky Jack," is rather interesting. "If an Indian hound intrudes into the house, his master dismisses him with the words, "Wiska-geen," which means, "Get out, lazy fellow," and the Indian name for that bold, troublesome bird, the Canada Jay, the pest of the lumberers' camp in the North-West, is very similar, "Wiska-Tjan." This the Hudson Bay folks have turned into the more familiar sound of "Whisky John" or "Whisky Jack."

"The Scarlet Tanager was called by the Indians and the old settlers in Canada the 'War Bird,' because, they say, it was not seen on this side of Lake Ontario, nor on the St. Lawrence, till after the close of the war between Great Britain and the United States, in 1812-14, not until peace was established," and the cat owl with its deep sonorous voice is imitated in the Indian notes of lamentation over their dead, "wo-ho-ha-no-min."

About the wild rice, the author says: "When the leaves turn yellow, and the grain ripens in the mellow days of late September or October, the Indian women gather it into their canoes by means of a short, thin-bladed paddle, with which they strike the heads of the grain-bearing stalks against a stick held in the other hand and over the edge of the canoe.

"The wild rice has a peculiar weedy, smoky flavor, but if properly cooked is very delicious. The Indians preserve it in many ways, and look upon it as belonging especially to them. They call the month of the rice harvest the 'Moon of the Ripe Rice'."

Mrs. Traill says: "The Indian grass, commonly so-called, is the identical 'Holy Grass' of Northern Europe. The botanical name Hierochloa, is derived from the Greek words meaning sacred and grass, the custom of strewing churches and other sacred buildings with this fragrant plant giving it the name. It was only when reading Smiles' 'Memoirs of Robert Dick,' and the account that industrious naturalist gives of this plant, that I instantly recognized it as the same found in Ontario and used by the Indian women in their work."

HAIR-DRESSING

An authority on hair-dressing gives as a good rule to observe the following: "Do your hair to emphasize your best lines and reduce your worst ones. Begin by studying your profile. If you have a pug nose, do not put your hair on the top of your head; if you have a round, fat face, do not fluff your hair out too much at the sides; if your face is very thin and long, then you should fluff your hair out at the sides. The woman with the full face and double chin should wear her hair high. All these and other individual features must be taken into consideration in selecting the proper hairdress. Above all, simplicity should prevail. You are always most attractive when your hair looks most natural — when it looks most like —."

"Ye say they all have passed away,
That noble race and brave;
That their light canoes have vanished
From off the crested wave;

That in the forests where they roamed,
There rings no hunter's shout—
But their name is on your waters,
Ye may not wash it out."
—L. Sigourney.

CIVILIZATION

"So I repeat we never can have a true view of man unless we have a love for him. Civilization must be judged and prized, not by the amount of power it has developed, but by how much it has envolved and given expression to, by its laws and institutions, the love of humanity. The first question and the last which it has to answer is, whether and how far it recognizes man more as a spirit than a machine? Whenever some ancient civilization fell into decay and died, it was owing to causes which produced callousness of heart and led to the cheapening of man's worth, when either the state or some powerful group of men began to look upon the people as a mere instrument of their power, when, by compelling weaker races to slavery and trying to keep them down by every means, man struck at the foundation of his greatness, his own love of freedom and fair-play. Civilization can never sustain itself upon cannibalism of any form. For that by which alone man is true can only be nourished by love and justice.'

THIS WILL INTEREST STOMACH SUFFERERS

Says Indigestion comes from an Excess of Hydrochloric acid.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important it neutralize he acidity remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with Litha and sodum phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thouand of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

CLASSES OPEN AT THE Y.W.C.A.

Basketry classes for the season were started at the Y.W.C.A. on Tuesday evening, with a very good attendance. Mr. J. R. Brownlee, the local blind expert in this sort of work, had cheerfully volunteered his services, and was on hand early to demonstrate the proper methods. With his dexterous left-handed movements, he had completed a small basket in a short space of time, and the lesson was much enjoyed by the young ladies. Mr. Brownlee is always a cheerful worker and one forgets his handicap in watching his clever, quick fingers.

Among the pleasant activities of the Y.W.C.A. this week is a masquerade on Friday evening under the auspices of the recreation committee, when the girls are allowed to invite masculine masqueraders. With real masked jollity and refreshments to round out the evening, they will doubtless have a gay time.

REAL SHORTCAKE.

A real shortcake is made from a rich biscuit dough, using two or three times as much shortening as is allowed for biscuit. The dough is sometimes sweetened lightly and after baking is spread with butter and then with crushed fruit.

There are many mixtures that are wrongly called shortcake — sponge cake, layer cake, etc., among them—but the real, true shortcake is made from a biscuit dough.

Remove the skin and bone from fish while it is still warm, and they will come away easily.

Household Hinst

A very delicious dish is creamed oysters served on omelet.

When you make apple jelly save the pulp for apple butter.

Try using leftover coffee in spice cakes instead of sour milk. It serves just as well.

Milk will stay sweet longer if kept in a shallow pan than if put in a deep pail or jug.

Never put away pots and pans with their lids on, or they will retain the odor of the food last cooked in them.

Straws may be used in giving liquids to sick children when they cannot be moved. Glass tubes are easily broken, but a bundle of straws such as used at soda fountains may be purchased at small cost.

Children should not be given money to buy their own fruit from hucksters or stands unless there are facilities at school for washing it.

The color and flavor of crab apple jelly may be changed by adding a generous amount of finely chopped mint leaves and green vegetable coloring.

CROUTES OF HADDOCK.

Remove the bones from half-pound of cooked dried haddock and two anchovies, pound well, and rub through a sieve, mix in two tablespoonfuls of cream and 10 ounces of butter, have some rounds of bread about a quarter of an inch thick, and fry a nice brown, pile the above mixture on the dried bread, and keep hot; put into a saucepan 4 ounces of grated cheese, two tablespoonfuls of cream, season with salt, pepper, and cayenne, heat up, and stir until smooth; pour a little over each of the croutes, put in a hot oven for ten minutes to brown; dish up, and garnish with parsley. A nice savoury.

STUFFED STEAK WITH MUSHROOMS.

Cut up quarter-pound of mushrooms and fry in 10 ounces of butter, add half a teaspoonful of parsley, one tablespoonful of breadcrumbs, salt and pepper; insert a sharp knife into the edge of 1 pound of thick, tender steak, and open it wide enough to hold the forcemeat—put a little butter on the top, and grill on both sides. Serve with maitre d'hotel butter on the top, or, if preferred, the steak may be garnished with stewed mushrooms and served with a gravy.

SWEETBREADS.

Steep two or three sweetbreads in cold water two hours, changing the water several times; drop them in boiling water for three minutes, lift out into cold water for fifteen minutes; drain, remove the skin and fat, press them for half an hour between two plates, divide quarter-pound of bacon into neat lardoons, and lard them; put some vegetables, viz., one carrot, one onion, a few sprigs of parsley, all finely sliced, at the bottom of a pan, season with salt and pepper, and put in a bunch of sweet herbs in a muslin bag, lay on the top of the sweetbreads, pour round half a pint of stock, and simmer for half an hour. To thicken the sauce, melt 10 ounces of butter, in another pan, stir till blended, three-quarter ounces of flour, and then add the stock from the sweetbreads, boil five minutes, dish up the sweetbreads in a silver entree dish, pour the sauce over, and serve. A little sherry added to the sauce is a great improvement, and a dessertspoonful of Worcestershire sauce.

CRAB FLAKE COCKTAILS.

These are served by placing a small, deep dish, like a dessert dish, in a larger dish filled with cracked ice. In the centre of the small dish place a small glass filled with a good oyster cocktail, and heap up around the glass cold cooked crab flakes. Garnish with lemon slices and serve with an oyster fork.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13. — A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Innis, Seymour West,on Tuesday afternoon, when their eldest daughter Hazel, was united in marriage to Mr. Wilbert Raymond Oliver, of Cannington, formerly of Campbellford. Precisely at three o'clock to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Josephine Oliver of Havelock, sister of the groom, the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father. She looked very charming in her gown of ivory satin with bridal veil, both being trimmed with pearls, and she carried a corsage bouquet of swetheart roses. Little Miss Esther Innis, sister of the bride, made a very pretty little bearer.

Immediately after the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. C. F. McIntosh, pastor of St. Andrew's church, the guests to the number of 75, repaired to the dining room where a most sumptuous repast awaited them.

The bride and groom left later by motor for Belleville where they entrained for western points, the bride travelling in a smart tricotine suit, sable furs, and a becoming black hat. ter homes will be established, better sanitary conditions will prevail and better training of the future generation of children will result.

Famine Years.

As treasurer of the Chinese Famine Fund in Honan, Mr. Simmons stated that of the $750,000 contributed in all, $103,000 was sent by the Anglican churches. He told also that during the famine which twenty years ago prevailed in that district, the Chinese authorities refused to accept aid from foreigners though the money was literally brought in cart loads to the city gates, because 2,000 of their "cash" equal only one dollar of our money. But this time the officials had come to the missionaries and asked them to co-operate in the work of relief. He had brought home with him two letters from the civil and military governors in the province, to the church in Canada, expressing their gratitude for the aid given. And this re-action resulting from the practical expression of loving hearts sympathizing with an alien people, had proved God's wonderful opportunity for forwarding His work.

The main body of his address Mr. Simmons devoted to outlining the excellent work actually being accomplished on the field for which the Woman's Auxiliaries at home are directly responsible, such as orphanages, hospitals, where souls are treated as well as bodies, day and boarding schools for girls, training of Bible women, etc., and pointed out much more could be done with an increased body of workers, added equipment, and more buildings. After all the work, in a way, is only begun though there are 2,500 followers of Christ on the church books, and a Chinese branch of the W. A. has been established in the churches there.

It is literally true, the speaker said in conclusion, that the missionaries "fight, not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against sipirtual wickedness in high places." Nevertheless no worker in God's cause should ever be discouraged since "when He putteth forth, He goeth forth," and He will eventually bring His own work to triumphant victory.

Junior Work.

After the offering was taken up during the singing of the hymn which followed Mr. Simmons' address, Mrs. Elliott of Port Hope, spoke for a brief time on the junior work, in which branch she is an active and successful worker.

Miss Vivian Lough, of Ida, was appointed to succeed Mrs. Boyd as Deanery officer and the meeting closed with the benediction.

Luncheon and tea were served in the Sunday school hall to the delegates, many of whom were obliged to leave on the train, going at 5 p.m.

GIRLS' WAGES ARE CUT BELOW THE MINIMUM LIVING COST

MASSACHUSETTS BOARD JUSTIFIES RULING BY FINANCIAL CONDITION OF CANDY INDUSTRY—SCALE FIXED AT $12, BUT LIVING IS $13.50

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Cost of living $13.50; minimum wage, $12. That's a decree handed down here by the Senate Minimum Wage Commission in regard to women and girls in the so-caled "minor candies" or minor lines of confectionery and food preparations.

The decree brought back inquiries to the commission, the gist of which was:

"How can a minimum wage of $12 be enough for a woman or girl whose cost of living you find to be $13.50? How about the gap of $1.50?"

A member of the commissinn said this minimum wage was established "on account of the financial condition of the industry. The commission came as near to it (the living cost) as it could and have the business survive at the present time".

The commission, in its decision pointed out that "the provisions of the Massachusetts law require wage boards to consider not only the amount required to maintain employees in health, but the financial condition of the occupation in question, and the effect of any increase in the minimum rate of wages paid." The commission added that Massachusetts is the only State with minimum wage legislation having this provision

The wage board, which investigated and then recommended a minimum wage of $12, found that the cost of living for a self supporting girl in Massachusetts under present conditions is $13.50 a week. This budget is itemized thus:—

	Amt per wk
Board and lodging	$8.50
Clothing	2.50
Laundry	.20
Carfares	.40
Doctor and dentist	.50
Church	.15
Self-improvement, recreation community interests	.50
Vacation	.20
Reserve for emergency	.30
Incidentials	.25
Total	$13.50

Which of these weekly items the wage earner is supposed to omit in order to make up the $1.50 difference is not stated .

QUESTION OF IMPURE MILK

(BY MR. P. WESTBYE)

Subject of address by Mr. P. Westbye at the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce general meeting, October 11th:

Good health for boys and girls is the fundamental basis of good citizenship. It is the only sound foundation on which to build and maintain a sturdy body.

I feel that it is the duty of teachers and parents to investigate everything that by its usage or practicing will assist in the development of health, growth, strength and vitality of our future citizens.

Importance of Calories.

The word calory is used as a unit by which the value of foods may be computed and compared. The calory designates the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree, and it is employed in relation to food values because the amount of heat or energy which the body can appropriate from the food intake determines the quality of food.

The Five Food Elements.

To be of maximum nutrition value a food must contain five vital elements. First in importance, as suggested by its name, which means 'I Take the First Place," are the proteins. Then there are the carbohydrats—fat, ash and water. The principal purpose of the proteins is to form tissue. The chief function of the fat and carbohydrats (sugar) is to yield energy in the form of heat. The ash aids in making bone. It is very apparent that these integral parts of a complete food will pass through the processes of digestion and assimilation according to the regular routine, but if any of these components are absent the nutrition is incomplete.

The products of beef, veal, mutton, poultry; fish and eggs are not in the category of ideal foods because analysis proves them all to be low in carbohydrats, thus largely discounting their nutritial value. When brought to the test most foods are disqualified for consideration as ideal foods because of one or more metabolic objections—difficult digestion, assimilation and low nutrition. What then is the ideal food, particularly for children?

Milk is a complete food. The chemical analysis of cow's milk shows it to be a complete food upon the basis of nutrition. It is composed of:

Protein	3.5%
Fat	3.5%
Carbohydrats	4.75%
Ash	.70%
Water	86, 87%

—all the five vital elements for nutrition—also carbonic acid, sulphurated hydrogen, nitrogen and oxygen; and, in addition, bot the protein and fat of milk are far better in quality than these same elements as found in other foods. There is lots of evidence that cow's milk is the world's most marvelous food. Whether we relish the comparison or not the human body is a machine. To be more explicit the automobile, which is constructed and operated on a similar principal to the human body. The engine's fuel, gasoline, corresponds with the body fuel, food, both performing the important function of driving the machine. There is, of course, a distinct difference in the number of cylinders, the body having a million cylinders in place of six or eight, and in the construction of the component parts of both machines those of the body are far more complicated than all the automobiles ever turned out in the Ford plants, and the rest of the automobiles in Detroit, but, figuratively speaking, our body is a mechanical engine which we guide by the steering wheel and the brain throughout life.

If the gasoline lacks in quality the automobile will fail to go, and it is not less true that if the food lacks in quality the body will cease to function satisfactorily. Every act of the body and every thought of the mind is made possible by the motive power of the food.

Power of Calory.

Cow's milk is an excellent fuel. Scientists compute the fuel or energy value of food upon the basis of the calory, formerly explained. It is a heat unit capable of driving the body machine the equivalent of 3,087 ft., lbs., for instance, on a sidewalk, floor or pavement. A quart of milk contains 628 calories, so that there are nearly 2,000,000 ft., lbs. in a single quart of milk.

Since the general introduction of pasteurization in Denmark in 1910 of skim milk for use for feeding calfs and pigs, tuberculocus in these animals has disappeared. Sanitation on the farms are of a very high standard. Danish beef, bacon and butter demands the very highest price on the English market, and there is no embargo on cattle from Denmark.

Tuberculosis amongst the people has declined in, that country very fast due to high sense of sanitation, pasteurization of all milk and the excellent sanatariums for curing tubercular patients.

I am told that the herds of cattle and pigs around Peterborough have not been inspected for some years, and for all we know there may be any number of cows and pigs infested with tuberculosis in Peterborough County. Milk is still peddled around in open or self-closed buckets. Go through a pasteurization plant and see for yourself the dirt taken out of milk in the filters.

Letter From Toronto.

The following letter speaks for itself:

October 3, 1921.

Mr. P. P. Westbye,
Wm. Hamilton Company,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—We understand that you desire to secure some statistics relating to Toronto's experience with the pasteurization of the milk supply. We take pleasure, therefore, in sending you the following figures.

Complete pasteurization of the milk supply went into force the first of June, 1912. This was preceded for a year or two by a certain amount of voluntary pasteurization —possibly 50 per cent. in 1911. In this connection it is interesting to note that an outbreak of typhoid fever in Toronto during 1911 was traced directly to raw milk.

With the above dates in mind, a tabulation over a period of years, showing the typhoid fever mortality rate and the infant mortality rate, assumes no little significance.

Year.	Typhoid Deaths Per 100,000 Pop.	Deaths Under 1 Year, All Causes, Per 1,000 Births Registered.
1909	24.7	182.2
1910	44.2	148.9
1911	21.6	144.4
1912	13.2	144.5
1913	11.4	136.8
1914	7.9	111.5
1915	1.9	109.2
1916	6.9	107.1
1917	3.8	91.8
1918	3.1	105.1
1919	2.6	101.2
1920	2.3	104.7

UNEMPLOYMENT TO BE DISCUSSED AT VETS' CONVENTION

TO ENDEAVOUR TO REDUCE UNEMPLOYMENT AMONG EX-SERVICE MEN.

OTTAWA Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The annual convention of the Great War Veterans Association which will be held at Port Arthur, Ont. October 17 to 22, will endeavor to find means to reduce the unemployment situation among former Canadian soldiers and sailors.

The Association is understood to regard unemployment the most prassing national problem. It is expected that the convention will appoint a special committee composed of one member from each province to draft resolutions on that subject.

The question of amalgamating all the soldiers organizations in Canada will be brought before the conventon. Represenттives of other associations of ex-service men have been invited to attend to aid in discussing that problem.

The convention is expected to take steps to urge the Dominion Parliament to reestablish all ex-service men so far as possibe in the economic position which they would have obtained but for their war service. It is likely also that the war veterans will ask Parliament to extend its housing loan to ex-service men.

Resolutions on limitation of armaments will be submitted. It is indicated that these will be along the lines of those approved by the British Empire Service League at its meeting in South Africa and will call for adequate defense in the Empire but with the understanding that armaments should not be built up for offensive purposes .

SHIPS CLOCKS FOR WEDDING GIFTS

There is something fascinating, even to the individual who is not nautically experienced, about the staccato chime of the ship's clock with its rotation of "bells" instead of the ordinary strike marking the number of hours. After you learn to decide in the twinkling of an eye that five-bells is half after ten o'half after six, and seven bells means three-thirty, time to put on the tea-kettle for afternoon tea you simply adore your ship's clock and have fine contempt for any timepiece that tells you in a less interesting way what the hour is. As for people who own boats, or are interested in boats, who have recently taken a cruise on a yacht or on a steamship to the tropics, nothing pleases them more than the gift of the ship's clock Thes.e clocks are very popular now as wedding-gifts and some of them are very atractive looking affairs, adding a stunning note of decoration to hall or library as well as interest and variety—and individuality—to a home.

Voice of the People

THE RECALL.

Norwood, Ont., Oct. 10, 1921.
Editor of The Examiner,
Peterboorugh.

Dear Sir,—My attention has been called to certain criticisms of the Recall you have recently made in the editorial columns of the Examiner. As apparently your action is directed from an erroneous conception of what the recall actually is, I have no doubt you will welcome informaiton bearing upon this important plank of the Farmers' platform.

In the hands of Mr. M. E. Smithson, U.F.O. director for the electoral riding of East Peterborough is a signed copy of the Recall as used in the Provincial election of 1919. If you care to examine this document (to which I see no objection to your having access), it will reveal, it is, briefly, a declaration signed by the member-elect in the presence of a witness ,and addressed to the Speaker of the House that said member resigns his seat in the said House provided: That he at any time ceases to represent the views and wishes of his constituents as expressed by a written petition signed personally by not less than 60 p.c. of the electors of his riding, said petition to be delivered to the then director of the riding or his successor in office who upon its receipt will forward above resignation to the Speaker for action.

Relative to the above I would respectfully draw your attention to the wording, "views and wishes of his constituents," not less than 60 p.c. of the eelctors," as nowhere in this declaration is a member's political action made subservient to the will of any section or class of the electorate, the whole question being based upon the broad principle that a candidate regardless of what party he is brought forward, when elected, is a representaive of ALL the people of his riding, obligated to ace in their behalf, if worthy, entitled to their respect and support.

To my knowledge a declartion similar to the above was signed by every member-elect in the Drury government and it is a significant fact that although two years have elapsed since they weer elected to office I have not heard of a single instance where it has been deemed necesary that the recall be made effective nor has any serious criticism been directed against said Government because of even the semblance of legislation formulated in the interest of any class to the injury of the Province at large. In fact it is common knowledge that with only a normal working majority of two in the House the Farmers' Government has been so fair, and broad, and sane, that it has drawn to its support on practically every vote many of the best men of the parties opposite.

I am writing this explanation not because of any objection to criticisms of the National Progressive party, or of myself personally, but simply to correct a misunderstanding as to the principle of the Recall and because I believe the people of every class, or creed, or party, appreciate, and are entitled to, a statement of the truth.

Respectfully yours,
G. A. BRETHEN.

POPPIES HERE FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Mr. Sidney Whatley, secretary of the G.W.V.A., has received a shipment of 15,000 poppies, for use in commemoration of Armistice Day on the 7th of November. These are no cheap replicas of the famous poppies that attracted the attention of the marching boys in the fields of Flanders and beside the sunny roads of France. They are beautiful silk and linen blossoms in a glowing, rich shade of crimson. The crosses for church use are particularly lovely; fifteen-inch counterparts of the emblem of Christianity formed entirely of the large, artistically-shaded flowers. There are 300 of these and of the large wreaths of silken poppies which enclose two long crossed fronds of shiny laurel. There are long separate blossoms with green leaves, and 1,000 bouquets of massed miniature flowers. They are most attractive in the various sizes and combinations, and should make a beautiful and artistic memento for the memorable day. The flowers will be sold on the Saturday, November 5th, before Armistice Day, when the public will be asked to wear these emblems in memory of the men who fought and died far away from their native land.

FEAR UNEMPLOYED ATTEMPT TO MAKE A DEMONSTRATION

THOUSANDS OF LONDON POLICE GUARD DOWNING STREET

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Elaborate precautions were taken by police to-day to cope with a monster demonstration by unemployed who planned to force their way into Downing Street, to interview the Premier. Thousands of police were stationed within a radius of a mile from Downing Street while mounted men occupied the Mall approach to Buckingham Palace. There was no attempt on the part of the police to interfere with Sinn Fein sympathizers, who gathered in Whitehall and cheered the arrival of Sinn Fein delegates at noon, but gatherings in the streets were broken up.

NEW FRONT EXPOSED

WORKMEN REMOVED BARRICADE THIS MORNING — PRESENTS VERY HANDSOME AND PRACTICAL APPEARANCE.

Early this morning, workmen removed the barricade from the front of the Grafton store, and the beautiful new front stood revealed to the passer by as a unique addition to the improvements gradually developing on George Street. The full width of two large stores being combined in one by this handsome two entrance front, has a massive appearace, and carefully thought out lines present the greatest possible show frontage to the street.

The leaded glass top is in a bright new design, entirely different from several that have been installed lately and adds considerably to the general effect of the whole design. The architect, Mr. Barry, is to be congratulated on the successful carrying out of his ideas, and the contractors, Messrs. Ephgrave and Barrett, deserve great credit for the capable manner in which such an important piece of work has been carried out, and the rapidity with which it has been completed. Grafton's now present a transformed exterior that lends the weight of its impressiveness to an already prepared modern interior and brings the store up to a high efficiency plane equal to the best in any of the large cities.

CROP REPORT

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agricultue.

Recent rains are welcomed in crop repots from all sections of the Province. They will enable fall ploughing, which had in some sections been held up, to be completed, and will give new life to the fall pastures and new growth to fall wheat. In some sections such as the Niagara peninsula, the rains of the latter part of the week have been welcome because they broke a drought which has been continous for several months. Eastern Ontario counties likewise report heaviest rains since the spring.

On the whole farm work is well advanced for the season and it is noted that farmers have now time to give attention to the improvement of their premises. From such widely separated counties as Huron in the West and Lennox and Addington in the East come reports of increased attention to the matter of drainage. Farmers are securing a supply of tile and are also devoting attention to repairing fences and work of this character.

Live stock is reported in very good condition but markets are still quiet "Any amount of fair stock (cattle) can be picked up at 4c to 5c per pound and although prices are low, few are stocking for winter feeding" is the report from Brant, which also expresses conditions in many other sections. In some cases farmers are buying for wintering and speculation but they have difficulty in determining what price they can offer to get out even in the spring.

A good deal of fowl has been shipped through local Egg Circles in Eastern Ontario and sold on a graded basis with good satisfaction to the members.

Fall wheat acreages are reported to be somewhat in excess of last year but the Hessian fly has put in an appearance in Western Ontario and one or two of the fields of wheat have had to be ploughed up.

In dairy districts the milk flow is being well maintained but ther has been a drop in the price of cheese. Recent prices have ben only 14½c to 14¾c per pound, a drop of aproximately 2c in a week.

Turnips and mangels are now being gathered and there are many reports to the effect that turnips are badly infested ith aphids, but mangels will be a fair crop.

The potato crop is now finding its way to the market and a wide range of prices is reported. In Dufferin and Simcoe counties prices of $1.00 to $1.10 per bag are noted while Lennox and Frontenac in Eastern Ontario they are being marketed at $2.00 to $2.50 per bag.

From New Ontario come reports of increased interest in silage on the part of farmers. In Manitoulin a number of new silos are being built as the corn crop has been exceptionally good and farmers with silos have plenty of feed for their stock. In Temiskaming considerably more silage than usual has been stored and erection of silos and the production of silage crops. In Kenora two new silos have gone up this year and have been filled during the past week with sunflowers. This crop is cut in the field with an ordinary corn binder and put in the silo the same as corn. Even in a dry year such as the past season the average yield of sunflowers will be about 25 tons to the acre.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil.)

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street, W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money, make a250 to $500 per month.

HOW HOUSING PLAN WORKED IN OSHAWA

Ontario Reformer: At the end of this month it is expected that the building program undertaken by the Oshawa Housing commission covering the erection of over 20 houses will be completed. Ten of this year's houses already have been sold while enquiries have been received regarding others. It may be necessary to rent, for the winter, some of the houses now nearing completion if they are not sold, but it is expected that with the opening of the spring they will all be taken off the commission's hands. More than 100 houses have been sold by Secretary Gliddon since the Commission's programme was first launched, and the payments as a rule have been very regular. The original appropriation of $600,000 has not been all spent yet, but this year's work has taken a big slice off it.

HOW YOU CAN REMOVE EVERY TRACE OF HAIR

(Toilet Talks.)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. ECLIPSE OF THE MOON, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 16.

An eclipse of the moon is scheduled for the above date, when more than nine-tenths of that planet's sphere will be obscured. The commencement of the eclipse will be visible only in the eastern hemisphere, but the latter and major will be visible here if the sky is clear.

The moon, which is full on the 16th, will enter the penumbra at 3.01 in the afternoon and it will pass into the umbra at 4.14. But it is only at 5.30 p.m. that it rises here and accordingly will then appear partially eclipsed. Sunset follows at 5.34 and the eclipse reaches its maximum just twenty minutes later, at 5.54. Representing its diameter as one, then 0.933 of its face will be covered by the earth's shadow. The moon leaves the umbra at 7.34 and finally clears the penumbra at 8.46 p.m.

PLANS FOR PETERBORO CAMPAIGN

Although the local campaign to raise $10,000 for the National Sanitarium Association is eleven days away plans that it is believed will send them "over the top" with flying colors, are being completed. It is expected Peterborough will reach its objective in a snappy two days' campaign, under the following officers who have been elected:

Hon. chairman—Mayor A. A. McIntyre.
Chairman—G. A. Gillespie.
Vice-chairman—W. G. Morrow.
Secretary—W. R. Morris.
Treasurer—W. H. Dunsford.

The record of other places should provide a stimulus for Peterborough workers. Present indications are that the provincial objective of $370,000 will be attained. Mr. R. Dunbar, of the Association, who began the organization here, has wired Mr. E. Hugonnet, to whom he turned over the work here, that Oshawa, under the chairmanship of George McLaughlin, has subscribed nearly half its objective, having been materially assisted by a municipal grant of $1,000. Belleville has accepted $5,600 as its objective and has already raised $1,000. Senator Mulholland, Port Hope, chairman, says that Port Hope may more than double its objective and Chairman Plunkett and Chairman Jury of Bowmanville are actively organizing.

Organizing Here.

The organization here is progressing rapidly and the executive are meeting with a great deal of encouragement in business and professional quarters and citizens generally have expressed a whole-hearted willingnes to assist in raising the money necessary for the continuance of the Association's fight against tuberculosis.

WORKLESS CLASH WITH POLICE IN DEMONSTRATIONS

"BREAD OR REVOLUTION" READ BANNERS IN PARADE IN LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 13.— (Canadian Press.)— Clashes occurred between police and unemployed at Cambridge Circus this afternoon. The demonstration was the biggest of its kind ever seen in London. The banners read, "Bread or Revolution." Fourteen thousand police were engaged in contending with the paraders.

GOOD EFFECTS FIRE PREVENTION

Because of the adverse weather conditions all week the Fire Department have been unable to parade the streets and announce to Peterborough at large that it is Fire Prevention Week, but this morning, under consenting if not smiling skies, part of the department in the hose wagon heralded by penetrating clangs of the bell, drove around the city displaying a large banner advertising the National week.

The propaganda on fire protection has had a salutary effect in inspiring business places to elminate combustible waste materials from their cellars and back yards and last week, after an inspection of the business district, Fire Chief Grange had not a complaint to make. Cleaner cellars were found than ever before and this the Chief thinks is due to the wide publicity given the fact that the best friend of the fire demon is dirty cellars filled with combustible materials. The public generally he thinks, are taking cognizance of the fire danger and not only in business places but in homes, the fire preventio spirit is plainly evident.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.— (Canadian Press.))—Resumption of trading in the stock market after the holiday showed no material alterations from recent irregular tendencies. Domestic Oils of the several speculative varieties continued to feature the constructive side at fractional gains, but Mexican and European Oils were heavy, Royal Dutch losing 1 1-2 points. Firmness was shown by minor rails and metals, but food specialties, notably American Sugarand South Porto Rico Sugar, showed further weakness. Unsettlement in the foreign exchange market was precipitated by the extreme weakness of German Marks, which fell to a new low record.

Business broadened during the morning but the movement was entirely at the expense of quoted values. The foreign situation as indicated by the weakness of the leading exchanges and a continuance of the 6 per cent. call money rate, encouraged the shorts to enlarge their commitments. Mex. Pet. forfeited 3 points, and the independent steels, as well as tobaccos, coalers and leathers, lost one to two and a half points.

Heaviness among the Junior rails became more marked.

Liberty bonds were steady but they showed little of their recent activity.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. — Canadian Press. — Sterling exchange was weak; demand Great Britain 384. 5-8, Canadian dollars 8 1-2 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. — Canadian Press. — Wheat opened 1 1-4 to 2 1-4 cents lower with Dec. at 1.13 to 1.13 1-2 and May 1.17 1-2 to 1.18, scored a moderate rally and then sagged again.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat. Corn after starting 3-4 to 2c lower with Dec. 47 3-4 to 48c underwent a slight additional sag.

Initial prices for oats were 1-4 to 5-8c down; Dec. 34 1-2 to 34 5-8, and ther were other losses later.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, October 13. — Canadian Press. — C. P. R. was the most active issue on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Opening at 124 1-2, the same as yesterday's close, it weakened to 123 3-4 closing at the low with a turn over of 153 shares. Canada Steamships Preferred was fairly active opening at 50 1-2 and closing at 50. Trading was very quiet throughout the remainder of the list with dealings in Victory bonds particularly light.

THE ALARM BOXES ARE NOW VISIBLE

BOXES TRANSFERRED TO THE POLES OF UTILITIES COMMISSION

Coincident with Fire Prevention week, the placing of the red signal lamps over the fire alarm boxes this week has been singularly appropriate. Six of the red globes are being used now, and the installation of the others will be rapidly proceeded with. When the work is finished there will be 36 of the lamps, one over each box.

Until now the fire alarm boxes have been on the poles of the Bell Telephone, but when the question of marking the boxes by a light at night was suggested by Fire Chief Grange, the Bell Telephone said at first that a rental of $1 for each pole would have to be charged because of the danger there would be to the linemen in having a high voltage wire in close proximity to the low voltage ones. This view was quite reasonable, but the Chief favored moving the boxes over to the Utilities police, which he was invited to do by the manager, H. O. Fisk, so that the connection for lighting could be easily made. A later compromise by the Bell Telephone, allowing them to put up the lights without any charge, providing the city assumed all responsibility for accidents, has been turned down by Fire Chief Grange, on the grounds that the city would never agree to accept such a responsibility, and the firemen have consequently proceeded with the moving of the boxes from the Bell to the Utilities poles.

Fourteen boxes have now been shifted, and as soon as possible lights will be placed over these. Electricians on the fire department have done all the work, and in this regard the city has been saved a considerable item for labor that would otherwise have been the case.

The lighting apparatus has cost $8 for each box. The lights are permanent, and most citizens must have noticed the red glow over the downtown boxes day and night. Remarks from all quarters on the apparent effectiveness of the system would seem to justify the slight expenditure. The way in which the signal lamps have been placed make them visible from several directions, and the red opaqueness of the globe makes them clearly visible for many city blocks, their reflection on the glistening pavements the last few nights showing an unmistakable scarlet beacon in Peterborough's "Great white way."

CONDITIONS IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Mrs. E. V. Frederick Confirms Statement as to General Unrest.

Mrs. E. V. Frederick, just returned from a visit in England, confirms the statements as to the general state of unrest and unemployment conditions prevalent there just now, although, as she remarks, "the theatres are doing as good a business as ever." Throughout England and Scotland, there was unprecedented dry weather this year, and, during her sojourn of nearly four months in England, she had an umbrella open only once. The crops suffered to some extent with the drought, but were helped gy the excessively wet weather in April and May.

Mrs. Frederick reports the unfailing interest taken in the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Westminster Abbey, and the crowds which daily encircle the cenotaph to the fallen men at Whitehall in London, the base of which is kept constantly covered with flowers. A handsome representation of this cenotaph was brought back by Mrs. Frederick and presented to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. who have placed it on the walls of their rooms on Murray street.

BLUE BIRD DANCE WAS BIG SUCCESS

The dance held at the G.W.V.A. Hall last evening under the auspices of the Blue Bird Club was quite a successful event. Paul Gliddon's orchestra provided the music for the occasion. These dances will become more popular as they become more widely known.

SPORT GOSSIP

The financial statement of the Lindsay Baseball Club shows a balance of $500.00 which amount is available for use by the Lindsay Amateur Athletic Association now in the course of organization. The personnel of the provisional committee is:—. H. Stinson K.C., John Carew, Mayor O'Reilly, A. E. Taylor, B. L. McLean, M. J. Dedman, W. J. McMahon and Tony Bakogeorge.

The Town Baseball League of Port Hope reports a balance of $97.10. The local City League while not a financial success took the juvenile players under its wing, and won success that cannot be measured in dollars and cets.

Doug. Loomis goes to Toronto at the week end for the annual meeting of the Ontario Basketball Association Peterborough will again be represented in the Intermediate series of the Association. The champions will be without the services of Seely and Tom Pogue.

Picton and Toronto "hits" will probably start their O.B.A.A. series next Saturday. Local fans including the C.G.E. club from manager to bat boy are pulling for the Pictonians. After winning the Quinte League Picton called in a coach, and the team is now headed toward another championship.

The delay in the opening game of the Interscholastic rugby series, due to the necessity of making a change in the schedule is being used to good advantage by the Collegiate squad. The Central Park team will be in good shape for the first test on the gridiron.

Hillcrests and Guelph play the first game of their O.B.A.A. series at Toronto on Saturday. Early in the season, Hillcrests won a 4 to 3 game with the Leafs in Guelph.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS

WORLD'S SERIES RECEIPTS MAY PASS MILLION MARK

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—A new record for world's series receipts was made yesterday when the grand total to date reached $804,781. This is $82,367 more than the previous high mark made in the series between the Cincinnati Nationals and the Chicago Americans in 1919.

Should the Yankees win today's game and force the series into the ninth and final game, the total receipts undoubtedly will pass the million-dollar mark. As the receipts stand, the total for the seven games is almost twelve times the aggregate collected in the 1905 series between the Giants and Philadelphia Athletics, the first series played under the rules of the National Commission.

Another capacity crowd witnessed yesterday's game. The official attendance was given as 36,503, and the gate receipts $118,074. Of this sum the Advisory Board, which succeeded the National Commission, appropriates $17,846.10, while the balance goes to the club owners. The attendance and gate receipts fell a trifle short of Friday's record for the series, there being six paid admissions less and a difference of $33, the third game having attracted 36,000 spectators, who paid $119,007 to see the Giants score their initial victory over the Yankees.

NED. GOURDIN WINS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Ned. Gourdin, Harvard University, world's champion running broad jumper, won the National Pentathlon championship of the Amateur Athletic Union at Travers' Island yesterday. He led a field of seven competitors with a score of 12 points.

CARROLL RE-INSTATED

MONTREAL, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—"Dink" Carroll, kicking half with the McGill Rugby squad last season, has been re-instated as an amateur and will be eligible for the Varsity game on Saturday, according to a telegram received by officials of the College Club. Whether he will start against the Blue and White in the big game is problematic as he is still suffering from an injury received in the play-off game last fall at Kingston and to-day had to be removed from the old field after making one kick in the game against the McGill old boys. It is expected that Flanagan, another of the Red and White hopes on the back division, will be out of hospital this evening while Doug. McGregor has recovered from his indisposition and was present at training last night.

With a team composed of former McGill stars, some of whom had figured on Red and White teams as far back as 1908, the McGill old boys showed many flashes of their old time form in the game played against the under graduate squad yesterday afternoon and managed to hold the present Inter-Collegiate title-seekers to a 2 to 1 score.

SNOOKY TOO HUMAN IN THIS, ONLY FAULT CRITICS FIND

"There's only one thing the matter with the picture. It is too true to life. It is too clever in its humorous treatment of life on the farm. People who have never lived there will not appreciate the amazing cleverness of Snooky."

This was a criticism made at a private showing of "Ready to Serve" latest of the two-reel comedies featuring the Humanzee, which will be seen at the Allen Theatre today. For the first time in the history of this service, there is no animal that can be classified as "wild," unless the amazing Snooky himself, whose parents came from the African jungles can be included, and Snooky, as the farmhand, cares for them all.

Little Ada May McKenzie appears as the farmer's daughter and Baby Alfred Austin has a thrilling role when she is rescued from a burning house by Snooky climbing hand over hand across a rope and grasping the child from the ledge of the window while the flames leap about. It is a picture promised as nine-tenths laughs and the final tenth a genuine heart-throb.

When Pleasure confronts him and Opportunity, refusing to wait for Youth, leaves him to his fate.

When Youth meets Beauty, Wealth, Fashion, Intoxication, and Tempation at the Primrose Path with whom he associates with delight.

When Youth consents to go with Crime to rob the home of Wealth, and hearing a choir sing in a church he repents and resolves to return to his home.

Hearing no word from him, "Love" goes to the city where she is directed to the Primrose Path. But "Love" is not allowed to enter the cabaret so returns to her home.

"Youth's" money has fast disappeared. "Chance" waiting for his opportunity directs him to a gambling house wrere he can double his money. But luck is not with 'Youth' and he leaves the place bankrupt with only the ring which "Love" had given him.

At the "House of Last Resort" "Youth" applies for work. A slumming party made up of his former friends come to the Tavern. With the exception of "Temptation" all have forgetten him. She slips "Wealth's" wallet in his apron. "Youth" is accused of theft and thrown from the place.

On the way, he hears the singing of the choir in a church. Remembering his mother he refuses to go falling on his knees, resolves to return to his home.

With "Experience" he returns to the liitle town. There "Love" and "Hope await his coming. 'Ambition" again seeks "Youth" who with "Love" at his side starts life onew.

Two big double Vaudeville Acts will complete this excellent show for tonight and the balance of this week. You have probably seen the stage show, now come and see this really beautiful production.

AT THE GRAND.

Introducing another and the very most modern species "Vamp" comes Miss Margeurite Williams to the Grand Opera House Saturday matinee and evening, October 15th as one of the bright spots in the brightest musical comedy of the season.

In her alluring characterization of a type "a la movie mode" Miss Williams gives the comedy stage some thing quite unique and of decided departure from either the stage or screen versions with which we are more or less familiar. Her's being a humorous role in the play, "dramatics" of the hysterical unnatural sort, so much and irksomely overplayed by the famous screen vamp, have no place. All of the sublety for which a critical audience will look, however, is embodied in Miss Williams' delineation but in the finish of this player's charming art it is deliciously subdued and attuned to the fine texture of this happy fairy play.

Youthful and statuesque, of leonine style and grace and her beauty enchanced by her wonderful titian hair, Miss Williams is assuredly qualified with all of nature's gifts for looking this part as also for displaying the exquisite costume creations it calls for and in her possession of one of those rare contralto voices she leaves nothing to be desired, either by eyes or ears, of the most exacting playgoer.

"FRENCH LEAVE"

"French Leave" that inimitable comedy by Reginald Berkeley which has been the sensation of the London season where it is now in it's fifth month at the Globe Theatre, has established the reputation of it's author as the outstanding English humorist of the day. It's plot is most simple and yet it's characters become involved in a hopeless maze of intrigue from which it requires nothing less than the invention of a man thoroughly acquainted with the machinery of playwriting to rescue them. This Mr. Berkeley accomplishes most successfully and having cut the gordian knot and released his characters from the difficulties in which they had become enmeshed, ends his comedy most happily. He possesses in a great degree the ability of clearly outlining his characterizations. His old General forms a ludicrous third to an imaginary triangle as he plunges from one funnny situation into another while Mlle. Juliette into astounding and farcial situations. This tour with Miss Surtees and her all-English cast should be most successful.

The Trend of Prices in Furs

Many lines of Raw Furs have gone up in Price since we purchased—some 10%, others on up, with one touching as much as 50% advance.

This has not been a speculative advance, but one based on an actual shortage of the material, so that one cannot hope for Lower Prices on these lines until protection and conservation by law brings back the natural increase to somewhere near the consumption per year; and we fear this will not be done, as all Governments are slow to respond to these demands, and some never will.

Meanwhile — Buy Your Fur Needs Now — as Prices will be Higher on many lines after present stocks are cleared.

We solicit a discriminating inspection of our Fur Stock as to Quality, Style, and Price.

NORWOOD M. LASH TO ADDRESS ENGINEERS

Norwood M. Lash Chief Engineer of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, will address the Peterboro branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 8 p.m. to-night and the engineers expect to have one of the largest meetings they they have ever had. An invitation has been extended to the public generaly to hear Mr. Lash, who is one of the most prominent engineers in his line on the continent. His address will be interesting because it will cover to some extent the reasons why the telephone rates must be advanced.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Dear Mr. Editor,—

It is gratifying to note in the brief but excellent report of Mr. Westbye's address on the house-fly, mosquitoe and impure milk that you propose to print the address in full.

The remarkable films that supplemented the address ought to be seen by a larger audience than that of the Chamber of Commerce meeting, and particularly by our young people, who surely would be enlightened by them. To rid Peterborough of the fly and mosquito and of infected milk is practical by public understanding and co-operation. The first would be a certain result of reading Mr. Westbye's address and everyone seeing the pictures will want action.

Surely it is practical for the Board of Health and Board of Education to arrange for a presentation by Mr. Westbye before the films are returned to Washington.
